The Recognized Standard Insecticide.
Not a cure-all, but a specific remedy for all sap sucking insects infesting plant life, such as green, black, white fly, red spider, thrips, mealy bug, brown and white scale.
Universally endorsed by commercial growers and professional gardeners of reputation, as the insecticide that does excel all.

$2.50 per Gallon. $1.00 per Quart.

FUNGINE

"Actions Speak Louder than Words." So we are willing to let the merit of this comparatively new fungicide speak for itself. We claim it has no equal for mildew, rust and wilt attacking flower, fruit or vegetable plants. A trial will convince you.

$2.00 per Gallon. 75c. per Quart.
Aphine and Fungine are spraying materials, readily soluble in water, used at various strengths, according to directions on each can. They are equally effective in the greenhouse and in the garden.

Here Is One Way To Do It

A roofed over walk about four feet long connects the work room and the residence. It is really entirely separate, yet when so connected, is reachable in practically any kind of weather. Many a small house so started has led to larger ones, simply because of the genuine personal pleasure it made so easily possible for the owner. There is a thought in that for you gardeners. But the really big thought is—the U-Bar. Be sure your house is going to be the U-Bar and not simply a curved eave house that looks something like it. Send for catalog.

ERECTED AT RUMSON, N. J.

SEEING how attractive and practical this arrangement is, do you wonder why THE LUTTON PATENT CURVED EAVE method has changed Greenhouse Construction during the past few years? The result has been the most successful house that can be produced; the other concerns who had been producing the same antiquated buildings for years had to simply destroy their patterns as well as their catalogues and start anew. Just ask some of our imitators to show you some of their curved eave houses built before THE LUTTON PATENT was granted; you will then be convinced that you had better consult with me.

Boddington's "Quality" Christmas-Flowering

SWEET PEAS

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once. Mr. Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great Winter Sweet Pea Specialist, sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stock of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliest of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

FILL OUT COUPON BELOW AND RETURN

We can make immediate delivery on all the following varieties.

Quantity

-BODDINGTON'S EXTRA-EARLY CHRISTMAS WHITE SNOW BIRD. An exceptionally early Sweet Pea for indoor flowering—will bloom six weeks after sowing. Color clear white, upon long stems; habit fairly dwarf and of exceptionally free-flowering qualities. Without doubt the finest early white for indoor planting. We sell one grower in Pennsylvania 35 lbs. of this variety every year; name on application. Oz., 25 cts.; ¼ lb., 75 cts.; ½ lb., $1.25; lb., $2.00.
-BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS PINK. This is the earliest and most profitable and useful Sweet Pea in cultivation, as by sowing the seed under glass in latter part of August, flowers can be cut from Thanksgiving on during the Winter months. Oz., 15 cts.; ¼ lb., 50 cts.; ½ lb., 85 cts.; lb., $1.50.
-BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS WHITE. A companion to our Christmas Pink. Just as free and profuse a bloomer. Oz., 15 cts.; ¼ lb., 50 cts.; ½ lb., 85 cts.; lb., $1.50.
-ANGELINO. Self pink; new variety. Oz., 50 cts.; ¼ lb., $1.50; ½ lb., $2.75; lb., $4.50.
-CANARY. Similar to the above, but flowers of an exceptionally good yellow. Oz., 35 cts.; ¼ lb., $1.00; ½ lb., $1.75; lb., $3.00.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Carnations

Carnation plants should be given supports at once. It not only keeps them in a neat shape, but also from getting broken. The earliest planted houses will now be giving a fair crop of flowers, so disbudding will be in order. It is a good rule when you start cutting flowers to let feeding begin too. Give light mulches of soil and cow manure in equal parts. Apply a fair sprinkling of bone meal on the surface before the mulch is applied. Do not put these mulches on too deep; about half an inch will be enough. When the nights become cooler run a little fire heat through the pipes. Endeavor to maintain a night temperature of from 50 to 55 degrees and a rise to 65 or 70 degrees on all sunny days, but during cloudy weather 58 to 60 degrees will be about right. From now on see that the houses have abundance of fresh air whenever possible as carnations are great lovers of it. Fumigate once a week from now on which will be a sure preventive for fly and thrips.

Care of Smilax

The general routine of work connected with young smilax will be weeding, watering, ventilating and syringing. Keep the plants properly tied up to prevent tangling and it will save trouble later on. Syringe on all bright days, getting well under the foliage which will help the plants against insects, such as spider and thrips. Ventilate freely, but judiciously and a little heat in the pipes will be an advantage from this out. When the outside conditions allow, the temperature should be kept as near as possible to the right mark. They do well in a night temperature of 60 or 65 degrees, with 10 or 15 degrees higher with sun heat. On dark, rainy or misty weather about 5 or 8 degrees more than the night temperature will be enough. Where strings are well up they can be given a light mulch of well rotted cow manure and soil in equal parts. Before applying the mulch give the beds a dusting of fine bone.

Demorphanthea aurantiaca

This South African annual has increased in public favor on account of its rich orange flowers and its lasting qualities after being cut. Seed sown now will flower by January on. Make a compost of soil and leaf mold in equal parts and fill some 2½ or 3 inch pots; place about three seeds in each pot and keep shaded and moist until they begin to come up. Give them the coolest house you have at present. When they have filled these pots with roots you can shift them into a larger size. When the seedlings become strong thin out to one plant. To flower well they like a temperature of about 50 degrees at night. When you are ready, plant them out on a bench setting them a foot apart each way. Keep an even degree of moisture and syringe on all good days until the flowers begin to open. Every florist should grow a few because they are something different from the usual run and will take the eye of many a customer.

Hardy Phlox

In making a plantation of phlox work the ground fully 18 inches deep and do not be afraid of making it too rich. Give as much manure as you can dig down. The earlier you can plant it the better, after Sept. 20, as it will give the plants time to become well rooted before hard weather sets in. They should be set no closer than eighteen inches apart to do well. By a judicious selection of varieties a continuity of bloom can be had from June until freezing weather. It is well to grow a lot of the white and pink sorts as they come in handy for design work. Where you grow quite a lot in the field and wish to increase the stock lift a good number in about a month from now and heel them in a cold frame where they can be protected until January when you can bring them in and propagate for another year.

Oncidiums

Where these orchids have been in pits or cold frames they should now be removed to their winter quarters. Care must be taken never to let the compost remain dry on all such species as Oncidium Forbesi, O. incurvum, O. ornithorynchum, O. splendidum, O. tigrinum and O. varicosum Rogersi, from this out and up until they flower. Remove shading gradually now so that by the middle of October they will have full sun. Keep the floors and benches well damped so as to make a moist atmosphere. From this out it is better to have fire heat than to depend on shutting up houses early to retain heat, for these orchids should have plenty of ventilation without cold draughts, as the outside conditions will permit. Most oncidiums will do well in a temperature of 45 to 52 degrees at night with a rise of from 10 to 15 degrees with sun. By placing some in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees at night they will bloom earlier, thereby making more of a succession.

Tulips

Get all tulips boxed up and put into pans as soon as received. Give them as good bulb compost as described in this column before. After they are planted place in a bulb cellar if you have one, or if not put them outside on a level piece of open ground, taking care when choosing that the water will pass off freely. Have the flats in straight rows and each kind by itself. Place a heavy wooden stake where each variety ends; this will make less trouble later on. A thorough watering should be given to each flat and when you are sure that they are wet through they can be covered with six inches of soil over all. If the weather is dry they should be examined once in awhile to see that they will not become dry. Among the best for forcing are La Reine, Pottebakker, Cottage Maid, Couleur Cardinal, Vermilion Brilliant. For early use Duc Van Thol, red and yellow, and Belle Alliance.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Poinsettias; Compost for Next Season's Supply; Cuttings of Vincas; Escallonia Amazonica for Christmas; Making a Lily Bed; Mignonette a business standpoint but we can congratulate the horticultural interests on the fact that this year appears to be an exception in this respect for it seems to be universally in the air that we have a busy and profitable season ahead of us. The greenhouse builders, plantmen, florists' supply dealers and others who tested out the feeling of the trade at the Chicago convention all have the same story to tell of buoyant confidence and optimism among the various sections of the trade to which they cater. Prospects so rosy beget enterprise and enthusiasm and there is abundant encouragement for everyone to do his best and to take fullest advantage of the opportunity.

Old ways and new

"Bumper crops" in all the great agricultural staples are generally given as one of the bases for the sanguine tone of the business world as to the season's prospects and undoubtedly this view is well-founded. But it will be well for all of us not to lose sight of the obligation that rests upon us individually to take advantage of the situation in a systematic and up-to-date manner if we are to profit by it, for the day has gone by forever when the flower grower or flower seller can reap fat returns from a business carried on in "any old way." The subjects which are more and more coming to the front among the far-seeing men who are the "live wires" of the clubs and societies interested in commercial horticulture—such as "overhead costs," "telegraph delivery," "modern publicity," etc.—are not fancies, fads or bugaboos but very real and very serious problems that vitally affect the fate of every individual in whatever branch of the business he may be employed and will force themselves more and more strongly into the foreground with each succeeding year. The business methods pursued will have more to do with the measure of success you win this season than bumper crops and "general prosperity." These things only furnish the field and the opportunity and the inspiration.

"A friend in need"

Already the sweet pea, so recently taken up for development by specialists, begins to suffer the inevitable penalty of high breeding and the grower who would attempt its culture on a large or small scale either outside or under glass must, if he expects to succeed, get informed on the various fungous and constitutional diseases that are liable to attack his crop and the best methods of preventing or conquering these troubles. The various state experiment stations are now equipped so that they can be of inestimable service in scientific investigation of plant ailments, ascertaining facts by methods far beyond the reach of the commercial grower and when an appeal is made for the assistance and co-operation of the grower, as in the call from Prof. Taubenhaus which appears in another page of this paper, the response should be willing and spontaneous so that he may have fullest access to all possible information bearing upon the research he is undertaking. This we hope our readers who have had any experience in sweet pea growing will do for Prof. Taubenhaus and with such co-operation we have no doubt that conclusions of much practical value will be determined and widely disseminated for the benefit of the grower.

Encouraging business outlook

As September slips along all thoughts will center on the business season now opening with so much of hopeful encouragement in the outlook. It has been the rule in the past to regard the year of a national election as an unpromising one from

During the few weeks' absence of our valued contributor on "Fruit and Vegetables Under Glass," George H. Penson, this department will be temporarily discontinued but we shall endeavor to fill the space with good matter until Mr. Penson's return when he will resume his pleasant relations with the readers of HORTICULTURE.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

The Liquid Manure Tank

Now is the time to look over your liquid manure tank and see that it is in a good condition. Do not allow water to stand in it and breed mosquitoes by the thousand; drain it and keep it dry. It will not hurt the tank—that is sure—and the place will be much better off with a few thousand less mosquitoes. Clear out all old manure from the tank and those little heaps that have accumulated around it. Remember, flies breed in manure, therefore if at all possible keep it in a screened shed. See that the pipes in the tank are all in good shape to stand the coming season's work. Where steam pipes are run into it to heat the water in the winter time see that they are not all eaten up by rust and falling to pieces. If such is the case now is the time to do the necessary repairing. Do not wait until you are ready to use the tank and then first think of making repairs.

Ventilation

With September come many fogs, chilly nights, hot days and usually about all the different kinds of weather there are. All this is very trying on the roses, and on the nerves of the grower. All that can be done is to have patience and take it as it comes. Do not water on foggy or cloudy days, unless it is absolutely necessary, and should this be the case be careful not to wet the bottom foliage of the plants any more than you can possibly help.

Also do not let the water run all over the walks, thus making the atmosphere in the house unnecessarily damp. This of course makes but little difference on clear days, but you will find you are nursing trouble if you are not careful how you handle the hose on cloudy days.

American Beauties are very apt to get spot, if watered much during cloudy weather. Look over the benches very carefully so as not to water if they appear to be wet. We usually try to "touch up" the dry spots in weather like that.

Brides and Bridesmaids

With the cool nights of September these two roses will improve a great deal in quality, the buds becoming larger and of better color. Benches of these that have already been mulched will not take quite so much water as the others. Keep the plants tied up, and yet be careful not to bunch them up too much or the plants will lose considerable foliage and this is none too good for the plants. Where these two teas are grown merely as a side line do not neglect keeping them clean and healthy, the same as you would your American Beauties, growing in the center benches.

Do not start running the houses cool as yet; and do not think of closing air down tight on nights when the thermometer drops down to 50 degrees F. outside. It is not for the best to allow the house to drop to 50 degrees at night when the day temperature runs up to 90 degrees or more. We like to keep our houses up to 64 degrees and to do so it has been necessary to use heat off and on almost all summer. Many would consider this a waste of coal and labor but we find it pays well in the end and that is what really counts.

Outside Roses

These in some cases will be pretty well cut down and shy of foliage, but can now be brought around again to cut a nice crop before fall. A light frost seems to have but little effect on Killarneys. We have cut fairly nice blooms after several frosts had struck and destroyed all the more tender flowers. Syringe the plants over three or four times a day and they will soon break away. As soon as breaks show an application of cow manure should be given or if convenient a light dose of liquid every four or five days will do the plants worlds of good. When using liquid manure outside, always water the plants thoroughly with clear water first and then follow with liquid about an hour afterward. If liquid is applied direct and the plants happen to be a little dry, you may ruin them all.

The Iris as a Drought Resistant

We keep about 100,000 of these plants in 170 varieties, and I never saw, even in California, the land of flowers, or in Rochester, that great garden of delight, or on the rich estates of New England anything to compare with them in their glorious June splendor. But what impresses me most is their ability to withstand the fearful heat and prolonged drought of our western prairies. The summer just passed has been one of the hottest and driest known. Through May and the summer months we barely had one and one-half inch of rain a month. The mercury was often 100 and the hot winds blew like a blast of death and yet these heroic plants endured the trying climate with unflinching fortitude. August is a good time to dig and ship and we have been sending them everywhere, from California to North Carolina. Yesterday I dug several hundred. The ground was dry as an ash heap. But the roots seemed to gather in and store the moisture; they were long, full, and plump and fleshy. Other perennials growing beside them were suffering and dying, but I failed to see in our large field a single iris that was dying. They have the same power of resisting the cold. Last winter was one of the coldest known and, save the tender Japs, not one succumbed. These are of but little account with us, and in California they sunburn so badly they have generally discarded them, unless they put them under a screen.

We have now about 30 kinds of the Siberian type, hardy everywhere, besides the great hosts of the Germans and their crosses. Of course we of the west who are shut out from the rhododendrons, azaleas, kalmias, and many other flowers which succeed well in the East are delighted to know that we have the paeonies and iris in their various forms of beauty and their long time of blooming.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

The meeting of the New York Florists' Club which took place on Monday evening, Sept. 9, was in every way a success, members attending to the number of about one hundred, additional interest being enthused by the presence of John K. M. L. Farquhar, who made a most interesting speech in the course of which he referred to the forthcoming International Flower Show, which he felt certain would be a great success and to which end, promised his hearty support.

President Richard Vincent, Jr., made a most interesting address on convention matters in general and an account of the work he had accomplished thus far while president. Another interesting talk was that by W. A. Manda, who gave some very interesting details of the recent London International Exhibition and he also had on view the case of medals and cups he so deservedly won there.

Patrick O'Mara also spoke entertainingly on convention matters and proposed votes of thanks to the Chicago Florists' Club and Ladies' Auxiliary.

Secretary John Young of the S. A. F., gave a detailed report on the Trade Exhibition at Chicago. Mr. Young expressed his appreciation of the kind treatment received by him while in Chicago and of the help given him by the local people. The exhibitors, too, had made the work of trade superintendent very pleasant. He had been especially fortunate in having George Asmus of the Advisory Committee at his back at all times, that gentleman's experience in managing the Coliseum Flower Shows having made him a past master in such work. He said that it was through the efforts of Mr. Asmus that the Coliseum people had permitted the exhibitors to get into the building on Thursday preceding the convention, and allowed until Tuesday following the convention to remove their exhibits.

Mr. Young replied quite fully to the criticisms which Mr. Rosnosky had made at the meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia in reference to cost of installing exhibits at Chicago, stating that Mr. Rosnosky had greatly exaggerated the conditions and that he holds all receipts, documents, etc., in proof of this. He admitted that there was some annoyance as to carpenters but no more than occurs in any other large city and stated that neither the S. A. F. nor the management had made any arrangements with any carpenter.

A committee was appointed to take some action to secure arrangements for the proper receipt of flowers intended for delivery to passengers on shipboard, also resolutions committees on the death of Wm. R. Smith, Mrs. A. S. Burns and Alexander Holt.

W. R. Pierson gave a detailed report for the Committee on Publicity, of which he is chairman. To comply with the resolution passed at the Chicago convention, the following local committee was appointed on publicity: I. S. Hendrickson, Herman Warendorff, C. C. Trepel, John Young, Charles Schenck, C. A. Dards, Walter Sheridan, A. L. Miller, Alex McConnell, Alfred Bunyard, L. W. C. Tut-hill, A. T. De La Mare, Leonard Barron, F. R. Pierson, C. H. Totty, W. R. Pierson, M. C. Ebel, H. A. Bunyard, W. E. Marshall and John B. Nugent.

A fine lot of gladioli were staged by John Lewis Childs and for Fire King No. 6 he was awarded honorable mention. Charles H. Totty exhibited chrysanthemum Smith's Advance, honorable mention; new seedling rose No. 190, a brilliant fleshy pink, very vigorous grower and free flowering. (vote of thanks, exhibitor does not wish it scored at this time); new hardy aster "Climax," color lavender, (highly commended). E. S. Miller showed a collection of gladioli and was awarded the thanks of club.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

Department of Plant Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., offers for registration the following new seedling rose H. T. (J. B. Clark × Richmond.) Any person objecting to the registration or to the use of the proposed name is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from date.

Raiser's Description—The rose is a hybrid tea, a cross between Richmond and J. B. Clark. The habit of growth is strong and sturdy, and foliage excellent. The flower is large and double and opens perfectly at all seasons of the year. In color it is similar to Richmond, although richer in color and in the bud.

In form of flower and in fragrance it resembles Gen. Jacqueminot and combines with this excellent color, strong growth, great productiveness, and wonderful keeping qualities which strongly recommend the variety as an excellent forcing rose. The variety will be disseminated in 1913.

The name which I wish to give to the above described rose is Milady.

JOHN YOUNG, Secretary.

September 3, 1912.

SOUTHAMPTON HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The regular monthly meeting of the Southampton (N. Y.) Horticultural Society was held in Odd Fellows' Hall, September 5th. The secretary of the flower show read a report, showing a balance of $400 left over after paying expenses, which will be equally divided between the Fresh Air Home and Southampton Hospital. A communication was read from Chas. H. Totty asking the Society to donate some premiums for the National Flower Show. This was laid on the table until next meeting. A committee was appointed to get full information regarding having the Society incorporated and report at next meeting.

WM. McLEOD.

Corresponding Secretary.

PITTSBURGH FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

The regular monthly meeting of the club on the evening of September 3d was well attended. President E. C. Ludwig, who was in the chair, and about twenty other members of the club had attended the S. A. F. convention in Chicago and there was an interesting exchange of views regarding the convention, and in and around Chicago. It seemed to be the gist of opinion that the hospitality of the Chicago Florists' Club was beyond all praise, and the convention was a success; the gladiolus exhibits were very fine, and the advance in this flower in the past few years seemed very marked. The great greenhouse plants about Chicago were a surprise in their extent, although in cultural perfection there seemed to be no advance over the east. Considerable surprise was expressed at the comparative absence of bedding plants, and the suburban villas and city lots did not show shrubbery and vines to anything like the extent to which we are accustomed about Pittsburgh.

It was Gladiolus Night at the club, but owing to the torrential rains to which this section has been subjected of late the display of blooms was very light. President Ludwig showed a collection of fine mixed varieties from his Butler farm, and A. C. Knauff showed some America and some enormous hydrangea blooms, larger than ever before shown at the club. He ascribes the immense size of his blooms to the fact that he cuts back his hydrangeas close to the ground every season.

The secretary was instructed to express the thanks of the club to the Florists' Club of Chicago for their free-landed hospitality.

Subject for October meeting, Dahlias.
H. P. JOSLIN, Secretary.

DETROIT FLORIST CLUB.

The last club meeting showed some of its old-time vigor in the discussion of present-day questions. Mr. Pochelon, who was most fortunately chosen secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Association, made a very clean-cut, energetic statement as to the great benefits of this system. Of course it sums itself up in the more than thousand-year-old adage that there is strength in unity, for as Mr. Pochelon says, we all know and most realize that an incalculable amount of business could be done by this system were our customers only better informed regarding it. It would be a blessing to us and our customers if the retailers throughout the country would join hands in this association and speak of its existence wherever possible. While a very creditable start has been made there is no doubt that such a "live wire" secretary as Mr. Pochelon is, will bring about astonishing results.

tember 14, 15 and 16. The annual ball of the society will be held on Tuesday evening, September 17, in Masonic Hall.

The fifth annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America was held at Rochester, N. Y., on September 4, 5 and 6. Many valuable papers were read and discussed and the reports of the various officers showed the organization to be in a very flourishing condition. There was an excellent exhibition of vegetables and supplies for market gardening.

A regular meeting of the Tuxedo Horticultural Society was held in the Parish House, Tuxedo Park, N. Y., September 4. The executive committee reported the following gentlemen had kindly consented to act as judges at the fall show, to be held October 25: Alex. McKenzie, Edwin Jenkins and Harry J. Allen. A new scale of points was adopted for judging the vegetables.

The Cincinnati Florists' Society's regular meeting was held on Monday evening at the club rooms. There was considerable enthusiasm, particularly among the growers on the question of the selling price of geraniums. All feeling that this product as now disposed of is not nearly yielding proper returns. Messrs. Henry Schwartz, F. Dellar and R. Witterstaetter read interesting papers on the same.

Dahlias and fruits fill the tables at Horticultural Hall, Boston, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 13, 14, 15, the annual September exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. A special feature of the fruit display is exhibits of apple, pear, peach and plum trees, all in fruit, growing in twelve-inch pots. The exhibition is free and will be open Friday from 12 M. to 6 P. M., Saturday, from 10 A. M. to 6 P. M., and Sunday from 2 to 6 P. M.

The first meeting of the Horticultural Club of Boston for the season of 1912-13 was held at Young's Hotel on Wednesday evening, September 11. The old officers were re-elected, viz: J. K. M. L. Farquhar, president; F. R. Pier-son, vice-president; E. H. Wilson, honorary secretary, E. Allan Peirce, treasurer. Mr. H. A. Barnard of London was a guest and made some very interesting remarks. Apart from strictly business matters of the organization, many topics of general application to the best interests of American horticulture were informally discussed. James B. Shea the new superintendent of Boston parks was elected a member to fill the vacancy left by the death of J. A. Pettigrew.

THE NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW, NEW YORK, 1913.

The National Flower Show Committee is now working on the final schedule. The committee respectfully requests of business houses or individuals who may be considering the offering of special prizes that they make decisions at once, so that they may receive due publicity and the growers have a chance to grow specimens for the prizes offered.

Since publication of our last report the following special prizes have been offered:

In addition to previous generous donations, the H. F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, offers $50 in cash for a first prize, a silver medal as a second, and a bronze medal as a third, for the best single stem plant in a 4-inch pot of Geranium Helen Michell, a new variety the company is distributing at the present time.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., of Philadelphia, offer the Pennock-Meehan Cup for the best red forcing rose not yet disseminated, whether of domestic or foreign origin, 12 blooms. Exhibits to be judged by the official scale of the American Rose Society. The cup is valued at $25. The Pennock-Meehan Cup, value $25, is also offered for 12 blooms of the best forcing rose, any other color, not yet disseminated, whether of domestic or foreign origin, exhibits to be judged by the official scale of the American Rose Society.

The Leo. Niessen Co., of Philadelphia, offer a silver cup, value $30, class to be announced later.

The Lord & Burnham Co., New York, has taken up Class 28 of the Preliminary Schedule for one specimen plant azalea, not less than 4 feet in diameter, first prize $20 in cash, or a gold medal.

Everything points to the fact that horticulturists are fully aware of the great importance of these expositions and that they are determined to assist by all the means within their power to make the Third National Flower Show the grandest exhibition ever held in this country.

Florists' Club of Washington.

There was something doing at Potomac Heights when the florists of Washington got together for the purpose of pulling off the field events that had been postponed from Chesapeake Beach last July because of rain.

About 150 members, families and friends participated. Upon arrival at the park they were greeted by W. W. Kimmel, chairman, and the committee and invited to get busy on the good things that were awaiting them. The races were very exciting and when George Dalglish led the field in the 100-yard dash, leaving the other members of the Florists' Club behind and walked off with the prize, he came pretty near being the whole show.

Other events were as follows:

25-yd. dash for boys under 12, Lawrence Berry 1st, Hiram Kimmel 2nd. Dash, for girls, Agnes Berry 1st, Pearl Minder 2nd. Race for older boys, 50 yards, H. Busley 1st, H. Kimmel 2nd. Older girls, Edith Sauer 1st, Blanche Sauer 2nd, Augusta Machen 3rd. 100-yd. dash, Sam Everett 1st, Geo. Barr 2nd, Suck race, Sam Everett 1st, H. Busley 2nd. Three-legged race, Kimmel and Gatton 1st, Everett and Barr 2nd. Flag race, Lawrence Berry 1st, Herbert Ratton 2nd. Girls' flag race, Gayle Johnson 1st, Agnes Berry 2nd. Steamer quoits, Mrs. Somers 1st, Miss Barry 2nd, Miss Lott 3rd. Basket ball, Mrs. Hess 1st, Mrs. Shaffer 2nd, Mrs. Mayberry 3rd. Single ladies' basket ball, Miss Klug 1st, Miss Oehmler 2nd, Miss Minder 3rd.

The real event of the day, however, took place when all the men got together to fight it out at quoits. It was too late to play team matches and all the interest was centered in the singles. The prize in this event was a handsome stein and was won by George C. Shaffer.

The affair was a very successful one and the results were gratifying to Mr. Kimmel and his committee.

Tuxedo Horticultural Society.

The annual clambake of this Society took place on August 14th. The entire party were conveyed in eleven stage coaches a distance of eight or nine miles from Tuxedo to Camp Comfort, Lake Mount Basha. Boating, games and refreshments were enjoyed to the fullest extent. The program provided for a good variety of races and other sports. In the race for single ladies Miss Annie McIntosh came in first, Miss Greathead second. The chief event was the race for fat men, D. S. Miller coming in first as usual. In the tug-of-war for married men vs. single, the married won, but in tug-of-war for married ladies vs. single, the single ladies won.

Bar Harbor Horticultural Society.

The Bar Harbor, Me., Horticultural Society's field day at the Eden Fair grounds Monday afternoon, proved a big success and called out a much larger crowd than was in attendance last year. Everything went off smoothly, and there was plenty of fun for everyone. An automobile had been hired for the occasion and was used to convey the children around the track. It is needless to say that the machine was in great demand throughout the afternoon. Athletic events, some of such a nature as to be great fun producers, were in order. An old Aunt Sally with her clay pipe was made up for a mark for the children's missiles and proved a great attraction for the youngsters. A clam chowder with crackers and coffee was served by the social committee in the hall on the grounds. The stock of the ice cream and peanut men was bought out by Louis B. McCagg and given out to the children.

The athletic events proved a big attraction.

John Stalford was chairman of the social committee, Charles Shand of the children's committee, Louis B. McCagg of the athletic committee, Bernard Morris of finance committee, William Miller and Joseph Kirk the committee on transportation, while the whole of the arrangements were done under the superintendence of Bernard Morris.

A GROUP AT RAVINIA PARK.

Mrs. J. A. Peterson of Cincinnati, did a little snap-shooting on her own account at the Ravinia Park outing of the S. A. F. and here we have one of the pictures, which, we think, at once classes her among the experts in that line. Nobody who ever met her worthy husband will have any difficulty in recognizing that gentleman in the light suit, and President-elect Farquhar who stands alongside could never be mistaken for anyone else. A little to the rear is the editor of HORTICULTURE perusing the pages of one of Horticulture's contemporaries, while in the background may be seen John Westcott of Philadelphia in congenial occupation, pointing out to a lady the direction her husband had taken in search of the little farm building where Chris. Bahr stood ready to welcome all who were athirst.

S. A. F. MEDALS AWARDED AT LONDON.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—I notice in the Secretary's report of the medals given by the Society of American Florists during the year that they had no knowledge as to whom the three silver and three bronze medals were awarded at the International Show in London. I beg to inform you that I was one of the fortunates to receive a silver medal for a collection of American plants and the other medals were awarded as follows:

Silver medal for American lilies to Messrs. W. Cutbush & Son; silver medal for Silene Hookeri to Mr. M. Prichard; bronze medal for Rhodostachys, species, to Mr. H. J. Elwes; bronze medal for Carnation "White Wonder" to Messrs. Allwood Bros.; bronze medal for Rose "Hiawatha" to Messrs. Paul & Son.

Respectfully,

W. A. MANDA.

PERSONAL.

D. Cameron, representing F. Sander, St. Albans, Eng., and Bruges, Belgium, will sail for New York about middle of September.

George Peach, late foreman on the Shotter estate, Lenox, Mass., has been appointed superintendent of the Maplewood estate, Utica, N. Y.

John B. Thomson, who has just resigned his position as head gardener to Col. E. L. Swan of Oyster Bay, L. I., has accepted a similar position with Mr. R. Miller, Millbrook, N. Y.

James A. Delaney has been appointed superintendent of the P. Sanford Ross estate at Elberon, N. J., one of the best known places in that vicinity and always kept up to perfection.

New York visitors: J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; W. J. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind.; R. Vincent, Jr., president S. A. F., Baltimore, Md.; A. J. Smith, Lake Geneva, Wis.

Boston visitors: Prof. G. E. Stone, Amherst, Mass.; W. E. Chappell, Providence, R. I.; A. E. Thatcher, Bar Harbor, Me.; Dr. Moore, Shaw Garden, St. Louis, Mo.; A. J. Smith, Lake Geneva, N. Y.; Mrs. W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; H. A. Barnard, representing Stuart Low & Co., London.

INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW AT ST. PETERSBURG.

There is to be an international horticultural exhibition at St. Petersburg next spring, under the patronage of the Emperor of Russia. The United States Secretary of Agriculture announces that requests for registration should be addressed to the executive committee, care of the Bureau of the Imperial Society of Horticulture, Quai de la Cour, 32, St. Petersburg, not later than Jan. 1, 1913. The exposition will comprise the following sections: Floriculture; decorative horticulture (A) greenhouse, (B) outdoor; pomology; fresh fruits and those kept naturally during the winter; vegetables and market garden plants; preservation and use of fruits and vegetables; grains; apiculture; agriculture; house plants; scientific section; school section; tools, instruments and apparatus; floral art; commercial section.

NEWS NOTES.

A first class certificate was awarded at the Shrewsbury Show for a splendid new Montbretia, "Star of the East," exhibited by R. Wallace & Co.

W. A. Manda received a silver medal at the big Shrewsbury Show, England, on Aug. 21-22, for a group including Polypodium Mandanum, Asparagus elongatus and other decorative plants.

Washington, D. C.—M. J. McCabe, of the Centre Market, while working in his greenhouses in Anacostia, D. C., stepped on a nail, receiving a very painful, although not a serious injury. He is confined to his home.

John H. Small, Jr., has been appointed a member of a committee of 103 merchants of the District of Columbia, who will aid the national committee in their endeavor to create a permanent exhibit of the manufactures and resources of the United States. Each state, according to present plans, is to have its own building. Rock Creek Park, one of the show places of the capital, will probably be the site.

TO THE SWEET PEA GROWER.

A MISSOURI SWEET PEA FIELD.

Dear Sir:—For the last two years we have been working on the diseases of the sweet pea and their control. We are about to publish a preliminary bulletin and we are anxious to incorporate in our work the experience and observations of all the leading practical horticulturists and gardeners.

In our investigations we have dealt with the following troubles: Damping off, similar to the damping off of lettuce and other plants; Anthracnose, producing a wilt disease of the tips as well as a leaf and pod disease; "Streak," a dreaded disease in England and now rapidly spreading in this country; this disease is characterized by a dark streak all along the center of the stem; Mosaic disease, similar to the mosaic of tobacco and tomato; Root diseases due to fungi and eel worms.

Due credit will be given you in our report, to any contribution which you will be so kind as to give us. The Department of Plant Pathology will highly appreciate and consider it a great favor if you will kindly fill out the lists of questions which we here include. An early reply will be duly appreciated as it will save the losing of unnecessary time.

Hoping to hear from you and thanking you in advance, I am, very truly,

J. J. TAUBENHAUS,

Assistant Plant Pathologist.

NEWS NOTES.

Westfield, Mass.—P. Martino has purchased the greenhouses of L. E. Bennett.

Huntington, Pa.—Fred M. Isenberg has purchased the business of Hake & Peterman.

Sheridan, Wyo.—L. M. Best, of the Best Floral Co., has purchased the property of the Sheridan Greenhouse Co.

Rockford, Ill.—Charles E. Rogers has purchased the greenhouse of H. B. Sullivan, Central avenue and Green street.

Columbus, Kan.—L. H. Winter has sold his greenhouse to T. A. Blake, who will combine the business with his own.

Wakefield, Mass.—L. E. Bennett has sold the greenhouses at the corner of Pleasant and Sweetser streets to P. Martimo of Wate street.

Toledo, Ohio—The greenhouses of Clara K. Wisner, 2476 Cherry street, are being torn down and will be rebuilt on Delaware avenue.

Holyoke, Mass.—Reginald S. Carey, formerly gardener for Joseph A. Skinner, has purchased the greenhouses and nursery of Joseph Beach.

Pierre, S. D.—A cloudburst on August 29 destroyed all the outside stock at the Capitol Greenhouses, 228 Pawnee street, and flooded everything inside.

Fairmount, Minn.—The greenhouse of the late Mrs. J. W. Gould has been purchased by Mrs. D. W. Needham, who will move it to her own plant on Third street.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Reed & Cheney have about closed negotiations for the purchase of the Grand Rapids Greenhouse Co.'s properties which have been in the hands of a receiver since early in the year. They intend to organize a company to continue the business.

TWO GIGANTIC GREENHOUSES.

The above illustration shows two 60 by 1000-foot rose houses covering an area of 120,000 square feet of ground, recently completed for J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Council Bluffs, Iowa, by the King Construction Co. These houses rival in size the big range recently built for Henry A. Dreer, Inc., at Riverton, N. J., comprising twenty houses, 21 by 203 feet, and The Florex Gardens range at North Wales, Pa., covering an area of 120,400 square feet.

Aside from the great interest manifested by the trade in this big plant, a feature of special note is the fact that while the house shown on the right in the photograph was blown down by a hurricane, the adjoining house only 25 feet away was not harmed in the least. The accident occurred at 6.00 p. m. on July 31st, and this photograph was taken Aug. 13th, just ten working days after.

Obituary.

Alexander Dean, V. M. H.

The English journals record the death of this eminent horticulturist and writer on August 20, at his home in Kingston-on-Thames, at the age of eighty years.

Jacob Dilly.

On August 25, Jacob Dilly, retired florist of Newark, N. J., died at his home, aged 84 years. He was born in Germany and came to this country in 1844, settling in Newark. In 1859 he established a florist business which he continued for about thirty years.

Robert Blair.

Robert Blair, who up to the time he retired from active gardening a few years ago was well-known and proficient in his calling, died in South Boston on September 7th, aged 72 years. Mr. Blair was gardener for A. W. Spencer for about 25 years and was a frequent and successful exhibitor at the shows of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

Angelo Baldocchi.

Angelo Baldocchi of the firm of Podesta & Baldocchi, San Francisco, Cal., died suddenly on September 4th. Mr. Baldocchi was recognized as one of the leading retail florists of the Pacific Coast. He was a self-made man, having worked himself up from boyhood by close application and industry. He was a gentleman in every sense of the word and held in the highest respect by all the trade and the San Francisco people. His being taken away in middle life and at the prime of his usefulness is keenly felt by the florist fraternity. He was a member of the Society of American Florists.

Cornelius Casey.

Cornelius Casey, a highly respected florist and nurseryman of Melrose, Mass., died at his home on Maple street, September 3rd. Born in Ireland 76 years ago, he came to this country when 12 years of age. After attending the public schools he entered the employ of the late David L. Taylor, florist, at the age of 16. Five years later he enlisted in the United States regular army, serving on the western frontier against the Indians. At the outbreak of the Civil War his regiment—the Third United States Infantry—was ordered to the front and took part in many of the important battles during the first two years. The enlistment term of five years expiring, he returned to Melrose, again working for his old employer. In 1869 he erected the first greenhouse in the present location for the growing of roses, with which he was very successful. The greater part of his life was spent growing roses, and though for many years enjoying the ease that comes from a life well spent, he still retained an active interest in his favorite flower.

The deceased was loved and respected by all who made his acquaintance, having a charm of manner common to many of the older generation. Of unquestioned integrity and sincerity in his dealings with all, his passing is mourned by the community at large, who appreciated his noble character. Mr. Casey leaves a widow, two daughters and four sons, who have conducted the business for many years. The love and sympathy of friends was shown by the profusion of floral tributes.

Charles L. Yates.

Charles L. Yates, of Rochester, N. Y., for the past twelve years treasurer of the American Association of Nurserymen, died suddenly Wednesday night, September 4th. He had been complaining of a slight indisposition on Monday, but was not deemed to be seriously ill until Wednesday evening when he became suddenly worse and expired in a few minutes, the cause being acute indigestion.

Mr. Yates was manager of the National Nurseryman, the official organ of the Association. Only a few weeks ago Prof. John Craig, editor of that paper, also died and the Association has sustained a great loss in this removal of two of its most active and popular men.

Mr. Yates was born in Canada in 1847. He leaves a wife and one son. The funeral took place on Saturday, 7th inst.

Report of Entomologist.

Scale Insects.

As is generally known, scale insects form an important family, Coccidae, of the order Hemiptera. The large number and wide geographical distribution of scale insects, their variety of forms and adaptation to conditions of life and their economic relations have led their discussion to form an important part of our entomological literature, both present and past.

From earliest times, different species of scale insects occurring principally in tropical or semi-tropical countries, threatening the very existence of certain cultivated plants are recorded. The early outbreaks of scale insects prevailing throughout the entire orange, lemon and olive districts along the shores of the Mediterranean, attracted the attention of early naturalists and stimulated their interest in the group.

Like conditions have existed from time to time in this country, which have led to the extended investigations of certain species that have been conducted in the past, and which are in progress at this time.

Scale insects depart most widely in form and characteristics from the type of insects included in the order. Not only do they exhibit a wide degree of similarity from others included in the order, but they exhibit a remarkable variety of forms and habits within the family.

As a whole, scale insects are diminutive in size,—the largest native species seldom exceeding an inch in length or diameter. They attach themselves either to the bark, stem or leaves of a plant, and will often be found on fruit. They feed upon the plant in a similar manner to other insects having sucking mouth parts, by protruding their beak into the plant tissue and extracting its juices. When occurring on leaves of plants, as is the case in many species affecting greenhouse plants, they usually attach themselves to the underside and in most cases settle along the mid-rib and larger nerve bundles of the leaves, where they would naturally secure the greatest flow of sap.

While the amount of sap or juice extracted by a single insect is very small, when multiplied by millions, it greatly weakens the host. Like other members of this order, some species of scale insects excrete an excess of sap in the form of "honey dew," which accumulates in drops and spreads over the bark or leaf as a sticky liquid. This honey dew excretion serves as a host for black fungi, which often injures the foliage and fruit of plants.

Life History of the Scale.

The life history of scale insects may be generally summarized as follows:

The eggs are laid by the adult female, either immediately beneath her own body or at its posterior extremity. A few species bring forth living young. The tiny young are active, six-legged, mite-like creatures, which may crawl over the tree or plant they infest for a short period, seldom extending over a period of twenty-four hours. With the exception of a few species, the larvae settle and insert their beak into plant tissue, and if an armoured scale excretes a covering over its body. They develop, as do other insects, by molting. The female thus develops to an adult and is a motionless, wingless, and for all practical purposes, legless and eyeless creature. Her body becomes swollen with eggs or young and as soon as these are laid or born she usually dies.

The life history of the male in its final stages is quite different from the female. The male larvae when born or hatched cannot be identified,—the life history being practically parallel until after the second molt. The male scale transforms to a pupa and later emerges as a two-winged insect without a mouth. The function of the male insect is simply to fertilize the female. The number of generations annually among scale insects and the number of eggs laid or young produced by the female varies so widely in different species that no general statement can be made.

Scale insects are usually grouped under two large classes, the armoured and unarmoured species, or those that excrete exuvi over their bodies, forming a scale as a covering, and those which are naked or have no separate scale over their bodies. Both groups are largely represented among those species common on fruit and ornamental stock.

Inasmuch as the remedy for many of the scale insects are similar, to prevent repetition it seems best to discuss the treatment of these pests as a distinct subject rather than under individual species, except to indicate the character of remedy.

BOSTON FLOWER EXCHANGE.

At the meeting of the Boston Flower Exchange, last Saturday evening, it was voted by a decisive majority to move from Park street to the site long favored by many, on the south side of Winthrop square. The acquisition of the lease of the new quarters has not yet been accomplished and there are many intricate questions to be settled before the transfer is made, but all this has been left to the board of directors and the outlook is hopeful. The new location is an ideal one in all respects and all recognize that the Exchange has long since outgrown the restricted quarters on Park street.

28th & M Sts. Washington, D. C.

CHICAGO NOTES.

Poehlmann Bros. are now western representatives for Ove Gnatt of Hammond, Ind., who specialize in oak and magnolia sprays. The trade seems to be taking very kindly to these goods.

A. F. Longren has accepted a position as traveling salesman with Poehlmann Bros., and left on his first trip this week. He is one of the best known men selling florists' supplies and for several years has been with E. H. Hunt.

The Fox River Valley, one of the prettiest pieces of country in this vicinity, is appealing strongly to some of our florists. Frank Oechslein took his vacation there only to return with his family and take another and this week still another.

Evergreen Brand Fertilizer posters are now seen in several of the large wholesale houses. D. D. Johnson has accomplished much in showing what these goods can do and has testimonials from the leading experiment stations of the country.

C. H. Fisk is making extensive additions to his store at Ogden and Madison. He has lowered his boilers and placed his garage over them and a storage house tops that. Mrs. Fisk is expected home soon from an extended trip to Pasadena, Cal.

Fanny E. Murphy, 4248 W. Madison street, is another who but lately ventured into the florists' business. She has with her Lawrence Murphy, her brother, who has been employed in the wholesale stores and together they have made an excellent start.

Chas. Zapfe, now completing his first year in the retail business at Sixty-second street and South Park avenue, says that he has done better than he anticipated and especially during the dull summer months. Mr. Zapfe makes a good window display a strong feature.

The Fleischman Floral Co., 84 E. Jackson Boulevard, has begun extensive improvements on their store, which when completed will give them three times their present office space. The enclosure will be of white marble and plate glass, in keeping with the rest of the store.

At the twelfth annual horse show on the grounds of the Onwentsia Club, Lake Forest, September 7, the flower-decorated vehicles were made a feature and natural flowers were used exclusively. Dexter Cummings won first prize; Geo. McLaughlin, Jr., second, and Elizabeth Cross, third.

Still another firm on their first year is known as the Kedzie Florist, though a little west of Kedzie avenue at 3401 W. Madison street. Here Hans Rowoldt and Edward Lester started six months ago and their fine corner is opposite Garfield Park. Both were experienced men and both have the push and patience which make for success.

Celosia Thompsoni hybrid and Castle Gould are now in bloom and are forming a pleasing contrast to the ferns and palms which have constituted the plant offerings for many months. Celestial peppers and the new cluster peppers are also coming now, the latter having been tried here for the first time one year ago. They are a novelty which seem to possess merit, the cluster of five or six peppers being very attractive.

The Chicago Florists' Club held its regular meeting Sept. 5th. The attendance was good considering the extremely hot weather. The greater part of the evening was occupied by a discussion of a special train to the State Fair at Springfield. It was decided that the October meeting should be open to the ladies and a special program will be prepared. "The street fakir and what to do with him" was also a question given considerable discussion and resulted in the naming of a committee of ten florists to wait upon Mayor Harrison and see about having the license ordinance enforced as a check.

This week the two Chicago clubs will each organize a bowling team.

Personal.

T. E. Evender has returned from his summer home in Watervliet, Mich.

Miss Gertrude Lewis of J. Mangel's has returned from a long trip through Canada and to many of the principal cities of the East.

Theodore (Teddy) Vogel, and Miss Gerda Larson were quietly married on Sept. 4 at 3129 S. Park avenue. Mr. Vogel is a young man popular in the trade and is at present connected with the Alpha Floral Co.

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

August Kunz, a well-known florist, has been appointed head gardener of the Water Works Department in place of W. E. Robinson, who has resigned.

Paul Schoder, grower in Clayton, has taken up growing roses and has just completed a new rose house. He will consign to the Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

Frank Windler of the new wholesale firm of Windler Co., says the opening will be on next Monday, September 16. The trade will see a nice complete up-to-date wholesale establishment.

F. J. Foster, who was head of the Paris Floral Co., will open a store at the corner of King's Highway and Delmar avenue, to be known as the Foster Floral Co. The Paris Floral Co. is no more.

The new conservatories that are being built by the Pierson U-Bar Co., at the Missouri Botanical Garden, are making big progress and they expect to complete them before the cold weather sets in.

The Mullanphy Floral Co. on North Grand avenue, celebrated last week Friday and Saturday with an opening of their new store. The place was nicely decorated, a band of music played and large crowds of people came to get a flower for a souvenir and look the new place over.

J. J. Karins of Dreer's is in town.

Cincinnati, Ohio—The vacationists who have returned are Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Critchell, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gillett and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Adrian, Mr. and Mrs. Max Rudolph, Wm. Gear, and Al. Horning.

J. T. Conger is enlarging his Sunnyside Conservatories at Hartwell by building two new houses. He purchased his lumber from the Lockland Lumber Co.

Visitors: Jos. Morichard, representing Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia; Wm. Nolan, Portsmouth, Ohio; and Wm. Lodder, Hamilton, Ohio.

Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs

The crops of all early forcing lily bulbs of good quality are very short this year, owing to a lack of rain at the proper time. At such times many bulbs of inferior quality find a ready sale in the market. Those who want good lily bulbs should therefore not delay a day in placing their orders. The following are the revised prices for Horseshoe Brand bulbs, the best produced in the World. Immediate delivery.

LILIUM FORMOSUM.

Excellent stock—extra in size and quality.
Size 6/8 in., $20.00 per case of 400 bulbs.
" 8/10 in., 25.00 per case of 250 bulbs.
" 9/10 in., 22.00 per case of 200 bulbs.
" 9/11 in., 19.80 per case of 180 bulbs.
" 10/11 in., 18.00 per case of 150 bulbs.
" 11/13 in., 18.00 per case of 120 bulbs.
We advise early orders—very limited stock.

LILIUM GIGANTEUM—(to arrive soon).

Size 6/8 in., $16.00 per case of 400 bulbs.
" 7/8 in., 16.00 per case of 350 bulbs.
" 7/9 in., 16.00 per case of 300 bulbs.
" 8/10 in., 22.50 per case of 250 bulbs.
" 9/10 in., 22.00 per case of 200 bulbs.
" 9/11 in., 21.60 per case of 180 bulbs.
" 10/11 in., 22.50 per case of 150 bulbs.
" 11/13 in., 24.00 per case of 120 bulbs.

Seed Trade

Idaho Seed Pea Crops.

The Coulter-Adams Seed Company, wholesale seed growers, with headquarters at Ogden, Utah, write that the month just closed has been a most unusual one in the history of the Idaho district. More wind, hail and rain storms than ever before in the memory of "the oldest inhabitant," some of them extremely severe. Considerable damage has been done to crops in some sections, several instances of entire fields being swept clean of the harvested pea vines by the hurricane force of the wind. Early in the month several large fields in the Teton district were completely mowed down with hail. In the districts where soil is heavy, dwarfs have suffered greatly, and estimates will be reduced generally one-third. Late peas and Telephone types will suffer the least, on account of not being cut, when the heavy rains come during the latter part of the month.

Notes.

San Jose, Cal.—Thomas W. Chisholm has been appointed sales manager for the Braslan Seed Growers' Co., Inc.

Chicago's well known seedsman, Chas. Dickinson of the Albert Dickinson Co., figured prominently until the last day in the Gordon Bennett aeroplane race in Chicago, Sept. 9th. Mr. Dickinson is an enthusiast who spares neither time nor money.

In line with the up-to-date methods of the H. F. Michell Co. are lectures and exhibits at their store at Fifth and Market streets, Philadelphia. One of the most interesting of the season was the vegetable exhibit which opened on the 10th inst. The general excellence of the specimens shown was very conspicuous. Among the prize winners were: Wm. H. Hart, Jr., M. E. Atkinson, R. J. Thorow, Thos. Rowe, Wm. Farrell, Jno. Little, Robt. Schneider, Wm. Robertson, James Bell, Mrs. Edward Cole, W. H. Tomlinson, and Philip J. Hoh.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

C. Keur & Sons, Hillegom, Holland.—Special wholesale price list of plants and bulbs.

Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.—New Floral Guide, Autumn, 1912. A bright and interesting illustrated list for retail buyers.

Good & Reese Co., Springfield, O.—Fall Trade List for 1912. For florists, nurserymen and dealers only. Contains a ready reference list of roses that will be found very useful.

Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn.—Evergreens, Herbaceous Plants, Trees and Shrubs, Strawberry Plants, for Autumn Planting. A very classy catalogue.

Sioux City, Iowa—The Bishop Greenhouses, Davis and 28th streets, was damaged by fire to the extent of about $500 on August 26. No insurance.

V. E. Reich of Brooklyn, N. Y., reports a very busy time with his specialty, the new improved double-glass sash. Being absolutely waterproof and a great protection from frost, it should have a flourishing future.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The Department of Horticulture, University of Illinois, has issued two pamphlets, one on floriculture as taught at the college and the other giving the results of research and experiments in floriculture during the past year by H. B. Dorner, and a paper on Carnation Stem Rot, by H. W. Anderson.

Bulletin No. 8, July, 1912, of the American Association of Park Superintendents, contains many very practical contributions by the leading park superintendents and others on matters of park development, equipment and general management. It is a useful document of 32 pages.

The Special Park Commission's pamphlet No. 5, of the Chicago parks system has sent out a very valuable illustrated pamphlet by City Forester J. H. Prost on "Trees and Lawns for Streets." Planting methods, care, prevention of diseases and control of insects are all fully explained and should be an influential factor in developing a popular movement for the more general planting of trees in the city thoroughfares.

INCORPORATED.

Sacramento, Cal.—Superior Seed Co., capital stock $10,000.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—Prudential Nursery Co., capital stock $20,000.

Marshalltown, Ia.—Marshalltown Seed Co., capital stock $10,000.

Martinsburg, W. Va.—Union Corner Orchard Co., capital stock $50,000. Incorporators, H. A. Hammann, M. L. Dorn, S. S. Felker, W. S. Snyder, and A. C. Nadebousch.

New York, N. Y.—The Flower Auction Co. held their first sale at the 28th street store on the 10th inst., the catalogue containing palms, ferns and decorative plants. Although the number of buyers was somewhat limited the sale was so far successful that the promoters said they were quite satisfied with the result.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON The close of last week and beginning of the present week were fairly satisfactory in a business way, but at present writing things are more than torpid—a condition to which the Jewish holiday observance has contributed in part. There is a very heavy over-production of asters and gladioli, which are all right as to quality but beyond that they are a dead weight. Roses were doing fairly well, but the effect of two days of unusually high temperature and humidity has been very detrimental to them, as it has also been to the longiflorum lilies, which are very fine in all respects, except as to substance and keeping qualities. American Beauty seems to stand the strain somewhat better than the other roses. There are some nice gardenias coming in, but demand is very limited. Carnations are more abundant and fairly good for the season.

BUFFALO Business for the past two weeks has been anything but good. The market has been overcrowded on everything along the line; in fact, an outlet for the vast amount of stock received daily cannot be located. The heavy rains of ten days ago brought on the asters and gladioli and a heavy supply has continued. High prices are out of the question, it being a matter of "how much will you give?" Roses are also in heavy supply, especially short stems and a good portion have stems no longer than three to four inches, though there are some choice stock seen such as Kaiserin, Carnot, Sunburst, Maryland, Radiance and Hillingdon. Lily of the valley has had a little demand, also select white roses. July weather is bad and stock has suffered much, shipments of roses arriving in full open condition. A scattering of floral work has helped things along and also a few weddings are noticeable.

CHICAGO The Chicago market has been badly glutted with a poor grade of flowers while really good shipping stock has been scarce. The greatest oversupply has been in asters and gladioli and while there are still far too many offered the stock of asters is nearing the end. When asters can be bought for less than one dollar per hundred the effect upon sales of other flowers is bound to be felt. What the market needs most of all is cooler weather and then there would soon be enough good flowers and a demand for them. The few days of cool weather gave a sudden impetus to trade which was quickly dispelled when the thermometer rose again.

CINCINNATI This week's business bids fair to be a good one. We have had three good days to start with and the close certainly ought not to lag very far behind the first half of the week. The rose supply is good and adequate, pink enjoying a somewhat better call than white, of which the fancy only have been selling quickly. The Richmond cut is large. Beauties have been a leading factor all summer and are easily upholding their end. Of carnations the principal variety offered, to date, has been Enchantress. A few white and red are also included in the shipments. New York asters are a welcome addition to the supply. The Comet varieties are not as popular as the others in the buyers' estimation. White asters continue on the short side and every good one that comes in finds a ready sale. The gladiolus supply is decreasing rapidly and receipts are just about able to take care of the demand. More Easter lilies might be used. Last Saturday proved a very good day in the Flower Market for both plants and flowers.

Last week business had DETROIT dropped out completely, but this week it was much better and many bookings for fall weddings make us feel that the season of activity will soon be upon us. To discuss stock and its value is a most precarious thing just now. Roses are coming in by the thousands, as are also gladioli and asters. During this hot spell the roses arrive mostly blown so that at the end there are very few good ones to choose from. Gladioli helps out some but they have a great competitor in the form of lancifolium lilies. Unlike the past two or three seasons asters are very good and even the best are greatly in excess to the demand. To add to the retailer's troubles he finds every day several autos to stop in front of his store and her ladyship bringing the choice aster product of her country place to him for sale. Of course her ladyship is very much put out to be told that there is no demand for them.

There has been a little change in the prices of American Beauty roses. Quality continues to improve, and the demand is all that can be expected. Richmond has made its appearance again and will be quoted soon as one of our regular staples. Perles have been unusually good sellers of late—consequently, it is said, on the Jewish holidays which call for a showy flower in a yellow rose. The late asters are now in their glory and are one of the leading features of the market. Gardenias have hardened up considerably in price, consequent on their more general use as a substitute for the cattleya—which still remains very scarce. The second week of the dahlia season finds the market well supplied with the good early varieties, such as Sylvia, Lyndhurst, Arabella, Lemon Beauty and others. Gladioli are still an important factor, and are of excellent quality. Some of the first cuts of the new carnation crop are coming in and are very good for so early in the season, although only medium as to stem. New crop chrysanthemums have made their appearance in limited quantities—Smith's Advance and Golden Glow being the principal varieties so far. Tritomas are not so plentiful this fall as these plants suffered from the severe winter.

The past week has been a repetition of many preceding ones, with the difference that dahlias have been coming in to assist in the glut of asters. The cut of American Beauty roses is improving, the demand, too, being good with prices a little better. Maryland, Taft, Hillingdon, Ward and Richmond are in plenty, but have suffered greatly from the hot spell we are now having. Carnations are of no account, but Lilium longiflorum and gladioli are as plentiful as ever. Gardenias are very scarce and orchids are in little demand.

The market was very dull the last week.

There was plenty of stock and low prices prevailed on all. Roses have been a regular glut and the wholesalers have been obliged to get rid of them at once at very cheap prices. The same goes for asters, which have been coming in quite heavy of late from the eastern markets. There are also quite a lot of carnations with short stems and good flowers. During the last week some of the Chicago growers have been using our market for a dumping ground for their surplus but the hot weather caused them to come in very bad condition and very little was gotten for them. Business is dull!

Business during the past week has seen no improvement over that of previous weeks for some time past. There are still plenty of asters and a large amount of these have remained unsold. Roses are coming in good but they have to be A1 in order to obtain a buyer. Carnations are improving in quality. The retail market as a whole has been very draggy. With the weather continuing hot, conditions will remain as they now are and it will take some cold weather to bring relief.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Alva R. Jones, head of the Pennock-Meehan forces at the Philadelphia headquarters, has just returned from a three weeks' vacation looking hale and hearty.

The House of Rice has had in the past ten days more visitors from out-of-town than any year previous. Florists must be traveling more than ever—hardly a day passes without one or two visitors and they are coming from every section of the country. Night work was the rule last week on account of the rush for fall baskets.

John Berger, of Berger Bros., thinks Maine is all right for a vacation except that the black flies are pretty troublesome—although the natives swear that that idea is all imaginary. Remarkable coincidence that, about the native idea. The Jersey natives say the same thing—about the mosquitoes. And yet both natives go to church and praise the Lord. Why don't they also fall upon the aborigines with fire and sword?

Visitors: Mr. Shone of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, Ohio; Messrs. Jones and Barberer of the Jones & Russell Co., Cleveland, Ohio; S. B. Dicks, representing Cooper, Taber &

Co., London, England; M. C. Ebel, of the Aphine Mfg. Co., Madison, N. J.; Chas. Loechner, of New York City; W. J. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind.; James B. 3000 Miles We Shipped The Materials For This Range

ALL the way from our Irvington factory, near New York, to Pasadena, California.

Now that we have a factory at Des Plaines, Ill., a thousand miles is being cut off all California shipments.

The way we secured the order for these houses is interesting. The owner, while a guest of J. B. Duke, at Somerville, N. J., greatly admired Mr. Duke's Curved Eave range, then recently completed by us. As a result, on the way back to the coast, our New York office was visited, plans drawn and approved, and a contract placed with us for these three houses. They were the first Curved Eave houses in California.

When our customers are willing to pay freight on such long distance hauls, it speaks most conclusively of the superiority of our Curved Eave construction. Send for Catalog.

ERECTED AT RUMSON, N. J.

SEEING how attractive and practical this arrangement is, do you wonder why THE LUTTON PATENT CURVED EAVE method has changed Greenhouse Construction during the past few years? The result has been the most successful house that can be produced; the other concerns who had been producing the same antiquated buildings for years had to simply destroy their patterns as well as their catalogues and start anew. Just ask some of our imitators to show you some of their curved eave houses built before THE LUTTON PATENT was granted; you will then be convinced that you had better consult with me.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Care of Poinsettias

Give all poinsettias a place where they will have light firing from this out. No other plant that the florist grows is so affected by the chilly nights as these plants. A temperature of about 55 degrees at night will be high enough until the bracts begin to show color, when 10 or 15 degrees higher should be given. Do not let them become dry at the root, and keep the floors damped down so as to produce a proper amount of moisture in the atmosphere. To insure finer flower-heads give some liquid manure once a week and then increase to twice a week until the bracts are fully developed. See that the plants are securely tied and staked so the stems will not become bent and twisted. You should get busy now and make up a number of pans for the holiday trade. Use any good light and moderately rich soil and when making up the pans work in some little ferns, asparagus, or any other small green plants which will help to finish them off.

Compost for Next Season's Supply

Now is the time to procure a bountiful supply of the sod from some loamy pasture. It should be cut about four inches deep and when stacking it up place some well rotted manure between every third layer to the depth of about five inches. Keep adding sod and manure in this proportion in square piles of any length, until you reach a height of about six feet, leaving the top flat. Early in November you can chop it down and turn the whole pile over which will help decomposition. The autumn is the best time to haul soil and pile it up, because it will be open to the winter atmosphere, frost and snow which will leave it in a nice pulverized state by spring. So do not let these few remarks pass unheeded, but start and get plenty of soil until you have heaps looming up all around which will make the foundation for your success another year, no matter whether you grow roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, violets or any other florists' stock.

Cuttings of Vincas

To have a good useful size in 3-inch pots by next May now is the time to put in a batch of vinca cuttings. Select the growth that is very well ripened up, leaving two eyes to each cutting. Place them in a propagating bed and keep shaded, with a certain amount of moisture in the sand and a good number will root. When they are rooted they can be potted into 2-inch pots using any good soil. With ordinary good culture they will grow into fine stock by spring.

Eucharis amazonica for Christmas

If you want a crop of Eucharis amazonica for Christmas sales now is the time to begin resting these plants up. They should be rested until the middle of November. Where you have a batch with their leaves fully matured, cease shading and gradually withhold water at the roots until the soil gets dry enough to cause the leaves to flag slightly, but never let them become so dry that they lose much of their foliage because this would be an injury to them. Give them an alternating treatment of drying to the point of flagging and then a slight watering to freshen them up again and continue this treatment until the above mentioned date when you should have them well rested and ripened up. Give plenty of ventilation and a night temperature of from 50 to 55 degrees. After the middle of November they can be given a thorough soaking of tepid water with bottom heat and an atmospheric temperature of 70 degrees at night and the spikes will come along all right for the holidays.

Making a Lily Bed

Lilies are highly-bred plants and cannot shift for themselves. To maintain all their superlative excellence they should have special treatment and care. They are flower garden subjects and where you want them primarily for cut flowers, plant them in an area by themselves, where they will have every attention. So where you have the ground to spare make a lily bed and there is no better time for this than next three weeks. Select a well drained piece of land for this is one of the principal requisites for outdoor lilies. Make the soil very rich by the addition of plenty of nitrogenous manure, bone dust and wood ashes. Before putting on any manure have the ground made loose to a depth of at least two feet. Where it happens that the subsoil does not provide sufficient drainage to let the water pass off freely, under-drainage will be necessary to ensure success. Plant at least 6 inches deep and anywhere from 12 to 18 inches apart each way. It is a good plan to place a handful of sharp sand under and over each bulb. Where you have old beds give them a covering of good manure to the depth of 5 or 6 inches. The heavy rains will carry the richness of the manure down to their roots. When the winter sets in give the beds a good mulch of coarse manure to the depth of a foot; this will help to carry them through in good condition.

Mignonette

This is the time of all others when mignonette should not be neglected. When the cool nights come so that the temperature falls below 40 degrees it will be better to run a line of heat through your house, but do not at any time coddle the plants with too much heat. Keep plenty of ventilation on all possible occasions as this is one of the most important points in growing fine mignonette. Do not pinch the plants back but let the centers run up and flower. There will always be four or five shoots to start from the base to give the main crop. When the plants reach 4 or 5 inches high they should be given support by running wires the length of the bench and tying strings crosswise, for there is nothing worse than mignonette with crooked stems. Where the green worms are troublesome keep the plants sprinkled with Slug Shot most of the time and you will not have much bother.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Ardisias, Chrysanthemums, Violets, Liliun giganteum, Home-Grown Shrubs for Forcing, Pansies

To make the show pay Exhibition time is already with us and from now on for the next six or eight weeks the tide of show events will continue to rise. We hope to be able to record unvarying financial as well as cultural success in all these enterprises as they transpire from week to week and have no doubt of the outcome in any instance where modern methods of management prevail. There is material in abundance and plenty of talent within reach to make every show a thing of beauty and a horticultural triumph. If it is not brought into action, then there is a screw loose somewhere. The financial proposition, however, is a problem in itself and this regardless to a great extent of the horticultural or artistic merits of the affair. Very few men in horticulture understand how to operate the button which turns on the current of public stimulation. Fortunate indeed is the society which can command the services of such an expert for he is an indispensable factor in these days of high-pressure publicity methods and is in a class by himself.

Sifting the "novelties"

In the course of his lecture before the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, last Tuesday evening, Mr. Farquhar remarked on the very small number of new plants that were shown at the "International" in London, outside of the extensive group of Chinese plants collected by Wilson. We think this remark applies in a comparative degree to most recent exhibitions in our own country of late. So far as new varieties of florists' plants are concerned, the explanation is undoubtedly found in the process of testing and criticism which a novelty must now go through before it can expect much recognition by the trade. Doubtless there are as many, if not more than formerly, new forms produced but the producers know the sifting process and lime-light scrutiny which is sure to ensue as soon as any attempt at dissemination is made. The buyers, too, fight shy of anything in the line of roses, carnations, gladioli, dahlias, sweet peas, etc., which lack the credentials of the societies devoted to their respective interests. This process of elimination at the outset is healthy and greatly advantageous to all concerned. It helps to beget confidence where confidence was lacking a few years ago and we have the special societies to thank for it, perhaps more than anything else.

Inaction and the penalty

It is a reasonable proposition that every person engaged in the florist, nursery or seed business, either as principal or employee, should enroll himself as a member of some club or society devoted to the interests in which he is concerned. Could this consummation be attained we should then have ideal conditions for conserving and advancing the welfare of each and all. Then, could all these bodies be brought into affiliation on practical lines we should have at our disposal an almost irresistible concentrated force that would compel a beeding when unfair legislation or other encroachments threaten. Had such a solidarity been in existence, the various state and federal enactments which bear so heavily on the seed, nursery and florist industry, and concerning which there is so much justifiable complaint, would never have been passed in their present form. It is now too late so far as those laws are concerned and the horticultural interests must suffer the penalty of their self-neglect. But what of the future? Let no one console himself with the notion that the predatory instincts are now finally appeased. There is plenty of work ahead, undoubtedly, and we are glad to note the signs of activity in the "Empire State" as shown in the proceedings of the newly organized New York state association as recorded on another page of this issue. Mr. Kelsey's letter to the Department of Agriculture will also be found interesting reading. We hope the leniency asked for may be granted.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

American Beauties

Go over all your Beauty benches at least once a week and pick off all yellow leaves and keep an eye open for spot. This is very important although many growers fail to realize this fact. It is very easy to pick off one or two blackspots that may be found on a yellow leaf next to the soil, much easier in fact than the many hundreds that may result from not picking the one or two. Of course, blackspot will not spread unless conditions are favorable, and we find clean plants kept clean will pull through dark and warm weather much easier than plants with traces of disease on them.

We find air-slaked lime blown under the plants in the evening after each syringing or watering, does a good deal to present spot. Well-ventilated houses are also much more easily kept free from it than dark, poorly ventilated houses. During rainy or damp weather we use lime first thing in the morning, blowing plenty of it underneath the plants. Much of the fine dust will rise, filling the air of the house with it. This is just what is wanted, for the little particles of lime will absorb large quantities of moisture, and this they bring down with them as they gradually settle. This leaves the atmosphere much drier than before and all rose growers know what that means.

Tying

Keep the Beauties tied up. Not only does the house look much neater, but you will find your plants will produce far more flowers if kept tied up neatly than if they are tied only now and then. If your plants are not tied and are allowed to go so for any length of time spider or spot will surely set in and you will then be in for it.

If your Beauties are on stakes, take care not to bunch them up too much or you will be inviting trouble. As stated in these columns before we have no use whatever for stakes in American Beauty houses, although we like them with almost all the other roses. We keep all of our Beauties on wires and find we get much better results.

Cutting

While the hot weather lasts, the buds are very apt to come more or less deformed. We take especial pains in cutting to pinch out all the badly deformed buds, letting the wood remain in the house. Usually the shoot coming out from the side bud will bear a good bud, and this can then be cut, and will bring a fair price, whereas a badly deformed bud is almost worthless.

Another important thing is not to cut all the wood away from the plant, leaving only the part below the bottom wire. We always pinch out the last shoot; this gives the plant a little foliage to breathe through. Plants that are cut down like that require but very little water, until after they begin to break and if you have many such plants among your lot be careful with the hose.

We cut all the flowers down to two eyes above the bottom wire, except in the front rows where we will cut a bottom break off within four or five inches of the ground. This should never be done except in the front rows, as it is none too good for plants that have but little sunlight and usually run a little on the wet side. If you find some of your plants all cut down, among others which have more or less wood, take a little air-slaked lime and put around them. Also go easy when watering and try and overlook them twice out of every three times watering. These plants, if overwatered now will not produce any cut flowers all winter long, even though they will throw considerable wood, and buds in the spring.

Shavings and Cow Manure

We have received a letter from Mr. J. W. Y. asking if it would be safe to use cow manure containing considerable wood shavings that were used for bedding, same being fairly well decayed. In reply we wish to say that we see no reason why cow manure containing wood shavings could not be used for roses under glass, especially when these are well decayed. We presume Mr. Y. has reference to wood shavings that are sold in bales purposely for bedding in stables and not carpenters' shavings or shavings containing old bark. We find manure containing shavings better at times than manure without them, as they absorb large quantities of liquids, and these gradually wash out and are taken up by the plants. The only thing to be on the lookout for is to be sure such shavings contain no insects that would be injurious to the growth of roses.

To go further we wish to state we never apply but very little mulch at a time, applying more as fast as the plants need it. We would recommend mulching about 25 feet of bench with said manure and then carefully watch the plants. If it is harmful it will show within a week.

Another important fact must not be overlooked in using manure of any kind. Do not close the ventilators down tight after applying a mulch. Air the plants freely. Rose houses should never be closed down at night at this time of the year. We believe in giving the plants plenty of air, even at the expense of a little coal.

A Point on Packing Beauties

After your boxes are all lined make a little cushion to put in the end of the boxes where the buds are to lie. Not for the buds to lie on but to keep the buds from being jammed up against the end of the box during transit. After you pack about 50—say extras or fancies—make two holes in the box, one on each side at the proper distance from the bottom and pass a piece of rope around the outside of the box and into the box through these holes. Then tie the roses down with the ends of the rope. This will fasten the roses firmly to the bottom and when done right will hold them in place no matter how hard the box is thrown against a side of a concrete building or some such soft objects that cut flower boxes often come in contact with during transportation. After you pack another tier repeat this operation and all your roses will be securely fastened and bound to arrive in your salesrooms in good condition. Remember that newspaper is cheap so put a sheet between each row or two of the long-stemmed buds and save the foliage. Leaves badly torn from thorns going through them will not make the roses more salable.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

NEW YORK FEDERATION OF FLORISTS' CLUBS.

The meeting of this Society was held in Commissioner Driscoll's rooms in the Cornell Building, at the Fair grounds, Syracuse, Thursday September 12, at 4 P. M. Present: President W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, Vice-President R. R. Fry, Rochester, Secretary John Young, New York, Treasurer W. A. Adams, Buffalo, Frank R. Pierson, E. W. Neubrand, Charles Vick, H. Youell, Felix Albers, George B. Hart, Fred Thomson, Com. C. J. Hewson, Robert Bard, F. W. Bannister, Wm. Wind, Julius Thomann, W. R. Pierson, B. T. Bohannon, J. W. Norris, R. C. Scott, W. E. Day, Dr. E. A. Bates, George Arnold, Arthur Cowee, I. Hendrickson.

The Secretary's report showed the great interest being taken in this State Federation. The membership at present consists of the New York Florists' Club, Buffalo Florists' Club, Rochester Florists' Association, Tarrytown Horticultural Society, Nassau Co. Horticultural Society, Tuxedo Horticultural Society, Syracuse Rose Society, Syracuse Florists' Association, Albany Florists' Club, N. Y. and N. J. Plant Growers' Association.

The Treasurer's report showed the payment of the assessments from these Societies and that there had been no bill for expenditures up-to-date.

Frank R. Pierson gave a detailed report for the committee on Legislation and offered important recommendations as to the proper method of securing the appropriation for greenhouses for experimental work in Floriculture at Cornell University. Prof. A. C. Beal addressed the meeting on the subject after which the same was approved. The New York State Vegetable Growers' Association will be invited to join us in the endeavor to secure the appropriation of $50,000 for the purpose mentioned. George B. Thorp made an important recommendation as to the proper method to be adopted to bring about a State appropriation for a Horticultural Building on the Fair grounds in Syracuse, and the subject was handled in great style by President Kasting, Dr. Erl A. Bates, George Thorp, Arthur Cowee, Charles Vick and Treasurer Adams.

Edmund Van Alstyne, Director of Farmers Institute, N. Y. Department of Agriculture asked permission to address the meeting promising the support of the Western New York Horticultural Society and the Western Pomological Association in the endeavor to get this new building. A committee of nine will be appointed, three from each Society, the State Federation of Florists' Clubs, the Western New York Horticultural Society, or the fruit growers, and the State Vegetable Growers' Association, to take this matter up with the State Fair Commission. Frank R. Pierson, Dr. Erl A. Bates and Charles Vick were appointed by President Kasting to represent the Federation of Florists' Clubs. Charles H. Vick, Superintendent of the exhibition of plants and flowers at the Fair and Assistant Superintendent Wm. E. Day were accorded a standing vote of thanks for the very successful manner in which all arrangements had been carried out.

Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., gave a stirring address on "Publicity." This subject so ably presented by Mr. Pierson, was received with enthusiasm by all present, every one realizing that it was an important move in the right direction. Upon Mr. Cowee's motion the Secretary was instructed to write the Fair Commission that it was the sense of this meeting that the children be admitted free to have their competition in flowers, on Monday as had been done in previous years. This permission it was understood had been denied them on Monday of this season's Fair. The same officers were elected to serve another year and President Kasting appointed the same Committees that were serving at present.

Meeting adjourned to meet "Farmers Week" at the Department of Agriculture Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

JOHN YOUNG, Secretary.

FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB OF RHODE ISLAND.

The first meeting of this club following the summer vacation was held in Swarts Hall, Providence, last Monday evening and notwithstanding the small attendance, the session was a busy one. Visits to the Arnold Arboretum and the glass-flower exhibit at Harvard College during the vacation period were recalled by some of the members who told of the experiences and profits of their trips. "Shop Talk" was one of the most interesting topics and the opinions of the members on methods in running a first-class shop were aired, and if suggestions made are successful, the florists in this city will be making money hand-over-fist within a short time.

The expense of delivery of trade products by automobile as compared with horse-drawn vehicles was a subject of especial interest. Several dealers have purchased delivery motors and claim that they are preferable at the increased cost.

The members were at loggerheads as to the real cause for the sudden falling off in the aster supply, a noticeable decrease in quantity being noted during the past week. The cool spell and the sudden change in the weather are accepted by many.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

The following committees have been appointed by President Hendrickson to serve until August, 1913.

Membership—H. W. Koerner, R. F. D. No. 6, Milwaukee, Wis.; Ralph T. Cushman, Sylvania, Ohio; Geo. W. Parsons, Fox Chase, Philadelphia, Pa.

Exhibition.—L. Merton Gage, Groton, Mass.; E. J. Brown, Madison, Wis.; O. V. Zangen, Hoboken, N. J.

Press and Bulletin Committee.—H. Youell, 538 Cedar St., Syracuse, N. Y.; L. Merton Gage, Groton, Mass.; A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.; H. J. Alford, Garrettsville, Ohio; Montague Chamberlain, Groton, Mass.

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

A very large number of members turned out to hear J. K. M. L. Farquhar lecture on the Royal International Show at the first meeting of the season, Tuesday evening, September 17. The lecture hall of Horticultural building was comfortably filled, the meeting was most enthusiastic and the lecturer was welcomed with three cheers and a tiger. The lecture was profusely illustrated with fine lantern slides showing the various exhibits under the tents and in the open at the great London exhibition, also views in Kew, Hampton Court and other noted gardens of England and the bulb fields of Holland. In closing, Mr. Farquhar spoke of the big show to take place in New York city next April under the auspices of the S. A. F. and urged upon the Boston growers the desirability and obligation to be well represented on that occasion and to accord to it every possible support.

A letter was received from President Thomas Pegler, who is now in Maine, resigning his office on account of ill health. The letter was laid on the table until next meeting and the secretary instructed to send a letter of regret and sympathy and best wishes for a rapid recovery.

It was voted to have a dinner in commemoration of the 25th anniversary of the organization of the club, date to be announced by the executive committee.

Wallace R. Pierson was present with a vase of his new rose Milady, which was much admired while closely scrutinized by the many experts present. A vase of white chrysanthemums, Smith's Advance from W. W. Edgar Co., showed up well. Fred Coles showed plant and cut flowers of the new tuberous hybrid Begonia Lloydii.

GARDENERS' CONVENTION.

Arrangements have been completed for the annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners which will be held this year in the city of Newark, N. J., on Tuesday, November 19th. The new Auditorium has been secured for the meeting place to which an exhibit of novelties, both from among the commercial and private growers will be invited. The morning will be given over to a bowling contest, the afternoon to the business session, and the evening to a banquet at the Continental Hotel, the programs having been arranged with a view of meeting the convenience of all members.

President Logan has appointed the following convention committee: Peter Duff, Orange, N. J.; William H. Duckham, Madison, N. J.; A. Bauer, Elberon, N. J.; W. H. Waite, Yonkers, N. Y.; James Stuart, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; John Everitt, Glen Cove, N. Y.; Carl Schaeffer, Tuxedo, N. Y.; Frank E. Whitney, Fishkill, N. Y.; William Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa.; John F. Huss, Hartford, Conn.; Alexander T. Fraser, Newport, R. I.; Thomas Proctor, Lenox, Mass.; William Craig, North Faston, Mass.; F. Kirk, Bar Harbor, Me.; Alexander McPherson, Washington, D. C.; A. J. Smith, Lake Geneva, Wis. Committee on final arrangements: Peter Duff, Orange, N. J.; Robert Tyson, Convent, N. J.; Joseph Manda, West Orange, N. J.; M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.; and Austin C. Saylor, New York, N. Y.

M. C. EBEL, Secretary.

ST. LOUIS FLORIST CLUB.

The St. Louis Florist Club held its regular monthly meeting last week Thursday afternoon. This was installation meeting and the beginning of a new year. Thirty-five were present, including every officer. All bills were paid and all the old committees reported and the club began its new year with a clean slate and 99 members in good standing. All the new officers-elect were present except Vice-President-elect Young. W. C. Young and E. W. Guy served as installing officers and the following were installed: President, Fred H. Weber; secretary, J. J. Beneke; treasurer, W. C. Smith; trustees, Wm. Ossick and John Connon. On leaving the chair President Windler turned over the gavel to President Weber with a few appropriate remarks, ending by asking the members to give their support to the new officers the same as they did to the old. The meeting then adjourned to a nearby cafe where refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening was spent. Next meeting Oct. 10th.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The fifth annual exhibition of the New England Dahlia Society will be held at Horticultural Hall, Boston, on September 20, 21, 22.

The Seventeenth Annual Flower Show of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society will be held in the Assembly Hall, Madison, N. J., on Thursday and Friday, October 31st and November 1st, 1912.

The autumn flower exhibit of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society will be held at Providence, R. I., Sept. 24-25, in the parlors of the Mathewson Street M. E. Church, and present indications point to one of the largest shows in years. Special premiums are offered this fall and the extra inducement appears to have had desired effect. Sisson & Thurston of Newport, importers and growers of dahlias, have offered a prize for one dozen varieties, cactus dahlias, new varieties of 1912. George H. Stoddard, also of Newport, has offered a premium for the 20 largest blooms of at least 10 cactus dahlias.

At the Western Canada Irrigation Congress at Kelowna, B. C., Prof. C. I. Lewis of the Oregon Agricultural College read a very well-considered and instructive paper on "Some Phases of Irrigation," showing where and how systems of irrigation may benefit or possibly injuriously affect the product from fruit orchards. The great problem, according to Prof. Lewis is to teach the grower that irrigation cannot take the place of tillage and that he should work on the basis of not how much, but how little water is necessary.

After a two months' intermission the New Jersey Floricultural Society held its first meeting of the season in Lindsley Hall, Orange, N. J., on Friday, September 13th. A communication from the National Flower Show Committee asking the Society to donate a prize was laid over for later consideration.

Lager & Hurrell exhibited Brasso-Cattleya Maronae, which was awarded 90 points. Frank Drews got 75 points for dahlias; Max Schneider, 75 for celosias, and Emil Panuska 80 for Ficus repens variegata and 78 for Cyrtopodium Harrisianum. The seventh annual dahlia show will be held September 27th from 4 to 10 P. M. The schedule provides for 34 classes and the competition is open to all.

The monthly meeting of the The Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held in Greenwich, Conn., on September 13th. A prize of $25 was received from Mr. Chas. Mallory, Portchester, also one of $10 from the Wilson Plant Oil Co. J. H. Troy gave a short talk on "Horticulture and Its Possibilities." Oscar Fraenkel of Yonkers, also spoke on the same subject, closing his remarks with a few statistics on the results of humus as a fertilizer. On exhibition were collections of grapes from Thos. Ryan; peaches and dahlias from Harry Wilde; peaches from J. Foster, all highly commended. A vote of thanks was accorded Alex. Geddes for French asparagus beans, H. Wilde for clero-dendron and J. Henderson for seedling dahlias.

The annual dahlia exhibition of the New Haven (Conn.) Horticultural Society was held in Harmonie Hall, New Haven, on September 11 and 12. First prize winners in various classes were as follows:

Forbes & Keith, George H. Walter, John Slocombe, George Stillman, Lewis Alling, Herbert Clark, Blanche Davidson, Frank Sheldon, W. H. Goldenblum, William F. Yost, Frank Duffy, Nathan A. Miller, Thomas Bell.

Lord & Burnham, gold medal, value $20, for best 12 blooms of American seedling not yet in commerce, won by A. F. Davidson, Ansonia.

Silver medal by Henry F. Michell Co., won by John H. Slocombe, New Haven.

Silver cup by John N. Champion & Co., for largest exhibit, won by John H. Slocombe.

Silver cup by S. H. Moore & Co. for most meritorious exhibit, won by William Tricker, Arlington, N. J., for water lilies, also certificate of merit.

The judges were Morris Fuld of Philadelphia, Peter Zuger of South Manchester, and Ernest Childs of Ansonia.

The September meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held at Glen Cove, N. Y., September 11th. It was voted to offer a silver cup valued at $50 for the National Flower Show to be held in New York next April, the class to be decided on by the management. Mr. Gammon offered a prize for the fall show and Mr. Holloway made an offer of a cash prize for fruit. The judges of the evening's exhibits were Messrs. Gray, Adler and MacDonald, and the awards as follows:

Honorable mention to Jas. Holloway for a fine collection of outdoor fruit; 1st to H. Boettcher for gladioli; 1st to J. W. Everett for celery and 1st to H. Gaut for onions. Mr. Gaut's onions were considered by old members to be the best ever exhibited at our meetings.

The next meeting will be held at Glen Cove in connection with the Dahlia Show, October 9th.

During Recess.

Cook County Florists' Association.

The Cook County Florists' Association, Chicago, organized its bowling league under the leadership of Allie Zech, chairman of the sports committee, and will bowl its first game Sept. 18th, at Bensinger's alleys. An alley is reserved for the ladies, who will participate on the opening night, and it is expected that they will be guests frequently during the season.

The prizes are as follows: Silver cup, by the Cook County Florists' Association, for the man making highest individual average; watch fob, by A. L. Randall Co., for highest single score; stick pins, by J. Michaelson, for highest average man each team; umbrellas, by Zech & Mann, to six highest individuals; fountain pen, by Chicago Carnation Co., to man making highest three game average. $155 in cash prizes.

Membership of the league is as follows:

Chicago Florists' Bowling League.

The Chicago Florists' Club Bowling League will bowl their first game September 24th, the following named members participating. Ernest Farley, chairman of the sports committee, has worked hard and anticipates a good winter's sport. All details are not yet completed, but the names to date are as follows:

W. Wolf	C. Balluff
F. Potocka	H. Kruchten
E. Price	J. Foerster
E. Winterson	W. Abramson
E. Ollinger	J. Einwich

A picnic was given September 15th by the Gardeners' and Florists' Union, No. 10615, Chicago, at Ebert's Grove, Ridge avenue, and though the day was cool it was participated in by about 400, who were entertained with games and dancing.

The State Fair at Springfield, Ill., to be held October 4 to 12 offers a very attractive list of premiums for plants, cut flowers, bulbs, window boxes, filled baskets and designs with separate classes for professionals and amateurs. The floricultural premium list carries over $3,000 worth of prizes. Special train will be provided for Chicago people.

On Monday forenoon, Mr. E. H. Wilson of the Arnold Arboretum addressed the Newport Garden Association at the residence of Senator Wetmore, on the subject of "Lilies."

THE EXHIBITIONS

DAHLIA AND FRUIT EXHIBITION.

Horticultural Hall, Boston, was all aglow on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, September 13-15, with gladioli, dahlias and hardy herbaceous blooms which filled the large exhibition hall, and a display of unusually fine fruit and vegetables occupied the lecture hall. There were at least two exhibits fairly entitled to be termed sensational—the gladiolus display of B. Hammond Tracy and the collection of hot house grapes by James Marlborough, gardener for Thomas E. Proctor.

The Tracy gladiolus display was unique in arrangement—not only grouped in vases and jars of beautiful design but in hampers and baskets of brown twig or gold and adorned with rich ribbon bows—it was an object lesson in floral art and showed that the gladiolus had at last come under the master hand—or rather, mistress' hand, for the arrangement was done by Mrs. Tracy. A gold medal was worthily awarded "in recognition of efforts to advance the culture and use of the gladiolus." The varieties shown were all of the newer and advanced types such as Mrs. Francis King, Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Sunrise, America, etc.

There may have been larger bunches shown heretofore of certain varieties but taken as a whole we do not recall any grape exhibit in Boston of higher quality than that by Mr. Marlborough. There were fifteen varieties all represented by splendid bunches, large berries, well-finished and well displayed on the stage against a setting of Adiantum Farleyense and other ferns with an imposing group of Campanula pyramidalis in white and purple at either end.

The large hardy herbaceous groups, the varieties all being properly labeled, were prime attractions for the public. They were contributed by Eastern Nurseries, Mt. Desert Nurseries, Blue Hill Nurseries and William Whitman. Noticeable in the Mt. Desert collection were the montbretias, of which ten distinct named varieties were shown. The lovely Lillium Henryi and Phlox Gruppenkonigin were conspicuous also in this display. The dahlia collections were very extensive as might be expected when such well-known specialists as J. K. Alexander, W. D. Hathaway, E. W. Ela, E. F. Dwyer & Son and others are in competition. Luther C. Parker received a first class certificate for a fine new peony-flowered dahlia named "Houghton," color white daintily flushed. Other than that we did not notice anything very exceptional in the dahlia line as to varieties but the average quality of the flowers shown was very high and in such sets as the 24's in show, cactus, decorative and peony-flowered classes by W. D. Hathaway the uniformity of size and quality was remarkable. All the dahlia exhibitors had their blooms nicely labeled, many of them showing hundreds of varieties and visitors made good use of their note books in selecting favored varieties for next year's garden.

Arthur Hunnewell was awarded honorable mention for a set of seedling hybrid Begonia Lloydii, tuberous, in six inch pots from seed sown February 7. The flowers were nodding on tall stems, bright colors and some of them double and beautifully lacinated. They were much admired when first staged but drooped badly on second day. Mrs. J. L. Gardner had a showy group of decorative foliaged stove and greenhouse plants and Fottler, Fiske Rawson Co., staged very extensive groups of named gladioli and dahlias.

The fruit and vegetable section was well filled. Melons were especially good. James Garthley got honorable mention for a seedling melon, also cultural certificate and a bronze medal for his display.

PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual dahlia show was held on Sept. 17. The exhibits from the private gardeners about Philadelphia were rather slim but the lack was more than made up by the fine showing made by Messrs. Burpee, Dreer and Vincent. The former occupied the east end of the hall and put up a fine display, very artistically arranged. Dreer had a novel exhibit, each flower being shown in a pot of ferns, which relieved the single-flower method of showing of the inevitable stiffness, while retaining the unequalled individuality which is unattainable otherwise. Eighty-three varieties were thus shown, and were a great center of attraction. In addition to their dahlia exhibit Messrs. Dreer showed forty vases of hardy phlox. The Burpee display was greatly enhanced by a free use of Eulalia plumes and autumn foliage. Fine pyramidal vases were shown of the new peony-flowered seedlings (originating with Burpee and his dahlia expert Geo. W. Kerr); also the same of such fine varieties as Golden West, Queen Victoria, Sebastopol, Jack Rose and Kriemhilde. One of the loveliest of the collection was the variety Mrs. Reginald Bailey, raised in England by Mr. Kerr; a lovely claret cactus with magenta reflex. R. Vincent & Sons showed twenty-one vases of dahlias, representing some of the best of the present day commercial varieties. Joseph Hurley, gardener for Thomas P. Hunter, had a splendid collection of outdoor garden cut flowers. John Little was the principal exhibitor in the class for vegetables. Robt. Morrow, gardener for Geo. I. Bodine, carried off the prize for Dreer's Peerless aster. Wm. Fowler exhibited Queen Alexandra and Mrs. J. G. Cassatt dahlias in the Michell section. W. F. Bassett, Hammonton, N. J., sent a good collection which was staged by the Pennock-Meehan Co. Geisha, Sylvia, Bridesmaid, Jack Rose and Antietam were among the good varieties shown. A new one which we praised last year was not yet at its best and of course we can only talk of things as we see them.

CHARTER OAK FAIR.

The flower show at Charter Oak Park Fair, Hartford, Conn., September 2nd to 7th, was the largest on record. J. A. Weber, as superintendent, gave much satisfaction. The judges were Walter Angus and Robert Roger of Chapinville. The list of awards was a long one—too long for our crowded space. The names that figured most prominently in the prizes were W. W. Hunt, J. W. Scott and C. R. Burr, evergreens and shrubs; J. F. Huss and John Coombs, palms and ferns; J. A. Weber, J. F. Huss, dahlias, carnations, etc.; N. Nelson, Miss Whiting, roses; W. H. Mackenzie, asters; J. A. Weber, antirrhinums and salpiglossis. All the above were represented in other classes of garden annuals and perennials, besides quite a number of other exhibitors, quality being excellent all through. The display of gladioli was very extensive, A. F. Cowee of Berlin, N. Y., and B. F. White of Terryville, Conn., staging about 400 vases. Mr. White won the silver vase for largest collection. It took 1500 bottles to stage the dahlias. George Stillman, Westerly, R. I., captured 13 firsts, four seconds; Forbes & Keith, New Bedford, Mass., five firsts, nine seconds; J. H. Slocombe, New Haven, six firsts, two seconds; Neil Nelson, Hartford, two firsts, four seconds.

The Park Department of Hartford covered 500 square feet of space with beautiful groups of celosia, salvia, ornamental grasses, tuberous rooted begonias and gloxinias.

NEWPORT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The autumn exhibition of this society was held in Masonic Hall, Sept. 14, 15 and 16, under very favorable weather conditions which, with other fortunate circumstances, resulted in the show being one of the best the society has ever had. The walls of the hall had previously been decorated with wild smilax, hydrangeas and other suitable material for the annual ball which followed the closing of the show, and the exhibits were skillfully arranged to harmonize with the wall decorations, bringing out much favorable comment.

Competition was very keen in many of the classes, which helped further to make an interesting show. The winners of the first prizes in the more important classes follow:

Group of foliage plants—James Bond, gardener for Mrs. H. M. Brooks. Six foliage plants James Robertson, gardener for Mrs. T. O. Richardson. Specimen areca—Alex. Fraser, gardener for Mrs. H. McK. Twombly. Kentia in 12-inch pot—J. Robertson. Kentia, any size—James Boyd, gardener for Mr. Vincent Astor. Specimen Adiantum Farleyense—John B. Urquhart, gardener for R. L. Beeckman; this plant was also awarded the silver medal offered by H. F. Michell Co. of Philadelphia for the most meritorious exhibit. Specimen Nephrolepis—C. M. Bugholt, gardener for Miss Fanny Foster. Specimen fern, any other variety—J. Bond. Six dracaenas—J. Bond. Six crotons—J. Bond. Pandanus—J. Bond. Dish Farleyense—J. B. Urquhart. Dish of other ferns—J. B. Urquhart. Dish foliage plants—J. Bond. 25 gardenias—J. Bond. 25 outdoor roses—A. Fraser. 25 indoor roses—J. B. Urquhart. Collection perennial flowers—A. L. Dorward. 25 cactus dahlias and 20 do.—C. M. Bugholt. Collection 12 dahlias—W. D. Hathaway. Vase yellow dahlias—Alex. McLellan. Single dahlias—J. Robertson. Vase pink dahlias—Sisson & Thurston. Six vases flowers and arrangement—J. Bond. Collection 12 kinds vegetables—Col. Fred. Mason of Taunton; second, John Fletcher, gardener for Com. J. H. Dayton. 12 kinds vegetables for Stump & Walter cup—Col. F. Mason. Basket of foliage plants—Hugh Meikle. 25 cactus dahlias for silver cup given by Miss Fanny Foster—D. J. Coughlin, gardener for E. Rollins Morse. Mrs. Goelet prize for collection of table plants—J. Bond. Mrs. Goelet prize for table outdoor flowers—Wm. Gray, gardener for Mrs. Wm. B. Leeds.

Centre pieces and fancy baskets were exhibited on the second day and these brought out 20 exhibits which made hard work for the judges. A. S. Meikle, president of the Society, was first in the centre piece class. Charles Davidson in one class of baskets and A. Tollefson in the other. The table decorations on the third day as usual brought out some good competition, 11 tables in all being set, and some of them probably being set with the best cut glass and silver in the city, as that part of the equipment counted 50 per cent in the class for the R. L. Beeckman prizes. The first in this was won by Wm. Gray with an elegant arrangement of pink cosmos and gypsophila in a tall vase with a base of Farleyense fronds. This decoration was also awarded the H. F. Michell bronze medal. The B. Hammond Tracy prize for table decoration of gladioli was won by A. S. Meikle, and first for table decoration of wild flowers went to A. L. Dorward. The H. A. Dreer prize for plants of Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa, was won by J. B. Urquhart. The R. R. Barker silver cup for cactus dahlias was won by Sisson & Thurston with a perfect collection of about 60 varieties. The same firm also won the R. & J. Farquhar prize for collection of peony-flowered dahlias.

Among the special exhibits was an interesting collection of water lilies shown by William Tricker of Arlington, N. J., and the following varieties were each awarded the silver medal of the society:

Nymphaea Mrs. Roche, a new cerise pink. N. Eugenia de Land, large white and pink. N. Daubianiana, a hybrid of distinct new type, introduced recently in the United States. Mr. Tricker was also awarded a first-class certificate for a new pink aster named St. Egwin. C. M. Bugholt was awarded a silver medal for a new pink cactus dahlia originated by him and named "Pink Lady." This is a seedling from the well-known Mar Bouchon and decidedly better than that variety.

The judges were Richard Gardner and Bruce Butterton of Newport, and Arthur Griffin, James Garthly, George Melville and John Barr of other places, and seemed to give satisfaction.

VANDA SANDERIANA.

In the "Orchid Review" of June, 1912, page 190, the above species is mentioned together with Vanda coerulea as "difficult species." As to the coerulea I will say that I have not had the best of success. V. Sanderiana has behaved better and it may be of interest to some if I state how I have treated it. We have three plants which we got a little over two years ago. They were in semi-dormant condition, with roots five to six inches long. They were placed in the East Indian house, but as they did not seem to grow any they were moved to a stove case in the stove and you can see the result; the roots are nearly 30 inches long. There are nine flowers in the bunch. The other two plants have not made such good growth but are doing well; they were much smaller plants to start with. The temperature in the case is generally 75° in winter and 90° in the summer with some fluctuation, but very seldom below 60°. They are syringed every day once; if very warm, three times. They have never stopped growing; always some fresh growing tips on the roots. I believe this species, if in good health, should always show signs of activity at the roots. The slide door to the case was kept open night and day about 20x30 inches.

Necessary For Success

"We all have more or less trouble in keeping the greenhouse stock clean during the winter months, and I doubt whether there are two firms who make use of the same methods to do it. But I am sure we all agree that the only right way is to prevent, if at all possible, the appearance of the green or black aphid, and not wait before spraying or fumigating until things are alive all round us. Therefore, if you have made up your mind to keep your carnations, roses and other stocks clean this winter, get busy now. Order from your supply house a good stock of the preparation you are in the habit of using, and take it down from the shelf every ten days and fumigate or spray. Bugs or no bugs, for the last two years we have used nicotine in different strengths, and while this has been most effective, Aphine is just as much so, and the beauty of it is, its cheapness. I don't care what you may grow, if you spray your houses every ten days according to directions on the can you are going to have clean stock. Start now. It's your only chance. Keep the houses clean from now on and you have easy sailing all through winter instead of a continuous fight to keep the insects down."—Fritz Bahr, "Weeks Work," Florists' Exchange, September 14, 1912.

APHINE is a spraying material, a composition of essential oils and nicotine, effective against green, black, white fly, thrips, red spider, mealy bug and scale. It can be applied to the tender foliage without injury, and it is an excellent cleanser for decorative stock. Price $2.50 per gallon, $1.00 per quart.

FUNGINE is a liquid sulphur composition. It is an infallible remedy for mildew, rust and bench fungi. It does not stain the foliage, but cleanses it. Used with success by the leading rose, chrysanthemum, carnation and sweet pea growers, also for fruit and vegetables. Price $2.00 per gallon, 75c. per quart.

VERMINE A soil sterilizer and germicide which will destroy eel, cut, wire and grub worms, slugs, root lice, maggots and ants without injury to plants. It is applied at the strength of one part Vermine to four hundred parts water, thoroughly soaking the soil. Price $3.00 per gallon, $1.00 per quart.

All our products are readily soluble in water. Used at various strengths according to directions on cans, and are equally effective in the greenhouse and in the garden. They are sold by the well known seed firms and supply houses everywhere.

THE QUARANTINE LAW AND ITS ENFORCEMENT.

Mr. F. W. Kelsey of New York has sent the following letter, under date of September 13, to Hon. W. M. Hays, Acting Secretary, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.:

Dear Sir:—Replying to your favor and inquiry of August 28th, asking "for advice and suggestions" regarding the recently enacted quarantine law, as this Act is now a law we shall all be compelled to make the most of it, whatever hardships, injustice or losses may result.

The law certainly confers upon the Secretary of Agriculture extraordinary power, which, let us hope, will be exercised with caution and reasonable restraint, on the principle that great power carries with it equal responsibility. We would respectfully ask and suggest that the rules and regulations relative to the enforcement of the Act be made as liberal as possible, in order to avoid, as far as may be, unnecessary burdens on the nursery and plant industry of the country. With this view, can you not include the following points in these regulations:

First—That a reasonable notice of, say, 60 days be given by publication and to interested parties, the Nurserymen's and Florists' Associations, etc., before the edict of quarantine is to become effective.

It is an extraordinary provision of law that an officer of our Government may at any time and without notice other than that of a perfunctory hearing, declare an edict of quarantine against everything and every species of material and from any country, that in his judgment, or the judgment of his board, may deem desirable. Such an act, it seems to us, is wholly unnecessary as applied to the purposes of this Act, and such a provision, we submit, is better adapted to the Bureau of Russia than the administration of law in this country. Without such notice any or all citizens of the United States may have placed definite orders with foreign correspondents, the material for which orders duly shipped, and after such shipment, on or before arrival of the material, be met with the Chinese wall of quarantine prohibition, producing utter and irreparable loss, where all parties in interest may have acted in perfect good faith.

Such a provision for notice should, in our judgment, have been inserted in the law. As it is not in the law, can you not see that it is included in the rules and regulations, or some method adopted by which the circumstance to which we have referred may be avoided?

Second—It seems to us in every way practical and desirable to avoid the issuance of an application for a permit for each and every invoice for material that any citizen of the United States may wish to obtain from any foreign state or country. The enforcement of such a technical feature of the law would add an enormous burden of detail, consequent loss, and annoyance to the whole nursery and plant industry, which we believe could be and should be avoided. Could not some form of blanket permit be given to reputable, reliable and responsible establishments legitimately engaged in the business that would fully answer the requirements of the law and of the Department, on their written assurances that no importation of any quarantine material will be made?

Third—We likewise deem it desirable that the rules and regulations governing the Act should include a clearer definition in the matter of notification as in Section Second, and whether such notification of "the proper State, Territorial or District Official" will be sufficient, as the Act in this respect is somewhat ambiguous, the same as to the inspection clause referred to in Section Four of the Act.

Fourth—In the matter of hearings. While this gives a certain publicity to any anticipated quarantine action by the Department, it is a matter of common experience that very many persons—indeed, most persons—will suffer great hardships and serious loss before they will take the time and expense to go to a Government official or officials, where full arbitrary power, as in this Act, is conferred by law, and the administration of the law is in the hands of a Board, as in this instance, where those most interested, such as the nursery and florists' interests, have not even a minority representative, or any representation, on the official Board. Under such conditions pro forma public hearings frequently become hearings only in name. We refer to this without prejudice of or to a single member of the Federal Executive Board, for whom we have none other than respect and confidence, but state it as a principle, well known to men who have had experience in business and public affairs.

For these reasons we beg to suggest that the provisions of the Quarantine Law be not exercised, excepting after the most careful investigation and thorough determination as to the absolute necessity of such action; and we submit that force is added to this suggestion when we consider that had such a law been enforced during the past ten years, it would without doubt have resulted in enormous and in many cases needless losses, where the applied remedy would have been, as it will be under the present law, unless executed with the greatest caution, worse than the disease.

The writer has had more than thirty years' experience in the nursery business, is somewhat conversant with legislative matters, and these suggestions are respectfully submitted in response to your inquiry in view of the importance of the subject, and because we have full confidence in your intention and the intention of all of the heads of the Department to carry out the law in fairness and with as little injustice and loss to citizens as possible.

A NEW GERMICIDE.

The Aphine Manufacturing Company, which is now manufacturing a general line of agricultural chemicals, and which in this issue for the first time is advertising its new germicide and soil sterilizer Vermine, reports that experiments made by experts with this product under various conditions have proven most successful. It has been tried in the greenhouse on carnation, chrysanthemum and rose benches for various worms and in each instance proved effective, destroying the worms in a few minutes after the material was applied and showing no injurious effects whatsoever on the plants.

In an experiment made on a bench of carnations literally loaded with the small eel worms and the plants already showing the injuries done by the ravages of the worm, a heavy application of Vermine was applied to the soil with the result that within five minutes the top of the soil was covered with the worms. Examination of the bench a few hours afterwards did not find a live worm, and the plants within a few days took on new life.

Phoenix attacked by ants were treated with Vermine with the result that the ants were effectively destroyed.

Outdoors the material has been tested against the white red-headed grubs, which are doing so much damage in many parts of the country, and applied to a cabbage patch which was being ravaged and it was found that where Vermine was applied the grubs could not live.

The manufacturers do not claim a new discovery; they have simply secured possession of a formula which has been successfully used for a number of years in one of the European countries.

HORTICULTURE is a grand paper and should be read by every florist.—E. C. M., Washington, D. C.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW, NEW YORK, 1913.

Chairman Chas. H. Totty of the National Flower Show Committee announces the following prizes for competition in addition to the prizes previously announced:

The Duchess Co. (N. Y.) Hort. Soc. will take up Class 210 of the Preliminary Schedule, covering six stove and greenhouse foliage plants, distinct, exclusive of palms, not less than 8-in. pots or pans, prize value $50.

The Newport (R. I.) Hort. Soc. will offer a silver cup, value $25, and the silver and bronze medals of the society, for competition by private gardeners, in classes to be determined upon by the management.

M. C. Ebel, Aphine Mfg. Co., Madison, N. J., offers seven-piece silver tea service, value $100, for a group of flowering plants arranged for effect, covering 50 sq. ft., orchids, bulbs and flowering plants excluded.

The Morris Co. (N. J.) Gardeners' and Florists' Society offers a cash prize of $50, to be awarded in the discretion of the committee.

The Nassau Co. (N. Y.) Hort. Soc. offers a silver cup, value $50, to be awarded in one of the classes for private gardeners.

Albert Vick of Rochester, N. Y., offers a silver cup, value $30, for award in any manner the committee may deem desirable.

Trade Exhibits.

The trade exhibition will be a prominent feature of the show. John Young, secretary of the S. A. F. & O. H., and manager of the trade exhibition at the show, has prepared diagrams showing the proposed layout of the three floors of the building to be used for the show and the spaces allotted to trade exhibits, and much space has already been taken. Rates for space are:

Main floor, $1.50 per sq. ft.; second floor, $1 per sq. ft.; and third floor, 75 cents per sq. ft. Copies of the diagrams may be had on application to John Young, 54 West 28th street., New York.

Foreign Exhibits.

Foreign exhibits will be admitted free of duty under act of Congress approved March 4, 1911, for the free entry of articles imported for exhibition at expositions to be held in New York, the term of which act was recently extended three years. Any merchandise entered for exhibition under the act may be sold at any time during the exhibition (but withdrawal of it will not be allowed until after the close of the exhibition) subject to prompt customs entry at the close of the period of exhibition, and upon such entry the merchandise will be appraised and due allowance made for diminution or deterioration by reason of exposure or incidental handling. Merchandise not so entered within thirty days after the close of the exhibition will be sent to general order stores as unclaimed; or it may be entered for warehouse in the regular way. Copies of the act and the regulations in full, carrying same into effect may be obtained on application to Mr. Young.

Growing for a Foreign Exhibitor.

If any grower would care to grow bulbous plants for a foreign house, for exhibition at the show, he can learn particulars by communicating with C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., who would appreciate the inquiry.

J. H. PEPPER,
Chairman Publicity Committee.

THE SOUVENIR ALBUM.

The Souvenir Album of the Chicago Convention is a most elaborate and beautiful production, worthy of the name and a credit to everyone concerned in its making and we advise our readers to be sure to obtain a copy before they are all distributed. We are informed by C. W. Johnson, Secretary of the Souvenir Album Committee, that copies can be purchased as follows: Single copies including postage, 35 cents; five copies by express, collect, for $1.00. Address George Asmus, 2221-2223 West Madison street, Chicago, Ill.

All members of the S. A. F. & O. H. who did not obtain a copy at Chicago will have one mailed to them as soon as the committee can get the names checked up.

DIOON SPINULOSUM.

Our cover illustration shows one of the six plants which won the first prize, a silver cup, for W. A. Manda at the Royal International Exhibition. The first record we can find of this rare Mexican cycad was over the signature of W. R. Smith in the American Florist, January 7, 1892. Mr. Smith there spoke of it as promising to be a very popular decorative plant. The plant we illustrate was taken from South Orange, N. J., to England and back and since that time has produced a magnificent crown of new leaves which speaks well for its sturdiness and tenacity.

The sixth annual Dahlia and Flower Show will be held at Vincent's Dahlia and Canna Farm, Cowenton, Md., B. & O. R. R., in connection with the Harvest Home Festival of Ebenezer M. E. Church, on September 24, 25, 26 and 27, 1912. Special features to be seen are the largest greenhouse establishment in the state, the largest assortment of geraniums in the country, the great dahlia show of 80,000 flowers including over 300 varieties artistically arranged in the large exhibition hall, the dahlia and canna field of 65 acres, and an attractive display of Middle River Neck farm and household products. Lunch will be served by the ladies. R. A. Vincent, is chairman, White Marsh, Md., Harvest Home Committee. J. N. League, Chase, secretary.

CHICAGO NOTES.

Carl Cropp, Jr., has arrived home from his trip to Germany and his parents expect to sail for home on the 21st.

Local retailers report trade as excellent. At A. Lange's September wedding orders are unusually many and the lack of outdoor flowers makes the demand for florists' stock larger than usual.

Clifford Pruner and Clara Burkhardt at E. H. Hunt's, long since made an enviable reputation for accuracy and despatch in handling orders and are planning to surpass all previous records this year.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association have added a fern shipper to their stockholders and he sends from 40,000 to 50,000 ferns weekly from Michigan, about one-half the supply needed for average use.

Hoerber Bros. will begin cutting chrysanthemums from their place in Desplains in another week. They think extremely early 'mums are not profitable. My Maryland and Pink Killarney are now coming on good.

Ed. Winterson, Jr., is one of the youngest men in the trade, but he unpacked alone and placed in the bins 69 cases of bulbs at the week-end. A singular affection of the finger tips always follows the handling of the bulbs, and as yet no preventive has been found.

The Blackstone Hotel, which is known for its lavish use of plants, is now having its Grecian Marble Room decorated for the season's opening with large palms. J. Mangel, who has charge of it, is proud of his Greek origin and his word is law in the scheme of decoration.

The new Cluster Peppers referred to last week are now in the retail stores. They were introduced in limited quantities last year as an experiment and are proving highly attractive. The clusters are composed of from eight to twelve deep-red peppers, set in a tight mass and standing well above the foliage. Plants are stocky and each branch is topped with a cluster. The Stuppe Floral Co., of St. Joseph, Mo., sent it out unnamed and Jas. Hancock of Frank Oechslin's named it the Cluster Pepper.

Visitors: W. P. Craig, Philadelphia; C. C. Wonneman, Mexico, Mo.

OBITUARY.

William Thomann.

Though not in the trade, Wm. Thomann had devoted most of his leisure hours during eighty years to the cultivation of plants and flowers, and his home at 4420 Lyman avenue, Chicago, has been a beauty spot for years. With all of a German's love of nature he came to Chicago 44 years ago and where now stand tall apartment houses he had his beautiful flower gardens, the pride of his neighborhood. Who shall say this man did not do as much for floriculture as if he had stood behind a counter. His casket lay among araucarias and azaleas of his own growing and he was carried from the old home between oleanders fifteen feet tall. All cities need more such men.

TORNADO AT SYRACUSE.

The tornado that visited the vicinity of Syracuse last Sunday afternoon was felt at its worst about six miles from the center of the city, completely demolishing one of the best and most popular summer resorts. There were no florist or nursery establishments in its path, but many market gardeners suffered very heavily. H. M. Younglove was the heaviest loser; the dwelling was unroofed, furniture broken, paper stripped from the walls, the greenhouse completely demolished and the barn carried across several fields and ruined. Mr. Younglove and his family were away at the time.

No record of such a storm having visited this part can be found; everyone hopes they will never see its like again. The continuous flashes of lightning, with the heavy peals of thunder, the frightful humidity and the appalling darkness with a torrent of rain, made one feel the end of the earth was near.

H. YOEUELL.

NEWS NOTES.

Boston, Mass.—Means & Thatcher, 6 Custom House street, have been appointed eastern managers for the George M. Garland Construction Co., greenhouse builders of Chicago.

Brookline, Mass.—Albert H. Wood, a well-known grower of violets for the Boston market, whose establishment is located on Warren street, shot and instantly killed a man who was prowling about his place at 9 o'clock on Wednesday night, September 18. The man was later identified as Thomas Goldrop of Cambridge, having a wife and one child. Mr. Wood was arrested and held on a charge of manslaughter.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON This market is very well supplied with roses, such as they are. The quality is improving from day to day and every new variety that has had any kind of a send-off of late is in evidence. Asters have fallen off in quantity as well as quality, but chrysanthemums are showing up here and there and will soon displace them. Carnations are not good yet, but they are more plentiful and will be a factor soon. Gladioli are still abundant, the light tints far out-selling the bright colored varieties. Lily of the valley was never better. Gardenias are beginning to assert themselves and catleyas have got nicely over the recent scarcity. The outlook is all good for supply in every line and general trade is gradually brightening up.

BUFFALO A better tone prevailed the past week in the flower market and trade was more satisfactory. The heavy supply of asters and gladioli, also roses, of a few days previous, has shortened up considerably and more satisfactory prices are obtained. Floral work helped to consume a good portion of stock and a few weddings were noticeable as white roses were in demand, together with lily of the valley and chrysanthemums. Beauties had a better call and Jardine, Maryland, Killarney and Sunburst are coming on better each day. Some good Bonsilene and Perles are to be had. There has been a fairly good demand for lilies, also greens, southern smilax and adiantum.

CHICAGO The faint signs of an awakening to active trade seen last week have developed into an assured fact and so rapidly has the change come about that it is hard to believe that such a transformation could come in so short a time. The principal cause is a shortage of stock where so lately there was a profusion. The thousands of asters are of the past, the few remaining ones being very welcome. Their companion of many weeks, the gladiolus, is about through with many shippers. Carnations are coming to the front but so short are the stems that they cut no figure in sprays or alone, so the demand is thrown to roses which are not as yet equal to it. Lily of the valley is scarce. The first dahlias and tritomas made their appearance this week and met a good reception. Ferns are rapidly going into cold storage and the quality is good. A few chrysanthemums are cut daily.

CINCINNATI Cooler weather and better business both came at the same time. An overloaded market during the hot days of the early part of the month has given way to one in which in most flowers the demand easily takes up all that arrives. The Jewish holidays have contributed their share to the general demand, especially for the fancy stock. The New York asters that arrived the early part of this week and last week stood the shipping well, and outside of a few that were poorly packed and thus bruised they were in excellent condition. Some pretty fair gladioli, too, are still offered and they are finding a good market. Among other outside flowers that are being used are cosmos and dahlias.

Roses are now selling better than they were. All varieties and all sizes are taken up.

DETROIT A great relief for all was the increased demand for goods which occurred last week. Those fortunate to have the order for balls and luncheons of the American Bankers' Association felt as if they were in the middle of the big season. Good stock suitable for such work was really scarce, while less-valued flowers—most of all asters and short carnations—glutted the market beyond redemption.

ST. LOUIS The market the last week looked up somewhat. The weather was cooler and the storemen bought heavier than usual. There is some good stock of all kinds coming in now and at prices that are reasonable in all grades. Killarney is the best rose coming in now. Good asters are to be had in all colors. Carnations are slow coming as to grade but there is plenty of common short stock to be had. Gladioli holding out well. Lily of the valley and lilies make up the rest of the cut stock.

N. F. McCarthy of Boston has now returned from the Isles of Shoals where he went to recuperate after a serious operation in the hospital and looks in fine fettle for the opening season's strain.

On the whole there NEW YORK seems to be more business doing and the market has a tendency to be slightly on the upward grade, but of course the wholesalers are far from being really busy. It is a relief to find that the asters are about used up, but the glut of dahlias is likely to be with us for a few days yet. Roses are still improving, white varieties being in demand and but few to be obtained, while colored sorts are plentiful. We are getting now a good few chrysanthemums of very fair quality. Orchids have been plentiful this week, but of course they have not been wanted.

PERSONAL.

Frank Palmer is now employed by the Van Lindley Nursery Co., of Greensboro, N. C.

Thomas Pegler has taken a position in charge of the greenhouses of Mr. Wm. Butler at Brunswick, Me.

J. H. F. Macdonald, the Brattle Square Florist, Cambridge, Mass., has returned after several weeks' vacation in Canada.

P. Welch, of Welch Bros., Boston, is at his office this week, after a summer's absence on recreation and business well mixed up.

Miss Hattie Klagge, daughter of Robert Klagge, florist, 154 Gutschow street, Mt. Clemens, Mich., was married on September 11 to Carl F. Muelenhagen, of Detroit.

Fred Chyezewsky, formerly greenhouse manager for Alfred Campbell, Collingdale, Pa., has purchased property with 60,000 feet of glass on Newton road, Churchville, Pa.

Detroit visitors: W. P. Craig, of Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia; J. J. Karins, representing H. A. Dreer, Philadelphia; Mr. McGee, of Toledo, Ohio; Miss Flick, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Verner Bouter, formerly in charge of the Warren street store of P. R. Quinlan & Co., florists, Syracuse, N. Y., is now manager of the plant and flower department of a local department store.

The position of director of the New York State School of Agriculture, Alfred, N. Y., has been accepted by Prof. W. J. Wright, formerly in the department of horticulture of the Pennsylvania State College.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Harry and Frank Michell, sons of Fred J. Michell of the H. F. Michell Co., started this week on a two-year course in agriculture at state college. By the time they get through they will know something of the theoretical as well as the practical. We trust these two promising young men will not get the idea that knowledge is the end—but on the contrary only the beginning—the means to an end.

Visitors: J. Elseman, "Penn," Boston, Mass.; Mr. Hahn and R. G. Wilson, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Nick Davis, Jacksonville, Fla.; W. R. Thomas, Atlantic City, N. J.; Messrs. Jones and Barberer, of the Jones & Russell Co., Cleveland, O.; Miss Barry, representing Z. D. Blackistone, Washington, D. C.; Mr. Pierce of Pierce & Co., Baltimore, Md.; H. L. Holmes, Harrisburg, Pa.; Will Rehder, Wilmington, N. C.

NEW YORK NOTES.

Peter Henderson's window display attracts all attention from passers-by. Bulbs interspersed with vases of asters are effectively shown.

Alexander Forbes has severed his connection with the firm of Peter Henderson & Co., and Patrick O'Mara has succeeded to his position.

F. Gomer Waterer of Bagshot, England, is visiting this city on the lookout for a grower to take in hand his rhododendrons for next year's International Exhibition at New York.

W. E. Marshall & Co. have moved into their new premises at 166 W. 23rd street. With a length of 100 feet and 18 feet in height the store will have a handsome appearance when finished. What with the moving and an extra busy time with bulb order shipments there is some work doing at 166.

As indicated in the Elliott Plant Auction advertisement in this issue, the stock in the Bonnie Brae Nurseries at New Rochelle, N. Y., is to be sold out. The material offered is good timely stuff in immediate demand and the opportunity will, no doubt, be improved by florists and buyers.

ST. LOUIS NEWS NOTES.

Wm. Holtz has taken the position at Angermuller's vacated by A. W. Gunz. Mr. Holtz is well known among the buyers at the wholesale houses having once been head of Kuehn's wire shop.

Fred H. Weber furnished the big fall opening at Vandebort's department store on Monday, Sept. 16. The decorations consisted of plants, wild smilax and Beauties, and were very attractive.

The new wholesale firm opened its doors on Monday, Sept. 16th, with a lot of buyers ready to patronize, each wanting to be the first buyer. The stock was up to the average and the boys say they are well pleased at the business done the first day.

Visitors during the week were: R. Newcomb of Vaughan's seed store, and Guy Reyburn of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago.

Saw It- Then Bought It

ONE morning this summer, a perfect stranger walked into our office, and told us he had come all the way from Norfolk, Virginia, to see if the Hitchings New Model Sectional Boiler was the superior boiler we claimed it to be.

He also wanted to see how we made them, and the kind of iron from which they are made.

Before leaving, he gave us an order for the largest size we make — a big 36.

If you are another one who wants to see one of our boilers before buying, and can't take the time to come to our factory, then let us send you the name of the nearest grower who has one.

You can then not only see it, but get his opinion of just how good a greenhouse boiler it really is.

The SERVICE BUILDING is usually a source of great annoyance to the up-to-date gardener and it requires architectural ability to design appropriate Potting Houses that will add to the attractiveness of the Greenhouses. You will admit that this SERVICE BUILDING is unusually attractive. Its Old English Architecture is along the same lines as other buildings on this large estate; it is equipped with all modern improvements for the comfort of the gardener and his assistants and the connecting house, sixteen feet long (ample for propagating purposes), prevents the shading of adjoining houses.

Will be glad to talk to you on the SERVICE BUILDING.

THE BEAUTIFUL SYMMETRY of lines ONLY secured in THE LUTTON PATENTED CURVED EAVE IRON FRAME HOUSE is easily distinguishable. It is the ARTISTIC application to the small details that commands the attention of the most CRITICAL.

JUST note the construction of the HOOD over doorway. ITS SIMPLICITY and how IT HARMONIZES with the general appearance of the construction. THAT is only one of the details. Throughout the entire arrangement the same original mechanical ability is employed. THEN again this construction is patented, UNITED STATES PATENT NO. 902,155. NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Ardisiás

In order to develop the coloring of their berries, the plants should have a bench in a sunny house and abundant ventilation. When kept too warm and overhumid they will make a premature growth of foliage which is not wanted at this time. They should be kept from 50 to 55 degrees at night where you want well done plants for the Christmas trade. Go over the plants often and give a turn around so that the sun may reach them on all sides. It is important to look carefully to watering, because when allowed to become too dry or too wet at the roots the plants will soon show permanent injury. For the prevention of brown scale which invariably troubles these plants they should be frequently sponged with some good insecticide. Do not crowd the plants, but give them plenty of room between so that the berries will have a chance to color up.

Chrysanthemums

Keep the atmosphere of your chrysanthemum house dryer now for this is essential where a perfect finished flower is wanted. Keep the house cool by giving plenty of ventilation, both day and night, even if you have to keep a little fire in doing it. Keep the plants well tied up; they should be gone over at least every ten days. It is not possible to disbud a whole house at one time, so they should be looked over very often to do it right. Give your specimen plants intended for exhibition a systematic feeding until they show color. Liquid feeding can be done three or four times a week, but taking great care not to use it too strong or too often, as there is danger of getting the soil sour, hence the necessity of good judgment in feeding. Keep the plants clean by frequent fumigating.

Care of Violets

Give your violets faithful attention from this out. Exercise judgment in watering. Examine the soil in several places on the benches, especially about the sides and ends as they always dry out more quickly than in the middle of the bed. On all bright days syringe in the early part of the morning so the foliage will dry out before night. Keep on plenty of ventilation both night and day so they can have a constant supply of pure air, which is favorable to their proper development, helping to keep the atmosphere from becoming stagnant and over moist. Give the plants a good cleaning often, removing diseased or spotted foliage and also keep all the runners pinched off. Where plants are showing a vigorous growth, they can have a light mulch of very old manure spread between the rows. Guide your temperature by common sense and keep it as near 40 to 45 degrees at night as possible. Fumigate lightly often to keep the greenfly in check.

Lilium longiflorum giganteum

This is a very satisfactory lily to grow for the Easter trade. The bulbs can be potted any time during October and will come in all right, but, of course, the earlier they can be potted up the better, as Easter comes very early next year, falling on March 23. Give them a rich bulb compost and use either 6 or 7-inch pots. After they are potted they should be placed outdoors in a cold frame where they will make fine roots. Cover the pots with 5 or 6 inches of soil, and if we have very heavy rains give them some protection as they do not like to be saturated. Where they are kept in a nice even state of moisture, they will make enough roots by the middle of December to be brought in and placed on a bench in a house where the temperature is about 50 degrees at night.

Home-Grown Shrubs for Forcing

There are quite a few florists who grow their own shrubs for forcing purposes now. Those who plant their shrubs in good rich ground with proper care afterwards, such as a good dressing of manure in the fall and bone and wood ashes applied in the spring will grow fine shrubs in two or three years by using good size stock when planting. So make a plantation now. Where you have been growing this stock for forcing, now is the time to dig them up with all the roots possible, and pot firmly. This will give plenty of time to become established before the cold weather sets in. When done at this time they soon take hold of the new soil with a lot of new roots. They should be stood in some place that is handy to water so they can be watered when they want it and an odd spraying will put them in condition for use. Before the real winter sets in they should be plunged in some deep frame until wanted. Flowering almonds, hawthorns, Pyrus japonica, deutzias, exochordas, philadelphus, prunus, spiraeas, lilacs, viburnum, etc., are all useful subjects.

Pansies

Transplant pansies now if you have not already done so. Prick them out in coldframe, 4 or 5 inches apart in good rich soil, and give them a good watering. Do not put on the sashes too early as the pansy is a cold-blooded plant and will not need any protection even if the thermometer does go below the freezing point until the end of November. Then they should be only protected during cold weather. Take advantage of all mild weather to give them ventilation.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Antirrhinums; Allamandas; Cluearias; Hydrangea arborescens; Orchids; Oxalis.

try at this season of the year. Whether by donations of plants or seeds in the spring time or prizes or exhibits at the show or by serving as judges, these men are doing worthy service for horticulture which will bear good fruit in the coming time. It is the duty of every local florist and gardener to display an interest in and lend their aid to all such local affairs and to extend favor and support to those who are conducting such even if it does entail a little trouble and business interruption. There should be many more of these local shows in every community and the florist who helps to promote them is doing a lasting service for himself as well as for the people and for the advancement of horticulture.

The big exhibition furnished by Secretary Young it appears that trade space for the great show at Grand Central Palace, New York City, next April, is being rapidly taken up, despite some occasional grumbling at the high rentals demanded. A visit to this magnificent building cannot but convince anyone that much higher rates than we have been accustomed to are here imperative. As to whether the amount of business done will justify the outlay from the standpoint of the commercial exhibitors remains to be demonstrated, but the trade seems disposed to take the chance with confidence that in this great hive of six million people, the returns will be adequate, and we hope, for the sake of these enterprising exhibitors and the future welfare of the national society and the horticultural trade interests generally that they will not be disappointed. After all, this exhibition business is still in the experimental stage and it will be many years before it is anything else or its possibilities are fully grasped. An enterprise such as this New York show is a big undertaking but we shall get wisdom from experience and the next one will not look so formidable.

As the date approaches for the new inspection and quarantine law to go into effect much concern is felt by plant importers as to the method of procedure in the case of shipments now on the way or about to start from foreign ports. Up to the present moment very little exact information as to the rules to be followed seems to be available. It is fair to expect, until there is evidence to the contrary, that the department officials intrusted with the enforcement of the law will exercise all possible leniency, in view of existing uncertainties as to details and the inadequate time given in which to prepare. It should be borne in mind that these officials are in no way responsible for the edict and that nothing can be gained now by opposition or resentful utterance. Opinions differ as to the ultimate effect of this legislation upon the importing business, but whether just or unjust, wise or unwise, the law is on the books and must have a trial and the best attitude for all concerned is one of forbearance and willing compliance as far as possible. This is no time for any display of animosity or acrimonious criticism.

We cannot too heartily commend the friendly and encouraging attitude of many of the leading representatives of the horticultural profession towards the school children's exhibitions and other neighborhood flower shows of which there are so many in various parts of the coun-

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

The Manure Pile

This should not be neglected by any means. Do not allow your manure to lie all over unprotected. Surely you can find enough boards to build even the crudest shed to protect your manure heap from heavy rains, sun, etc. For sanitary conditions we would recommend a building on the two-story plan—the lower story being open and screened to be used for storing manure while the upper can be used as storage for fertilizers, etc. The object of having the lower story screened is to keep the common house fly away from it as flies breed in manure. Look after manure now piled and turn it over as often as possible, breaking up all the big lumps and thus gradually preparing it for the rose bench. Strawy manure should be well decomposed before it is used, or a large part of the straw may be removed during the first turning over that the manure receives.

If you have no concrete floor in your shed do not let the liquids go to waste. Have some good sod brought in and scattered where the liquids collect. This sod will absorb all these and can then be carted away and used on the lawn or mixed in with other sod when planting. It should never be used as soil alone for it will contain such large quantities of plant food that few things would grow in it and then only if it were kept very dry.

Disbudding

Do not neglect disbudding. Go over all your plants every week—say twice, and see that no buds are missed. This disbudding applies especially to Killarneys, although all roses will require more or less disbudding. If you have no use for short Beauties—that is real short, say 4's and 3's—go over all your plants and take out the buds while they are still very small; the smaller the better. In pinching always take one leaf and in some cases two leaves out with the bud so as to be sure to have a good strong eye to break from.

Grading the Cut Blooms

In grading make sure that all the stems are of the proper length. It does not pay to mix extras among the fancies, neither No. 1's among the extras. If you do this the buyers will soon "get wise" and your stuff will not realize the best price even though the roses are good. Another mistake often made is to put in any old bloom that you happen to find. Perhaps you think that you will receive full payment for it, same as for the many good ones. Keep the poor roses at home and do not send any to the market. Try and secure a steady market for your roses by always sending roses of only a No. 1 quality and no rubbish. Overblown roses will not pay for express at times, so see that your roses are all cut in time.

Syringing

From now on plants syringed in the morning will hardly dry off properly by night unless they receive a good shaking right after syringing. We always try to have the foliage on all our plants dry at 1 P. M. and that gives the whole house a chance to dry out a little before sunset. Do not forget the lime as the last thing and see that it is properly blown under the plants. Do not press the bellows so hard that the blast of lime will blow across the bench and out into the walk on the other side. Little puffs are best. Just blow it under the plants and it will gently rise up right through the foliage, taking a large amount of moisture with it.

Soot

Houses that are well advanced in growth—say those that have been cutting fancies and extras with a few specials, will be greatly benefited by an application of a light dose of soot. Of course we would use only a little, especially if the house had been mulched only a short time before. This application will do a great deal toward giving the buds a richer color.

Cropping Killarneys

Where several houses of these are grown we find it best to have each house come in crop at once instead of breaking up the crop and cutting all the time. By running the whole house to crop at one time the feed, temperature, and, in fact, all can be arranged so as to give best results. To explain: If you have a house of roses growing stem only, why it is a very simple matter to apply feed to push them along. This feed can be discontinued whenever it is necessary. Not so with houses cutting all the time. Here you have young stem, bud and bloom on the same plant and you must try to suit them all. Of course where only a few plants are grown it is best to break up the crop, but for commercial work, give us the cropping and alternating the houses plan.

Sulphur on Steam Pipes

Even though your plants appear perfectly healthy a little sulphur applied to the steam pipe every twenty or twenty-five feet will not harm the plants in the least and at the same time destroy any mildew or other fungus growth that may be trying to gain a foothold in the house. Do not paint all your steam pipes this way; one pipe for each 20 feet of width will be plenty.

Sand

Now is the time to see about your sand supply. Get it now and store it away in some perfectly dry place where no rain can get to it. This will keep all kinds of fungus and insect life out of it and make it much more safe to use for propagation. By the way, has the old sand been removed from the benches of the propagating house? Or is it still in there well mixed with old soil, pots and old coleus or some such bedding plant that may have had the misfortune to be among the surplus plants? Clean out your propagating house by all means. White-wash the benches thoroughly and let it remain idle for awhile. It will do good, and you will find your sand will remain much nicer and sweeter than if the beds are allowed to be overrun with rubbish and then cleaned in a hurry to make room for the cuttings.

THE EXHIBITIONS

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

This society's annual Dahlia Exhibition was held Sept. 19-20, at Unity Hall, Hartford, and has passed into history as the most successful one, from an artistic viewpoint, that we have ever given. Good weather, a pretty fair attendance, and the participation in the competition of several non-state specialists, combined to make a magnificent dahlia exhibition. Many other seasonable flowers were displayed, such as asters, gladioli, snapdragon and annuals and perennials. The stage was embellished by a handsome collection of plants from the greenhouses of Mr. James J. Goodwin of Hartford, and the pillars and side walls were decorated with asparagus and hydrangea blooms.

Among the non-state professional exhibitors were George H. Walker of North Dighton, and W. D. Hathaway and Forbes & Keith of New Bedford, Mass., but unfortunately the exhibits of the two latter were received too late to enter into the competition; Mr. Hathaway being detained in an automobile journey to Hartford, by bad roads, and Forbes & Keith's display arriving by express several hours after the judges. C. H. Sierman of Hartford and Carl Peterson of West Hartford, had begun their work. Of the state professional growers, President John F. Huss, J. H. Slocombe of New Haven, N. Nelson of Hartford, W. F. Jost of East Haven, and Warren S. Mason of Farmington, all had fine collections, and took more or less prizes.

About the hardest knot for the judges to solve was the Arthur T. Boddington prize for the best collection of vegetables. The decision was as follows: First, J. Alfred Weber; second, John F. Huss; third, A. Righenzi. The Lenox Horticultural Society's established scale of points was used in this judging. Secretary George W. Smith of Melrose was the only exhibitor in fruits; his display being made upon a folding wire plant stand having three trays filled with assorted fruits, and decorated with wreathing of ground pine, and umbels of high-bush cranberries.

Apples, pears, quinces, plums, grapes and prunes were used in this collection, and the words "Eden Fruit Farm" were spelled in letters made up of the cranberries.

The following were the winners of the other special prizes:

H. L. Metcalfe, prize for the largest dahlia bloom; 1st, A. Righenzi, 2d, Charles J. Barbour; Thomas J. Gray Company, prize for 25 named varieties of dahlias; 1st, Charles J. Barbour; 2d, A. Righenzi. Anonymous, prize for 6 vases of gladioli; 1st, E. L. Whiting, 2d, C. H. Sierman, prize for dahlias in pots; 1st, John F. Huss, Joseph Brock & Sons, prize for asters; 1st, H. L. Metcalfe; 2d, A. Righenzi. Stunapp & Walter Company, silver cup for the collective exhibit of greatest merit, John F. Huss. Certificates of merit were awarded to John F. Huss for collection of decorative plants; W. D. Hathaway for collection of dahlias; W. W. Hunt & Co. for collection of conifers, bay and evergreen trees; Forbes & Keith for collection of dahlias; special mention to the Whiting Greenhouses (Carl Peterson, Manager), West Hartford, for flesh-pink sport of "My Maryland" rose.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE.

The American Institute of the City of New York held its eighty-first fair at the Berkeley Lyceum Building on Sept. 24th to 26th. Dahlias were the principal item on the schedule and the display of these was of first class order although be it said some of the exhibitors were far from being in full cut. The professionals were represented by Julius Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J., who was awarded a special prize for a fine collection of ornamental and flowering plants. In the competitive dahlia classes the chief prize winners were the following: T. W. Head, Bergenfield, N. J.; David Herbert & Son, Atco, N. J., and George L. Stillman, Westerley, R. I. All the classes were represented and on the whole the flowers were of fine size and in excellent color. Some very pretty new ones for distribution next spring were shown by T. W. Head in the peony-fl. we el class—Picador, a very attractive soft pink being about the best. This exhibitor also took a special card for Amber, a new single. A. N. Pietsen was showing his new rose M'ladi in fine form and C. H. Totty had a vase of his new No. 190, in exquisite color. In the amateur classes the following well known exhibitors were to the front, H. Darlington, Mamroneck, N. Y., P. W. Popp, gard.; Mrs. J. Matheson, Huntington, N. Y., Jas. Kirby, gard.; N. Harold Cottam, Wappingers Falls, N. Y.; W. H. Duckham, Madison, N. J.; Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Garlison on Hdsen, W. H. Macbean, gard.; J. A. Macdonald, Flushing, L. I., R. Hughes, gard.; Miss C. A. Bliss, New Canaan, Conn., J. T. Burns, gard.

The competition in the fruit classes was not very great, but there were a few dishes of grand apples and the native grapes made a good show. Vegetables were not shown in quantity, but among the exhibits were some of much merit.

HUNTINGTON HORTICULTURAL AND AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Tenth Annual Fall Exhibition of the Huntington (N. Y.) Horticultural and Agricultural Society was held on September 17 and 18. The number of exhibits exceeded that of any show given by the Society, and the general quality was very good. Fruit was not so plentiful in this locality this year.

The most conspicuous features of the show were the dahlia exhibits of W. J. Matheson and R. R. Conklin, and the display of named gladioli and other bulbous flowers by John Lewis Childs. The exhibit by the school children from the products of the seeds distributed to them attracted much attention.

August Heckscher, S. Riddell gard., won first for adiantum, nephrolepis, table beets, string beans, fall pippin apples; Walter Jennings, Thos. Leyden gard., 1st for flowering plant, decorative plant, collection of vegetables, pumpkin, mangel beets, Baldwin apples and plums; R. J. Kelly, W. Stuggings gard., 1st for 12 roses, watermelon, tomatoes, parsnips, bush limas; Robt. Hewlett, 1st for begonias and parsley; W. J. Matheson, Jas. Kirby gard., 12 dahlias, collection dahlias, 12 cactus dahlias (winning the Stafford cup for the third time), perennials, potatoes, field corn, mangel beets yellow, eggplant, apples in three classes; M. B. Smith, A. Hart-ridge gard., annuals, celery and sweet corn; R. R. Conklin, E. S. Smith gard., asters, onions, spinach, artichokes, Country Gentleman corn, pop corn, apples, pears and grapes; W. Riddell, first for bridal bouquet and floral centerpiece; Wm. L. Boardman, cabbage and rhubarb; Ridgeleigh Fruit & Poultry Farm, pumpkin, tomatoes, lima beans, peas, sunflower, Keiffer and Bartlett pears, peaches; R. A. Rainey, Richard Cartwright gard., Hubbard squash, biggest pumpkin, col. pumpkins and squashes, rutabagas, seed corn; L. I. R. R. Experimental Sta., No. 1, musk melon, onions for size, apples, sweet potato, salsify and apples; E. L. Meyers, E. H. Monquin gard., peaches and eggs; Miss C. Prime, carrots, leeks, peppers, ogra and lima beans.

A. H. FUNNELL, Secretary.

NEW ENGLAND DAHLIA SOCIETY.

The New England Dahlia Society opened its fifth annual exhibition in Horticultural Hall, Boston, September 20. A brilliant display of blooms filled 20 tables, and attracted many visitors. The largest entry was that of J. K. Alexander of East Bridgewater, who had four tables, showing 1200 blooms of about 500 different varieties. The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Company showed, besides a considerable variety of dahlias, a handsome lot of gladioli. Edgar W. Ela exhibited in 13 classes. The principal prize winners in addition to the foregoing were Geo. L. Stillman, Mrs. L. A. Towle and Geo. B. Gill in the commercial classes. In the amateur classes, P. A. Mansfield, J. E. Stokes and O. B. Oakman were prominent. In the seedling classes awards were made to E. F. Dwyer, A. E. Johnson, H. B. Wirth, J. E. Stokes, Christian Miller and L. C. Parker.

L. Merton Gage, of Groton, Mass., is happy in the possession of a seedling gladiolus of unprecedented size and beauty which has just bloomed. The individual flowers are 5½ inches across and a clear unmarked rose pink. This is one out of 150 good ones that have now flowered for the first time.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

LANCASTER FLORISTS' CLUB.

At this our first meeting we had a fine display of chrysanthemums from Rudolph Nagle and some choice carnations from Amos Rohrer. The president, A. M. Herr, gave a short talk on the S. A. F. meeting in which he deplored the fact that he had never seen any notices in the trade papers of bequests being left to this Society. He urged the members to support the S. A. F., saying that it takes money these days to accomplish anything and this trade will never take its proper place in the world until we have a permanent headquarters, preferably in Washington with our Secretary always there and ready for business with power to employ legal or other talent whenever it is to the best interests of the trade to do it.

The Publicity Campaign launched at this meeting had better never seen daylight than to attempt it without the money to employ the proper talent to carry it to completion. This is not said as a criticism of the S. A. F., but to show the numerous ways in which a dollar properly expended will multiply itself a hundred fold and this club will want to attend the Flower Show next spring almost in a body and then will be a good time to join the S. A. F. Some day the powers that be will wake up to the fact that money in an association of this kind is best invested when spent for the general good, and when this awakening comes the more there is to spend the quicker will be the results. Quite a bit of enthusiasm was created and it is likely there will be a good representation at the show next spring from this club.

In a general discussion for the betterment of our own club it was decided to have the monthly notices open to any announcements of wanting to buy or wanting to sell stock of any kind in a local way only. A committee was appointed for the purpose of arranging visiting tours among the various growers during the season, and the Program Committee gave a program up to and including the January meeting.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

Examining Committees.

President Chas. H. Totty announces the committees to examine new chrysanthemums for the ensuing year which are as follows:

Boston—Wm. Nicholson (chairman), James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Ship flowers to Boston Flower Exchange, C Park street, care of chairman.

New York—Eugene Dailedouze (chairman), Wm. H. Duckham, A. Herrington. Ship flowers to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 W. Twenty-sixth street, care of chairman.

Philadelphia—A. B. Cartledge (chairman), John Westcott, S. S. Pennock. Ship flowers to A. B. Cartledge, 1514 Chestnut street.

Cincinnati—R. Witterstaetter (chairman), James Allen, Henry Schwarz. Ship flowers to chairman, Jabez Elliott Flower Market, care janitor.

Chicago—J. B. Deamud (chairman), D. A. Robertson, Peter Schilt. Ship flowers to J. B. Deamud, 160 No. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Shipments should be made to arrive by 2 P. M. on examination day to receive attention from the committee and must be prepaid to destination and an entry fee of $2.00 should be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week they are to be examined or it may accompany the blooms. Seedlings and sports are both eligible to be shown before these committees provided the raiser has given them two years trial to determine their true character.

Special attention is called to the rule that sports to receive a certificate must pass at least three of the five committees. The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted on each Saturday during October and November the dates of which will be October 5, 12, 19, 26 and November 2, 9, 16, 23, 30.

CHAS. W. JOHNSON, Sec'y.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Retail Florists' Association of St. Louis held a very pleasant meeting on Monday night, September 16th, at the Washington Hotel. The attendance was very small, just enough to transact what business came before the meeting. At the conclusion the members sat down to a nice spread.

Secretary Young informs us that he is having remarkable success in booking space for the trade section of the big International Flower Show for New York next April. The sales of space in big blocks within the past few days leave no doubt that the entire area devoted to this department will be taken.

The Bar Harbor Horticultural Society has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Louis B. McCagg, president; John I. Kane, first vice-president; William T. Burton, second vice-president; John H. Stafford, third vice-president; Charles L. Shand, clerk; William T. Burton, treasurer; Clifford F. Came, financial secretary; John H. Stafford, sergeant-at-arms; John I. Kane, Clifford F. Came, Dr. Robert Abbe, George B. Dorr, C. Morton Smith, board of directors for term of three years.

The regular meeting of the Cook County Florists' Association took place at Chicago on the 19th with a fair attendance, including all the officers. It was decided that the second Thursday in October would be ladies' night and a large number are expected. The meeting will be at The Tavern and the price will be one dollar per plate. Some good things were assured for future meetings including talks by Walter Scott of La Grange and by H. N. Bruns who will speak on his recent European trip.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

A petition of involuntary bankruptcy was filed against Henry Morris, florist, of 210 East Genesee street, Syracuse, N. Y. The law firm represented the Sedgwick Farm Land Company, $500; the Mason-Henry Printing Co., $12.65; and William S. Orr, $2.45. The petition states that Morris is hopelessly insolvent and cannot pay the debts.—Syracuse Herald.

HYDRANGEAS AT KIMBALL COTTAGE, NANTUCKET, MASS.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Orthesia insignia (Doug.).

This scale insect is a common pest of Lantana, Coleus, Chrysanthemum, Verbena, etc. In tropical regions it is sometimes called the Lantana Bug, as it commonly attacks this plant. It occurs only in greenhouses in temperate zones. The adult female is an attractive insect, as the body is covered with a white, waxy laminae. It is a troublesome insect to eradicate. Fumigation is the best means of control.

The Hemispherical Scale.

Saissetia hemispherica (Targ.).

This soft scale is one of the most common found upon greenhouse plants. As the name indicates, the scale is hemispherical in form, but a little elongated and sometimes higher than broad. The eggs are laid beneath the body of the female and when oviposition is finished the female dies. The larvae upon hatching go to the leaves and settle along the midribs and veins, where they remain for a period of four to six weeks, and then migrate back to the stems and settle permanently. The life cycle of this species under greenhouse conditions is completed in five or six months, allowing the development of two complete generations in a year. The Hemispherical Scale attacks a host of plants, including ferns and crotons, which are its favorites, and palms, orchids, camellia, rose, oleander, alternanthera, chrysanthemums and others. It is best controlled by washing or spraying with soap solution.

The Long Scale.

Coccus longulus (Doug.).

This species is not nearly so common as the others cited, but is, nevertheless, a widely distributed one. The scale is commonly found in greenhouses of the north. It is twice as long as broad and varies in color from light brown to very dark brown. It is usually found on Ficus, Euphorbia, Citrus trees and Ferns. It is controlled by treating with a soapy solution.

The Short-tailed Mealy Bug.

Pseudococcus citri (Risso!).

This is the common Mealy Bug found in greenhouses throughout the country. In the south it has become a pest of citrus groves (In Florida) and more recently causing similar trouble in California.

The adult is about 4 mm. in length and 2 mm. in width, oval or elliptical in outline, with a fringe of short spires encircling the body. The body is covered with a white, waxy mass, giving the insect its common name of Mealy Bug. The female lays from 300 to 500 eggs, depositing them in a mass beneath the tip of the abdomen, and covering them with cottony wax filaments. The eggs hatch in about two weeks from time of disposition. The larvae develop, requiring about six weeks to two months to reach maturity. They feed on a variety of plants sucking the juices from the under side of the leaves. The pest is a general feeder, but of greenhouse plants, Coleus, Geranium and Sago Palm seem to be its preference. This insect is best controlled by fumigation.

The Long-tailed Mealy Bug.

Pseudococcus adonidum (Linn.).

The Long-tailed Mealy Bug though less common than the former, is quite a pest in greenhouses, where it becomes established. It is readily distinguished from the Short-tailed species by the length of the spines at the anal extremity of the body, the last two of which are as long as, and sometimes longer than the body. Its life history and habits are similar to the Short-tailed species. It is also best controlled by fumigation.

BRITISH HORTICULTURE.

The Autumn Rose Show.

In recent years the National Rose Society has popularised that section of the "Queen of flowers" which flourishes in the autumn by holding a September show. This year's exhibition, which was held in London on Sept. 12th, was another notable addition to the Society's achievements in bringing together instructive displays of the finest specimens of the national flower. The decorative classes allowed full scope for some delightful ornamental schemes. The groups were particularly striking. In the class for a representative group placed on the floor, Hobbies, Ltd. secured a gold medal for a meritorious array. Included was a new seedling pillar rose, Lemon King, of a tint the name indicates. It has been obtained from a cross between Frau Karl Druschki, the popular white and Mme. Ravary, the yellow H. T. Other varieties shown were Jessie, Lady Ursula, Lyon—very much in evidence throughout the show—Mildred Grant, etc. A representative group on staging secured a gold medal for Gunn & Son, who had some excellent specimens of Mildred Grant, Lyon, Liberty, Irish Elegance, Molly Sharman Crawford, Mme. Abel Chatenay, Prince de Bulgarie, Lady Hillingdon, etc. W. and J. Brown obtained a silver gilt medal and Geo. Prince of Longworth, Berks, a silver medal in the same section. In the table decoration class, the first prize design consisted of an excellent arrangement of Lyon and Irish Elegance. Some interesting novelties were seen, prominent being an imposing new white, British Queen, shown by S. McGredy of Portadown, Ireland, who was awarded a gold medal.

W. H. ADSETT.

GLADIOLI AT TERRYVILLE.

J. M. Adams of Hartford, Conn., writes interestingly in the Hartford Times, of a visit to the gladiolus fields of B. F. White at Terryville. Of the varieties described in the article we select the following as being new or not generally known:

Farmington—Dark rich pink, large flower, and a strong vigorous plant.

Helen Tracy—Large flower of delicate pink, with creamy white throat, markings well defined. Petals have a narrow edging of blue.

Pearly Gates—White, flaked with marks of bluish gray.

Cora—A good sized flower, not as large as some, but shows a vigorous growth. The buds first show a lemon yellow, but as it opens it is white with a small stain of red in the throat.

Harwinton—Brilliant cerise; it is a self color, with no markings. Some were noticed with twenty-four flowers, and often one stalk will throw out two small branches of flowers beside the main one. Mr. White said this was a new race his father was much interested in developing.

Christmas Candy—A large white flower with a beautiful striped throat. A cross of Princes and Lemoine types.

Gold Bug—A brilliant scarlet with golden throat.

Dr. Williams—A Princes seedling of a fine pink color and very productive.

America's Lady—A cross of America and White Lady; in color like a cattleya. Its petals are recurved and wavy. It is larger than America, a stately flower.

Mrs. Mary Gordon—Beautiful lavender and a white throat. The flower is very large and opens out well.

White Princes—Of a true Princes type, but a grand white with a small stain of red in throat.

NEW YORK NOTES.

Jos. A. Graham, known to a great many gardeners around New York, has secured a superintendent's position in Texas and we hear is doing well.

Don't forget Elliott's big auction sale of the entire stock of Bonnie Brae Nurseries, at New Rochelle, N. Y., on Wednesday morning, October 2.

The headquarters for gardeners in the city seems to be P. Hamilton Goodsell's store rooms at 157 and 159 William street, where gardeners looking for positions keep a secretary.

Theo. Ficke, the New York truckman, of 109 Broad street, reports the busiest season in history owing to the enormous increase in the importations of bulbs and general nursery stock. During the past six weeks his staff has been taxed to the limit.

The Flower Auction Company's first sale for the current week resulted in better attendance and higher prices than were generally anticipated, lilies, chrysanthemums, galax and asparagus bunches being disposed of. Ferns, rubber plants, kentias and dracaenas in large lots fetched satisfactory prices.

Visitors—Mr. Moore of the Moore & Simons Seed Co., Philadelphia; Charles Johnson, Boston, England; J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston; A. F. Barbe, Kansas City, Mo.; Carl Cropp, Chicago, returning from Europe; R. H. James, St. Georges, Bermuda.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

A large exhibition will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday next of fruit, flowers and vegetables in the Lord Memorial Hall in Brookland, D. C., by the Brookland Brotherhood. This is an annual event and has heretofore been very successful. A large number of prizes are offered.

Robert Pyle of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., will deliver on October 8, before the Florists' Club of Washington, a lecture on rose growing in Europe. The lecture will be illustrated by lantern slides. The regular monthly business meeting of the club will be held next Tuesday evening in its rooms 1214 F street, N. W.

Among the recent visitors in this city was Prof. Hugo DeVries, director of the Botanical Gardens of Amsterdam, Holland. While here, Prof. DeVries conferred with the agricultural officials on matters relating to horticulture and delivered a lecture before the Botanical Society of Washington. He has left Washington for the south in search of new specimens of the forms of life with which he has experimented in Holland.

Prof. E. R. Lake, 3333 Twentieth street, N. W., Washington, D. C., has been appointed Secretary of the American Pomological Society to fill out the unexpired term of the late lamented Prof. Craig, former Secretary. Prof. Lake is a man of much experience as secretary of horticultural societies, a valued assistant to the U. S. Pomologist and has the reputation of being an indefatigable worker, a faithful student and one who never shirks his duty.

BULB NOTES.

French bulbs are scarce and the market is depleted excepting on freesias. Of Roman hyacinths there are none to be had.

The crop of longiflorum giganteum lily bulbs in Japan is 65 per cent good. Prices have advanced, especially on the large sizes, which are in very limited supply.

Bulbs of Narcissus bicolor Victoria from Holland are arriving in poor condition, many being rotten at the base, due to a six-weeks' rain during the bulb packing time. Horsfeldii is showing more or less of the same trouble.

Judging from what we saw on a recent look-through at Boddington's, we may expect something far beyond the ordinary in the spring flowering bulb department of the big exhibition in New York next spring. Anyone who intends to grow bulbs for that occasion will do well to take a glance at these monster hyacinths, tulips and narcissi. Preparations have been made for a heavy fall business, every corner of the spacious floors being loaded down with stock. There are 175,000 Darwin tulips alone. This class of tulips is rapidly forging ahead for outdoor display and to some extent supplanting the single earlies in public favor. Holland bulb stock generally is in fine quality and ample supply.

Seed Trade

Crop Prospects.

The trade is quite naturally very much interested in crop news, and the preliminary estimates of the pea crop issued by one or two of the growers aroused keen interest, and as a result the other growers were besieged with requests for information. The conservative growers realizing that such information was of little real value, having been based on what is known as "crop estimates," have decided to wait until their figures could be based on something more tangible; that is, until a sufficient quantity of their crops were actually in store to make their estimates just a little better than a mere guess. Of course when their customers become too insistent in their demand for information, the growers can give only such as they have, but in reality it is little more than a reply to temporarily satisfy curiosity. We base our opinion on the fact that those who have issued estimates have very emphatically warned their customers not to accept their figures as correct. In fact, we learn that these figures have already been modified with a marked downward tendency on many items.

However, we are inclined to believe that there will be peas enough to satisfy trade requirements, and that shortages can be covered at slight advances over contracting prices. It may surprise many to know that indications now point to the greatest shortages being in what are known as "Canners' Varieties," and particularly in Alaskas. It is just possible that Grandus and Thomas Laxton may prove as short, but most of the fancy large-podded sorts will range from 20 to 40 per cent higher in deliveries.

Growers are chary of information about beans, but such as we can get indicates a shortage of 25 to 50 per cent. This may not prove an unmixed evil, as there is undoubtedly a liberal carry-over from last year, and while we believe prices will be firm with an upward trend, we do not look for any radical advances over contracting figures.

While we have but little up-to-date information concerning corn, we believe a good average crop is practically assured, though a heavy freeze within the next two weeks would cause very serious damage, and right here it may be well to say that weather predictions for the week indicate just this condition. By the time this reaches our readers they will know just how accurate these forecasts are.

Onion seed is being quoted by jobbers and sales of considerable quantities have been reported at figures materially higher than it opened at a year ago. Owing to an unexpected demand; created largely by the high prices of onions, seed last year, and particularly of the yellow varieties, advanced considerably above the opening figures. The situation the coming season promises to be much the other way, as there has been a large crop of onions as well as onion sets, and unless all the information we have is much askew, low prices for both are likely to rule for the new crop. Low prices for onions and onion sets generally mean a reduced demand for seed, which, of course, will inevitably affect values, and doubtless there will be seed enough to satisfy the demand at fair prices. If the market will sustain the recent prices, seedsmen will have ample cause for satisfaction and can hardly expect any advance later.

Statistics furnished by the Department of Agriculture of Washington, indicate a large crop of potatoes, and low prices were generally expected but ruling figures at this date do not accord with the general expectation, and have occasioned surprise quite generally. There are reports that rot of a malignant character is attacking the tubers in different sections of the country and causing much alarm among growers and heavy handlers of this stock. This is caused, it is believed, by an excess of rain and too little sunshine and warmth. How serious this condition is we are unable to say at this writing, but hope for further information of a more definite character. However, there is little probability of prices again reaching the high level of last year.

As to other crops, there is practically nothing new to report, at least there are no radical changes from conditions given in these columns a few weeks ago, and we need not go further into particulars.

Notes.

Franklin, Mass.—W. F. Cobb & Co. are to build a seed warehouse, 30 x 60 feet.

Waterloo, Neb.—The J. C. Robinson Seed Co. is building a brick and concrete power house; also a storage warehouse, 80 x 120 feet.

As mentioned in our "Philadelphia Notes," W. H. Maule has purchased valuable property on which he will erect a large building, involving an investment of approximately $1,000,000.

Cottage Hill, Fla.—The Pensacola Seed & Nursery Co. has been incorporated and opened headquarters here. They have a capital stock of $25,000. W. V. Vincent, president; S. B. Berlinger, secretary and treasurer.

The Tinsley Seed Co. have retired from business in St. Louis and will move all stock and fixtures to their store at Louisville, Ky. Mr. Bryant, the local manager, goes to the Louisville house.

Wichita, Kan.—W. F. Puckett has been appointed receiver for the Central Seed Co., 243 North Main street, and will open the store for business. Owing to suits brought against the manager, W. B. Borden, the store has been closed for some time.

Mr. Alfred Emerich, representing Messrs. Vilmorin, Andrieux & Co., Paris, France, will arrive in New York about the 28th inst., and will visit the seed trade as usual throughout the United States and Canada. His headquarters while in New York will be, care H. Frank Darrow, 26 Barclay street, New York City.

THE "WILLING HELPER."

We are informed that in one day's mail last week, M. Rice & Co. received over one hundred flattering testimonials to the value and beauty of this attractive publication recently sent out. It is more than a catalogue; it is an album. It fully justifies its title as the "Willing Helper" and we can't imagine anything required in a florists' store that may not be found within its covers. It is handsomely illustrated and artistically bound and is a credit to the House of Rice, Philadelphia, and all others concerned in its making. Send for a copy and you'll find it an office necessity.

AN UP-TO-DATE FLORISTS' REFRIGERATOR.

The illustration shows a typical florists' refrigerator manufactured by the McCray Refrigerator Co., of Kendallville, Ind., a concern which was a pioneer in this line of manufacture and which has always been known for the high quality of its product. This refrigerator was installed in the store of the Metropolitan Floral Co., St. Louis, Mo., and was built to order according to their particular needs. It is 7 feet 2 inches wide by 2 feet 6 inches deep by 7 feet 2 inches high. The ice chamber which is above the storage compartment has an ice capacity of 700 lbs. There are three doors opening to the storage compartment which are of beveled plate glass. The interior of the refrigerator is lined with galvanized iron, white-enameled with the exception of the back and left end which are covered with large mirrors. There is also a large beveled plate mirror over the double doors. The hardware is all heavily nickel-plated brass. The outside of the refrigerator is finished in white enamel to correspond with the rest of the wood work in the store.

It will pay any florist who is looking for information on the subject of refrigeration to write to the company for their recently issued catalogue of florists' refrigerators.

ANNOUNCEMENT TWO IN ONE

HENRY M. ROBINSON & CO. have incorporated their New York Branch with MAURICE L. GLASS of New York City under the firm name of

HENRY M. ROBINSON COMPANY OF NEW YORK

Maurice L. Glass, Manager

The combined business is now carried on on the first floor in the COOGAN BUILDING, 55-57 W. 26th ST., in the enlarged floor space formerly occupied by Maurice L. Glass.

Telephone Nos. 13 Madison Sq. and 8510 Madison Sq.

NEWS NOTES.

New York, N. Y.—L. B. Nason, formerly with A. L. Young & Co., has opened as a wholesale florist at 116 West 28th street.

Hutchinson, Kan.—N. N. Kline has applied for an injunction to restrain Geo. M. Schurr and H. P. Miller from engaging in the retail florist business for a term of four years, in accordance with a contract which he alleges is in force between defendants and himself.

"THE" FLORISTS' SUPPLY HOUSE OF AMERICA

Be Ready for the Home Comers

Your customers will be embellishing their homes with fresh Palms, Ferns, Rubbers, and Plants of all kinds, and will want at once suitable receptacles to hold same. Be ready for them. We especially recommend that you have a good display of Plant Holders, Vases, Baskets, etc.

But Especially Baskets

We can supply these in all sizes from the little tumbler basket up to the big ones for ten or twelve inch pots; and in all colors from plain willow and white enamel up to the zenith which is our New French "Greunt," the premium antique and the loveliest thing yet in baskets. We also recommend those other French Novelty Baskets with ivory finish and flowered garlands. These give tone and distinction to your display and are splendid sellers. Get acquainted. Send for "Our Silent Salesman."

CHICAGO NOTES.

Trade Notes.

Boxwood and leucothoe are seen at A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s, among the first in the market.

Mrs. E. H. Hunt is giving the office an overhauling that will leave things in the best of shape for the busy season just ahead.

Some of the department stores had their openings this week and cut flowers were used freely as well as the artificial ones. Much of the work showed excellent taste and the real and the artificial did not clash, festoons of the latter in deep red tones being used for high effects, while large vases of American Beauties and gladioli formed the lower decorations supplemented by hundreds of large Boston ferns. These semi-annual events are worth study, for much time and money are devoted to them.

Otto Wittbold, who recently organized a company and purchased the Geo. Wittbold Nurseries, is rapidly getting things into fine shape. Their sales of nursery stock are starting out very satisfactorily, the call for peonies, irises and perennials being fully up to expectation. A large building for packing and storage will be erected in the spring and the material for a ten-room brick residence is now on the ground. Mr. Wittbold has ability and push and has won the confidence of the trade in his business methods in the past.

Personal.

Mrs. C. H. Fisk has returned from an extended trip to California.

Wm. Lynch returned on the 20th inst. from Northampton, Mass., where he had been called by the death of his sister. While in the east, Mr.

Lynch visited the violet district in New York and says he has not seen that industry in such flourishing condition before in many years.

Miss Anna Olsen recently returned to her position as bookkeeper for A. Lange. She spent several weeks resting at the summer home of Miss Yetterberg in Michigan.

Visitors: Mr. Dykes, representing Ed. Jansen, N. Y.; Elmer D. Smith, Adrian, Mich.; Mr. Kring, of Kring Bros., Fairburg, Ill.; L. Harley and Geo. Webster, Hartford, Mich.; Miss L. J. Baker, Ottumwa, Iowa. Miss Baker has recently returned from a two weeks' trip to the Pacific Slope.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Samuel S. Pennock is home again from his West Indies-Panama trip.

Wm. Henry Maule, a leading seedsmen of our town, is reported in the daily press to have purchased property at 20th and Arch streets for some 50,000 dollars. The supposition is that he intends to erect thereon a 20-story building for his seed business which has outgrown the old quarters at 1711 Filbert street. Nothing can stop the enterprising seed trade of Philadelphia. The new enterprise will entail an expenditure of over a million dollars.

If you want to see the beatific smile in the original Sanskrit ask Harry Bayersdorfer the next time you meet him how it feels to be a grandfather. The interesting and important event occurred some two weeks ago. On the distaff side we rejoice with these evidences, of course, but of late have found it a problem to escape from too many "Here's tae us" on the advents. They seem to be arriving in all directions.

We had the pleasure of making the acquaintance, and spending a few hours last week, with five distinguished visitors from the Golden Gate, namely, Mr. and Mrs. Ebel, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Maier, and Angelo Rossi. This was their first trip east, and everything interested them. Four days were devoted to Philadelphia, one of these including its interesting suburb—Atlantic City—where the baby carriage ride on the Boardwalk, and other light pastimes of that kind were hugely enjoyed. They had one of our genial old timers in their train as guide, philosopher and friend—Daniel McRorie, citizen of the world. All these folks are enthusiastic missionaries on the subject of 1915 for the S. A. F. in San Francisco. If they keep on, it would not be surprising if they get it—and also a pretty good delegation from the east, notwithstanding the extra time and cost. We shall all want to see the canal, anyway, and once that far on the way are liable to keep on to the rainbow's end.

Visitors: Antoine Leuthy, Boston, Mass.; Richard Vincent, Jr., of R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons, Whitmarsh, Md.; "The Stork," at E. J. Fancourt's, Roxboro, Phila.—first call, we think Estelle, but it's more likely to come out Mary Helen—what does an "old bach" like me know about such things anyway? W. P. Peacock, Williams-town, N. J.; Antoine and Mrs. Wintzer, West Grove, Pa., on their way to Texas; Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Ebel, Sacramento, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Maier, Burlingame, Calif.; D. McRorie, McRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco, Calif.; A. Rossi, Pelicano, Rossi & Co., San Francisco, Calif.; David Scott, Buffalo, N. Y.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON A good strong market has developed on roses, the quality of which has improved greatly within a few days. Asters are pretty near their end and carnations are gradually usurping the position of prominence the asters have held for the past two months. Lily of the valley is about the best we have ever seen in this market. Cattleyas have been scarce but there is now an abundance. Chrysanthemums increase daily, October Frost being the latest addition to the regular stock. The first violets have made their appearance, and realized 50c. a hundred.

Trade is gradually becoming better as the days near the autumn season. Dahlias, chrysanthemums and cosmos have added to the list and have so far sold well. Asters are gradually leaving us though some shorts are still received. Gladioli are good and the demand quite satisfactory the past week. There are plenty of roses and a good demand for selected white, also Killarney, Ward, etc. Lily of the valley and lilies have been in demand and sold out daily. Business is on the increase.

CHICAGO Chicago market conditions can be summed up in a single sentence, not enough flowers to supply the demand. The change could scarcely be more complete than that which has taken place during the past month, the overfilled counters and ice boxes having been followed by a scarcity of stock which includes all lines and is more general than for many fall seasons. The week of extremely hot weather following a cool summer and the severe rain storm cut off the bulk of the outdoor flowers almost as effectually as a feast would have done. There are now some gladioli and a few asters left but the best ones were cut some time ago leaving comparatively little to help out till greenhouse flowers are more plentiful. Roses are so far from being equal to the demand that many orders have had to be cut in two the past week but this condition is not expected to last long. Carnations are now coming in more freely and the stems on the longest are probably eighteen inches. October Frost and Golden Glow chrysanthemums are now to be had in limited quantity and American Beauties, orchids and gardenias are being cut in larger quantities each week.

The market is tightening all around and prices are going up fast toward a point that would make the market seem like a mid-winter one. The quality of all kinds of stock has improved since the cold weather and now practically all is first class. Roses have shown the most wonderful improvement. All are clean and of good color and are in a pretty fair crop. American Beauties are short of the call for them. Carnations, too, are fast reaching late season form. The stems are rapidly increasing in length and the blooms are pretty good. Asters may now be counted out for the season and dahlias and cosmos are taking their place as outdoor flowers. Lilies are short of the call for them, for the meagre receipts can not take care of the strong demand. This will undoubtedly continue until the chrysanthemums come in strong. A limited number of lily of the valley are offered. A few sweet peas from the new cut have made their appearance. They were taken up in a hurry. Limited quantities of chrysanthemums in white and yellow have appeared and have sold in a hurry. Business in decorative greens is good.

At the beginning of last week business was very plentiful for all, but by the second half it had slacked down very considerably. Flowers in general are very scarce. Roses are off crop in this section. Carnations are plentifully shipped in but only few of them are really good. Asters have all the earmarks of a declining season and so have the gladioli. Lilies are just enough for the demand. This week will see some good flowers of October Frost, Monrovia and Smith's Advance on the market. Pompon and anemone varieties have also been planted in large variety and plenty of them.

The market has been marked by extreme irregularity during the past week, the fluctuations, from day to day, being very pronounced and the average tendency being downward. The most noticeable and also the most deplorable drop in value has been in the case of cattleyas which within a few days experienced a fall of about 75 per cent and changed from a condition of extreme scarcity to one of unwieldy over supply as a result of the first flush of the labiata crop. What will happen when the height of the blooming is reached may perhaps be imagined. There are also lots of oncidiums. Monday of this week saw a most remarkable spurt for a short time on all lines; the next day, Tuesday, was just the reverse and sales were few and at bargain rates. All the new roses are much in evidence here and in such quantities that special prices for these are out of the question. The yellow varieties, of which the supply last season came mainly from New England sources, are especially abundant and the outlook for these seems a bit dubious. Chrysanthemums are coming in by dozens of high grade and hundreds of ordinary and it will not be long before they will run into the thousands daily. There are plenty of dahlias, mostly battered from rough packing, but gladioli are waning fast. The proud man with the first bunch of violets has already shown up.

Carnations came in more plentiful last week and were, on the average, of very satisfactory quality. As the asters are getting on their last legs the carnations come in very handily to take their place. The weather has been against the dahlia crop. First we had it hot and dry, now we have had a lot of rain. If we have a few bright, cool days after the rain we shall have dahlias worth seeing. Roses continue fine and show increasing stamina all along the line, while prices keep on an even keel and are firm at last week's decided advance. The daintiest and most charming of them all at present is Mrs. Taft; It has been extra fine all summer and has never been better than at present. Chrysanthemums are looming up more and more; October Frost is the latest addition to the white section. We have almost too many orchids now. Cattleya labiata, Dendrobium formosum and Oncidium Rogersi are in big supply and seem more than the market can absorb. Gladioli are nearly over, as far as the out-door crop is concerned. Eulalia plumes and titromas, oak foliage, red dahlias, yellow chrysanthemums, are to be seen in quantity and lend a pleasant Indian summer air to the general situation. The glorious autumn with its purple and gold is here.

WASHINGTON While business as a whole during the month just ended has not been as good as could be desired yet there has been a good demand at times. Dahlias have not as yet begun to come in in such quantities as to fill the void left by the quick outgoing of asters and gladioli. This leaves but roses and carnations with which to work. There are plenty of short-stem roses for all purposes and enough long-stem stock to fill all orders. Lily of the valley has been in better demand and orchids are more plentiful and slightly cheaper than they have been. The stores are reporting exceptionally good results from the fern and palm sales they have been holding during the past week or ten days. The outlook for early outdoor chrysanthemums is poor, due to the ravages of thrips which are very active this season.

ST. LOUIS The market during the past week was noted for its scarcity of stock and numerous buyers. The wholesalers report clean-up sales almost daily. Roses seemed to let up all of a sudden in all varieties, with Beauties in big demand. Carnations are plentiful, but of poor quality. Tuberose stalks, gladioli, lily of the valley, lilies and asters all sell at sight; that is, in the first grades. Asparagus sprays, too, sell cleaned up daily.

THE 'PHONE RINGS (March 17, 1913) (EASTER WEEK)

"Hello, is that you, Jones?"

"Yes. Who are you?"

"Why, this is Smith, the East Side Florist. I understand you have a fine crop of lilies in flower."

"I certainly have—they are fine, and will bring a good profit too, because good lilies are scarce this year."

"Well, Jones, can't you spare me a few—I need them very much."

"Why, what's the matter with your own crop, Smith?"

"Sorry to say they don't look very good, and won't be in on time for Easter—it's an awful disappointment for me."

"Why, that's funny, mine did all right, and are fine. I had to force them a little hard, but they stood it all right. What brand of bulbs do you use?"

"Well, don't know as they were any special brand. I bought them from the same man I buy my other bulbs from—guess he gets them in New York somewhere. Where did you get yours?"

"Mine are the HORSESHOE BRAND GIGANTEUM, from Ward. It's the best brand to buy in the long run. I fooled around for years before I found it out. I've tried all kinds, but none can equal them. Ward makes a specialty of lily bulbs and no one can compete with them in quality."

"That's what Jim Brown said; he uses Horseshoe Brand, too, and has a fine lot, but wants 20c. a bud for them, and I can't afford to pay that."

"That's what I want, too, Smith. I can get 25c. retail this year for all I have, so why should I sell them for less."

"Well, can't you help a fellow out when he gets in such a fix. I need 3000 flowers."

"Sure, I'm helping you out by giving you any at all. I'll let you have 500 at 20c. each, that's all I can spare."

"All right, send them over right away, for I need them now. Guess I'll buy Horseshoe Brand lily bulbs next time and see if I can get a better crop myself. Thanks, good-bye, Jones."

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Antirrhinums

Take good care of the antirrhinums that you have grown on and now have in 4 or 5-inch pots as they make a fine cut flower to follow chrysanthemums. Give them a bench in a cool house where they can have plenty of light. Where the flowers are showing they can be pinched off which will make the plants more bushy. Give them a fumigating often, but moderately, so that the green fly will not get a foothold. Pay regular attention to watering, airing, etc., so they will be encouraged in vigorous growth until you have a place in which to plant them out. As your early chrysanthemums are cut they can be planted into the 'mum soil and will do fine. They like a temperature of from 45 to 50 degrees at night and 10 to 15 degrees higher with sunshine. Give them plenty of ventilation when the outside condition will allow. When they throw up their spikes pinch out the side shoots which will be quite numerous. This will improve both the flowers and spikes. As they become well established they will take a liberal amount of liquid manure

A lamandas

Plants that have been growing all summer will have made some fine wood by this time. Where you want a batch of these to flower early, they will need some care as to ripening up their wood. Discontinue syringing and place them in a house where they will have a temperature no higher than 60 degrees at night, and in about three weeks they can be given about 55 degrees. Withhold water even if they do flag a little, but not to the point of allowing the wood to shrivel which would be a great injury. Keep on giving less water at the roots until you have the wood in a well ripened state. To flower well they should have a rest of from ten to fifteen weeks before they are started up. These plants can be handled so they will bloom at any time of the year by giving them a rest. When the wood is well ripened prune them back well. This followed by high temperature, abundance of water at the roots and a high degree of moisture in the air, will encourage them into growth again. Where you have a call for yellow flowers these can be made very serviceable for the florist.

Cinerarias

These plants will now be making very rapid growth and should have every attention to keep them in full vigor. They will soon need to be housed, as the weather now becomes very uncertain. The management of cinerarias under glass is a simple matter. Give a cool and airy house, where the temperature can be kept from 40 to 45 degrees at night, with a rise of 10 degrees during the day with sun heat. A very imperative necessity is fresh air whenever possible. Particular care should be taken to ventilate well during warm and dull weather so that the plants will not become soft in growth. Do not let them get in a pothound state before giving them a shift. In order to make them grow into fine plants they will need a compost of two-thirds of chopped sods and one-third of well decayed cow manure. Be sure of perfect drainage in the pots which will prevent the soil from becoming sour. The green aphid is likely to be troublesome from this out so fumigate once a week which will hold them down

Hydrangea arborescens

This is a very fine hydrangea to use for forcing, giving fine heads of large flowers, which will make a valuable acquisition in the line of pot plants. Where you did not grow some of these it would be well to buy some now and pot them up, using any good rich soil. Give them pots just large enough to hold the roots without too much crowding. After they are potted place them in a cold frame until January. Give just enough protection so they can be brought in when wanted. Before starting them up prune them back to within about 5 or 6 inches of the pot.

Orchids

Now that the short days are coming on us, with less sunshine, fire heat will again be necessary with all cool orchids. It is better to have a gentle warmth running through the pipes with ventilation, than to try to bottle up some heat by shutting down the houses early. Such treatment often produces the right condition for the spread of fungus or spot. With the intermediate orchids you will need to increase the fire heat to meet the outside conditions. During damp, dull, murky weather give careful attention to the atmospheric conditions inside. There should be just enough of fire heat to allow ventilation both night and day unless we have a very cold snap. With warm orchids ventilation and firing will need very careful attention to avoid any great extremes in temperature. See that the atmosphere does not become too dry. Your houses will require damping down two or three times a day to keep them right. At this time of the year it will be advisable to modify the temperature in the various departments as growth and root action are not very active from now on. The cool house should be given a night temperature of about 55 degrees; day, with sun about 65 degrees; without sun anywhere from 58 to 60 degrees. The intermediate house can be kept about 60 degrees at night, with a rise to 70 degrees with sun, but without sun around 65 degrees will do. In the warm house anywhere around 70 degrees at night will be high enough, with a rise to about 80 degrees during bright days, but during dull days 75 degrees will fill the bill.

Oxalis

Where you have a sale for pot plants grow a batch of oxalis as they make an admirable pot plant for winter flowering. Plant two or three bulbs in a four-inch pot and place in a night temperature of about 55 degrees. For a compost use turf; loam three parts, well decayed cow manure one part, and see that they have good drainage. When they have filled these four-inch pots shift into a six-inch and they will show a mass of bloom. They will take an abundance of water while growing, so see that they have it when needed.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Adiantums; Araucarias; Coreopsis grandiflora; Crotons; Geraniums; Primulas for Christmas.

In his very interesting talk on advertising at the Chicago convention, L. W. C. Tutbill took occasion to criticise the location of the "List of Advertisers" in the florist trade papers and to suggest that the proper place for this feature is the first page following the cover. This particular remark evoked so much applause that we became convinced there was "something in it" and consequently, as HORTICULTURE is ever ready to adopt anything that appears progressive our list of advertisers will be found in this and succeeding issues, for a while at least, in the place suggested by Mr. Tutbill. We should like to hear the views of both advertisers and readers on this change of make-up, whether favorable or otherwise.

"International"

"This causes us to wonder how long it will be before the "International" takes place across the Atlantic, for not long since a prominent American warned us that if Britain desired to maintain her eminent position she must "hoist her slacks." However, we are not alarmed, and will hail the day when the I. H. E. becomes a real live International."

All of which seems to suggest that the London "International" did not quite attain the ideals set for it. So far removed are we from the great horticultural nations of the old world that America can hardly hope to set any extraordinary pace in the "International" line but we are going to have a try at it next April and although it has not been very long or loudly proclaimed we have reason to believe a very fair beginning will be made. The more there are of foreign exhibitors the happier we shall be and those who favor us with their presence will never forget or regret the occasion.

A practice that hurts

After reading the cut flower market reports from the various centres, and with a general knowledge of the situation and the progress of production on all sides, one cannot but feel exasperated over the items that repeatedly creep into the daily newspapers, avowedly based on the statements of some local florist, concerning the alleged scarcity of flowers and their prohibitive value for people of moderate means. Easter and the Christmas holidays are favorite occasions for the dissemination of this sort of stuff but it is confined to no season and no locality. It has already begun its mischievous work for this season. Just what peculiar motive or line of reasoning prompts a florist to spread broadcast reports that must cause a direct injury to his business, through its discouraging and deterrent effect on prospective buyers, is past our comprehension. We hear much regarding the value of newspaper publicity in bringing the public to appreciate what the florist business can do to gladden their existence. In this connection we would respectfully suggest that one of the most practical things the florists can do in their publicity campaign is to set their feet down vigorously on this "scare head" business, for which there may have been some reason away back in the dim past but for which none now exists.

germination

The Department of Agriculture has recently issued a Bulletin giving the results of a five years' germination test of packeted vegetable seeds as sent out by some sixty "box trade" houses and twenty mail order concerns. The average germination of all the packets of box seeds was 60.5 per cent. and of the mail order seeds 77.5 per cent. Naturally the results varied greatly, some lots scoring high and others very low, and in the case of the box or commission seeds seeming to justify somewhat the prevalent distrust of seeds sold under that system. The Department, in drawing its conclusions, suggests as a remedy that "The sale of packeted seeds will not be on a proper basis until each packet is labeled with the percentage of live seed which it contains. This practice would do away with the trade in seeds of low vitality and at the same time give the purchaser the information to which he is entitled and without which he can not use to the best advantage the seeds he buys." This proposition is hardly feasible. Mail order houses put up millions of packets of seeds, while the commission houses put up many millions more and it is frequently impossible to fill the packets all with one lot of seed and the percentage of growth would consequently vary. The names of the seed houses whose goods were under test are not furnished but it is safe to say that no honest house would knowingly send out seeds of as weak vitality as the smaller percentages reported by the Department.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Cloudy Days

These seem to be quite plentiful in our locality and those that may have neglected syringing somewhat and have a nest of spider here and there will have a good chance to regret it. Should you have a house with these nests in it lose no time in cleaning them out. Some good insecticide properly applied will be found a great help. Apply just before syringing if possible and then directly after.

Temperature

Do not make the mistake often made and run your houses too warm on cloudy days. Of course you may not be able to keep the temperature down when it's warm outside, but this will hardly be the case from now on. Usually our cloudy days are raw and chilly, when a little fire heat goes real good. We try to keep the houses below 70 degrees, not forgetting to ventilate as freely as weather will permit. 66 to 70 degrees is about right on cloudy days, this time of the year. On the first clear day following several cloudy ones, the houses should not be allowed to run above 74 degrees if at all possible. This will bring them back to their regular day temperature gradually and there will be no sudden changes from cold to hot and vice versa.

Plants in Solid Benches

These will not take as much water during cloudy weather as raised or semi-solid benches will and this fact should be borne in mind when watering. We once had a bench of tea roses that would not behave and on investigating we found the plants had but very little root in the surface soil, nearly all roots going down through the stone drain into the soil below. The plants were old plants and some of these roots were half an inch in thickness. It seems these plants while resting during the summer months were run too dry altogether, so they forged their way down to the lower soil to get water. After this discovery we dried off the plants a little and cut them down to almost nothing and then replanted them in new soil. Then we got quite some buds off these.

Looking after Blackspot

As we advise through these columns every now and then, be on the watch for spot, and as soon as any appears anywhere pick it off and burn it. A spraying with the ammoniacal copper carbonate will also help to keep it from spreading, but do not for a minute think it will cure. The only cure is to grow the plants out of it and keep the air sweet and fresh all the time. Beauties are not the only roses that are subject to it. Killarneys, Richmonds—in fact all the roses are more or less inclined to get a dose of spot if mistreated in any way. If spot appears omit syringing at once for as long as you think it safe. Syringing will always help spread spot more or less.

Other Plants in Rose Houses

It seems a shame to see so much space underneath the benches that is idle all the time, and yet we find roses are not like other plants and thrive best when grown altogether by themselves. Not that other plants cannot be grown in the rose houses. One thing a person has to keep in mind is that any plant brought into the houses should be perfectly clean and free from all bugs. Certain varieties of bedding plants have a great habit of harboring several different kinds of insects and prove to be only insect breeders in the houses, as it is usually very difficult to exterminate insects from these plants.

Rats and Mice

This hardly goes under the head of "Roses," but we find a good many rose-growing establishments so overrun with rats and mice that a little reminder might strike home here and there. Cats are as bad as the mice—in many cases worse. We find there is nothing that beats the little "Joker" traps. These are made big enough for rats, too, and the joke is certainly on many mice and rats. Scald these traps every now and then with steam or boiling water, and if possible set them with gloves on your hands. You may laugh at this and yet a rat can smell the touch of man's hand enough to know there is danger lurking in the innocent-looking piece of board with some fancy wire scrolls on it. Keep your place free from insects and other pests as well.

Handling Cut Roses

Remember that it does not take much to bruise the tender petals of roses, and also that they have to pass through several hands before they finally reach the retailer's customer. White roses will show bruise much more easily than roses of other colors, so be especially careful in handling these. In cutting keep the buds neatly on top of one another or if the length of stems does not vary too much, you can keep the ends of stems together and place them in water before grading, but we think this is a poor practise. Grade your roses as soon as possible after cutting and put them into water, where they will remain until they are shipped. Keep this water fresh at all times. Better empty all jars and vases daily and make sure. Stagnant water kills the foliage immersed in it, thus rendering the stock less salable.

In packing never pack two tiers of roses in a box when shipping whites. The best way is to have shallow boxes and pack only one layer. Go to the city every now and then and see just in what condition your stuff arrives. You will no doubt be surprised at what you see.

Sheep Manure

We would not advise using any sheep manure in the rose houses as yet. It is far too early in the season. The only place where sheep manure will go good would be with old stubborn plants that have been carried over and are just breaking for another crop. Usually the bottom wood on all such plants is quite hard and naturally the stems of all flowers cut may not be so long as they might be. A light dose of pulverized sheep manure or a little liquid made with the same will do a great deal to make the stems a little longer.

THE EXHIBITIONS

NATIONAL DAHLIA SOCIETY (ENG.)

The annual exhibition of the English National Dahlia Society was held on September 17 and 18 in the great area in front of the Handel Orchestre at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham.

There was the usual display of amateurs' exhibits in the various competitive classes. Among the artistic groups and exhibits provision is made for tastefully arranged vases, baskets, etc., filled with dahlia blooms and ornamental greenery, some examples of which were really very attractive. In the bigger competitive classes the names of many well-known growers were prominent as large prize winners. The classes were very attractively set up. Of the varieties shown their name is legion and would probably be of no interest to our oversea readers to whom perhaps many would be unfamiliar.

The big trade specialists made an excellent display—in fact their lots made a kind of frame-work to the whole show. Cannell & Son had a long table, the blooms arranged with ferns and other greenery. All along one side was a big array of cactus and peony dahlias in fine form, on the other side giant singles. Colletteres, etc., lined the table, the most brilliant of coloring marking the display. At each end was a little bit of relief in the way of pompons and singles (Gold medal).

James Carter & Co. had a circular group arranged on the ground level. In the centre was solidago in variety, then a mass of pteris and adiantum ferns; peeping out at intervals were fine big blooms of cactus varieties thrown into relief by stand-up vases filled with peony varieties. An edging of asters in pots and ferns completed this altogether artistic display (Large silver gilt medal). Exactly opposite was a table the replica of Cannell & Sons. This was sent by Mr. J. Emberson, who was awarded a silver gilt medal.

T. S. Ware had a lengthy run of tables all filled with most attractive material. It was divided into three sections, the first being dahlias, the middle cut blooms of double flowering tuberous begonias, a richly colored lot, the third hardy herbaceous stuff. The peony dahlias comprised all the well known monsters of Dutch origin, many cactus and the other sections in variety (Large silver gilt medal).

J. B. Riding won a gold medal for a good lot of the colletterette type. It was a very prettily arranged group in which the flowers were all more or less artistically graded. The lot staged by J. T. West was rather heavily arranged, the flowers being big and fine but rather crowded in the receptacles used and the whole exhibit rather flat. He was awarded a gold medal.

Hobbies, Limited, put up a fine show. The front of their table was decorated with an edging of virgin cork behind which were tall stands filled with all the leading sorts of colletterette, peony and cactus dahlias in great profusion. Some roses in large wooden baskets also helped to give attractiveness to the display.

First class certificates were awarded to J. Burrell & Co. for Mrs. A. Brown, a perfectly circular, pale yellow, single, of fine form and very broad florets, and for pompon Johnnie, a neatly built flower of deep maroon purple. Other novelties of singles were Emperor and Brightness, a vivid red. J. Stredwick & Son showed novelties of which two received first class certificates, but we failed to find the names. They also had a gold medal for "Defiance," a cactus bloom of soft golden amber, a very large, handsome-looking flower.

C. HARMAN PAYNE.

NEW JERSEY FLORICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The New Jersey Floricultural Society held their seventh annual dahlia show in Lindsley Hall, Orange, Saturday, Sept. 28th. The display of dahlias this year was away ahead of other years and all the blooms were first class. The special prizes given by Hitchings & Co., silver and bronze medals by Michell's Seed House, Philadelphia, and Vaughan's Seed Store, New York, brought out a great many entries. The silver cup offered by Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, for the best display of vegetables brought out five entries of excellent quality, which all goes to show that if we have the prizes to offer there will be lots of competitors for them. The show was well patronized by the public.

The following are the awards of the judges:

Thirty blooms dahlias, show, decorative and cactus 1st, silver cup by Hitchings & Co., won by Walter M. Gray; 2nd, silver medal by Michell's seed house, won by John Deryan; 3rd, pair brass bound oak jardiniere, Vaughan's Seed Store, N. Y., won by Wm. Reid. The Michell bronze medal for 50 single dahlias was won by Frank Drews. The Stumpp & Walter cup for display of vegetables was won by David S. Miller, gard. for G. G. Mason of Tuxedo Park, with a grand collection of 48 varieties. Special prize by H. J. Skern for best display of annuals for school children only, won by M. B. Killingbeck, Jr. The winners in the "Cottage Garden" contest for the best kept garden are as follows: 1st, Miss Mabel Neil; 2d, Donald McGowan; 3d, W. B. Killingbeck, Jr. In the regular dahlia classes, W. M. Gray won five firsts, D. Kindsgab two seconds, E. Panuska three firsts, one second; G. B. Wilson two seconds, W. Reid two firsts, one second; Geo. Wright six firsts, Max Schneider two seconds, E. Berglund one first, one second. Certificates of merit for various exhibits were awarded to G. B. Wilson, Geo. Wright, W. M. Gray, E. Panuska, E. H. Corbelyon, Wm. Tucker and Eugene A. Holland and cultural certificates to Frank Drews, S. H. Higgins, Max Schneider and W. A. Manda.

The judges were Messrs. Geo. W. Strange, Edward Eccles and Peter Duff.

WILLIAM REID, Sec.

Due to the extremely wet weather of the past week, the flower, fruit and vegetable show to be held by the Brookland Brotherhood has been postponed until October 8. The show will be held in Lord Memorial Hall, Brookland, D. C.

RHODE ISLAND HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual autumn show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, held in Providence, September 24-25, surpassed in quality and quantity, anything that the society has ever held. The arrangement of the show was as near perfect as human skill could make it and this contributed in a large measure to the unqualified success of the exhibit. The value of the exhibits was greatly in excess of previous years, and although not as large as Boston, visitors who had viewed the exhibition at the Hub say that the Rhode Island show was superior in quality. Eugene A. Appleton of Providence was superintendent of the hall and the artistic manner in which the various classes were assigned won for him many well earned congratulations. The scheme followed brought the plants and flowers on a graduated scale and permitted a person entering the hall to get a bird's-eye view of the complete exhibit. The dahlia exhibit was immense, this class being the feature of the show. There were fully 10,000 blooms shown and 1500 specimens were exhibited in single bottles. The rose exhibit was very good, the display of H. Howard Pepper attracting much attention. A miniature landscape garden shown by J. Appleton was an interesting feature. Displays of chrysanthemums, pansies and snapdragon added to the attractiveness of the general appearance. The committee in charge of the general arrangements and exhibits was composed of the following members: Eugene A. Appleton, Richard M. Bowen, Arthur C. Miller, and Thomas Hope, all of Providence; Joshua Vose of Pontiac; E. K. Thomas of the Extension Department of the State College; Henry V. Mayo of East Providence, and Miss Addie F. Holland of Auburn.

BRONX PARK SHOW.

The Horticultural Society of New York was most unfortunate in having so few exhibitors at Bronx Park on the 28th of September, and possibly this falling off was in great measure due to the show being so closely on the heels of the three days' fair at the American Institute. Of the exhibitors it is sufficient to say that H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., gard. P. W. Popp, was the principal prize winner, his contributions of dahlias being of sterling merit. There was also a fine display of flowering herbaceous plants staged from the society's gardens.

The visitors would naturally be disappointed at the small quantity of flowers on show but were compensated by the excellent lecture delivered by Geo. V. Nash on "The Upper Delaware Valley and its Flora," which was illustrated by lantern slides. The attendance numbered 160.

VINCENT DAHLIA SHOW.

While the annual dahlia shows of the past five years held by R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., at White Marsh, Md., would have been a credit to any firm, the arrangements of the one just closed were the most elaborate ever attempted by these people. The inside exhibition was set up in a part of the large packing shed, and covered a floor space 40 by 100 feet, requiring upwards of 50,000 flowers. Along each side, and so arranged as to completely conceal the wall there was a continuous bank of dahlias, 90 feet long and 6 feet high, set up in 10-quart galvanized buckets which were entirely hidden by oak foliage. Solid blocks six feet long were so staged as to bring out as far as possible the contrasting colors and artistic effect of each individual variety. Thirty different varieties were staged in this way, viz.: Cuban Giant, Queen Wilhelmina, Lyndhurst, Princess Victoria, Louise, Chas. Lanier, Mrs. C. W. Bassett, Black Beauty, Perle de Lyon, Jeanne Charmant, Bon Ton, Mrs. Geo. Stevenson, Sylvia, Amos Perry, Susan, Souv. de Mme. Moreau, Mas. Lumier, Arabella, Kreimhilde, Fire Rain, Mrs. Hartong, Mrs. Geo. Cassatt, Flora, Mrs. Chas. L. Seybold, Baronne Schroeder, C. W. Bruton, Mad. Van den Dael, Wm. Agnew, Lucy Fawcett, A. D. Livoni.

The center table was covered with boards in pyramid shape, pot flats 18 by 24 inches were filled with moss, and short-stem dahlias were inserted in them, one variety in a flat; these were then set edgewise on the staging, which required 120 boxes to cover it.

On the opposite side of the center a slanting staging was covered with flats filled with moss and flowers, making a solid bank 64 feet long and 6 feet high. A 12-foot space was covered with Delice as a ground in which was a cornucopia of Golden West, followed by a photograph of four of the presidential candidates each in a frame of dahlias 5x6 feet. President Taft was surrounded by Souv. de Gustave Duzon, Wilson by Cuban Giant, Roosevelt by Mrs. Roosevelt, Chafin by Grand Duke Alexis. These were followed by blocks of the same size, of pompon dahlias, in which were circular beds each four feet in diameter, featuring special kinds, finishing with another 12 foot space of Jack Rose surrounding a cornucopia of Master Carl, altogether making a magnificent and much admired arrangement, requiring about 10,000 flowers to complete.

A 12 by 6 foot design contained a life-size bust photograph of the senior member of the firm surrounded by Camelliaflora in a maltese cross effect filled in with Jack Rose, making a frame 5 feet wide, at each side of which were panels 18 inches wide of Kreimhilde and Professor Mansfield.

In the field there are about 35 acres of dahlias and 15 acres of cannas all looking in the best of shape, with every prospect of a splendid crop of roots. The geranium stock houses of standard varieties have all been replanted, requiring nearly 130,000 plants, which are ready to commence cutting and should furnish an enormous amount of cuttings, which are potted directly from the stock into 2-inch pots.

AN ASTER FLOAT.

Herewith is an illustration of James Vick's Sons' float in the Rochester Centennial Parade on Monday, September 9th. It was pronounced by every one to be the most beautiful float in the parade. The float was made up entirely of aster blooms, taking over twenty thousand of them. A huge bouquet arranged in a large basket containing over ten thousand asters occupied the rear of the float. The bouquet was nine feet in height from the bottom of the basket to the top of the handle and about eight feet in width. Smaller bouquets were tastily arranged around the float, with a group of young ladies and children seated in the center, each one carrying a large bunch of asters.

The float was drawn by six black horses, each led by a page wearing a streamer with the word "Vick" on it in purple. The horses wore white blankets bordered with purple asters and the word "Vick" in the center also made of purple asters.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW, NEW YORK, 1913.

John Young, manager of the trade exhibition to be held in connection with the National Flower Show next spring, reports the following as having already taken exhibition space:

	Space contract.
Peter Henderson & Co., New York	$1000
A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.	600
Revere Rubber Co., Boston, Mass.	325
W. E. Marshall & Co., New York	220
John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y.	200
The Weathered Co., Jersey City, N. J.	270
Hitchings & Co., Elizabeth, N. J.	300
Reed & Keller, New York	300

Work on the official program is actively progressing. Among those Co., New York; Revere Rubber Co., Boston, Mass.; The Florists' Exchange, New York; Aphine Mfg. Co., Madison, N. J.; W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass.; Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.; Traendly & Schenck, New York; Phil. F. Kessler, New York.

Applications for space in the exhibition, or for advertising space in the official program, should be made to John Young, 54 West 28th St., New York City.

J. H. PEPPER,
Chairman Publicity Committee.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

The new Metaloid finish on baskets from the "House of Rice" promises to outrival the famous Antique Blue, made so popular by that firm. Scarcely an order for baskets is received unless it includes this beautiful new color scheme.

Michell's Dahlia Show was the largest ever given in their establishment. Hundreds of vases occupied the large exhibition tables. Competition in the different classes was very keen and some splendid specimens were shown. Prize winners were: Wm. Robertson, Wm. Fowler, R. Greinberg, R. J. Morrow, Robert Schneider, Peter McGrath, H. Field and Chris Borgholt. A silver medal was awarded to Miss Fanny Foster for a new seedling cactus dahlia. Philip Freud deserves great credit for an artistic arrangement of flowers and show window. A number of trade growers also sent flowers to help out the general effect.

A correspondent in England advises us that reports of recent heavy rains in that country have not been exaggerated. In some places the hay was washed over the hedges and large sections were under water. The situation has improved much of late, however.

For full information, schedules, space for trade exhibits, etc., write to: John Young, Secretary and Manager for Trade Exhibition, 54 W. 28th St., New York City.

PLANT QUARANTINE RULES AND REGULATIONS.

Following are the complete rules and regulations for carrying out the plant quarantine act as compiled by the Federal Horticultural Board and adopted by the Department of Agriculture:

Regulation 1. Short Title of the Act.
The act "To regulate the importation of nursery stock and other plants and plant products; to enable the Secretary of Agriculture to establish and maintain quarantine districts for plant diseases and insect pests; to permit and regulate the movement of fruits, plants and vegetables therefrom, and for other purposes," approved August 20, 1912, shall be known and referred to as "The Plant Quarantine Act, August 20, 1912."

Regulation 2. Definition.

For the purpose of this act the term "nursery stock" includes all field-grown florists' stock, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings, grafts, scions, buds, fruit pits, and other seeds of fruit and ornamental trees or shrubs, and other plants and plant products for propagation, except field, vegetable and flower seeds, bedding plants and other herbaceous plants, bulbs and roots.

All woody plants and parts thereof for propagation or planting are included within the term "nursery stock" as used in this act.

"Field-grown florists' stock" is all florists' stock which is usually grown outside of greenhouses for all or part of the year, such as azaleas, bay trees, araucarias, box, etc.

Regulation 3. Applications for Permits for Importation of Nursery Stock.

Persons contemplating the importation by mail, express, freight, or other form of transportation, of nursery stock as defined in this act from any part of the world will first make application to the Secretary of Agriculture for a permit, stating in the application the general nature and quantity of the nursery stock, the district or locality where grown, the name and address of the exporter, together with the name and address of the importer in the United States, and the proposed port of entry.

By "general nature" is meant the class or type of stocks, as fruit trees, fruit-tree stocks, etc., as specified in the official form of permit.

Applications for permits should be made in advance of the shipment of the nursery stock, but if through no fault of the importer stock shall arrive before the issue of a permit the stock will be held in customs custody at the risk and expense of the importer for a period not exceeding 10 days pending the issue of a permit.

Applications for permits should contain the following information:

APPLICATION FOR PERMIT TO IMPORT NURSERY STOCK.

To the Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D. C.

A permit is requested for the importation of nursery stock from the firm of _____, in the district or locality and country of _____, for the shipping season of _____, as follows:

Quantity.	General nature.
.....	Fruit trees.
.....	Fruit-tree stocks.
.....	Grapevines.
.....	Bush fruits.
.....	Roses.
.....	Rose stocks.

.....	Forest and ornamental deciduous trees.
.....	Ornamental deciduous shrubs.
.....	Coniferous trees other than pines.
.....	Pines—species should be named.
.....	Evergreen trees other than conifers.
.....	Evergreen shrubs other than conifers.
.....	Field-grown florists' stock not otherwise listed.
.....	Stocks, cuttings, or seedlings not otherwise listed.
.....	Name and address of shipper.
.....	Port of entry.
.....	Name of importer.

Regulation 4. Delivery in Bond. (Section 1.)

If the required permit be not at hand at the time of the arrival of the nursery stock, the latter may be delivered to the importer, consignee or agent for the proper care thereof upon the filing of a voluntary bond with approved sureties in double the invoice value of the property (the amount of the bond in no case to be less than $10) conditioned upon the redelivery thereof to the collector within 10 days from the date of arrival and providing that the same shall not be removed from the port of arrival within such period or until the presentation of the proper permit; or, if the importer, consignee, or agent shall so elect, the goods may be retained in the custody of the officer of the customs pending the issuance of the permit, wholly at the expense of the importer.

Regulation 5. Permits for Entry of Nursery Stock. (Section 1.)

On approval by the Secretary of Agriculture of an application for the importation of nursery stock from countries which maintain nursery stock inspection a permit will be issued in triplicate. One copy of the permit will be furnished to the applicant, one copy will be mailed to the collector at the port of entry, and the third filed with the application. Permits will expire on the 30th day of June of the year following the date of issue. They will be in the following form:

This permit expires June 30, 191—. No. —
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE,

Executive Officer.

Permits for the entry of nursery stock from countries which do not maintain official nursery stock inspection will be addressed to the collector of customs in the following form:

To the Collector of Customs:

You are hereby authorized, so far as the jurisdiction of the Department of Agriculture is concerned, to permit the importation under "The Plant Quarantine Act, August 20, 1912," of the nursery stock specified in the application of _____, dated _____, described herein, only upon receipt of notice in writing from an inspector of the Department of Agriculture that the nursery stock has been inspected by him or under his direction at the port of arrival and was found or believed to be free from injurious plant diseases and insect pests.

(See Regulation 6 for the ports at which entry of nursery stock from countries having no official system of nursery inspection is allowed.)

Regulation 6. Entry of Nursery Stock. (Section 1.)

Entry of nursery stock will not be allowed unless accompanied by a certificate issued by a duly authorized official of the country from which it is shipped, stating that it has been thoroughly inspected by him or under his direction and was found, or believed to be free from injurious plant diseases and insect pests: Provided, That for stock to be shipped between October 1 and May 31 such inspection shall be made on or after the 1st of October and for stock shipped during the growing season inspection shall be made not more than 30 days prior to date of shipment: Provided further, That until July 1, 1913, the usual inspection certificate covering the previous growing season will be accepted: And provided further, That when the country from which any nursery stock is shipped maintains no official inspection, articles for which a permit has been issued will be admitted only through the ports of New York, San Francisco, Seattle, Jacksonville, and New Orleans, after examination by inspectors of the Department of Agriculture at the port of arrival, if found to be free from plant disease and insect pests.

Collectors of customs will be notified from time to time, through the Secretary of the Treasury, of the countries which maintain official nursery stock inspection.

Entry will not be allowed unless the case, box or other container or covering is plainly and correctly marked to show the number of permit, the general nature and quantity of the contents, the district or locality and country where grown, the name and address of the exporter, and the name and address of the importer.

Nursery stock offered for importation without compliance with these regulations will be refused admission. Nursery stock inspected as provided herein, which is found to be carrying dangerous insects or plant diseases may be treated or destroyed, as circumstances require.

Regulation 7. Foreign Certificate of Inspection. (Section 1.)

Certificates of inspection will be accepted if countersigned by duly authorized officials of foreign countries or their agents. On and after July 1, 1913, certificates shall give the date of inspection, name of the grower, the district or locality, and country where grown; a statement that the stock has been inspected by a duly authorized official and found, or believed to be, free from dangerous insects and plant diseases, and shall bear the name of the responsible inspection official for the country of origin.

Lists of officials in foreign countries authorized to inspect nursery stock, giving their names and official designations, will be furnished to collectors of customs through the Secretary of the Treasury.

Regulation 8. Notice of Shipment by Importers.

(Sections 2 and 5.)

Immediately upon the entry and before removal from the port of entry of shipments of nursery stock the person receiving the stock shall notify the Secretary of Agriculture, in writing, stating the number of permit, the general nature, age or height, and quantity of the nursery stock, the country and locality where grown, the date of entry, and the name and address of each of the consignees to whom it is proposed to forward the nursery stock, together with the probable date of delivery for transportation.

At the same time, a copy of the notice to the Secretary of Agriculture shall be sent to the duly authorized inspector or other officer of the State, Territory or District to which the nursery stock is to be shipped. Lists of such officers may be obtained on application to the Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D. C.

Regulation 9. Declaration. (Section 1.)

On and after December 1, 1912, all shipments of nursery stock to the United States from countries which maintain an official system of nursery stock inspection shall be accompanied by a declaration of the shipper, produced before an American consular officer, as follows:

I,, the undersigned, do solemnly and truly declare that I am the of the stock herein mentioned and described, and that it consists of nursery stock which I believe to contain no injurious plant diseases or insect pests.

This stock was grown in (district or locality and country.) by (Name.) during the past growing season and is exported from (City.) and consigned to (City.)

The marks on the packages are true and this nursery stock was inspected on (Date.) by (Name of inspector.) and believed by him to be free from injurious plant diseases and insect pests. This shipment is offered under permit No., issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, (Month.) (Day.) (Year.) (Shipper.)

I,, consul of the United States of America at certify that the above declaration was produced before me on 191.... Given under my hand and the seal of this consulate the day and year above written.

American Consul.

On and after December 1, 1912, consular invoices covering shipments of nursery stock to the United States shall bear the number of the permit issued by the Secretary of Agriculture and have attached to them the shipper's declaration, duly certified as described herein.

Regulation 10. Hearings. Sections 5, 7 and 8.)

When the Secretary of Agriculture, in the exercise of his discretion, contemplates the restriction of the importation of plants and plant products not included within the term "nursery stock" as used in this act, or the prohibition of the importation of nursery stock and other plants and plant products from any foreign country, or the prohibition or restriction of the shipment of nursery stock and other plants and plant products from one State, Territory or District of the United States to another State or territory, or District, he will give a public hearing to interested parties, who may appear either in person or by attorney, and give evidence or be heard respecting the subject of the hearing. Due notice of the hearing will be given by publication or otherwise as may be deemed appropriate by the Secretary of Agriculture. Notices will contain a statement of the action which is contemplated by the Secretary of Agriculture, and will state the time and place of the hearing.

Regulation 11. Marking of Packages. (Section 3.)

Packages containing nursery stock which arrive not marked according to the law will not be delivered until they shall have been so marked under customs supervision and at the expense of the importers. (See also paragraph 2, Regulation 6.)

Clubs and Societies

FLORISTS' CLUB OF WASHINGTON.

Considerable discussion was given to the origin of various roses which play such a prominent part in the everyday business of florists at the October meeting of this club on Tuesday evening last. It was announced that Robert Pyle would deliver a lecture on "Rose Growing in Europe" before the club on Tuesday evening, October 8. The entertainment committee will have charge of this affair. The assembly hall of the Business High School, which has a seating capacity of 1500, has been procured and a like number of invitations will be sent out to members of the club, their friends, and many of the teachers and others interested in horticulture and botany.

Z. D. Blackstone, William F. Gude and George Cooke were appointed members of the publicity committee formed upon recommendation of the New York Club. One of the members of this committee will be designated to represent the club at meetings of the general committee.

At this meeting also there was presented to the club a handsomely engraved set of resolutions by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore, in memory of the late William R. Smith of Washington.

Announcement was made that the club's bowling team had begun its fall schedules and would participate in the games of the District League. Practice is held every Monday evening at Eighth and E streets, N. W., in the Rathskellar Alleys. A committee composed of Messrs. Hammer, Ernest, Lewis, Dalglish, Berry and Shaffer was appointed to cooperate with the team which will go to the convention next year to uphold the honors of this city.

The by-laws committee rendered its report containing numerous proposed amendments. Alfred Heitmuller of the Centre Market was unanimously elected to membership.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF PHILADELPHIA.

The October monthly meeting was held on the 1st inst. Two features of importance brought out a good attendance—the annual election of officers, and the illustrated lecture by Richard Vincent, Jr. The former resulted in the reappointment of the old personnel: J. Otto Thilow, president; David Rust, secretary; George Craig, treasurer. Mr. Vincent's lecture was of enrapturing interest, and carried the audience with tongue and picture not only through the great International Show in London but all over Europe. Mr. Vincent is a ready talker and with his running fire of joke and comment on his experiences of the trip kept his listeners up to a high point in enjoyment—as well as bringing out the salient instructive points. It was almost as good as having been at the show ourselves, and was certainly hugely enjoyed.

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Our second September meeting was held on the 27th ult., and was largely spent in discussion of methods of inducing greater public interest in our exhibitions. When the figures were produced, it was found that only 850 people attended the recent excellent dahlia show.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, sent to this meeting a grand vase of his new rose, Milady, a cross of J. B. Clark and Richmond. R. T. Beers, a late graduate of Amherst, and now employed by Mr. Pierson, gave a brief outline of the history of this rose. A first class certificate was awarded to Mr. Pierson.

Six new members were elected, as follows: Arthur Perkins, Samuel H. Deming and Edward C. Swan of Hartford; B. F. White, Terryville; George H. Walker, North Dighton, Mass.; W. E. Hathaway, New Bedford, Mass.

GEORGE W. SMITH, Sec.

The next exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be devoted exclusively to fruits and vegetables and will be held at Horticultural Hall, Boston, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, October 4, 5 and 6. To many people an exhibit of this kind is fully as interesting as one of flowers and plants, and affords an opportunity to view the products of New England's orchards and vegetable gardens and to see the perfection attained in the cultivation of these two important branches of the horticulturist's art. Apples of nearly every known variety suitable for cultivation in this section of the country will be shown, as well as pears, peaches, plums and grapes. The schedule for vegetables is unusually complete, 150 prizes being offered in this class alone. The exhibition is free and will be open Friday from 12 M. to 6 P. M.; Saturday, from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M.; and Sunday, from 2 to 6 P. M.

Seed Trade

Sam Sibley.

The gentleman whose portrait appears herewith needs no introduction to the seed trade of America. Mr. Sibley is one of the best known and most successful seed salesmen in active life today; he is deservedly popular and wherever he shows up he finds the glad hand. He has been connected with the seed trade for many years and, as everybody knows, has been representing the Leonard Seed Co. of Chicago for a large part of the time. Mr. Sibley hails from Baltimore but, as with all traveling salesmen his domicile is "where he hangs his hat." Long may he wave!

SAM M. SIBLEY

Notes.

Fremont, Mich.—J. J. Funk, seedsman, is building a new store 20 x 120.

Metcalfe, Ill.—H. G. Epps is erecting a seed house 40 x 50 feet on land just south of town.

James Brand, late manager for Arthur S. Ritchie & Co., Belfast, Ireland, is opening a seed house on his own account at Kerrisdale, Vancouver, B. C.

Sioux City, Ia.—J. S. Michael, seedsman, is putting up a new building 25 x 150, two stories and basement at 319 Pearl street. The cost will be approximately $15,000.

Realizing the necessity of producing seeds of the highest types and the importance of planting seeds on grounds in localities where crops are a certainty, The California Seed Growers' Association, Inc., have associated with them responsible growers of long experience, including such well-known men as D. G. Fisher, of Coyote; Ramelli Bros., of Hollister; J. R. Freitas, of Edenvale, whose experience dates back to Hugh Agnew; Ah Lock, a Chinese of over twenty years' experience, who learned his lesson under Major Braslan. These growers own their seed lands. Their association with the company will be permanent.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

American Seed Trade Association. Proceedings of the Thirtieth Annual Convention held at Chicago, June 25-27, 1912. An excellent portrait of President Leonard H. Vaughan forms the frontispiece.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society. Transactions for the year 1912: Part 1. This issue contains the full text of the various papers and discussions for the lecture season, January to March inclusive, 1912.

American Association of Nurserymen. Proceedings of the Thirty-Seventh Annual Convention, held at Boston, Mass., June 12, 13 and 14, 1912. An interesting report of a very enjoyable and instructive meeting.

Oregon State Horticultural Society. Proceedings of the Twenty-sixth Annual Meeting held Nov. 15-17, 1911, at Portland, Oregon; 142 pages of interesting reading on leading topics of Pacific coast horticultural development.

The Artificial Use of the Brown-Tail Fungus in Massachusetts. A valuable state document by A. T. Speare and R. H. Colley under the direction of F. W. Rane, State Forester for Massachusetts. Practical suggestions for private experiment with this means of controlling the moth pest are added, also a brief note on a fungous disease of the gypsy caterpillar.

The Canadian Seed Growers' Association and its work. This is a very valuable publication edited by the Secretary of the Association, L. H. Newman of Ottawa. The process of producing "Elite Stock Seed," standards of quality and purity for "Registered Seed," lists of reference on the work of seed growing, plant improvement, etc., are among the topics treated and every seedsman can find in it much that is helpful and enlightening.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

A FLORIST'S WINDOW.

On this page, this window shows an exterior view, and herewith is given an inside mirror view of the decorations this week in the show window of Saml. Murray, Kansas City, and we believe our readers all will agree that it is a beautiful and highly artistic piece of work. The window is about 10x15 feet and the picture hardly does justice to the display, as is generally true of all attempts at photographing window arrangements from outside. There are twelve pots of granges used in the decoration, bearing eighty-five large bunches in all. Black Hamburgs predominating among the varieties.

The centre feature is an especially fine and highly colored group of pine-apples.

Mr. Murray makes a specialty of growing these pot vines each year and, as with everything he undertakes to grow, gets superb results. The varieties grown this year include Black Hamburg, Black Alicante, Gros Maroc, Prince of Wales and Milton Constable and they can be held in good shape until late November. For fine table work nothing can surpass them.

A "LORRAINE" EXPERT.

We had the pleasure a few days ago of inspecting the finest lot of Lorraine begonias it has ever been our privilege to see. This was at the plant houses of A. W. Davenport at Watertown, Mass. There are about 7,000 plants altogether, and, with some Glory of Cincinnati filling four houses, plants up to 12 inch pans in unequalled vigor and beauty. These alone are worth a long trip to see, but there is a fine show of all other plants commonly grown for the florist trade, including small ferns of which Mr. Davenport disposes of 100,000 each year. Five houses with concrete walls are now being added to the range.

NEW YORK NOTES.

Anton Schultheis of College Point has two new houses in working order containing ferns and cyclamen, and his stock generally looks very promising.

Robert Jackson, foreman at P. J. Smith's 28th street store, has had the misfortune to lose his father, a veterinary surgeon of this city, who died on Sunday last.

D. Cameron, representative of Sander & Son, of St. Albans, England, has just returned from an extended European trip. He reports business prospects for the coming season to be of the best.

George Glassy, who has been for the past two years with the Stumpp & Walter Co., is now in charge of the mail order department at J. M. Thornburn & Co., with whom he was previously associated for ten years.

E. Benary lists Primula malachoides alba as a novelty for 1913.

Wells & Co., Morstham, Eng., have a crimson, gold reverse, sport from chrysanthemum Polly, which is regarded as a fine novelty.

CHICAGO NOTES.

Trade Notes.

A large basket of cattleyas makes a strikingly beautiful center in the window at J. Mangel's store this week.

A. Miller of the A. Henderson Co. is assistant manager of the horticultural department of the State Fair at Springfield, Ill. This fair is one of the important events to florists in this vicinity annually and this year will be no exception.

The chrysanthemum season as usual calls for something suitable and attractive for holding the long-stemmed blooms. At the Alpha some basket vases four feet tall have just been received and the flowers have a receptacle worthy of the big windows they will occupy.

A. Henderson Co. are still getting in Dutch bulbs for their rapidly increasing business. D. D. P. Roy, well-known to the seed trade in both the east and the west, is now connected with this firm and will be another factor in making for its success.

Chicago is having the usual number of new retail stores this year. The following are the latest ones: Henry Paryzek, 1714 North avenue, Chicago; B. J. Delinke, 2349 Chicago avenue; The North Shore Floral Co. is the name of a new store just opened by B. J. Schmierer, for some time with the Geo. Wittbold Co. at Buckingham place. The store is located at 6566 Sheridan road.

Personal.

Geo. Stiles of the Stiles Floral Co., Oklahoma City, Okla., is here with his bride.

Emil Middendorf and Wm. Parpart

D. D. Johnson has resigned his position as manager of the United Fertilizer Co., and the plant will soon be moved to Morton Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. Hess of Omaha, Neb., reached Chicago October 1st on their way home from Germany, where they went with their children five months ago. The latter will remain in the fatherland for study for some time.

Among the week's visitors were Geo. Collins, foreman for Henry Smith, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.; John Bergstrom, Rockford, Ill.; M. S. Crozer, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on his way home from a Canadian trip; Dan MacRorie and Angelo J. Rossi of San Francisco, Cal.

NEWS NOTES.

Poway, Cal.—George C. Tyler, formerly in business in Idaho, is starting a nursery here.

Lebanon, Ind.—The Lebanon greenhouses have purchased the Oak Hill greenhouses and will combine the two.

Gardner, Mass.—The greenhouse of M. A. Creed has been purchased by Mrs. Addie I. Colburn, who will remove it to her greenhouses at Graham and Richmond streets.

North Easton, Mass.—John McFarland has just finished changing the heating system of his houses from hot water to steam and is well pleased with its working on first trial.

The Engelmann Botanical Club of St. Louis will resume regular meetings this month. Secretary Pring will advise members of the date and place of meeting.

DURING RECESS.

Yonkers Football.

The adjoining estates of Thompson's and Greystone at Yonkers, N. Y., are keen rivals in many ways besides on the exhibition tables. A football match of unusual interest was played between teams representing the two estates, Saturday, September 28th, on the Thompson's ground. The teams were very evenly matched throughout. Ellis scoring for Greystone after 20 minutes' play in the first half of the game. No scoring took place in the second half, Greystone thus running out winners, one goal to nothing.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON The flower market is in a healthy condition in all respects this week. Roses are doing well. The new Madame Russell has the call over all others. Among the older standbys the best sellers are Double White Killarney, Cardinal, Mrs. Taft, Killarney Queen and American Beauty. The only chrysanthemums seen in quantity thus far are October Frost and Golden Glow. The stock of these varies greatly, some very inferior blooms being among them. Carnations have stiffened up in price, but are still short in stem, although fair otherwise. There is still quite a supply of gladioli. Gardenias are plentiful. Lilies are selling all right, also lily of the valley. There is an abundance of fine double corn flowers in this market. Of violets there are more than enough for the demand.

CHICAGO A continued scarcity of stock is making business very quiet and there is no immediate prospect of a decided change. Fortunately the city demand is comparatively light and so shipping trade, which is fully up to the average, can be taken care of. Roses, which have perhaps been more in demand and less in supply than any other stock are coming in a little more freely but are not yet equal to the demand. Some fine dahlias appear each day and this flower appears to be gaining in popularity, especially when arranged tastefully in baskets, etc. American Beauties are of good quality now and the best grades are on four-foot stems. Very few asters are seen. Some fine lily of the valley is again on the counters. It is worthy of note that the five varieties of chrysanthemums in the market now are all Elmer D. Smith's. They are Smith's Advance, October Frost, Golden Glow, Unaka and Monrovia.

The supply of stock in the market is somewhat short of the general demand for same. The cold weather seems to have put a heavy check on the receipts and it has taken almost until now to bring them around to a normal cut. For the past week the cuts of roses coming into each wholesale house have steadily increased until now they are in a fair way to take care of the demand. They are all good and all sell at top prices. The carnation supply is just beginning to steady itself; while generally of a regular size it has been erratic at times. When some particular color or variety was wanted most it would be the hardest to get. The following day would see enough of the desired color and probably more, too. The supply of pink is by far the largest. All other flowers are selling nicely but their supply is none too large. Lily of the valley is selling well and more might easily be used. The same applies to chrysanthemums, lilies, dahlias and cosmos. Some choice orchids are also to be had. Green goods business is excellent.

NEW YORK Last Monday night a white frost which was experienced in many parts of Jersey gave the tomatoes, geraniums, dahlias and such like a rare shake-up. Dealers will not be sorry to see the last of the latter, which are flooding the market in such quantities. The ordinary yellow chrysanthemums are not so much in demand as last year, their place having evidently been taken by Golden Glow, of which the market has had a sufficient supply for a long time. We have had a few extra specials in this week which have sold at $6.00 a dozen. Whites are plentiful, for which there is a good demand, and the same may be said of white carnations, but there is a difficulty in getting rid of the reds and pinks. Roses are with us in plenty, with too many of the smaller grades, which are a source of trouble, while the demand for best flowers is good and some of the Double White Killarney and American Beauty have been extra fine. Cattleyas, which have been going so badly of late, are sounder business. Gardenias, too, are in better demand. Taking one consideration with another, trade seems a shade better all round and should the cold weather continue we may soon settle down to real business.

PHILADELPHIA Business picked up quite considerably last week and there was a decidedly better tone all along the line. The general average for this season of the year was fully up to the usual standard. The best sellers were white roses—consequent on a brisk demand for funeral work and, in a lesser degree, to a slight decrease in shipments. Chrysanthemums also sold well and are daily becoming more of a factor. They are bringing fair money considering the quality. There have been some very good Golden Glow for some time, and these have led the Smith's White and October Frost. Now, we have Polly Rose, and Glory Pacific. Quality very fair. Dahlias are moving off in good shape but no extravagant prices have been realized. Carnations, like some other things, suffered early in the week from dull business consequent on rainy weather, but there was a decided change later on. The cool, bright weather and the advancing season is of course the main reason for the more healthful aspect of the market generally. American Beauty roses were not so plentiful. Prices on these are holding firm; with a slight advance on the higher grades. Other roses are good, and moving fairly well. Some kinds and grades rather too many for the market. Lilies are in short supply. A few gladioli; but poor. Tritoma, eulalia, oak foliage, etc., in brisk demand. Orchids selling well but rather too many for remunerative returns.

ST. LOUIS The market was in a very poor condition all of last week. Everything was scarce and the cooler weather put considerable life into the retailers, who cleaned up the markets daily. Now for the chrysanthemum season, which is already upon us. In roses Beauties had the call. Killarneys in all varieties sell well. Richmond the same and there are some fine Coquets. Carnations are still small and short stemmed but scarce. Lilies and lily of the valley had a good call and all greens sold well.

WASHINGTON Business during the past week has not been as brisk as could be desired, due in part to rain which fell during the entire period. There is plenty of stock in the market although American Beauty roses are not quite up to the market. Orchids are more plentiful. Dahlias are to be seen in large quantities; cosmos has made its appearance and violets are also being offered by the stores. These are not good as yet as they shatter too readily.

Obituary.

Mrs. Warren Ewell.

Mary, widow of the late Warren Ewell of Boston, died at Dorchester, Mass., on September 27.

William W. Thompson.

William W. Thompson, for many years a gardener and florist of Lake, Wisconsin, died on September 19, aged 70 years. Three sons and a daughter survive him.

Francis Krieger.

On September 13, Francis Krieger died in Troy, N. Y., aged 74 years. Born in Germany he came to America about 30 years ago. He was first in the florist business, then was employed in Oakwood cemetery as gardener.

Thomas Fletcher.

Thomas Fletcher, florist, Wood and Second streets, Warren, O., died recently of blood poisoning. He had a range of glass and a store in the center of the city. He was born in Lancashire, England, 49 years ago. His son will continue the business.

Richard E. Evans.

On September 15, Richard E. Evans, florist, 36 South Main street, Salt Lake City, Utah, died of paralysis, aged 62 years. He was born in Portsmouth, England, and in 1882 started a florist business in Flint, Mich. He located in Salt Lake City in 1891. His wife, one daughter, a brother and sister survive him.

G. Harry Baker.

G. Harry Baker, gardener at the R. B. Willing place, Newport, R. I., was found drowned in a cistern on the estate, September 30. It is believed he went to inspect the water spouts in the cistern and fell in by accident. The deceased had been in charge of the Willing place about ten years. He was 45 years of age and leaves a widow and several young children.

Paul Allerth.

It is a sad task to note the death of one so young and full of promise as Paul Allerth. Scarcely out of his early boyhood, Paul had been with A. Lange, Chicago, for five years and held the responsible position of shipping clerk in that large store. Last February he left to seek rest and change, but was never able to return, passing away at the home of his parents, 1611 North avenue, Chicago, September 25. The funeral was held from the residence, September 27.

Martin Kennedy.

Martin Kennedy, who for forty years had been employed in the greenhouse of James Weir & Son, Twenty-fifth street and Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., died of apoplexy in the greenhouse on September 27. He was seventy years of age and had retired from active work about three years ago. It was his custom to go to the greenhouses to care for a bed of chrysanthemums which were his personal pride and he was found dead among them. His wife and two daughters survive him.

George Carpenter.

Last week Philadelphia lost one of her oldest and best known florists in the sudden passing away of George Carpenter, who died at his residence, 60th street and Girard avenue, on the 25th of September. Mr. Carpenter was a trained gardener from England, and was at first in a private place (George Bullock's at Conshohocken), after which he started a commercial establishment for himself at 30th and Race streets. Later he moved to 60th street and Girard avenue where he has been located for over thirty years. He was a good grower, and was especially distinguished for his strict integrity in all walks of life. The business will be carried on by his son, George Carpenter, Jr., who has been associated with same all his life.

The St. Louis Florist Club will hold its regular monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 10th, at 2 o'clock, in Odd Fellows' Hall. President Fred Weber says he is looking for a big meeting and has instructed the trustees to see that the members have a pleasant afternoon.

The Big Question of Little Details

ONE of our customers recently complained bitterly to our superintendent that our men were "too all fired fussy, and if they were going to be as particular all through the work, summer would be over before the house would be ready to plant."

Two weeks later, however, his crop was in.

Now he is so delighted with his house, that he brags about the splendid way we attended to every detail. Right here let me say, we are going to keep right on being "fussy." More and more attention will be given to the details because we know it to be the really big thing in safe and sure satisfactory greenhouse building.

If you want such a house, then you want us to build it. Send for catalog.

The SERVICE BUILDING is usually a source of great annoyance to the up-to-date gardener and it requires architectural ability to design appropriate Potting Houses that will add to the attractiveness of the Greenhouses. You will admit that this SERVICE BUILDING is unusually attractive. Its Old English Architecture is along the same lines as other buildings on this large estate; it is equipped with all modern improvements for the comfort of the gardener and his assistants and the connecting house, sixteen feet long (ample for Propagating purposes), prevents the shading of adjoining houses.

Will be glad to talk to you on the SERVICE BUILDING.

SOME FACTS

- 1 You can make more money per square foot of bench space by growing good lilies, than on anything you can produce in the same amount of time.
- 2 The only limit to your profit is that based on your ability to market the cut flowers and plants on a business basis—and this is a big country.
- 3 Expensive greenhouses are unnecessary for their production—lilies will pay for a greenhouse quicker than the profits of any other article.
- 4 The demand is increasing with great rapidity because the flowers can be profitably used for so many purposes—and always appropriately.
- 5 Good lilies are an absolute necessity—just ordinary lilies won't do. They must be of good size, healthy plants, strong crisp flowers to stand shipment, and rough usage when necessary.
- 6 In order to produce good lilies to make possible large profits, you must plant good bulbs and give them proper treatment.
- 7 There is no brand known today that has given the average flowering results, year after year, that will equal the Horseshoe Brand Giganteum record.
- 8 This is because this brand is grown for quality instead of quantity. Experienced men—only the best of planting bulbs—good fertilizer—hand weeding to prevent injury to plants—constant care—disbudding at the right time and not lifted until they are fully matured.
- 9 It is cheaper to buy the best bulbs—a bad lily bulb planted in a greenhouse costs a florist ten times as much as the same bulb costs a Japanese grower to uproot and burn.
- 10 The cost of Horseshoe Brand Giganteum per bulb is consistent with the quality delivered, and owing to this quality the cost per flower is less than any brand known.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Adiantums

Give all adiantums that are planted out in a bed for cutting, every attention now. Up to March they will not need any shading, but should have the fullest light. It is much better to give adiantums less heat than used to be considered necessary. Adiantum Farleyense will want a night temperature of 65 degrees, but Adiantum Cuneatum and cuneatum will do fine in about 55 degrees at night. A higher temperature produces thinner and softer foliage. When watering give them sufficient water to moisten the soil thoroughly and then let them show signs of dryness before watering again. This will help to keep the soil sweet. Give them liquid manure at short intervals through their growing season.

Araucarias

Now is the time to stock up with these serviceable and decorative conifers. Araucaria excelsa is the only one of much commercial value to the florist. Place them in a house where they can have a temperature of from 45 to 50 degrees at night with about 10 degrees higher during bright days. Give an abundance of air as the condition of the weather will allow, but never to the extent of admitting cold draughts. These plants do not like anything like a humid air around them. Root action is now naturally becoming slower, so give attention to watering. They like a moderate amount of water at the roots all the time. Do not crowd these plants for with their spreading branches they require ample room to keep them in proper shape. Where plants are pot-bound they should have some liquid manure once a week in a weak form; this will help to give them a superb color.

Coreopsis grandiflora

This makes very fine stock for Memorial Day trade, with its free blooming qualities; whether for a pot plant or for cutting it will come in good. So where you have some strong clumps dig them up now and pot in either 7, 8 or 10 inch pots. For a compost give them any good rose or carnation soil. Pot firmly and give them a thorough watering. They can be placed in a cold frame and protected against hard freezing. Here they can stay until January when they can be taken in from time to time in batches for forcing.

Crotons

To keep crotons in good shape they should have a night temperature of not less than 65 degrees, but 70 degrees would be better. Keep them well syringed during all bright days. This is a great help in keeping them clean of spider and thrips which often become very troublesome. These plants always do better when standing over bottom heat so give them such a place when possible. The greatest care is necessary from this out in giving them water at the roots. It is always better to let them become rather dry and then give them a thorough watering; in this way you will keep them in vigorous growth. In order to keep up a humid atmosphere water should be abundantly sprayed on the walks and under the benches. Plants should not be overcrowded; this is a great evil with many growers. To intensify their coloring they should have full sun now, and where the pots are full of roots some weak liquid manure once a week will help them along.

Geraniums

Where you want pot-grown geraniums to flower for Christmas discontinue pinching now as it takes about six weeks for the flower trusses to develop properly. Give winter flowering geraniums a bench where they will get all the possible light and sun and remember that they like plenty of fresh air whenever possible. The proper temperature for these plants is a night temperature of about 50 degrees with a rise of about 10 to 15 degrees with sun heat. There is nothing better to use when the pots are filled with roots than Clay's fertilizer applied as a top dressing. You can use from a half to tablespoonful to a 4 or 6 inch pot. It produces a firm shortjointed growth which always makes them floriferous. Where plants are heavily flowered they should have stakes to keep them from becoming overbalanced. Keep on propagating until you have enough of stock for next year.

Primulas for Christmas

Every florist will have his hands full trying to get his different crops in right shape for the holidays and one of these is primulas. Keep them in a uniform vigor by giving them a house that is light and airy. They should be placed on a bench where they will be well up to the glass; it will keep them from drawing and better their flowering qualities to a big extent. They should be given a nice equalized temperature of from 48 to 50 degrees at night. They will not stand to be pushed by a greater heat without bad results. The frequency that they will require water can only be determined by going over them three or four times a day. See that the plants do not become crowded; go over them often and give a little room where required. They will stand some feeding now in weak doses once a week. There is nothing better than cow manure and a little soot; this will give them that dark green foliage one loves to see.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Azaleas; Care of Callas; Ericas; Lilies for the Holidays; Pandanus Veltchii; Shamrocks for St. Patrick's Day.

Where a united front is needed

Whatever of unnecessary burden the horticultural industries may be compelled to bear on account of the provisions of the new quarantine law which has now gone into effect, this drastic legislation will, we hope, have at least one very promising result, in its lesson to the nurserymen and the florists on the need of a closer alliance and unity of purpose between these two rapidly growing interests. Ever since the separation of the two sections of the old joint association some twenty-eight years ago, the American Association of Nurserymen and the Society of American Florists have been devoting themselves, mainly, each to its own particular division of the field and thus far joint effort on matters where they appeared to have interests in common has been mostly sporadic and superficial. Both organizations possess elements of strength from which one or the other might benefit greatly in a shoulder to shoulder campaign. The strength which such unity would surely develop will be sorely needed in the near future if we are to judge by the signs of the times. There should be no delay in getting together on some efficient practical and permanent basis and agreeing upon ways and means whereby legislative and corporate reprisals affecting any branch of horticultural industry may be held in check.

A surfeit of literature

Commenting upon the early demise of "The Magazine Flowers," The American Botanist says: "While we note the successive surrender of one out-door magazine after another we often wonder whether there ever will come a time when the general public will forsake nickel theatres and moving picture shows for the more satisfying pleasures of the study of nature." While not presuming to diagnose the trouble which is responsible for the particular mortality which our contemporary deplores we would suggest that this class of publications generally have perhaps been multiplying a little too rapidly. Following the unmistakable trend towards a better appreciation of rural life in recent years, the country has been simply deluged with so-called popular garden and country life literature. Without going into the question as to the intrinsic value of much of this material which is loading down our book shelves it is safe to say that we have far more of it than is needed. The general public may not "forsake nickel theatres and moving picture shows" all at once but they are progressing fairly well, we believe, in the right direction and the school gardening propaganda is probably one of the most potent influences to that end. What is needed now is not more journals but better ones, and a public tuned up to appreciate them and all this will come, gradually but surely.

A challenge for the floral artists

We learn from the Horticultural Trade Journal, London, that "Mr. R. F. Felton is going to the United States National Flower Show at New York next April to act both as judge and decorative demonstrator. The Society of American Florists has apparently heard so much about R. F. F. that they desire either to improve their own knowledge on color schemes, or get a sight of the author of Floral Decoration. One thing is certain, R. F. F. is quite capable of talking up to any U. S. florist that may disagree with him." That this distinguished gentleman is really coming to our show is very gratifying news, especially as a previous rumor to that effect had been declared to be without foundation. He will, we are sure, find appreciative audiences and will have no cause to complain of his reception in America. The trouble with our local florists is that very few of them can ever be induced to come out and face their fellow-workers, either on the platform, in the exhibition hall or even in the club room ranks. We have some floral decorators on this side of the Atlantic who, we think, are the peers of any in the world and well able to entertain and instruct if they were only so disposed. We hope the example of this eminent representative of their art from abroad may have an inspiring effect on our own home talent and lead them to be more willing to display their methods and their handiwork for the benefit of their fellows.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Temperature in Houses

With the weather outside constantly changing the temperature in the houses must be regulated accordingly. On the cool frosty nights do not let the temperature drop down to 54 or less, especially in the Beauty houses. The old theory of hardening the plants does not work well in the long run and if your Beauties drop down to 54 many nights at this season they will likely get a severe check and, once checked, most growers know what it takes to start them off again, if they start at all; or they may grow and grow and grow and yet no signs of a bud anywhere. We find fall a very important part of the season and also that if the stock is handled wrong in the fall it will not do well all winter.

Rest the Plants?

We know a grower who had several benches of fine teas, which cut quite heavy all summer. Following a suggestion of a friend he thought it wise to give these plants a little rest, and then start them up for the coming winter thinking that if the plants were not allowed to produce much in the fall they ought to bloom all the more in winter after a little rest. On being asked afterward if it was wise to rest plants in the fall he remarked: "I rested some once, and they rested nearly all winter." And we are of the same opinion.

Bone Meal

From now on roses should receive an occasional top dressing of bone meal, especially if they are growing freely. We always aim to apply it just before mulching, as the plants get more out of it. The best time to apply bonemeal, if it cannot be followed by a mulch, is when the plants are just breaking for another crop. A dose of feed at this time will help greatly in lengthening the stems and making same much stronger than they would be otherwise. After the bonemeal is applied go over the bench and gently rub the very surface of the soil or mulch over to spread the bonemeal a little more evenly and also to incorporate it with the soil a least bit. Be very careful in doing this, and do not scratch too deep. If you want to know why, then just go and gently remove a portion of the previous mulch or the very surface of the soil. What do you find? Thousands of very fine white roots which are lying there in wait for feed and if these are destroyed by carelessly raking over the benches every now and then, the plants cannot grow properly and of course it is always the soil that is blamed or the location or something similar.

Liquid Manure

Do not be over anxious to feed your plants by applying strong liquid manure. Plants with but little soil that have been producing quite heavily will be benefited by liquid manure, but plants in general with a benchful of soil will hardly require it as yet. At any rate be careful and not overdo it using liquid manure only about once a week. Making the first dose rather weak, it can be increased in strength until it is as rich as the pipes will carry it. We would not advise using fertilizer of any kind with the liquid manure to be applied early in the season. A little bone meal may be put into it. This is more of a plant food than a stimulant and will do no harm.

With the steam boiler going it will be an easy matter to heat the liquid in the tank enough to start fermentation, providing of course the pipes are arranged in the tank. This will make the liquid available to the plants almost immediately—sort of "predigested" as a grower once told me. His roses certainly looked as if they were getting something out of the ordinary; the strong stems and foliage almost black in color testified the same.

Roses Outside

These will gradually fall off crop now and will soon go to sleep for the winter. Make sure that no water will stand among the plants and lie there frozen for weeks. We find nearly all trees, shrubs, etc., like "dry feet" in the winter and where at all possible see that the ground is so graded that it will drain properly. A little strawy manure put among the plants will give them protection against the sun—yes, the sun—for frost does not hurt them as much as a warm day now and then which starts the sap flowing and then a severe frost following freezes the plant. By saying protect your plants, we mean protect them against changes of weather so that when they freeze they will stay frozen until the time comes for them to start.

Do not be over anxious to apply this protective mulch. Wait until the ground freezes slightly and then apply it to the frozen ground. This of course cannot be done at all times, but it is well to do so where it can be done.

Leaky Propagating Houses

Growers with experience in propagation will know what it is to have a leaky roof over a bench of cuttings. If you have not done so as yet, go over the house at once and give it a coat of paint, and do not be afraid to use putty either. Broken glass should be removed for it is bound to make trouble sooner or later, so it is best to repair it at once and have it over with.

Begonia Christmas Red

The begonia which is the subject of our title page this week is a novelty which bids fair to have a big holiday sale on account of the berry-red color and sparkling effect of the bloom and the compactness and floriferousness of the plant. W. A. Manda is the introducer.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

PITTSBURGH FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

The club meeting the evening of Oct. 1st. at the Fort Pitt Hotel was well attended. It was Dahlia Night with a fine display from both out-of-town and home exhibitors. H. A. Dreer showed for their leaders Fern and Olivet, a dark crimson cactus, Papa Charme and Catherine Duer, crimson and scarlet decoratives respectively, and their well-known Dreer's White. The Leo Niessen Co. showed a fine line of Peacock's dahlias—very strong in the single Century class. R. Vincent, Jr. & Sons sent the cream of their large collection. Phoenix a dark crimson cactus was a leader, and there was Yellow Colosse, Mrs. Seybold and those charming decoratives Delice and Madame Van den Daele. Randolph & McClements showed a good sized collection of dahlias. Neil McCallum showed Tilhona speciosa, a tall growing Mexican plant, seedling dahlias, etc. Walter James showed the "New Idea," a wooden, folding cut flower box invented by himself, which drew a great deal of interest. It is very strong and folds down into less than one-third its size. C. A. Butler showed a very attractive earthenware flower vase, in a peculiar green finish.

In accordance with the request of the chairman of the New York Florist Publicity Committee, it was voted that the President should appoint a local allied committee, the names to be announced later.

Subject for November meeting—Chrysanthemums.

H. P. JOSLIN, Sec'y.

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The next regular monthly meeting of the club will be held at Horticultural Hall on Tuesday evening, October 15, 1912, at 8 o'clock. "Chrysanthemums" will be the subject of the evening and one or more experts will speak on their culture. C. H. Totty and other specialists will have flowers on exhibition and a fine floral display is assured.

The banquet of the club to celebrate its silver anniversary will be held at Horticultural Hall on Monday evening, November 11. A noted array of speakers will respond to the various toasts. Tickets may be obtained at the coming club meeting or from any of the club officers or executive committee.

W. N. CRAIG, Sec'y.

TUXEDO HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

A regular meeting of this society was held in the parish house, Oct. 2. The chief business was the forthcoming fall show, which will be held in the Tuxedo Club House ballroom on Oct. 25th, 26th and 27th. This room should prove an ideal place for the setting up of the different groups and specimens of miscellaneous plants, palms, orchids, etc., and standard and bush chrysanthemums. There are classes for chrysanthemum blooms to suit both large and small exhibitors, also for cut roses, carnations and violets, fruit and vegetables. The show is being well patronized by seedsmen and nursermen with money and cups as prizes. All entries should be sent to David D. Miller, secretary of exhibition. Preliminary schedules may be had on application to the secretary of society. Regular meetings of the society are held on the first Wednesday of each month. E. WILSON, Sec'y.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

President Wm. Sim has called a meeting of the Sweet Pea Society of America at Horticultural Hall, Boston, on Friday, October 11.

The nominating committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society has placed in nomination J. K. M. L. Farquhar of Boston for the presidency of that Society.

The regular monthly meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held at the club rooms on Monday evening, October 14. It will be "Dahlia night" and a fine display is assured.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston will have a banquet in Horticultural Hall, Boston, on November 11, 1912, in celebration of the 25th anniversary of the organization of the club. To be exact, this affair should have come off last January but, nevertheless, there will be a good time now.

The Ohio Horticultural Society will hold its first flower show at Gray's Armory, Cleveland, on November 14 to 16. Besides cups and certificates, cash prizes amounting to nearly $3000 are offered and if, as one of our correspondents elsewhere says, it requires only liberal prizes to bring out exhibits, then Cleveland is assured of a fine show. Copies of the schedule, rules, etc., may be procured from John A. Stockwell, secretary, 218 City Hall, Cleveland. John Boddy, same address, is chairman of the committee on prizes and exhibitions.

The regular meeting of the Southampton (N. Y.) Horticultural Society was held in Odd Fellows' Hall, October 3rd, President U. G. Ager in the chair. It was voted to offer $25 in gold for award at the National Flower Show in New York next April, the class to be decided on by the management.

It was voted unanimously to have this Society incorporated, the necessary steps to be taken at next meeting.

The essay committee was instructed to ask Mr. Fullerton, of Wading River, to give a lecture before the Society at some future date. The regular meetings for the winter months are the first and third Thursdays of each month. WM. McLEOD, Sec'y.

The Yonkers (N. Y.) Horticultural Society held the regular monthly meeting in Hollywood Inn on Friday evening, Oct. 4th. President Howard Nichols presiding.

The fall show will be held in the Armory, Oct. 30, 31 and Nov. 1, and it will surpass any flower show previously held in Yonkers. Two beautiful silver cups, each valued at fifty dollars will be awarded, one for specimen bush chrysanthemum, and the other for the best twenty-four large blooms, eight varieties. The Armory is a fine big building, so the exhibitors will have an opportunity to display their exhibits to advantage, and will be able to arrange them with comfort. It is hoped the competition will be strong in all the classes, as the committee have been busy all season, and have the work well advanced. It now remains for the exhibitors to come forward and put up a good fight for the cups already mentioned, as well as for other cups, medals, etc., in the various classes.

The fifty-eighth annual meeting of the Western New York Horticultural Society will this year be held in Convention Hall, Rochester, N. Y., December 11, 12 and 13, as provided by special vote of the society at its last meeting. The principal explanation for this arrangement lies in the fact that the Rochester Chamber of Commerce had announced its intention to hold another and a larger Apple Show in this city the latter part of November or early in December, and it was suggested that it would be a good idea for this society to hold its meeting about the same time to show its sympathy with the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce to boom the fruit interests of New York State.

At the present writing, however, it is doubtful if the Apple Show will be held, but, whatever may be the ultimate decision of the Chamber of Commerce, the announcement has gone out that our meeting will be held on the dates specified, and plans have been perfected for the same. Judging from the opinions which have been expressed, the proposition to hold the annual meeting early in December is receiving very general endorsement, and we look for a large attendance.

JOHN HALL, Sec.

A genuine lovefeast was enjoyed by over thirty Detroit florists who went by special car to Toledo, O., in pursuance of the cordial invitation of the florists there. Chaperoned by the Toledo boys they went visiting from place to place and partook of a delicious noon repast at Cushman's. The afternoon was spent just as pleasantly and the final seal of friendship was attached with a dinner at the Commerce Club.

Detroit, Mich.—J. A. Stahelin moved the four houses, each 35x173, built last year, over a field of carnations cultivated during the summer, also four new houses 36x173 built by Garland during the past summer. The work was done by nine men in less than a day and everything went off without hitch, not even breaking a pane of glass.

FOREIGN NOTES.

The time flies and few things in horticulture remind us of more than the frequency with which the great quinquennial shows at Ghent come round. Next April we are to have another and in conjunction therewith an International Horticultural Congress will be held, at which horticulturists, native or foreign, are invited to participate. A circular has been issued with form of proposed membership. The fee is one dollar, and it may be taken for granted that Belgian hospitality will, as usual, be lavish and cordial. Besides the useful and instructive there will be festive gatherings and those wishing to take part may obtain full details from the Secretary, M. Ed. Rodigas, 79 Avenue Chazal, Brussels, Belgium.

French Gardeners in London.

On Saturday September 7th, a most enjoyable day's outing was offered to the young French gardeners belonging to the Societe Francaise d'Horticulture de Londres. The firm of James Carter & Co., invited the Society to visit their new establishment at Raynes Park. About 400 of the young Frenchmen accepted and were accompanied by some half-dozen of the English members of the Society. A hearty welcome was extended by Mr. Harold Beale who showed the party around what must be regarded as one of the most up-to-date seed establishments in England.

After a thorough inspection of all departments of the big seed house, the party was conducted to the dining hall. Mr. Harold Beale occupied the chair and a splendid lunch was served—nothing but champagne being provided except a choice liqueur at the finish. Then in a few well-chosen words dear old papa Schneider arose and as president of the French Society thanked as only a Frenchman can, the hosts for their great kindness and hospitality towards the young foreigners who most heartily appreciated the visit.

Electroculture.

Electricity is nowadays an important factor in our lives. Applied to horticulture it has problems that will interest all engaged in Adam's craft. We learn that the first International Congress of Electroculture has been decided upon and that it will take place at Rheims, France, on the 24th to 26th of October.

Mme. Philippe de Vilmorin.

We are sure that all our readers who know this charming lady, the wife of one of the most eminent and most widely respected French horticulturists will rejoice with us in learning that the French government has recently conferred upon her the Cross of Chevalier of the Merite Agricole for her services in horticulture. There are few great gatherings of nurserymen in Europe where this lady is not to be seen with her husband and in a country like France where woman holds an important place, it is only reasonable that honors should be bestowed upon them for meritorious services rendered.

M. George Gibault.

Our old and valued friend, M. George Gibault, the librarian of the National Horticultural Society of France, has just been appointed a corresponding member of the Royal Horticultural Society of London, England. M. Gibault is a great authority on horticultural and botanical literature and well deserves the distinction.

C. HARMAN PAYNE.

CYPRIPEDIUM FAIRRIEANUM.

The accompanying illustration represents a good variety of this dainty little cypripedium having the dorsal sepal much more open on top than is generally the case in this species.

C. Fairrieianum is by no means an easy subject to grow, at least I don't find it to be so. The best location for it seems to be a cool shady place in the cattleya house near the glass. Perhaps the use of pieces of limestone in place of potsherds would be more to its liking. At the last potting I mixed small pieces of old plaster in with the loam (as I cannot get any limestone around here) and they seem to like it, for they have made considerable headway since then. It would be interesting to hear the experience of other gardeners with this cypripedium.

ADVERTISING VS. READING MATTER.

Dear Sir:—Your first paragraph in editorial column of October 5th inst., under the title, "Advice Accepted," has struck me with more than ordinary interest, for I always had strong views regarding the subject therein mentioned. I have never ceased wondering how editors or publishers should be so apparently indifferent regarding the permanent merits of their respective publications as a repository of helpful reference for all time, in burdening their publications with bizarre advertisements throughout the reading matter, when the interest of both advertisements and reading matter could be as well and as effectually met separately. The self-effacement from an honorary place on the shelves of private or public libraries of those publications that pursue this course is sufficiently eloquent to point out its errors. When you were but very young at your post of conducting HORTICULTURE editorially, and but a few numbers had been issued, I happened to be at your office; you asked me how I liked the new paper. Answering, I said that I liked it very well; adding, that I should like it much better if the advertising matter were "confined to the cover pages," as it should from my way of looking at it, and if permanent usefulness and personal pride on the part of the promoters had anything to do with its welfare, quoting as examples, the English Chronicle, the English Garden, the Deutsche Gartner-Zeitung, and others to support my contention. You will pardon me if I feel somewhat elated at this late date to find others thinking as I did then, evoking such applause at Chicago as you tell us in the paragraphs referred to, as to convince your experienced self to remark that there was "Something in it."

Be assured, that although this note is addressed to you, that HORTICULTURE or its management is neither more nor less considered involved in the argument than its contemporaries. Let us have the arguments; much good is evolved from well-meant ones.

K. FINLAYSON.

NOTES FROM GERMANY.

Charles Lenker, of Freeport, N. Y., who is traveling in Germany, writes interestingly of the flower business as he found it in Hamburg. He says that chrysanthemums of very good mid-season varieties, such as Robinsons, are bringing $3.00 per dozen and carnations such as Enchantress, Beacon, White Perfection and Daheim from $4.00 to $8.00 per 100 wholesale. In the latter "spliffs" have to be taken along, as no culling is allowed. Asters are very poor, the stuff offered in some of the best stores being such that no American store of any pretensions would look at. Lily of the valley is about half a crop this year; there are whole fields that will have to be left for another year, the extreme dry season having left them with only about one-half flowering pips, so that it would not pay to dig them.

Mr. Lenker comments in characteristic philosophical manner of the inconvenience he had to undergo on account of having had his baggage left behind at Hoboken. His visit, following Hamburg will include Quedlinburg, Leipzig and Dresden.

THE EXHIBITIONS

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE SHOW AT BOSTON.

Boston-grown apples measuring 16½ inches in circumference, weighing a pound and three-quarters were features of the annual fruit and vegetable exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society which was opened at Horticultural Hall, Oct. 4. These were exhibited by Martin Meehan. These big apples were only one feature of an excellent show. There were peaches, pears, plums and the largest variety of grapes ever seen in the hall. There were vegetables of all kinds and although this was in no sense a flower show there were orchids and cut flowers which lent color to the exhibit. In the latter class Mrs. John L. Gardner (William Thatcher, gardener) showed a splendid collection of orchids, and E. B. Dane showed the handsomest Vanda Sanderiana ever seen in the hall, and for which a silver medal was awarded.

The list of awards in the fruit classes was a very lengthy one and covered all accepted popular varieties separately as well as collections.

When the judges of vegetables began work they found it cut out for them, for the collections were many and of high quality, while the single exhibits were so good that it was difficult to decide between them. Colonel Frederick Mason of Taunton (E. L. Lewis, gardener), W. J. Clemson of Taunton (J. O. Christenson, gardener), Oliver Ames of North Easton (Ed Parker, gardener), and Wm. Whitman of Brookline (Martin Sullivan gardener), had large exhibits, most attractively arranged. The Boston Consumptives Hospital (Martin Meehan, gardener), showed a squash which weighed 110 pounds. Colonel Mason had giant peppers sixteen inches in circumference and T. D. Hatfield of Wellesley showed a vegetable marrow which weighed thirty-five pounds. Collections of vegetables were also shown by Michael Cahalan of Taunton and David L. Fiske of Grafton, while the exhibitors in the single classes were legion.

OYSTER BAY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Oyster Bay Horticultural Society, organized last March, held its first exhibition at the Truck House, Oyster Bay, New York, on October 1 and 2. It was all that could be expected in the way of a fine display of flowers, plants, vegetables and fruit, and its success was very encouraging to the officers and other promoters, all of whom had worked hard to bring it about. The names of the owners of several of the beautiful private estates in the neighborhood were prominent in the list of prize winners. The gardeners thus represented included James Duthie, Alfred Walker, Fred. Hobschman, Frank Kyle and Floyd Blowers. The school children's competition aroused much interest. Alex MacKenzie and J. W. Everitt of Glen Cove and H. Funnell of Huntington, were the judges.

PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Arrangements for the annual Chrysanthemum Show are actively under way. The joint committee of the Society and the Florists' Club has had several meetings and report a number of new and interesting attractions. One of these is a prize of $50 for twenty-five American Beauty roses offered to commercial growers by the private gardeners. Another is an offer by E. A. Stroud of a plant of hardy chrysanthemums to any boy or girl who will agree to grow same in pot and exhibit at the fall show of 1913 for a prize. W. A. Manda and C. H. Totty have agreed to send interesting and instructive exhibits. The show opens November 5th. Schedule of prizes may be obtained by addressing the secretary, David Rust, Broad and Locust streets, Philadelphia.

Among the prize winners at the Brockton (Mass.) Fair this year, in the floricultural department were Waban Rose Conservatories, H. M. Robinson & Co., J. K. Alexander, Geo. H. Walker, Sisson & Thurston, D. C. Hathaway, W. D. Hathaway and other well known names.

Seed Trade

Wholesale Seedsmen's League.

The Wholesale Seedsmen's League met at the Hardware Club in New York, on Thursday, the 3rd inst., and as customary at such meetings discussed suggestive prices for the coming season. We are advised that the members found it unusually difficult to fix prices this year because of the contradictions and uncertainties of our crop conditions. We learn that some items were passed over and no prices fixed, but of course are unable to give any detailed information as to what transpired at the meeting. We presume that following the usual custom copies of the prices suggested will be mailed to all members of the League and many of the leading houses not members. In due time we shall be able to learn what the prices were and in a general way we believe that they are somewhat lower than last year, particularly on peas.

Many Seed Crops Immature.

It seems not improbable that beans may be higher; also a number of varieties of cabbage. This is based on information as to the very light yields of cabbage and a very unsatisfactory condition of the bean crop. It is reported that many varieties are still so green or immature that they are quite suitable for the table even at this late date. Undoubtedly this condition is the result of the very frequent and almost continuous rains of the past two months, which have prevented the crop from maturing, and kept it in a soft if not green condition. As a matter of fact, even peas were so affected, some varieties remaining green up to very near the 1st of October, whereas they should have been ripe under normal conditions by the 1st of September.

Peas and Beans Ripening Poorly.

Referring to peas, we are advised that the early optimistic estimates have proved to be greatly out of line, many growers finding it necessary to reduce their figures from 10 to 40 per cent. This discrepancy between conditions today and the early estimates is largely due to the reasons given above; namely, too much rain and moisture which prevented the peas from ripening, and which situation, of course, could not have been anticipated by those who made the field estimates.

The latest information about sweet corn is that the crop may prove, like peas and beans, somewhat disappointing. It seems that considerable of the corn is yet soft and very susceptible to a freeze, which would ruin a considerable percentage of it; consequently, nothing definite can be said as to the corn crop.

The Potato Situation.

The order issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Wilson, prohibiting the importation of foreign potatoes will doubtless be appreciated by the seed trade. To be sure the order is not absolutely prohibitive, but does affect those countries from which we have drawn most heavily in years of shortage; and while this cannot be said to be a year of shortage, yet prices remain surprisingly strong in the face of the very large crop, according to the figures of the Department of Agriculture.

We referred in a recent issue to rot which had attacked potatoes, and are inclined to believe that this is doubtless a cause for the present strong prices. If the tubers were sound and hard as a year ago there is no doubt that present market values could not be maintained. We have not learned how general this rot trouble is, but are advised that there is more or less complaint from Maine growers and also from the West.

Onions Also Soft.

By the way, while speaking of potatoes, we may remark that while the onion crop is a very large one, similar complaints are being made as of the potatoes. Too much rain prevented the onions from properly drying down and a large percentage had green tops when harvesting. Therefore under such circumstances the keeping qualities would not be very high, and doubtless large handlers of onions appreciate this fact, as they are not buying liberally despite the low prices, preferring to let the farmer winter the stock and to pay the market value in the spring. The bulbs, or at least a large percentage of them, are very watery and more or less soft, and if the winter proves to be a warm open one they will rot down like snow under an April sun. All of which will in due time affect the demand for onion seed.

A Baseless Rumor.

We have been advised on the highest authority that the rumor which has been in circulation for the past week or ten days, that Sutton & Son of England, had taken over the business of J. M. Thorburn & Company, and that Mr. Alexander Forbes, recently with Peter Henderson & Company, was to become manager, is a pure invention, absolutely without any foundation in fact. We have not learned anything about Mr. Forbes' plans, but presume he has a definite purpose in view, which will doubtless materialize in due time, and in any event he has our best wishes.

Grass Seed Crop.

Barenbrug, Burgers & Co., grass-seed specialists, Arnheim, Holland, report that after a number of years following one another in succession unfavorable to the cultivation of the majority of grasses, so far as yields are concerned, they have this time to report a crop of natural grasses, both in home and foreign growing districts, nearly all of which may be called very satisfactory, both in regard to yield and quality. The exceptions are hard and sheeps and fine-leaved fescues and rough-stalked meadow only.

Achillea Millefolium (Yarrow), gave a fair crop of nice healthy seed, which will be obtainable at reasonable prices.

Agrostis Stolonifera (Marsh or Creeping Bentgrass). Early prospects pointed to a good crop. Unfortunately a great deal has gone lost and the quality has suffered much by the showery weather which started when the crop was just about to be cut and which lasted over four weeks.

Aira Caespitosa (Tufted Hairgrass) gave an average crop of good heavy quality and will sell at average prices. Aira Flexuosa (Wavy Mountain Hairgrass) yielded a crop somewhat less than average.

Alopecurus Pratensis (Meadow Fox-tail). A very good crop of nice seed of heavier weight and greater cleanliness than for the last few years; price rather under average.

Anthoxanthum Odoratum (Sweet-scented Vernal, true) failed almost entirely in some districts whereas in others it yielded a crop under average. A tendency for a further rise in price.

Anthoxanthum Odoratum, Puelli (Sweet Vernal, Puelli) average crop of good quality. Prices opened at about two-thirds those of last year.

Avena Elatior (Tall Oatgrass). A good crop which will sell at even lower prices than the previous season.

Avena Flavescens (Yellow Oatgrass, true) produced a good crop of excellent quality and selling cheaper than last year.

Cynosurus Cristatus (Crested Dogstail). Apart from a few early exceptional lots, the quality on the whole will be but a poor one. About three-fifths of an average crop. We think that the better qualities will fetch somewhat higher prices than last season.

Dactylis Glomerata (Cocksfoot or Orchard-grass). New Zealand reports a good crop so far as quantity is concerned but one that is wholly unsatisfactory for quality. Very little seed is suited for export to Europe, where the better grades are required. Just the same is reported from the United States where, likewise, a good yield was recorded, but where three-fourths of the seed are of so poor a quality, that it won't do for export.

Festuca Duriuscula and Ovina (Hard and Sheep's Fescue), form an exception to the general rule of good crops in 1912. We estimate this season's yield at from 70 to 80 per cent that of last season. The seeds were bought from the farmers at much the same prices as last year, so that the dressed seeds will sell at about equal value as the previous season.

Festuca Elatior (Tall Fescue) yielded about an average crop so far as quantity is concerned but of a rather light quality. Moderate quotations will be in accordance with the market value of Meadow fescue.

Festuca Ovina Tenuifolia (Fine-leaved Sheep's Fescue) unsatisfactory, at best one half of an average yield. The quality, on the other hand, is a good deal better than last year.

Festuca Pratensis (Meadow Fescue). This shows perhaps the greatest fall in price this year of any of the various grasses and clovers. After a few years of exceedingly short crops and enormously high prices, this article appears to have yielded this time very good crops indeed. The article now sells "fancy" grade about one-quarter of last year's price.

Festuca Rubra (Red Fescue). This season's seed is of a good nice quality and sells some 10 to 15 per cent cheaper than the previous season.

Phleum Pratense (Timothy) yielded a good crop in America, both in regard to quantity and quality, the quality being better than has been the case for the last few years. Prices have greatly come down compared with the last two seasons. Very little definite is known as yet in regard to the European crop of Timothy. But we think, whatever the out-turn may be, it will be the American seed that will take the lead.

SOME VALUABLE GRASSES.

Here is a leaf from a seedsman's herbarium. It shows some of the characteristics of some of the least known and finer grasses for lawns, pastures, etc., better, we think, than they have ever been done before.

Poa Nemoralis (Wood Meadow-grass). A very good crop both in regard to quantity and quality, of excellent weight and purity. The price has come down further and the recleaned seed sells now at from $4.00 to $6.00 less than the previous season.

Poa Pratensis (Smooth-stalked Meadow-grass) yielded the largest crop witnessed for the last 5 to 10 years. The seed is of a bright heavy quality. Quotations came down to a very low point, but the price has since gone up again some 40 to 50 cents in view of the large orders coming in.

Poa Trivialis (Rough-stalked Meadow-grass). An unsatisfactory crop so far as quantity is concerned. Whatever has come through, however, is of good quality of satisfactory purity and growth.

Lolium Perenne and Italicum (Perennial and Italian Ryegrass). Both of these had to sustain a long period of wet weather and both crops have been badly impaired. The bushel weight will on an average be three to four lbs less.

Lolium Westerwoldicum (Westerwold Italian, Annual variety). A fair crop. Germination the highest ever attained (96 99 per cent).

Notes.

Liberal, Mo.—The capital stock of the Libscomb Grain & Seed Co. has been increased from $30,000 to $75,000.

Lagrange, Ga.—An interest in the seed and plant business of E. L. Johnson has been purchased by R. M. Priddy.

Wichita, Kan.—It is reported that the Central Feed and Seed Store, 243 North Main street, has been placed in the hands of a receiver.

Tampa, Fla.—A warehouse and office building is being erected on Polk street by Crenshaw Bros. & Saffold. It will occupy half a block.

Holmes Seed Company of Harrisburg, Pa., has moved from Market square to 119 South Second street, where they will occupy a five-story building.

Council Bluffs, Iowa—The Shugart-Ouren Seed Co. is now a corporation with C. G. Ouren, president; F. R. Davis, vice-president; J. P. Davis, secretary; A. P. Schofield, treasurer.

Council Bluffs, Iowa—A two-story brick building is being erected by the De Giorgi Bros., seed growers, at Fourteenth avenue and Third street. It will be used for offices and warehouse.

The importation of potatoes into the United States from Newfoundland, the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, Great Britain, including England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland, Germany and Austria-Hungary has been forbidden by the Department of Agriculture under authority of the Plant Quarantine Act, in order, it is stated, to prevent the introduction of the disease known as potato wart, black scab, etc.

S. D. Woodruff & Sons report unusually brisk business on the seed market during the past two months. Their own advance orders for seeds, seed potatoes and onion sets far exceed anything that this firm has booked in former years. They say the trade in general now realizes the shortage in such items as carrots, beets, parsley, turnip, globe onion, and to these will soon be added sweet corn, beans and peas.

Ravages of the gipsy moth and the brown tail moth on growing trees, shrubs and grasses, especially in the vicinity of Boston, will be the subject of a hearing before the Federal Horticultural Board at the Department of Agriculture, Oct. 30. The hearing will decide whether there shall be a quarantine against the shipment of products liable to carry the moths into other localities in the United States.

Within a period of three years (1909 to 1912) the annual export from the United States to Canada of agricultural implements has increased from $2,313,556 to $6,347,082, the chief growth under this head occurring in exports of plows, which increased from $792,829 in 1909 to $1,760,045 in 1912.

BOSTON FLOWER EXCHANGE.

The Boston Flower Exchange has finally concluded negotiations for the new quarters at 1 and 3 Winthrop Square, but they will not move from Park street before March 1, as the present tenants' lease extends to Jan.
1 and there will be some extensive alterations needed. The location is first-class for a flower market, the floor space being very extensive and the large open square affording unlimited room for wagons and autos. Two large wholesale houses, Welch Bros. and N. F. McCarthy & Co. are already in that vicinity and the concentration will no doubt be an advantage to all.

The Flower Exchange has declared a 10 per cent. dividend, payable Oct.
26, on the evening of which day the annual dinner of the corporation will take place.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

John Wilson is now manager of the Kugler Flower Shop in connection with Kugler's restaurant, vice Mr. Keffer resigned. The latter is reported intending to open a new retail store at Broad and Walnut streets opposite the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

B. Eschner, of M. Rice & Co. remarks on the many large orders for baskets received from all sections of the country, indicating that baskets are becoming more and more popular every year. The basket department is employing more help than ever before and is a hive of industry, night work having been the rule for some time past.

The London Flower Shop, now located at 18th and Chestnut streets, has greatly improved quarters and is rapidly extending its business. Original and up-to-date methods, shrewd buying, cash dealing, and good advertising is producing the inevitable result. Given artists on one side; good salesmanship and intelligent buying on the other—the result is “a sure thing.”

The new move in the Maule progress reported to you some weeks ago is now fully authenticated in a two-column description of the new eight-story concrete building to be erected at 21st and Arch streets, which appears in the Commercial Journal. The original building at 1711 Filbert street, occupied for the past twenty-six years, will still be maintained but mostly for office purposes.

Alfred Burton, S. S. Pennock, C. E. Meehan, and C. H. Liggett paid a visit to the Jersey dahlia farms on the 4th inst. Mr. Burton was kind enough to furnish the transportation in his new safe and sane auto. The Bassett firms, W. A. Murray, Wood & Healy, D. Herbert & Sons, and others, at Hammononton and Atco were visited. The report is that the dahlias have not bloomed nearly as well as usual this year.

The Water Saving Exhibit in City Hall Square is greatly enlivened by a unique circle bed and fountain, executed by Philip Freud, of the Henry F. Michell Co. The peg to hang the story and the ad. on is the “Ring Fountain Spray,” a device that “saves water.” But Michell seeds and plants are the story, as exemplified in a fine lawn sod; lovely plants, aquatic and otherwise; trimmed pyramidal box bushes on the circular margin; vases of autumn foliage; Eulalia plumes and tritomas in the middle distance. The center is of course the feature, with its aquatics in bloom; its palms and other accessories. The cost of this display would be conservative at five hundred dollars. The procession of interested people passing aggregate probably one hundred thousand a day. I call that effective advertising of the most pronounced kind—and at a most trifling cost. No other firm in their line has had the enterprise to show themselves, so Michell has it all his own way. To paraphrase Harry Lauder: Michell, as regards Philadelphia, “Will soon have her a' to himself.”

Visitors: O. A. C. Oehmler, Washington, D. C.; H. L. Holmes, Harrisburg, Pa.; W. E. Marshall, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Grandy, Jr., Norfolk, Va.; C. D. Mills, Jacksonville, Fla.; R. Vincent, Jr., Whitmarsh, Md.; Mrs. Kendall Patterson, representing Walter Armacost, Ocean Park, Cal.; R. L. Hawkins, Bridgeport, Conn.; Geo. H. Seidel, Hazelton, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Newell, of Kansas City, Mo., on their way back from Europe; Adolphus and William F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; Henry Hart, New York City; D. Carmichael, representing J. M. McCullough's Sons, Cincinnati, Ohio; A. Emerich, representing Vilmorin Andrieux et Cie., Paris, France; A. Bachelot, representing M. Davy, Arpajon, France; M. H. Ebel, Sacramento, Cal.; James Brown, Coatesville, Pa.; Chas. Mawby, Van Lindley Co., N. C.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

McCrory's 5 and 10-cent store last week engaged in the florist business, selling roses two for five cents. They also had palms and ferns but these brought considerably better prices. A local firm supplied the stock.

The decorating of the new section of the George Washington University Hospital on the occasion of its dedication was done by George C. Shaffer. Cosmos was used in large quantities and other flowers, oak leaves and palms and ferns filled in.

O. A. C. Oehmler's will open this week. The interior is in green and white, the walls being of the former and the fixtures of the latter color. The floor is of mosaic work. To the right of the entrance is the counter and at the rear is the ice box, back of which is a make up room and above a mezzanine floor. Several chandeliers with electric lamps of high power furnish light.

Fred H. Kramer was neatly taken in by a colored woman last week who told a most harrowing tale of her mother's death. She wanted a few blooms to put on the casket and finally selected a $5 design to be sent to the house of sorrow. She had a check for $15 that had been given her, she said, by the people by whom she was employed. The balance was given her in cash, then the delivery boy couldn't locate the bereaved family at the address given and to cap the climax, the check came back stamped “no good.”

Gude Bros. furnished the decorations for the Mattingly-King wedding. The house was decorated with pink and white roses, chrysanthemums, greens, palms and ferns, with a group of wedding bells in the parlor. The bride's bouquet was of roses and lily of the valley, while the bouquets of the bridesmaids were of roses of four different tints of pink, matching their gowns. At the church the altar vases were filled with white roses and the wall pockets with chrysanthemums, and the pew markers were of white chrysanthemums, tied with satin ribbons.

St. Louis.—Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Windler have returned from a three week's trip to Chicago.

Grimm & Gorley have bought the stock and fixtures of Ed. Westermann who is now in their employ.

Visitors: Frank McCabe, representing A. L. Randall, Chicago; L. P. Edlefsen, Los Angeles, Cal., visiting his nephew W. C. Smith.

CHICAGO NOTES.

Trade Notes.

A new auto delivery car for Schiller, the florist, is just received. This store uses two and finds them very satisfactory for rush orders.

That Boston ferns are not losing any of their popularity was evidenced last week when a Chicago department store sold 1500 in four-inch pots in one day.

The various growers in and about Chicago are making exhibits at Springfield this week. The prizes offered are larger than at the regular flower shows.

At Peter Reinberg's, American Beauties are getting scarce in the short lengths and Richmonds are filling their place, the latter reaching thirty-six and forty inch stems.

All the large houses are showing quantities of autumn foliage and it makes a happy combination with the chrysanthemums, a fact the retailers' windows bear testimony to.

Three car loads of azaleas have just arrived from Belgium for Frank Oechlin, making the distance between Belgium and Chicago in just eighteen days. Another car is on the way.

John Kruchten, who is an authority on home-grown gardenias, says the plants are full of buds and that bright weather will insure a good crop. The cold, cloudy weather now prevailing looks very discouraging.

A beautiful new carnation, white with carmine pencillings, is to be sent out next year by the Chicago Carnation Co. and several bunches are cut each day and sent to the Chicago salerooms. It is still unnamed, is of average size, very stiff stem and has great substance to its petals.

Joseph Ziska is now sole owner of the business that was organized seven years ago under the name of the Chicago Rose Co., with a greenhouse plant at Libertyville, Ill., and which will hereafter be known by his name. It was organized by J. Weiland, J. Ziska and J. B. Degnan.

Hoerber Bros. have two large houses of Bride roses now in crop. Mr. Hoerber says he has plenty of calls for Bride and that its shipping qualities makes it in good demand for out-of-town trade. In carnations the entire planting is of five varieties, Beacon, Victory, Enchantress, White Enchantress, and Perfection.

Personal.

Oscar Wiegand, 2005 N. Halsted street, is taking a trip to California.

T. V. Brown is back at his old place at A. Lange's after a year in Florida.

C. Windler of St. Louis, Mo., left Friday for home after spending several weeks in Chicago.

Miss Lillie Tonner, lately with the A. Randall Co., leaves on the 15th for the south where she has a pecan orchard.

A. F. Longren was home over Sunday after his first trip for Poehmann Bros. Co. He reports business in florists' supplies as opening up nicely.

E. B. Washburn and family are preparing to leave very shortly for a winter in California where a milder climate will be more favorable to Mr. Washburn.

Visitors: Alfred Baur, Erie, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. C. Humfeld, Clay Center, Kas.

Mr. and Mrs. William Penn, of Boston, have just returned from a trip to New York, Baltimore and Washington.

F. H. Kramer, formerly of Wichita, Kan., is now in charge of the greenhouses of J. E. Yates, 308 East Springfield avenue, Champaign, Ill.

John Chisholm, employed by Bertermann Bros. Co., florists, Indianapolis, Ind., has accepted a position with Gude Bros, Washington, D. C.

Benjamin Allmond, formerly of New York, N. Y., has accepted the position of superintendent of the L. A. Thompson estate at Glen Cove, L. I., N. Y.

James Russell, formerly with Winsel's seed store, 211 South Main street, Los Angeles, Calif., is now in charge of the farm of H. N. Gage, at Montebella.

Fred Miller, for many years with Gude Bros., Washington, D. C., has accepted a position with W. W. Scholtz, florist, 306 North Tyron street, Charlotte, N. C.

Kenney Davis, formerly foreman at the Anacostia greenhouses of F. H. Kramer, has accepted a position with Ratcliffe & Tanner, 25 West Broad street, Washington, D. C.

Cleveland visitors—Robert Rabaley and Walter Taepke, Detroit, Mich.

Boston visitors:—Stephen Green, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia; R. Schoch representing "The House of Rice," Philadelphia; A. E. Thatcher, Bar Harbor, Me. Dan. Whittle, Albany, N. Y.; W. Atlee Burpee, Philadelphia.

CINCINNATI NOTES.

J. A. Peterson called on his trade in Louisville, Ky., for several days last week.

C. E. Critchell has increased his force by two to take care of his larger volume of business.

Peter Weiland had the first violets in the market. The quality, considering the early time for them, is excellent.

On last Friday afternoon Myer Heller held a reception at the Hill-Heller store, to his friends and those of the public interested in flowers.

The wedding of Miss Florence Windram and Oliver Hetsch took place last Wednesday. After their honeymoon the newlyweds will reside in Leesburg, Fla., where Mr. Hetsch takes charge of the Lake Shore Ferneries.

Visitor: Wm. Gardner, manager of P. J. Olinger's greenhouses, New Castle, Ind.

In reading the advertisement of R. M. Ward on page 500, take particular notice of Mr. Ward's claim that lilies will pay for a greenhouse quicker than the profits of any other article. This, if true, (and we have no reason to question it) is a vitally important fact and paves the way for an attentive reading of the rest of Mr. Ward's proposition.

NEW YORK NOTES.

The death is announced of Herbert A. Joslin at Allston, Mass., on Oct. 3, aged 55 years, and at one time a well-known New York florist. The funeral took place at Allston on the 6th inst.

Julius Walter, of the Stumpp & Walter Co., who has been suffering for the past three weeks from a severe attack of pneumonia, is now, we are pleased to report, well on the road to recovery.

Louis Grossman, who was on the J. H. Staren estate at Glen Island, N. Y., and latterly with Ernest Flagg, Esq., Dongan Hills, S. I., has now charge of the floral arrangements and plants at the Hotel Astor.

The wedding of Alling Woodruff to Miss Dorothy Blackhall is announced to take place at Woodmont, Conn., on Oct. 17 and the honeymoon will be spent in Europe. Mr. Woodruff is of the firm of S. D. Woodruff & Sons and is located at their Dey street warehouse.

Visitor: J. B. Shea, Supt. of Parks, Boston.

INCORPORATED.

Boston, Mass.—Zinn's Flower Shop, capital stock $5,000. Incorporators, Clarence W. Rowley, Olivia F. Zinn, Annie P. Magee.

Columbus, O.—San Pedro Development Co., to conduct nurseries, orchards and vegetable gardens. Capital stock $25,000. Incorporators, A. S. W. Huffman, C. A. McAllister, J. L. Baker, F. M. Hammond and F. N. Hammond.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON All flowers are abundant this week, with prices somewhat lower and the tendency downward generally. Roses are coming in very freely, all varieties. No special demand is encountered for any variety except Madame Russell; that sterling novelty is bringing American Beauty prices. Carnations are coming in better quality, with a good proportion of long stems and there are more than enough for ordinary demands, the whites having the better sale. Chrysanthemums increase in number every day, but there are no really fine blooms on this market thus far, the quality being below par as a general thing. Gladioli are seen here and there, also a few dahlias, but both are close to their finish. There are plenty of really good gardenias and the cattleya crop is entirely beyond control for the time being. Many of the latter are lagging on wholesalers' hands. Lilies, lily of the valley, violets and other seasonable stock are normal.

For the past two weeks BUFFALO weather conditions have been favorable and the flower business has been brisk. There has been no shortage to speak of on any line except occasionally lily of the valley and carnations. Out-door stock has still been coming in and has had good sales. Dahlias were in good supply and cleaned up fairly well; Jack Rose and the pink varieties have been best sellers. Carnations are coming on more plentiful each day and the quality is becoming better. Enchantress and White Perfection are best though some good Beacon and Winsor are seen. Beauties have had a better demand; the quality is also better than heretofore. All other roses have been better than for some time past. The chrysanthemum season has begun and the bright days have brought them on fast, and so far they have sold satisfactory. Violets have made their appearance though there is no special demand. Lilies are more plentiful. There is plenty of smilax and other greens. Weddings, autumn store decorations and floral work consumed a good lot of flowers the past week.

The Chicago market is CHICAGO very active in all lines and were there more stock it would be still more so. The demand for all kinds of roses is very good, and the supply comes nearer to meeting the demand than at any time since the shortage began. Some fancy Richmonds and Killarneys are of excellent quality and comparatively long stems, but the great bulk of roses is of medium grade. American Beauties are a little shy on the long-stemmed ones, also. Some very good carnations are now coming in and a little bright weather would work wonders for them. Lilies sold fairly well last week and lily of the valley is active. Quite a few sweet peas are coming and are quickly picked up at 75c. per 100. Violets are to be had in both single and double varieties. A few Francis King gladioli are still coming and some Augusta. Chrysanthemums are daily giving evidence that their time is drawing near. Green is moving well; the demand for smilax is especially active.

The demand all last week was very active and this week's bids fair to continue the same way. A large part of it is for flowers and decorations for weddings. The warm weather last week brought in such an increased supply that the tension in the market that has been apparent for several weeks was greatly relieved and there was easily enough blooms to take care of every request. Roses of all kinds sold nicely but toward the end of last week and on Monday of this week not all of them were taken up. Cooler weather which has arrived since then will undoubtedly retard the cut enough to bring it near to where it was a week ago. Most all Beauty growers consigning into the market are cutting an excellent crop. Carnations are proving good sellers. They are of a tolerably good quality, too. Lily of the valley and giganteum lilies sell well. The chrysanthemum market is very good.

Large quantities of cosmos and fine dahlias are coming in.

Good stock is still very scarce. Chrysanthemums were promised in quantity last week but did not materialize and consequently they also were far below the demand. Roses which have been off crop, are expected to furnish some long stemmed blooms this week again.

NEW YORK With the return of summer weather—and we have experienced five hot days in succession, the mercury having gone up to 78—our market, which looked like getting into good shape, has had a decided check and the slightly better conditions and tone of last week are not maintained. American Beauty roses have been pretty firm, but other varieties are in such quantities that the prices quoted must be somewhat unreliable. Chrysanthemums are selling well but we have far too many for satisfactory returns. All other stocks are plentiful, but prices have a downward tendency.

PHILADELPHIA The demand for American Beauty last week exceeded the supply hence the price remained firm at the advance noted in our last report. This is one of the healthiest signs of an improved market. Richmonds are not plentiful as yet and perhaps this is just as well, as there seems to be no very active demand for them. There is a plentiful supply of Killarneys and these move off excellently—particularly the white. Taft is proving not only a good summer but also a great fall rose. We have never seen it better than it is at present and the demand for it keeps up. It seems to fill a gap that no other competitor can touch. Hillingdons and Wards are also strong features of the market—both in quantity and quality. Dahlias have been in shorter supply than usual for the date. They moved off well. Of course, the weather is more favorable for them now; but they are a week or so too late, as they will have to buck up against a strong influx of chrysanthemums—which would not have happened a week ago. Pink Delight and Ward are the leaders in the carnation procession and are very good indeed. The demand for gardenias has improved very considerably and the crop has kept pace. There is no great congestion, however, and the prices on these have had an upward tendency. Orchids in good supply; demand moderate. Lilies short and market on these in good shape. Cosmos coming in very freely and of very fine quality, larger flowers and better substance than anything we have seen in the earlier arrivals.

ST. LOUIS. The market was very satisfactory last week among wholesale houses and retailers likewise. Business has picked up greatly since the cooler weather set in. The stock is not up to the usual standard though some excellent roses in Killarneys and Beauties are coming in. The same may be said of carnations, but the bulk of these are very poor and very short-stemmed. Chrysanthemums as yet are few and these will sell quickly at good prices until they become more plentiful. Violets are now coming in but very few. Out-door stock is becoming less each day and will soon be a thing of the past. All greens are plenty.

WASHINGTON The condition of business has improved considerably since the weather became somewhat cooler and flowers also are in better shape and larger quantities. There is plenty of stock of all kinds with the possible exception of American Beauty roses and short-stem carnations. Radiance and Richmond roses are coming in in very good shape. Some locally grown violets are coming in now; the Rhinebecks as yet are unsatisfactory because of their frailty. Cosmos and dahlias are of such quantity as to greatly lessen the sale of other stock. Indoor chrysanthemums are making their appearance.

Cambridge, C.—The florist business of I. A. Oldham has been purchased by Fred W. Arnold.

NEWS NOTES.

Catlin, Ill.—The florist business of Scott Morris has been purchased by Mrs. Florence Terpening who has moved it to Sandusky and Lookout streets.

Los Angeles, Calif.—J. B. Booker has purchased land at Montebello and will erect a range of greenhouses for cut flower growing.

Obituary.

Charles Seeley.

Charles Seeley, florist, 739 Grand street, Jersey City, N. J., died of gastritis on September 16, aged 53 years. He leaves a widow and three children.

W. R. Miller.

W. R. Miller, who had a greenhouse at 2128 Eastern avenue, Covington, Kentucky, died on September 23, aged 60 years. His wife and three sons survive him.

Henry Hession.

The death took place on the morning of the 9th inst. of Henry Hession, florist, of Flatbush, Brooklyn, N. Y. From the few details at hand at time of writing he was only ill for a few days, and after undergoing an operation in the hospital he returned to his home where he succumbed.

Benjamin Chase.

Benjamin Chase, well-known among florists and nurserymen as a pioneer in the wood label business, died at his home in Derry, N. H., on September 27th, aged 80 years. He was for many years a member of the American Association of Nurserymen and the Society of American Florists, serving as state vice-president of the latter for New Hampshire.

Frederick Jacquemin.

On September 20, Frederick Jacquemin, of the Jacquemin-Lambach Floral Co., 709 Washington avenue, St. Louis, Mo., died after a few months' illness. He was born in St. Louis and had always been connected with the business he was president of. This business was established by his mother 25 years ago. He was 49 years of age and leaves a widow and two sons.

William McLean.

William McLean, of McLean & Charlton, florists, St. John, N. B., died in that city on September 21, aged 65 years. For many years he conducted a vegetable greenhouse at Ashburn, afterwards establishing a florists' business there. He returned to St. John about eight years ago and formed a partnership with his son-in-law, William Charlton. One daughter and one brother survive him.

John Crawford.

An old-time retail florist of Philadelphia died on the 3rd inst. He had been in failing health for a number of years. Mr. Crawford or "Jack" Crawford, as he was universally known, was a familiar figure in local circles for over twenty-five years. He was associated with Pennock Bros., Fred Ehret and other well-known stores; and at one time conducted a retail establishment of his own on 16th street below Chestnut street.

Wm. Baylor Hartland.

The death took place, on September 15th, of William Baylor Hartland, a well-known Irish horticulturist. Mr. Hartland was noted for the attention he had paid to bulb culture. He was the first to issue a purely daffodil catalogue, this being sent out in 1884. It is stated that to Mr. Hartland we are indebted for nearly a quarter of the cottage tulips in commerce. His tulip list—published in 1896—was the first issued exclusively devoted to this particular flower. He was very much respected by all with whom he had commercial dealings. W. H. ADSETT.

READ THIS

You will need to buy something this fall—stock, supplies, equipment, etc., for store or greenhouse. Look through the Buyers' Directory and List of Advertisers in this paper and you'll probably find what you want listed there. We are proud of the fact that HORTICULTURE is recognized as the best paper of its class in this country in quality of reading matter and also of the fact that it is coming to be acknowledged as the best advertising medium. The best friends of HORTICULTURE are those who buy from HORTICULTURE'S advertisers whenever possible and, in corresponding with the dealers always take the trifling trouble to refer to the paper. We have many such friends, otherwise our advertising columns would soon be deserted. Don't forget to do your part.

The SERVICE BUILDING is usually a source of great annoyance to the up-to-date gardener and it requires architectural ability to design appropriate Potting Houses that will add to the attractiveness of the Greenhouses. You will admit that this SERVICE BUILDING is unusually attractive. Its Old English Architecture is along the same lines as other buildings on this large estate; it is equipped with all modern improvements for the comfort of the gardener and his assistants and the connecting house, sixteen feet long (ample for Propagating purposes), prevents the shading of adjoining houses.

Will be glad to talk to you on the SERVICE BUILDING.

Horseshoe Brand Bulbology

The first thing a buyer wants to find out about lily bulbs is whether or not the price asked for them buys more or less value than he can get elsewhere.

Now value in lily bulbs means quality. A lily bulb of poor quality has no real value to a florist.

Horseshoe Brand Giganteum cost more to produce than most brands, and heretofore have always sold for more money than any other brand known. There's only one reason why they sold for more, and that is because they were worth more to those who knew bulb value.

Of course there are many growers who are careless where they buy. Men who don't pay much attention to quality until a heavy loss strikes them. When we recognized this condition arrangements were made to increase the crop of the same high quality to an extent which would enable us to compete even with a lower grade brand in point of price.

So now the volume of the Horseshoe Brand business has increased to such an extent as to enable us to offer the same high quality of Giganteum at greatly reduced prices. At present this pertains only to the small sizes, 6/8, 7/8 and 7/9, of usual trade assortment. As our crop further increases we expect to be able to reduce the large sizes accordingly.

There is no value in lily bulbs offered today that will compare with our Giganteum 7/9 in the usual trade assortment, at $16.00 per case of 300, or $50.00 per 1,000, duty paid, f. o. b. cars New York, Chicago, Cincinnati or Pittsburgh.

You may not like our methods of doing business; you may be a "standpatter" and say "I'll always buy of Mr. So-and-So;" or you may be just common ordinary "bull-headed;" but you cannot avoid the fact that if you want good lily bulbs at the right price and under the right conditions, Horseshoe Brand Giganteum is the kind you ought to buy.

It has taken money, lots of hard work, much patience and skill to bring the business to its present stage of development. There are 45 men growing Horseshoe Brand Giganteum, to say nothing of the labor they employ, and the organization behind them is composed of business-builders with capital sufficient to back up anything undertaken.

Why not let us figure on your entire requirements in Lily Bulbs? You might be surprised. Besides getting the very best of bulbs, you might save something.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Azaleas

These plants should be procured as soon as possible and got into shape. They should be unpacked as soon as received as they may have been boxed up for four or five weeks. Give the ball of roots a good dipping in a tub of water for at least an hour, which will be sufficient to soak them through. They can be potted in 6 to 8 in. azalea pots, using any good grade of potting soil. Pot them firmly so that the soil gets in all around the ball and the pot. Stand in a cool shady place and refresh them with a spraying occasionally. Those that you want for holiday forcing should be gradually inured to the sun and placed in a cool house which will get them into shape for a warmer place in two or three weeks. Those wanted for Easter should be stored in a cool pit where they will get sufficient light and where the frost can be excluded in zero weather.

Callas

To grow good callas the first importance is direct and strong sunlight, so see that they have it. From this time on they will require some fire heat to maintain a temperature of from 58 to 60 degrees at night. Where they have proper drainage, they will require lots of water at the roots to keep them right. Do not neglect to give them a good syringing on all bright days to keep thrips in check; a mere wetting of the plants will not suffice. In a short time the pots will be well filled with roots. Then they can have plenty of liquid feeding which will give them the needed nourishment to keep them in good growth with plenty of flowers. To avoid a dry and arid atmosphere damping down will be necessary at least twice a day and ventilation should be given whenever possible in a judicious manner to avoid also a muggy condition. Fumigation should be practiced persistently from now on.

Ericas

Such ericas as E. melanthera, E. hyemalis and E. gracilis, to have them in flower for Christmas should be placed in a house where they can have a temperature of from 45 to 50 degrees at night, but do not let this temperature be exceeded as they do not like too much forcing. To ensure a free, healthy growth, ventilation is a most valuable agent in growing these plants. Ericas will not stand anything like a stuffy or stagnant atmosphere. Pay attention to watering at the root for they like an even amount of moisture in the soil. If the soil is impoverished give liquid manure twice a week, but only in moderately weak doses, for when given too strong it does more harm than good. Watch out for mildew and where any of them show signs of it remove them to some other place, and blow sulphur over the plants while the sun is shining, which will help to check it.

Lilies for the Holidays

See that lilies intended for the Christmas trade are given faithful attention in every way now. Place them as near the glass as possible and look them over often so none will suffer for want of water at the roots. Keep plenty of moisture in the atmosphere by damping down the walks two or three times a day, as they delight in a superabundance of atmospheric moisture. Ventilation should be done with care so as to avoid cold draughts. Use the syringe freely during all bright days which will help to keep them clean. These plants soon exhaust the soil in the pots, so they should have some nourishing in the way of liquid manure, once or twice a week to avert actual deficiency of plant food in the soil. When the lilies have their pots well filled with roots they will stand a temperature anywhere from 65 to 70 degrees at night with a rise of 10 or 15 with sunshine. Fumigate often now.

Pandanus Veitchii

These plants require careful handling from this out and will need fire heat right along now. Some days quite a brisk fire will be needed to keep the temperature from 65 to 70 degrees at night, whereas other days that are warm will need only a little warmth in the pipes. Ventilation is a matter that will take a fair amount of attention and care to prevent sudden rising or falling of the temperature. Where the plants are pot-bound they would be better for a shift now than later. Give them a compost of three parts turfy loam, to one of well-rotted manure. These plants will not do well unless the water passes off freely so give them plenty of drainage. From this out they will luxuriate in the full blaze of the sun, so see that they have a sunny place. Where you have plants that are showing a lot of suckers put in a batch in small pots with a sandy mixture and plunge in a warm propagating bed to root.

Shamrocks for St. Patrick's Day

Now is the time to get some shamrock seed and sow without delay. They can be sown in pans or flats in a compost of soil and leaf mold in equal parts with a little sand. Place in a close moist house and cover with a pane of glass until the seeds begin to germinate when they should be put in a cool and airy house. When large enough they can be pricked out in flats and grown on. After January they can be potted up into whatever size desired.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Acacias; Begonias; Cannas; Care of Summer Flowering Cattleys; Peonies for Forcing; Wallflowers.

Storing in Fruit House

Under this heading it was hoped to pen a few lines before the articles in these columns ceased for a few weeks. As they were omitted at that time, (perhaps a more appropriate time than the present), we will lead off with it now. It is a question which always presents itself every fall, that of storing tender flowering shrubs which have been growing outside all the summer, away from the early frosts. The dormant fruit houses are sometimes looked upon as the spot and until cleaning time comes along, no objection can be entertained, yet there is a danger often overlooked—that of bringing in live stock—bugs, etc., on to the vines. A vinery with bugs once established is always a source of trouble and no little care should be exercised to keep them clean. No matter how little any plants may have on them, and although it may be a dormant season, there are sure to be a few left behind; settlers, colonials, aliens, or green-horns, call 'em what you like, they are usually there to stay and to make trouble. Now this is a problem to think about; such trees must be stored as soon as there is danger of severe frosts, and just where to store them is the question. No objection may be raised to storing them for a time in the fruit houses, if they are clean, but should any be infected with any kind of aphid it will be well to consider the after effects—labor entailed eradicating possible pests.

Pot Vines

Pot vines intended to produce the first crop of grapes in the coming year should now be ripened up in every possible way. The maximum of weather should be brought to bear on them by placing them in a fully exposed position, where they will get all the sun possible through the day and feel the cold evenings and early frosts at night. In this way the wood will be thoroughly ripened, the buds will be good and solid and the canes will soon be at rest, all of which helps to spell success later. When the canes have cast their foliage, remove the short growths which have been made by stopping the laterals at one eye, using a sharp knife to do so, making a clean cut which should receive a dressing of "styptic" to prevent bleeding at the time of starting. Incline the roots to the dry side but avoid a dust-dry state or some of the valuable fibrous roots will be lost.

Figs

Figs are among our tenderest subjects and should not be subjected to any severe frosts: a few degrees will not hurt them—in fact will be beneficial. Any trees growing in pots or tubs, which are now going through the renovating process, should be placed on one end of the block, so that they can be easily removed to shelter upon the approach of cold weather. Fig trees planted out in the houses should be treated similarly; leave the house open until five or six degrees of frost is registered when precautions should be taken to check a further decrease of temperature; otherwise the first crop for next year and some of the growths may be damaged.

Pot Fruit Trees

Pot fruit trees of all kinds will now be casting their foliage and should be thoroughly overhauled, pruned, repotted and prepared for winter quarters. Where a quantity of trees have to be dealt with it is best to erect a temporary potting bench in some convenient spot outside. The less the trees are shifted around the better at this time of year as the buds are easily rubbed off, especially so with peaches and nectarines. Carrying them to and from the potting shed, through doors, etc., is always to be avoided if possible; then again head room is often limited. All this can be alleviated by the erection of a temporary bench if sufficient trees are on hand to justify this little extra time being spent. The pots having been got in readiness previously must now be properly drained. This is an essential point; later on in the growing season a water-logged pot is deplorable. The soil should consist of half-decayed loam, with plenty of lime rubble or plaster broken up small, mixed into it. Pruning will be light if the trees were properly disbudded, but it will be wise to look them over, removing any dead wood and also that which is too crowded for another season. In handling the trees special care should be taken of base growths, these are so easily broken, and in a few years the trees will look like standards. Trees which have had rims added to the pot to allow of top dressing will need to have these removed and the only disadvantage to them will be discovered, viz., a quantity of surface roots will have found their way up and when it comes to repotting they are found to be too high. After throwing off the pot remove the old crocks and as much of the bottom soil as possible; shake off all the top dressing, carefully preserving all the fibrous roots and remove all the top soil you can. Trees that have made a quantity of roots will have to be given a shift, but do not give it unless absolutely necessary. If a sufficient quantity of the old soil can be removed from the ball to allow of its going back into the same size pot, put it back again. If a shift is necessary make it as small as you can for there is no advantage in rushing the trees on into very large pots or tubs. Proportionately no more fruit is obtained and they are more easily handled in a smaller pot. When potting, the soil must be worked down thoroughly and rammed firm between the ball and pot. This is sometimes a difficult job with only a small space to fill, nevertheless no holes must be left, in anticipation of the best results. A full compliment of rammers will be needed—large and small, thin and thick: some pots will cause you to use four or five, each a different size and shape. These trusted weapons of the potting bench will improve with age, especially to the hand that is using them, as use wears the rough corners off. See that they are stored away

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

The Rose Cellar

This is never missing in a rose growing establishment. Although cellars on some places are very crude the rose or flower cellar should receive a little more attention, keeping it nicely painted and neat at all times. It is surprising what a great difference a little paint and a cleaning up will make. Brooms are not so very high-priced and no one should be afraid to use one often for fear of wearing it out. Brush down every cobweb and do not give Mr. Spider a chance to make more. Get rid of Mr. Spider himself.

On places where considerable of the output is retailed or sold direct to retailers, many sizes of boxes must continually be kept on hand all lined with paper and ready to use. Keep these nicely piled up and free from dust. It is disgusting to see a box leave the place all covered with coal dust. If you use paper boxes have some way to keep them out of water, for although boxes are made more or less waterproof they were never intended to float around in pools of water on the packing bench. A good way is to have a frame made of some material $\frac{1}{2}$ in. in thickness. This can be covered with galvanized wire $\frac{1}{4}$ in. mesh, and by laying this wire covered frame on the packing table under the box, the box will be perfectly dry as all water will go through the screen and the frame will keep the box away from it.

Red Spider

Keep right after Mr. Spider and whenever you get a chance syringe the plants quickly and thoroughly. It does little good to soak the whole house and then only when the job is through. Sufficient room must be left to allow of watering. Immediately after potting they should receive a good soaking and also be syringed over twice daily while good weather lasts. Should it be contemplated to leave them outside for sometime, provision can be made for plunging the pots. Do not allow the trees to become dry at the root or the flower buds are liable to fall.

Care of Cucumbers

To obtain the best results from cucumbers periodical top-dressings should be given to keep the roots active and stimulate the plants. At the time of planting it was recommended only to give the plants sufficient soil to cover the balls after being removed from the pots. Immediately the roots were seen pushing through this, a top dressing should have been given to them, after which a repetition of the same process will be necessary at intervals of about ten days. Until the plants have attained some size and have some fruits to support just a moderately rich soil will suit them. When a crop is swelling use the following mixture: Two parts loam, one part leaf soil and one part horse manure with a have it syringed in places. Make sure you reach every little corner—every leaf in fact—and if you do this every time you syringe you will have but little trouble with spider. Syringing is the best and cheapest remedy we know of so far although there are one or two good insecticides that will rid plants of it. However it is very difficult to reach all the foliage—the bottom side of it at that—and not waste any material. There is always bound to be waste and this is what would make spraying to keep spider out too expensive.

Watering Plants After a Crop

Do not make a mistake so commonly made among Beauty growers and apply water to plants that have been cutting heavily, as you did when the crop was coming on. Plants after a crop should have a little lime and be run on the dry side a little until after they begin to break, when a light dressing of bonemeal and a light mulch of cow manure may be applied, after which the plants can receive as much water as usual. In drying out the plants do not let them get dry enough to damage any leaves, but at the same time if too much water is applied at this period a dose of spot will almost surely follow.

Yellow Leaves

Where at all possible, keep the benches free from yellow leaves. It is none too good for the plants to have a lot of their own leaves around their roots decaying and breeding diseases. Pick them all up as fast as possible, and burn them. Do not leave them decaying on a rubbish pile near the greenhouse. They will only harbor bugs, breed fungus and make the place look bad in the bargain. This is the way to treat spot, too. Pick it off and burn it at once. Clean underneath the bench once in a while too, not sweep the leaves under them.

little sand. Keep the roots moist at all times, as a cucumber resents draught. Syringe the plants each morning in good weather and also at the time of closing down, which should be early enough to allow the house to run up to 90 degrees and have the plants dry by night. Fumigate immediately green fly or any of its associates make their appearance.

Bush Beans

Bush beans are a profitable and welcome vegetable for winter culture, being easily grown and producing a crop in a short space of time. To keep up a succession sow at intervals of a week or ten days, in the benches eighteen inches apart, using the double row system. Use the best soil procurable, which lessens the necessity of feeding later. Keep a night temperature of 55 degrees to 58 degrees, advancing by day, and syringe each morning in good weather to keep down red spider. This and mildew are about the worst impediments to good health a bean has. For general purposes we have discovered nothing amongst the newer varieties to surpass Black Valentine. The crop is larger than the majority and they always "eat" good and crisp.

An unfair and futile proposition

A few weeks ago, under the heading of "Frenzied Quarantine," we took occasion to comment upon the hysterical hue and cry for government inspection and quarantine against material liable to carry plant diseases and insect infestation which has now come to be almost a daily incident from one direction or another. Among the latest are the issuance of a California state edict against all vegetables, nursery stock, etc., from the whole tier of Southern States; a campaign to secure expert examination of all mail matter entering California under the parcels post law; and, now, a hearing before the Horticultural Board at Washington on October 30 to decide whether the nursery stock and other horticultural products of New England shall be shut off from shipment into other states on account of the possibility of carrying the gypsy and browntail moths to new localities. Admitted the necessity of protecting crops from the depredations of insect and fungous pests and agreeing that all practicable means must be taken to prevent the spread of these scourges to other sections, the question arises as to whether a quarantine such as is now proposed would have any effect of sufficient weight to justify the deliberate crippling of a long established, reputable and useful industry such as the nursery trade of the New England States. As to the brown-tail moth, a watch for their web-nests on tree shipments would accomplish all that it is possible to accomplish by inspection. The prohibition of shipments from infested territory would bear hard on the nursery trade but would not exclude the brown-tail, for the method of distribution of this moth is by flight in midsummer and thus a law against wind and water would be just as sensible and just as effectual as a quarantine against the brown-tail, as everyone familiar with the life history and habits of the insect well understands. So far as the gypsy moth is concerned inspection of nursery stock shipments will accomplish practically nothing, but a permit based upon an intelligent summer inspection of the nurseries would mean something and should be insisted upon without qualification. Unlike the brown-tail, the female gypsy moth cannot fly, and consequently is itself incapable of extending its field of depredation except by very slow and very evident stages. The mediums by which the gypsy is carried from one place to another are, in the caterpillar stage, largely carriages, autos and railroad cars; also in the egg period, by railroad ties or other timber, rails, granite or similarly exposed material. A freight car left on a siding in an infested region for a few days in the egg-laying season in July can transport the pest across the continent, with detection practically impossible. Nursery-grown products are, indeed, infinitesimal in their liability to disseminate the pests for, in self-protection, nursery stock is necessarily kept clean, and it is as wasteful and ill-advised as it is fruitless, wrong in principle and ethics as it appears to be in motive, to oppress, as is contemplated, an industry and a section already hard pressed and overburdened with the expenditure of many millions of dollars in the cause, because of ignorance of the situation or to gratify the rapacity of interests that might, through this proposed restriction, reap a selfish commercial advantage.

Laelio-cattleya Bedouin

The beautiful orchid that is the subject of our cover illustration was one of the gems of the collection of Sir George Holford, shown at the Royal Horticultural Exhibition in London. H. G. Alexander, the grower in charge, is known the world over as one of the leading orchid growers of England.

GREGOR JOHANN MENDEL.

Although much has been written these last few years in regard to Mendel's law and by this time nearly everybody has heard about it, there are really few persons who can say that they are acquainted with the life history of the discoverer.

Bateson, who has probably done more than any other searcher to popularize the theory of Mendel's law, has also applied himself with infinite love and sacrifice to the collection of all the available data pertaining to a life history of Gregor Johann Mendel. ("Mendel's Principles of Heredity"), Cambridge, 1909.

Johann Mendel was born July 22, 1822, in Heinzendorf near Odrau in Kuhlant, a province of Austrian Silesia. Heinzendorf, so to speak, represents a small island of German population, surrounded by Slavs.

From his father, a small tenant farmer, Mendel early learned the art of grafting. His uncle on his mother's side, who seems to have been an intelligent man and who did much for the education of children by endowing special classes of instruction at his own expense, helped little Johann along in his earlier years at school. In the village school Mendel showed such intelligence that he was sent to a better school at Leibnitz and later to the high schools at Trollau and Olmuetz. To cover the expenses of this education, Mendel was obliged to accept the help of his sister who sacrificed part of her dowry and for this act of kindness Mendel felt himself indebted to his sister for the rest of his life.

Through the influence of one of his teachers who was an Augustine monk, Mendel, after completing his high school term, became a candidate for admission to the Augustine cloister of St. Thomas (King's cloister), in Bruenn. He was given the name of Gregor and appointed to educational work. In 1847 Mendel was consecrated priest and sent to the University of Vienna from 1851 to 1853 at the expense of the cloister. He applied himself to the study of mathematics, physics and natural history, after which he taught at the polytechnical school of Bruenn until 1868 when he was elected Abbott or Prelate of the King's cloister.

While still a novice at this cloister, Mendel had already begun his experiments in hybridization on the plants in the large garden of the cloister. From these experiments his name was to become famous all over the world. After eight years of painstaking and intelligent research into the field of heredity, conducted through generation after generation of garden peas, Mendel was convinced that he had solved the problem of heredity and submitted the result of his labors to the "Society of Natural History" of Bruenn in 1865. But his efforts found no consideration with this body, nor, after publication, did he meet with any better success in the sessions of similar societies elsewhere. His publications in regard to "Hieracium Bastards" met the same fate. Mendel also experimented with bees, but unfortunately his observations in this line, which were published under "Bee Culture," have been lost.

The appointment to the prelacy put an end to the scientific researches of Mendel. The fifteen years before his death were filled with the work of his position, more so as he applied himself to fighting a state law, exacting, in his estimation, unjust duties of his cloister. These laws were eventually abolished shortly before his death. This struggle at law changed Mendel from a man of a jovial and friendly disposition into a bitter and mistrusting misanthrope. His health began to fail and he died of Bright's Disease January 6, 1884.

Mendel was a man of great energy. He published regular meteorological reports and observations on sun spots. He was presiding officer of the "Mortgage Bank of Maehren" and a celebrated chess player. His home town, Heinzendorf, is indebted to him for the installation of a fire department.

The fact that Mendel's discoveries, which are so plain and which have been so universally verified, could have been so long overlooked and neglected, is almost inexplicable, more so as Mendel corresponded with Naegely, the great naturalist and acquainted him with his investigations. Already in 1861, the French Academy had offered a price for a paper on plant hybridization. Well-known naturalists and scientists of the time busied themselves with the problem and came near solving it, without, however, being able to clearly demonstrate the principle.

Bateson is of the opinion that Darwin's epoch-making theory, which at that time revolutionized all the views of the scientists and which was regarded as solving all questions in regard to heredity, has been responsible for the distracting of attention from researches in this particular line. Darwin's theory really stopped all efforts for a long time. We can hardly realize to what extent Darwin might have been effected and how his theory might have been shaped entirely different if Darwin himself had been aware of Mendel's discovery. As it is, it was only a short notice in Focke's work on "Plant Mongrels" (1881), which in 1900 led to the discovery and verification of Mendel's work and papers by De Vries, Correns and Tschermak.

From this dates a new era and when Mendel said, as he did, "My time is sure to come," he built his hopes upon a sure foundation. Sure, it was fifteen years after his death, but his time has come. Mendel was very much ahead of his time, but he has proven that diligent application to one's ideals will in time be fully appreciated.

THE EFFECTS OF SOIL LIMING.

At the meeting of the Lenox (Mass.) Horticultural Society on October 5, Professor Haskins of Amherst College gave a splendid lecture on the use of lime for horticultural and agricultural purposes. He said that the secondary and indirect results which will follow an application of lime must vary with soil conditions, but the possible effects which are of importance are that free acid if present is neutralized and a sour soil is sweetened, also that the less soluble potash compounds of the soil are rendered available and the need of potash manure will be lessened at least for a time; but it must be understood that liming will not permanently take the place of potash manuring and if persisted in without application of potash will ultimately result in the exhaustion of the soil. Various fertilizers such as sulphate of ammonia will give poor results if the soil has not first been heavily limed. Lime is especially favorable to heavy and clayey soils, it disintegrates the clay particles and makes it more friable and permeable. It has also been tested that the soil must have a heavy coat of lime if one hopes to be successful in growing a good crop of alfalfa. The same also applies to all kinds of fruit except the blackberry or strawberry. Experiments have proved that those do not particularly require lime. The patch of land intended for potatoes should not be limed the same season the potatoes are planted, but two or three seasons previous and then the tubers are less likely to become affected with scab. Mr. Haskins made tests with various soils brought from the Westinghouse estate which proved very instructive and bore out his conclusions.

Preparations for the exhibition on October 24 and 25 are well completed. Competition will again be very keen and a great success is anticipated.

ROSE HOUSES OF MILLER FLORAL COMPANY, FARMINGTON, UTAH.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The regular meeting of this Club on Tuesday evening was a specially interesting occasion. There were some good exhibits, an excellent paper by George Stewart, an interesting talk by W. E. Tricker, all on chrysanthemum topics and some lively discussions that kept the members in session until a late hour.

Resolutions on the death of J. A. Pettigrew were read by J. K. M. L. Farquhar. The report of progress by W. Downs for the landscape gardening-class was the occasion for much debate and some moderate criticism. The committee will still wrestle with the problem and will discuss with the officers of the Mass. Horticultural plans for a possible co-operation in some comprehensive scheme for horticultural education. It was announced by Chairman Bartsch of the 25th Anniversary Dinner Committee that this event would come off on November 11 and that Messrs. Phil. Breitmeyer of Detroit, J. Otto Thilow of Philadelphia and A. Farenwald would be among the prominent guests present on that occasion. The resignation of President Pegler on account of ill health was accepted with regrets.

C. H. Totty's exhibit of chrysanthemums was quite extensive, comprising 27 large vases of singles and doubles of the various classes. Among his new ones were Ramapo, a big Jap. incurved yellow, D. B. Crane yellow Jap., seedling No. 1, a large Jap. reflexed, Enchantress pink color, and some of Wells' and Nonins early flowering novelties. The pink seedling received a report of merit. Mr. Totty also showed his new pink forcing rose Mrs. George Shawyer in fine form. It certainly looks like a winner. W. N. Craig exhibited four seedling cattleyas, one of which—a lovely intermediate sized, fragrant flower with broad brilliant dark lip—C. Hardyana × C. Bowringiana—received a report of merit. Mr. Craig said the seed was sown June 20, 1906. Prof. E. A. White of the Mass. Agricultural College, staged fifteen named varieties of large Jap. chrysanthemums and W. W. Edgar Co. a fine vase of Yellow Touset.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

The New York Florists' Club enjoyed an exceptionally interesting and instructive lecture on Monday evening, October 14, by H. A. Bunyard, on the International Horticultural Exhibition at London. He showed a large number of beautiful slides, which he described in entertaining fashion and everybody was greatly pleased with it all. W. A. Manda also spoke briefly on the same subject.

Quite a number of committee reports were presented and accepted. These included resolutions on the death of Wm. R. Smith, read by Patrick O'Mara, on the death of Mrs. A. S. Burns, by P. J. Smith, progressive report of the entertainment committee by C. B. Weathered, and of the Smith Memorial Committee by John Donaldson, for the transportation committee by F. H. Traendly, for the committee on steamship flower rules by J. B. Nugent, and for the publicity committee by I. S. Hendrickson. Mr. Hendrickson said that the committee had prepared a poster for Halloween flowers, to be distributed to 2,000 flower stores within a 50 mile radius of New York, which they confidently expected would increase the flower sales for that occasion many fold. Six new members were elected and five more names were proposed.

The exhibition was a very creditable one. Bergenfield Nurseries showed a lot of splendid new peony-flowered dahlias, also some of the Stredwick novelties. W. A. Manda staged twelve seedling dahlias that were grand and a wonderful sky-blue ipomea, flower very large and showy. Scott Bros. showed their scarlet carnation Wm. Eccles and Traendly & Schenck their Salmon Beauty. C. H. Totty was represented by his new rose Mrs. George Shawyer and a splendid collection of chrysanthemums cut and in pots. John Lewis Childs showed a large collection of fine dahlias, named, and R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons' Co. sent thirty varieties of dahlias, all good ones. Mr. Totty got 89 points for his rose and honorable mention and highly commended on his chrysanthemums. W. A. Manda got honorable mention and highly commended, J. Lewis Childs honorable mention, Traendly & Schenck highly commended, R. Vincent & Sons Co., honorable mention, and Bergenfield Nurseries honorable mention. A. T. Boddington showed an attractive vase of white cosmos.

The next meeting will be Chrysanthemum Night.

ST. LOUIS FLORIST CLUB.

A very pleasant gathering took place on last week, Thursday afternoon, at Odd Fellows Hall. President Fred H. Weber not being present Vice-President Chas. C. Young was the presiding officer. Several committees reported and were continued. The committee on "Florists' Bulletin," which has been discontinued since the first of August stated that their final report would be made at the November meeting. A communication from the New Florists' Club Publicity Committee was read, and after a long discussion it was decided that the President should appoint a local publicity committee, they to elect one of their number as a delegate to attend the meeting of the National body. J. F. Ammann of Edwardsville, who was called upon for remarks, highly commended the movement.

Names of four members were recommended for state vice-president of eastern Missouri for the S. A. F. These will be voted upon at the next meeting and the name selected sent to President-elect J. K. M. L. Farquhar for appointment. The treasurer's report showed a fine balance in the Club Exchequer.

AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

On a call from President Sim, an executive meeting of our society was held in Horticultural Hall, Boston, Friday, October 11th. The following members were present: William Sim, W. Atlee Burpee, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Wm. Currie, Thos. Roland, Wm. J. Stewart, Peter M. Miller, W. T. Hutchins, Robert Cameron, Jas. Wheeler, Harry A. Bunyard.

Mr. Farquhar formally extended the invitation to the society to hold its annual exhibition in 1913 under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. Same was received with a hearty vote of thanks.

The express idea of calling a meeting was for the purpose of completing matters relative to the summer flower show at Boston, 1912. The schedule of this society for the International Flower Show to be held in New York in April was submitted and accepted. Same will be published in about ten days.

The matter of the society's medals was also gone into and Thomas Roland, chairman of the medal committee was instructed to proceed to have the die made and such medals struck off as were won at the last exhibition in Boston.

President Sim served luncheon to the visiting members at the Copley Square Hotel for which he received an appreciative vote of thanks.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The St. Louis Retail Florists' Association will meet on Monday night Oct. 21, at the Washington Hotel.

Engelmann Botanical Club held a very interesting meeting on Oct. 14th, at the Missouri Botanical Garden, St. Louis. Mr. C. H. Thompson of the Garden presented an illustrated talk on "Botanizing in the semi-arid Regions of Southwest United States and Mexico." Dr. G. T. Moore, director of the Garden presided over the meeting.

At a meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, Oct. 8, sergeant-at-arms William F. Smith was presented with a handsome gold watch from the members in recognition of his valuable services to the society. Mr. Smith has been sergeant-at-arms for the society nearly every year since it was organized, twenty-two years ago, and has long been admitted to be the best worker in the society for its interests.

ciety was held in Greenwich, Conn., with a large attendance. Two applications for membership were received and four new members elected. There was a splendid display of flowers on exhibition. P. W. Popp won the first prize for collection of dahlias, Harry Wilde winning second. James Stuart was awarded a certificate of culture for Hybrid Neriums. A vote of thanks was given to H. Wilde for apples, A. Peterson for grapes, R. Barton for dahlias. Hybrid Cattleya, exhibited by the Geo. E. Baldwin Co. was highly commended. Tickets for our fall show can be secured from W. J. Sealey, Port Chester, N. Y.; schedule and entry blanks from Oscar E. Addor, Larchmont, N. Y. The next meeting of the Society will be held on November 15th, the week following the fall show.

At the meeting of the Connecticut Horticultural Society on the 11th inst. President Huss showed the Harbinger dahlia, Clerodendron fallax, and a seedling dahlia, small flowering, of dwarf habit, the quilled centre florets clear yellow and the petals blush pink, shaded white toward the tips. At the instance of John Gerard the society voted that the new variety shall be known as the John F. Huss dahlia. The judges awarded a first-class certificate. The secretary read, by request, a newspaper account of a recent visit by S. B. Hendee, Milwaukee, Oregon, to the establishment of the noted Oregon aster grower, Harvey T. Fleischauer, at McMinnville, in that state. His unsurpassed asters are thought to be due much to the favorable climate, as well as the very productive clay soil, both of which are also highly conducive to the production of fine roses. The Connecticut society now numbers 206 members, the largest number in its history.

GEORGE W. SMITH,
Secretary.

SOME VALUABLE GRASSES.

For the above picture, and the one which appeared in our issue of the 12th inst., we are indebted to George C. Watson of Philadelphia, who has been through all departments of the seed trade and, after an experience of some thirty-seven years in Europe and America, is now devoting himself especially to the natural grasses as general agent for the United States and Canada for Messrs. Barenbrug, Burgers & Co., of Arnhem. The value of the pictures to our readers lies in the clear view they give, in compact space, of the great difference in the various species and varieties of the grasses used in the seedsmen's formulas for lawns and permanent pastures. They also emphasize the point not often recognized by the laymen, that the real seedsman—the trained scientific seedsman, we mean, not the mere dealer in seeds, such as an implement dealer, an ironmonger, a druggist or a country merchant—does a vast amount of work sifting and searching for the good, all his life; and that the nations of the earth owe far more to the seedsman than to national or state agencies, for the advancement of agriculture and horticulture, during the past four hundred years. Most of the grasses illustrated are not grown in America but are imported from abroad.

The Exhibitions

NASSAU COUNTY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Annual Dahlia Exhibition of this society was held Oct. 9th at Glen Cove and was a great success every way. Not only were dahlias shown but many other seasonable flowers and vegetables. A large table was taken up with school children's exhibits, in which visitors took a great interest.

In the class for the Droer cup, best 50 var. dahlias, Mrs. E. M. Townsend, gard. James Duthie, was 1st; H. W. Bucknell, gard. G. Barton, 2nd. Other successful exhibitors in the dahlia classes were J. Kirby, H. Boettcher and J. O'Brien. The Townsend cup for roses was won by Miss E. Ladew, gard. J. Adler, J. S. Pratt, and J. W. Everett, 2nd. The Burn's cup for vegetables was keenly contested, there being eight entries. Mrs. H. L. Pratt, gard. H. Gaut, 1st; A. G. Hedenpyle, gard. E. Patrocia, 2nd. Hedenpyle's prize for vegetables: Mrs. H. L. Pratt, 1st; J. H. Attley, 2nd. In the fruit classes the winners were J. T. Pratt, W. V. Hester, James Holloway and Mrs. H. L. Pratt. The special awards were J. Kirby, for seedling dahlia, cert. of merit; J. Holloway, dahlias, hon. mention; Mrs. C. D. Smithers, dahlias, cult. cert.; A. G. Hedenpyle, single dahlias, cult. cert.

In the evening the regular monthly meeting was held. The programme for the chrysanthemum show was gone over and every one looks for the most successful exhibition this society ever held.

The Chrysanthemum Show of the Elberon Horticultural Society which was to have been held in Asbury Park on October 29, 30 and 31, has been cancelled for this year.

At the Autumn Show in London on September 24th, the highest award was given to Alex. Dickson & Sons, Ltd., for a display which contained superb examples of their own introductions—Mabel Drew, Duchess of Westminster, Lady Grenall, George Dickson, Berna Mackay, Rayon D'Or, Betty, Harry Kirk, etc. The council also voted awards of merit for their new roses, George Dickson, Mrs. MacKellar, and Edward Bohane.

The monthly exhibition of the New Jersey Floricultural Society brought out a fine exhibit of seasonable flowers. Especially fine were roses shown by John Dervan for which he received certificate of merit and cultural certificate. Lager & Hurrell exhibited the rare Cattleya Octavia. The exhibit of dahlias was especially fine, too.

The society voted to give a silver cup to the National Flower Show committee to be used for any class they see fit. Discussions were brought up in regard to having the dahlia show next year on a larger scale than heretofore and having vegetable and fruit exhibits, also other seasonable flowers. It was decided to have a chrysanthemum show Nov. 8th, afternoon and evening. Joseph Manda, Mrs. A. Neil and Frank Drews have donated prizes for some of the classes. In the monthly competition for points the following awards were made:

Emil Panuska: Cattleya labiata, 75 points; Clorodendron fallax, 65. Fritz Berglund: roses, 72; carnations, 65. William Reid: roses, 75; carnations, 68. Max Schneider: dahlias, 80. Frank Drews: dahlias, 75. Max Schneider: violets, 65; carnations, 60. William Tricker: chrysanthemums, cert. of merit.

Seed Trade

Later Pea Crop Reports.

Since our last issue some very unfavorable news affecting the pea crop has reached us indicating that the preliminary estimates submitted by the growers are likely to be materially reduced when actual deliveries are made. We learn that in Montana where a considerable acreage of peas was grown this year, they are experiencing most unfavorable weather during threshing operations. It is reported that both rain and snow are of daily occurrence and large quantities of peas are already ruined, and that the end is not yet. Should this information prove to be correct—and the source from whence it comes compels us to accept it as essentially true—there will probably be no surplus of any of the important varieties of peas this year. In this connection it may be well to say that we learn that Canada field peas are so nearly a failure that it is next to impossible to buy them in quantity. Owing to excessive moisture the vines remained green until so late that a large percentage of them have been killed by frost while the peas are still immature. It will doubtless appear rather strange to the trade that common field peas should be so very scarce whereas the fancy large-podded varieties promise—or we might better say, promised to be in very fair supply. Such seems to be the case, however, and is one of the results of the freakish weather we have been having the past season.

We do not get any particular news about beans, at least nothing of an encouraging character and assume that conditions are about the same as last reported, and the same may be said of most other families of seeds.

The Cumbersome Bourne Bill.

Much adverse criticism of the Bourne Bill continues to come, not only from seedsmen and merchants whose interests are affected, but even from postmasters, many of whom declare that the bill is so complex that it is impossible of enforcement or at least that it cannot be carried out on its present lines, excepting by a large increase of the clerical force at all important centers, as each and every piece of fourth-class matter would have to be handled and weighed to determine if it carried the proper postage. The main objection seems to be against the ridiculous zone or zones provision. The postmaster in one of the eastern cities pointing out the absurdities of this feature mentioned the fact that one zone terminated in the center of a street in a nearby city, thus making two rates of postage necessary not only for the city but for this particular street. While we perhaps are not authority in such matters this zone matter certainly looks and always d'd look to us like a cumbersome and ill-considered piece of legislation. It may possibly work out more smoothly than now seems probable, but we doubt it. It is unfortunate that important businesses are so often adversely affected by legislation drafted and carried through by men entirely ignorant of the matters about which they are legislating, but until the average business man and citizen considers it his personal duty to see that the men elected to make our laws are of a higher order than many we now have, and feel that they are largely responsible for them, we shall find no deliverance from the present evils.

The Government Seed Distribution.

(From U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Plant Industry—Circular M. 100.)

The number of packets provided in the last distribution, which began December 2, 1911, and ended April 19, 1912, was 51,138,240 packets of vegetable seed and 12,226,315 packets of flower seed, or a total of 63,364,555 packets. The kinds and quantities of seed included in this distribution are shown in the following table:

The total weight of the vegetable and flower seeds alone was 994,116 pounds, or over 497 tons, enough to fill twenty freight cars.

Notes.

Evansville, Ind.—A warehouse building, 48 x 125, is being constructed by the Ohio Valley Seed Co.

Petersburg, Va.—The Covington-Harrison Seed Co. has been incorporated here with a capital stock of $1500 to $5000. President, Peter W. Covington; vice-president, George W. Harrison; secretary and treasurer, Thomas Covington, Jr.

Boston, Mass.—As Thomas J. Grey, formerly of T. J. Grey Co., was cutting his lawn some weeks ago a blister on his hand broke and in some way became infected. The hand and arm began to swell, finally necessitating two operations. He is well on the road to recovery now and will not lose the use of his hand.

NEWS NOTES.

Plaistow, N. H.—Carl Lloyd will grow vegetables in his greenhouses this winter instead of flowers.

Madison, Wis.—The new horticulture building of the university has just been completed at a cost of over $60,000. The structure is a large three-story building of paving brick and stone trimmings, is 50 feet wide and 125 feet long. The building includes a lecture room with capacity for 250 persons and a smaller lecture room with seats for 100 people; and about fifteen classrooms.

CHICAGO NOTES.

Trade Notes.

C. F. McCormick is the latest addition to the staff at A. L. Randall's.

A report that August Jurgens has sold his greenhouses is not confirmed as yet and Mr. Jurgens is still in Michigan planting peonies.

A. Henderson Co. is receiving a carload of Lilium giganteum this week. Mr. Henderson finds the fall business very good but it is hard to get enough stock.

Clifford Pruner has severed his connection with the E. H. Hunt Co. The cut flower department will hereafter be discontinued and orders filled by Ernie & Klinge.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. have just received a carload of palms and another of azaleas from Belgium. A new packing shed is now being constructed for the plant section.

The trustees of the Cook County Florists' Association have found several places more or less suitable for permanent clubrooms and action will be taken at the next meeting.

There has not been a killing frost in this vicinity. Many plants and flowers are apparently dying of old age but canna beds and salvia are as bright at present writing as at any time this summer.

Miss Virginia Benson, formerly of Duluth, Minn., has taken an interest in Young Flower Shop, 10 N. Western Ave., and is in charge of the store. An auto delivery car will soon be a part of their equipment.

I. Cassidy and P. M. Bryant are out on trips for The Foley Manufacturing Co. Mr. Foley has just returned from a personal tour of inspection of the new plants they have recently erected. Among them are a couple of iron-frame show houses for the Idlewild Greenhouses, Memphis, Tenn.; a show house for Bertermann Bros., Indianapolis, Ind.; two iron-frame houses for Mount Mora Cemetery Co., St. Joseph, Mo. Private places for N. G. Moore, Oak Park, and J. Simpson, Glencoe, Ill., have just been completed.

Samuel J. Pearse, Clybourne Ave., has sold his greenhouse plant, including residence and store, to a company which will use the land for shops for manufacturing machinery. August Dussel, whose death occurred recently at Crown Point, Ind., bought the place when it was considered quite far out but the growth of the city has made it too far down town for greenhouse purposes and Mr. Pearse sold out at a price highly satisfactory. No definite plans for the future are made yet and Mr. Pearse retains possession till October 1st, 1913, unless he chooses to give it up earlier.

Personal.

Ernest Farley and Wm. Wolf are both back at their respective places after an absence caused by illness.

John Sinner comes into the store occasionally but spends most of his time at the greenhouses. His brother, Peter Sinner, is still at the hospital where he was taken July 4th suffering from blood poison, the result of a cut from glass.

Announcement was made Sept. 26 at the home, 3628 Maple Square Ave., of the engagement of Minnie Wattman, for nine years bookkeeper for the Am-ling Co., and Gustave B. Hammer, superintendent architect for Marshall & Fox.

George Mount and his son of Canterbury, England, were in Chicago spending two days with C. L. Washburn. They were later the guests of the Poehlmann Bros. The Messrs. Mount left here for a visit to E. G. Hill at Richmond, Ind.

Visitors: J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, O.; J. N. Mann, Richmond, Ind.; H. E. Philpott, Winnipeg, Man.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Ye olden-time bouquet holders of silk, lace and paper seem to be in vogue now. The House of Rice reports large orders for these antique holders; their use is general all over the country.

An interesting display of the new rose Mme. Chas. Russell was seen at the Pennock-Meehan Co.'s this week. These came from Boston and were greatly admired by the connoisseurs. It looks like a "comer." We understand it is to be put on the market next spring. Our California friend Mark Ebel of Sacramento, on being asked a couple of weeks ago what was the most interesting thing he had seen on his visit to Boston replied promptly "the Mme. Charles Russell Rose." A straw—but it shows how the wind blows.

Visitors: J. B. Hobbs, rep. Mann & Brown, Richmond, Va.; E. P. Hostetter, Lancaster, Pa.; W. F. Fancourt, Farm School, Pa.; Henry Penn, Boston, Mass.; Stephen Mortensen, Southampton, Pa.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

John Watson, who has been in the employ of F. H. Kramer for the past nine years, has been made foreman of the latter's houses in Anacostia, D. C.

A very pleasing and artistic decoration by Mayberry & Hoover, of the Woodward & Lothrop department store, called for large quantities of chrysanthemums, palms, ferns and fall leaves.

Florists played a prominent part in the reception to the delegates from the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce held in the building of the Pan-American Union. This also marked the opening of the magnificent terrace gardens recently constructed in the rear of the building at a cost of more than $100,000.

J. L. Loose, of the Washington Florists' Company and D. J. Grillbortzer were among the many witnesses in the Alexandria (Va.) annexation proceedings by which that city is trying to gain additional territory. The properties of both of these gentlemen are within the limits of the disputed ground and both are strongly opposed to the annexation as it would do them no good and would result in an increased taxation.

Robert Pyle delivered a very interesting lecture before the Florists' Club of Washington and invited guests in the Business High School hall on "Rose Growing in Europe." Numerous lantern slides illustrated his remarks and included a fine picture of the late William R. Smith, at which time Mr. Pyle paid a glowing tribute to his memory. He also recommended that efforts be made to have in this city, stretching from the Capitol to the White House, through the Mall, a rose garden fashioned along the lines of similar gardens existing abroad which, in itself, would be a most beautiful memorial to Mr. Smith. Over 500 persons attended.

Greenville, Ohio—One section of the greenhouses of James Frost, 748 Sweitzer street, together with a barn, shed, stock and tools was destroyed by fire recently. Loss partly covered by insurance.

HALLOWE'EN

The festival of Hallowmass (or Hallowe'en as the Scots call it) is peculiarly adapted at the present day for the florist—not only for its ancient religious rites but for the innocent fun, frolic and sentiment of youth, which is bound to find a way for letting off its superabundant life and energy—it is peculiarly adapted to the art of the florist and is the florists' opportunity. Why not take advantage of this?

Why not have a good display in your window of

Our Parisian Colored Baskets

These blend splendidly with the red and gold of the autumn flowers and with the varicolored ribbons in all the shades of chrome and yellow and crimson.

Oak Foliage is another thing—especially when you can get our prepared sprays at reasonable price and every branch perfect in coloring and texture.

Then there are our

in red, gold and grey, just the thing to add the finishing touch to a display!

Send us an idea of your wants and let us select for you from our enormous stocks of everything in the line and get the benefit of our judgment of what will be the best for your trade.

PRACTICAL POINTERS FROM POEHLMANN'S.

There are plenty of interesting things at Poehlmann Bros.' big plant now, at the opening of the season. Record books are being brought out and the beginning of things carefully noted, for here every bench and every plant on every bench has to prove its right to be there by a balance on the profit side at the close of the season.

Foreman Guy French knows just when every one of the 300,000 carnation plants went into the houses and how many blooms each house produces each month. All of their carnation plants were placed in the field as this method, they say, gives a greater total of cut blooms than is produced by plants that are summered in the houses. They are housed early in August or late July. These same records show the number of first and of second-grade carnation blooms and a recent cutting of 20,000 carnations showed but 100 splits. One of the recent English visitors sent rooted cuttings last spring. They were three weeks on the way and the wood was badly shriveled, but they are now thrifty little carnation plants and give promise of doing well.

Chrysanthemum season began here in August and one-half mile will be traversed to take a look at these houses. Two houses of October Frost and Golden Glow are all cut and so good is the demand that blooms are not opening fast enough. The first regular cutting began August 28th and the last will be about December 1st. Among other varieties they grow Comolita, and Chrysolora, both yellow and both Smith introductions. These two yellows follow Golden Glow in the order named, the latter being more double and of the style of Appleton, and at Springfield it was taken for that variety. The new yellow Crocus is now opening its first buds. Mr. French says the greatest demand is for yellow and white varieties in about equal proportion, and the least demand is for the bronze. Poehlmann Bros. are testing a large number of new varieties this year in order to select best commercial sorts. Chadwick is still a favorite and a fine white sport of Chadwick is being grown here quite extensively. Virginia Poehlmann, the big white variety that originated here is just coming into bloom. Bonaffon is still popular. The demand for pompon varieties has increased so fast that it is predicted here that in a few years they will outsell the large flowering sorts.

The orchid houses are making a very good fall record. Among the cut this week were several spikes of Cattleya labiata, which had six flowers. Dendrobium formosum giganteum comes into bloom next and from the small 25 x 50 foot section they expect to cut 8,000 blooms. Poehlmann Bros. have the largest collection of white orchids in this section of the country.

Cleveland, Ohio—Following the donation to the city of a collection of plants, trees, etc., by W. E. Telling, it is announced that the gift includes the Telling Greenhouses. These will be removed to Gordon Park. These houses with another building at the park and one to be erected will enable the city to produce its own bedding plants, etc.

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

The F. A. Ryan Floral Co., at 14 East St. Louis avenue, closed its doors last week and the creditors sold the place to John Bernard who has opened it up and will run it under his own name.

Ashleigh P. Boles has been elected secretary of the Missouri State Horticultural Board. Mr. Boles was a former student of the University of Missouri and is well up in anything pertaining to horticulture and the selection is a splendid one.

Sympathy was extended to Geo. S. Walters the Wire Worker in the loss of his 16-year-old son, who died on Friday, Oct. 11th. The young man was well known among the trade, being employed in his father's wire shop. The funeral took place Monday, Oct. 14.

CINCINNATI NOTES.

Jos. Sonnenberg has opened a retail flower store in Hyde Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius are back home after a two weeks' stay at Martinsville, Ind.

C. E. Critchell is in receipt of a postal from D. Rusconi who, with his family, is in Italy.

E. G. Gillett departed for Cleveland Tuesday to attend the State Conclave of Masons at that place.

Visitors: N. J. Rupp, of John C. Moninger Co., Chicago; Jos. Marks, of A. A. Arnold, Chicago; Mr. Geller, of the Geller Florist Supply Co., New York; Julius Dillhoff, of Schloss Bros., New York, and J. Neidinger, of Philadelphia.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON This market is pretty well loaded down with surplus flowers, despite the fact that there is a good shipping output daily. Chrysanthemums, although far below standard quality, are exercising a depressing influence on the market which, otherwise, was disposed to hold firm on most of the standard flowers. Roses are decidedly in the discard and are accumulating in wholesalers' hands, the yellow selling particularly slow and the white faring best. American Beauty moves fairly well and such fancy goods as lily of the valley, gardenias and cattleyas have a normal sale. Lilies are fairly abundant and carnations are in rather oversupply on account of the abundance of carnations, with a tendency to lower prices. In chrysanthemums, Touset, Glory of Pacific and Golden Glow are the most plentiful this week.

BUFFALO The fall trade seems to be quite satisfactory all around. Everybody appears to be busy and every hope is had that this will be the best fall trade in years, as every indication shows to that effect. Weather conditions have been good and stock of all kinds is plentiful enough that no order goes out partly filled. There has been a good selection of everything in season. Carnations were on the short supply a few days ago, but are now coming in better quantity and quality. Chrysanthemums have so far moved fairly well and now some good Hallidays are had and which have sold well. Lilies have shortened in supply, also Beauties, though there are enough to fill all orders. Asters and gladioli have been good for so late in season.

CHICAGO The flower market is seriously crippled from lack of stock, which condition seems to be getting worse rather than better. Quite possibly the cut of the past week was no smaller than on the previous one, but the demand naturally increases as the season advances and there is not enough stock to meet it. The only flowers reported as sufficient for the demand are orchids, violets and lily of the valley, and the sales on these have been slow. Eastern violets have not arrived in very good condition which has not increased their popularity and the same was reported of some of the home-grown singles. Some of the counters are covered with light gladioli but sales are slow and stock not attractive. American Beauties are meeting a good demand and price has advanced for all grades. Chrysanthemums are being cut faster than is for the good of that flower but the demand is decidedly greater than the supply at this writing. Carnations are still short in stem but they, too, are not sufficient for the demand. All kinds of roses share the general shortage but a few bright days will help out the supply. There is sufficient green but no surplus. A beautiful gladiolus is coming from Michigan, apparently a very late variety, just in its prime. It is red with dark edge and markings a little too suggestive of a frost, perhaps, for a late flower. John Kidwell, president of the Flower Growers' Association, remarks that one year ago this week the market conditions were just opposite to those prevailing now. Stock was so plentiful that ice boxes and counters were filled to overflowing.

The local market took a very unexpected turn for the worse last week. The opening days as reported in the last issue of this paper were bad enough. The succeeding days were worse. Saturday conditions were greatly improved. It proved, however, to be only for the day for the opening days of this week followed the example of those of last week. Shipping business was very good. Roses are in a very strong supply in every variety in the market. The pink, taking into

Obituary.

Charles Meckelburg.

On October 4, Charles Meckelburg, florist, Fifty-third street and North avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., died of dropsy, aged 70 years.

James Caldwell.

In an automobile accident on September 29, near Venice, O., James Caldwell, florist, of Cincinnati, was killed and the chauffeur received injuries from which he may die. Two others were seriously hurt.

C. C. Arnold.

C. C. Arnold, florist, of North Judson, Ind., died of heart trouble recently, in his 62nd year. He had been in the florist business in North Judson for many years, giving considerable attention to gladioli. His wife, one son and a daughter survive him.

Henry J. Horne.

Henry J. Horne, of the firm of H. J. Horne & Co., nurserymen, Haverhill, Mass., died at his home on Columbia park, that city, on October 10. He suffered a shock last June from which he never fully recovered. He was born in Smithfield, Me., and for 18 years had lived in Haverhill. A son, two brothers and two sisters survive him.

Gus Schoenfield.

It is with profound sorrow that we learn of the death of Gus Schoenfield, for a number of years a large grower of cut flowers and plants for the Buffalo market. The country has lost a sincere lover of our profession and an enthusiast in his chosen field. He was also engaged in grape growing and became one of the leading authorities on grape culture in the vicinity of Westfield, N. Y. Mr. Schoenfield was a member of the board of education at the time of his death, having served several years. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to his bereaved widow and children in this hour of their sorrow.

E. C. BRUCKER.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED

Canadian Seed Growers' Association, Eighth Annual Report—This volume contains the minutes of the Annual Meeting held at Ottawa, Feb. 8, and 9, 1912. The reports of officers and addresses and contributions in full. It comprises 142 pages and a number of illustrations.

The Tennessee State Board of Entomology has issued a Bulletin on the Inspection and Transportation of Nursery Stock in Tennessee, other states and Canada, which will be found very serviceable by anyone engaged in the shipment of nursery stock between states. It is designated Bulletin No. 7, Vol. 1, No. 3, and may be had on application to the State Entomologist and Plant Pathologist, Knoxville, Tenn.

Plant Breeding in Scandinavia, L. H. Newman, Ottawa, Canada, 1912.—In this work the writer aims to set forth the present status of plant breeding in Sweden, Norway and Denmark. The bulk of the book is taken up with the work of the Swedish Seed Association as carried on at its institute at Svalof in Southern Sweden, at which the author spent nine months in study. The aim of this association, which is composed of influential farmers and others interested in agriculture, is "to work for the cultivation and development of improved sorts of cereals and other crops and for the utilization of these sorts in Sweden and in other countries." While the agriculture of Sweden is said to date back to the Stone Age, modern agriculture in that country may be said to have had its birth about the year 1840. From 1840 until about 1870 the growing and selling of cereal grains was the principal industry. Following 1870, the long period of continuous grain raising began to show its effects in decreased fertility of the soil. This coupled with the extensive importations of grain into Europe from America forced upon the Swedish farmers the necessity of changing their system and also to seek varieties better suited to their northern climate, and which would be more productive than those they had been cultivating.

turn and spring wheats, oats, barley, peas, grasses, clovers and potatoes and the experimental work with these subjects covers line-breeding, mass-selection and cross-fertilization. A vast amount of interesting and valuable information is given in this publication and its perusal and study cannot be other than profitable.

We think Mr. Newman might well have added some account of the very valuable work now being carried on in Denmark on root-crops (mangel, sugar beet, garden beet, carrot, rutabaga and turnip), cauliflower, cabbage and forage grasses. Perhaps he will make this Danish work the subject of another volume.

READ THIS

You will need to buy something this fall—stock, supplies, equipment, etc., for store or greenhouse. Look through the Buyers' Directory and List of Advertisers in this paper and you'll probably find what you want listed there. We are proud of the fact that HORTICULTURE is recognized as the best paper of its class in this country in quality of reading matter and also of the fact that it is coming to be acknowledged as the best advertising medium. The best friends of HORTICULTURE are those who buy from HORTICULTURE'S advertisers whenever possible and, in corresponding with the dealers always take the trifling trouble to refer to the paper. We have many such friends, otherwise our advertising columns would soon be deserted. Don't forget to do your part.

FOREIGN NOTES.Monument to Calvet.

The inauguration of the monument to the eminent French chrysanthemum raiser, the late Ernest Calvet, took place recently in the cemetery at Grenoble.

The memorial is in the form of a large bronze medallion. It represents a bust of the deceased with chrysanthemum blooms on one side. Around the bust is a band bearing the inscription "1852 Ernest Calvet 1910." At the bottom are the words "A Calvet les Chrysanthemistes."

The inauguration ceremony was a semi-private one by request of the family. On behalf of the French Chrysanthemum Society M. Philippe Rivoire formally made the presentation to the family, pointing out the great services deceased had rendered to the world's horticulture. A few words of thanks in reply came from Capt. Donillet, the son-in-law of Calvet.

Munchausen and the Cherry Stones.

We all remember reading in our young days the Cherry Stone story of Baron Munchausen. Something akin to that is just now reported in the English papers. It appears that a remarkable surgical case is reported from Haverford (West). Whilst a young man was being operated upon for appendicitis the presence of an apple pip was revealed which had not only set up inflammation, but had actually begun to germinate. Next one, please!

C. HARMAN PAYNE.

Yes; here it is, and from no less an authority than the Providence Journal. It devotes a half column to a story of the wonderful entomological discovery of a "leading apiarist" of Rhode Island, whereby he has succeeded in crossing the bee with the lightning bug and producing a honey-gatherer that will work all night by aid of the bright illumination from their own bodies. The only drawback he can see is that the brilliantly lighted hives will attract mosquitoes! Next?—Ed.

Handy By
Here Is One Way To Do It

A roofed over walk about four feet long connects the work room and the residence. It is really entirely separate, yet when so connected, is reachable in practically any kind of weather. Many a small house so started has led to larger ones, simply because of the genuine personal pleasure it made so easily possible for the owner. There is a thought in that for you gardeners. But the really big thought is—the U-Bar. Be sure your house is going to be the U-Bar and not simply a curved eave house that looks something like it. Send for catalog.

WHEN a little child begins to think the first indication he gives is by asking "Why." In fact some children have better reasoning powers than their parents, who go through life like a three-wheeled hand-car on a railroad track—they get in a rut. "We do well enough" was a motto of a great city in olden times; people now dig up mementos of that city underneath the sand. Every business firm has the dominating influence of one man, and the success of the business depends upon whether that one man is a progressive and a thinker or just a mere worker. The thinker is the most capable buyer because he reasons "why." When he buys he makes an investment—an investment has revenue for its reason. The other kind speculate and gamble on the revenue—and no gambler ever made money in the long run. There's enough gamble in the growing without taking any chances on the bulbs. Now in order to minimize a possible loss, it is advisable to buy Horseshoe Brand bulbs, because they are produced with such care as to withstand much rough treatment. Horseshoe Brand Giganteums make the best Cold Storage bulbs in the world, just for that reason. Besides the late arrivals are packed for that purpose. The following are offered in select stock—immediate delivery:

LILIUM MULTIFLORUM

FLOWERING EARLIER THAN GIGANTEUM.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Acacias

These plants will want the coolest house you may have in order to keep them in good shape for Easter. They do not like very much heat and should only be given enough during the autumn and winter to keep them clear of frost. They thrive when kept in a temperature of about 40 degrees at night, with ten degrees higher during daytime. Be very careful in watering these plants; let them show signs of dryness first, and then give enough water to soak the whole ball through. Frequent and slight waterings are dangerous. Give all the ventilation that the outside condition of the weather will permit without the in-rush of cold frosty air. The species mostly grown is Acacia armata.

Begonias

Begonias of the Rex, half-shrubby and fibrous-rooted sections will need some attention now. They should be induced to take a good rest until after the holidays. This can be done by withholding water until they become comparatively dry at the root. Encourage an atmosphere airy and bright but not too dry and harsh. All begonias at any time resent a low temperature. They should never be allowed to go much below 58 degrees at night. Keep them well ventilated without causing any direct draughts, admitting a greater or a less quantity according to the outside conditions. This restful treatment should continue for five or six weeks.

Cannas

When the frost has spoiled the splendor of these plants they should be cut down to within about six inches of the ground and dug up. The more soil you can retain around the roots the better. It is also risky to place these roots under a bench where they will be subjected to too much drip. Beneath a carnation bench where they can be protected against drip, will make an ideal place for them. To prevent the roots from starting into the ground, it would be well to put some boards under them. Do not fail to place a good strong label at the end of each variety; this will save trouble later on. Make it a plan to go over your canna roots often and examine them. They should not be allowed to become either too wet or too dry.

Care of Summer Flowering Cattleyas

All late summer flowering cattleyas that have had a good rest will now need repotting. It is always better to wait until you can see new growths appearing, with renewed root action, before giving them an overhauling.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: American Beauty Roses for Easter; Calceolaries; Dahlias; Gardenias; Sweet Peas; Spiraea Japonica.

Quite a few growers use nothing but clear osmunda fiber for cattleyas and they seem to do fine in it, but, of course, every grower has his own special idea as to compost. I think half sphagnum moss and osmunda makes a good mixture. Before you start potting give the plants a thorough cleaning, but avoid as much as possible the breaking of many roots. Give them nice clean pans or baskets half filled with clean broken crocks and small lumps of charcoal intermixed which will help to make the drainage more effective. You must regulate watering so as not to sour the compost. Newly potted orchids will only require just enough water at the roots to prevent the compost from becoming dust dry. When the growths have attained a few inches in length they will begin to make new roots into the compost and then the watering may be gradually increased. Give them an end of the house that is warm and where they can have some shade until they become established when they should have the full sun. Keep the temperature about 60 degrees at night now, and air should be freely admitted whenever possible. Give light fumigation often for thrips.

Peonies for Forcing

A florist is always looking for something to grow and fill in between other crops. Nowadays, all up-to-date growers of cut flowers have to aim to catch the public's eye and fancy by something out of season. So where you have a good plantation of peonies you have good material at hand to use for this purpose. They can be dug up any time within the next two or three weeks. Store them in some convenient place, where they will be accessible when needed. An ideal place would be a deep coldframe. They will not need any protection until hard freezing sets in. You can then give them a little leaves or stable-litter, to keep them from becoming hard frozen.

Wallflowers

Plants that were set out and grown along all summer and were potted within the last three weeks should be placed in the coolest house you have. They could be left outside in a cold frame for sometime yet, but they will do much better if transferred to a very cool house. There is nothing gained in the way of vigor or durability by a too late sojourn in a coldframe. By giving these plants a little attention they can be made a paying proposition. They will not stand a great amount of heat. Let the temperature hang around 40 degrees and they will come along all right. Give plenty of fresh air whenever weather will permit.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Late Vineries

Late vineries will be demanding the most attention in this section at the present time, from a growing point of view, yet the work to be done from now on in the dormant houses is just as important. The majority of late grapes will be finished by this time; perhaps Gros Colman or Barbarossa, otherwise Gros Guillaume, will still put on a little more color, the former especially being a delinquent in acquiring Nature's "paint." Where this is needed give them all the sun possible for another week or two, by tying back any leaves which may shade them. With fruit hanging ripe a reduction in the temperature can be made—50 to 55 being quite hot enough. From now on at no time should the heating pipes be allowed to become hot; sooner let the heat drop a few degrees. Excessive fire heat causes berries to shrivel quicker than anything else. Airing is just as important now as at other times. During mild clear weather the vines cannot have too much air. It is the cloudy, wet or cold weather which brings out the "reserves." When such conditions exist, keep the heating pipes nicely warm, not hot, and never shut a house entirely down unless abnormal weather conditions compel it. A crack of air to the leeward and gentle warmth in the pipes brings that dry and fresh atmosphere best suited for keeping grapes in good condition. Little moisture is needed at the roots, but no border must be allowed to become absolutely dry. Any watering which has to be done from now on must be got through by noon, and always choose a clear day in which to do it. This gives the atmosphere a chance to dry up a little, and a few days longer wait cannot hurt at this time of year. Go over the bunches at least twice a week to remove any damaged or decayed berries.

Mice and rats will now be seeking winter quarters, and how they do appreciate fruit houses with access to some still having fruit hanging! Could these visitors be induced to clean up each bunch as they go on they would be excused a little, but their delight is to taste all; the best bunches are always visited and the shoulders ravaged. It is no use to say how to destroy them—everyone knows how to kill a mouse (when you can). One thing sure—be rid of them right soon, or you will soon be minus a good portion of berries.

Strawberries

Very little time is left now in which strawberries can be asked to grow. Until severe frosts set in they will always swell the crown a little, in which case a little quick-acting feed can always be given. No harm is done by feeding right up to the time they are taken to their winter quarters. Little syringing will be needed now; occasionally the plants must be looked over and watered; always bear in mind the pots are filled out with strong healthy roots. Preparations can be made for plunging as soon as the weather breaks.

Early Vinery

The heating pipes in this house should always have a valve on the flow and return pipes, which allows them to be emptied out at this season, and with the house wide open it is kept as cool as possible. There is little danger of the pipes freezing up, should the thermometer register a few degrees of frosts for a few hours during the night. The greatest objection to having the pipes full of water with no value on the return is that the warm water will back up the return, and thus cause the house to be a little warmer than it would were they empty. Up to the time of starting, which is probably Dec. 1st, this house ought to be kept as cool as it possibly can, to enable the vines to get all the rest possible. Do all pruning immediately after all the leaves are down.

Christmas Melons

Plants sown September 1st will now be in flower. No difficulty should be experienced in setting them. Keep the house a little drier around the noon time and fertilize all female flowers as they open. It is folly to wait for two or three flowers to open at one time during the winter months. Give the plants all the air possible which will help to strengthen them. Good robust plants soon after setting are those which produce the best fruits. Two fruits to a plant will make a crop from now on until early spring. When these have been set and are seen to be swelling the remaining flowers can be removed and every encouragement given to the fruit. A light top dressing will be beneficial, but do not add a quantity of soil at this season of the year as the smaller quantity will dry out quicker. Close down early enough to give the plants a good sweating and keep a night temperature of 70 to 75 degrees. Guard against red spider, by syringing briskly in favorable weather and fumigate periodically to keep down green fly, etc.

Tomatoes

Tomatoes having the first two trusses of fruit set will take a little feed but do not over do it if the plants are in good shape. A little and often will be found to answer best. Instances have been known where very strong plants have failed to set a crop; probably other conditions have not been quite right and the strongest plants failed. On close examination this shyness to set, in extra strong growths or plants, seems to be more than theory. Keep a buoyant atmosphere through the house at all times, having it dryer about noon than at other times, when the plants should have a shake to distribute the pollen. The quantity of moisture to keep in a tomato house is a question sometimes debated. As houses vary so much no specific times for damping can be laid down. Be governed by what the atmosphere smells like on entering a house; avoid both extremes and take care to have all dry before night. Tomatoes are queer things to tie and in no matter what position they are growing they must be brought to the stakes, etc., gradually. Always leave plenty of room in the tie as the stems will swell considerably. Water the plants thoroughly whenever they are dry. Take particular care of any corners or parts of the benches which may be near the mains and dry out oftener than the other parts of the bench.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Houses at Night

Do not be too selfish with heat, but give your roses all the heat that they require. Houses should never be closed down tight—not until the real cold weather comes. Of course old houses with loose glass will not need it so badly, but new ones that are fairly tight will want at least a crack of air. This is especially true of Beauties and one of the greatest preventives of spot. Of course we would never recommend air on a windy or stormy night; that would be folly. On still, clear nights, however, things are different.

Temperature at Night

This must be regulated as carefully as the temperature for the day. If houses run up too high because of neglect or sudden change of weather outside, proceed as in the daytime, i. e., bring the houses down to the normal temperature gradually. This with us varies according to variety of roses, stages of growth, etc., from 58 to 62 degrees F. Most of our Beauty houses are still kept up to 64 degrees and will be while the days are real warm, as we find Beauties do not like too great a difference between the two temperatures. Do not under any circumstances add more air to bring houses down. This would change the air current in the house so much that mildew would surely follow, unless, of course, your plants are perfectly hardy and not a bit soft. At the best we would recommend bringing the temperature down very gradually for reasons stated.

Coal Gas in Houses

Be careful, if your smoke stack is not very high, about opening ventilators near it as coal gas is a very bad thing to get into the greenhouse, and will do considerable damage before you know it, and it will be too late to remedy this then, as the plants will be minus considerable foliage, or if the gases are not strong enough to kill foliage the plants will no doubt look sickly and ailing without any apparent reason. The only care is to build your smokestack higher and grow the plants out of their check.

High vs. Low Smokestacks

There is no doubt considerable argument at times concerning smokestacks, many claiming that a high stack gives too much draught, thus taking all the heat from the boiler. Of those who are of this opinion we have a question to ask. What are dampers on a boiler for?

We find with extra good draught we can get a good fire "in no time." After the fire comes up good we close damper almost tight, leaving it open only enough to carry smoke and gas away. Thus all heat is retained in the boiler and nearly all absorbed by steam or water in the boiler. With low stacks and poor draught it takes two or three hours for a fire to "come up" and by that time it is pretty well burned out and has to be disturbed again; thus the flue is open almost continually and a large amount of heat is wasted, to say nothing of time required to tend boilers connected to a stack of this kind. Give us the 65 to 100-foot stack every time.

Lightning Rods

Never for one moment forget the danger of your chimney being shattered by a thunderbolt. We know of several instances where this would have happened had it not been for properly placed lightning rods. One case seems to come to us more than any other. This was on a large carnation range out in Long Island. The chimney in this instance had just been completed in the evening and it was summer, of course. No lightning rod was put that day and what a sight early next morning! A heavy storm raged during the night and next day a week's hard labor lay all in a heap with the new potting shed all crushed in. The bricks even went through the potting shed floor and come near putting the boiler out of commission. The grower then said he was very thankful that it had happened at night for had it happened in the daytime several lives may have been lost, as the men would have been laying floor and doing other work in the shed. Since then the word is "protect your chimney and be safe." You will note that some of the largest and most progressive chimney constructing companies include a lightning arresting apparatus as part of the specifications, and will not guarantee their chimneys without it and surely they know what they are about.

Next week's notes will be on the following: Liquid Manure and Mulching; Green Fly; Use of Cyanide; Disbudding.

Dendrobium Schützei

At a recent meeting of the Royal Horticultural Society, a surprise awaited orchidists, in the shape of a magnificent new Philippine Island dendrobe,—Dendrobium Schützei, introduced by Sander & Sons, which received at the hands of the orchid committee the highest distinction, viz., a unanimous first-class certificate.

This grand novelty belongs to the same section as the handsome D. Sanderæ, the flowers resembling somewhat this new introduction. The flowers also bear much resemblance to the magnificent Bornean D. formosissimum. It was discovered in the interior of Luzon, by Mr. Schütze, and is a most striking acquisition to the large and showy dendrobes. It has a strong constitution, and flowers freely, as indicated by the numerous flower seats on the apices of the pseudo-bulbs. The latter are from 9 to 12 inches high, and carry several large, pure white flowers, with a small emerald-green disc on the upper part of the lip, which has a ray of the same color, and a few dark spots at the base. The lance-shaped sepals are keeled; the petals broad and openly displayed; the labellum is broad and conspicuously effective.

The culture of this new introduction will in all probability be much the same as for D. Sanderæ, D. Dearei, and others of the heat-loving section. Plenty of heat and moisture when growing, and a decided airy rest to mature and ripen the pseudo-bulbs. Pure, open osmundafibre is the best material to pot in, using no moss whatever. A thorough drainage is thereby secured so necessary in the successful culture of dendrobes.

a few of their associates. Our club and society secretaries, in reporting shows might make their accounts more interesting and much more instructive by giving special attention to the more notable exhibits, novelties, etc., and less space to dry lists of first, second and third winners. To learn that A, B or C won in a certain class matters much less to the general reader than to know what he won it with; also, if a novelty, what its characteristics are, and, if an arrangement, what its points of superiority were. Education being the primary object of an exhibition why should it not also figure as a factor in the record of the exhibition? Keep this in mind, Mr. Secretary, when you prepare your accounts for the papers.

The moth problem

The hearing before the Federal Horticultural Board at Washington regarding the gypsy and brown-tail moth pests takes place next Wednesday, October 30. Of course it is very desirable to have a hearing. Vigorous demands and equally vigorous protests will no doubt be made by the various interests affected and the Board will gather in some valuable information. But, as pointed out in our issue of last week, if the "hearing" is merely a preliminary to a quarantine on the products of the infested sections of New England then as far as this applies to the nursery industry it will accomplish nothing of practical value. Its only effect will be to make jobs for an army of clerks, paralyze the nursery trade of six states and beget a sense of false security elsewhere. What is needed is that the federal government should take a more comprehensive grasp of the whole subject and get to work to help crush out the pests. The problem is conceded to be beyond the ability of the local people to handle alone. So long as brown-tail moths are permitted to breed, an impenetrable wall as high as the Washington monument will not prevent their spread, and the sooner the people learn this and the authorities acknowledge it the better.

The use of flowers at funerals

The old fuss over the prohibition of flowers at funerals in certain churches has come to the surface again, newspapers in all sections of the country devoting considerable space to the views, pro and con, of clergymen and others on this much-agitated question. It looks quite as though some of these reverend critics were actuated by a sentiment akin to self-interest in their hue-and-cry against the spending of money for funeral flowers which is "oftentimes needed for the necessities of life" for we have yet to hear any such argument against what goes into the contribution box, however destitute the giver or his family may happen to be! Naturally, the florist resents these attacks upon a custom which always has been so important a factor in the business to which he looks for support. It may be true, as one clergyman contends, that "the flower custom is but a relic of the pagan age," and also, as some assert, that many more flowers would be sold and used today could they only be disassociated from funeral affairs, but back of the custom is a tender sentiment which in time of affliction transcends all precepts and all philosophy and so long as human nature is what it is, the calls upon the florist for flowers as tributes of sympathy and condolence in bereavement will undoubtedly continue.

The foreign horticultural journals, like our own, are overcrowded at this season of the year with accounts of exhibitions, lists of prize awards, etc., a considerable portion of which is of little or no interest except to the persons whose names are mentioned as prize winners and

SHOULD THE FARMERS' NATIONAL CONGRESS BE CHANGED INTO A COUNTRY LIFE FEDERATION?

At its meeting at New Orleans, La., November 7, 1912, the Farmers' National Congress will vote to change its constitution. The new constitution proposes a country life federation of all associations, institutions and other general organizations primarily interested in country life. This federation, if formed, will include State and National Departments of Agriculture, and Agricultural colleges and experiment stations, as well as associations of agriculture, horticulture, live stock, etc. Each organization with less than four thousand members will be entitled to one delegate, with a fee of $10. Larger organizations will be entitled to additional delegates, with an additional fee of $5 per delegate. The primary purpose is to form a great national country life or agricultural society in which all existing country life organizations have a part. The membership will be in the form of delegates representing the respective societies, associations and institutions. This country life federation would be on a par with the American Federation of Labor, the American Federation of Women's Clubs, the American Manufacturers' Association, the National Education Association, and other like great national bodies.

Such a general organization would have a large work to do and would carry great weight in national agricultural matters, both in Congress and out. It is modeled on the plan of the federation of states in the National Government, hence would not affect the autonomy of its constituent associations and organizations, which would be left free to perform their several functions. Such a great national agricultural society would be a strong factor in building up farm families in improving rural conditions throughout and also in increasing the production of farm produce for the cities.

Invitations have been sent to all organizations whose primary interest is agriculture and country life. Those not having received an invitation to send delegates to the New Orleans meeting, should send the address of their presidents and secretaries, also a copy of their constitutions to the Secretary of the Farmers' National Congress, J. H. Kimble, Port Deposit, Maryland.

ROOT CROPS IN GREAT BRITAIN.

One of our English correspondents writes as follows:

"Statements have appeared in the American Press inferring a failure of the root-crops. Happily this is not the case for not only are roots, such as swedes, wurzel and beet of the highest quality, but the crop is abundant; indeed farmers are more than satisfied, especially as the demand during the coming winter will be great owing to the shortage of hay and corn for the cattle. In the North, Midlands and in East Anglia the potato crop has suffered immensely from disease greatly accentuated by the wet, but in other parts a good return is expected.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The greenhouse property of F. Sidney Smith, Thirty-eighth street and Senate avenue, has been sold for building purposes.

TWO VALUABLE TROPHIES.

The accompanying illustration shows two sterling silver cups offered by the Yonkers (N. Y.) Horticultural Society for competition at their Chrysanthemum Show, Oct. 30, 31 and Nov. 1.

The larger cup is offered for best 24 specimen chrysanthemum blooms, and its value is $125. The other is offered for best bush plant and is valued at $75.

SEEDING FLOWER GARDENS TO RYE.

Did you ever stop to think how much fertility your soil loses by being left exposed, unprotected all winter?

Just notice the snow around your garden fence, if your garden is left this way and see how much fine soil the wind blows out of the garden. No wonder the weeds thrive there so! Heavy rains will also soak and wash out the different chemicals that go to make a soil fertile, and then it is no wonder that such large amounts of fertilizer have to be applied to garden soils.

We always try to seed all garden ground—even flower beds that are not planted with bulbs—to rye, after the frost has destroyed the tender bedding plants. Then about the last of February or March while the ground is still frozen we like to apply a good dressing of manure. The rye will absorb any liquids that may soak out and when spaded and plowed under in the spring will be a great benefit to the soil. Of course, a little lime must after be applied.

This system works very good if done right as it improves the looks of the places much by leaving the garden green in winter instead of the bare, unsightly earth.

ARTHUR C. RUZICKA.

SOME NEW CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Awards have lately been made by the National Chrysanthemum Society (England) to the following new varieties: Crimson Polly, a crimson sport from Polly; Bronze Perle, a bright bronze sport from the border variety, Pink Perle; Mrs. J. Fielding, a sport from Goacher's Crimson; Framfield Early White, pearly white; Joan Carter, early-flowering border single, of bright rich yellow; Alcalde, an early flowering variety, of a brilliant chestnut crimson—a sport from Almirante.

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

President Weber of the Florist Club has appointed a publicity committee consisting of R. J. Windler, chairman; Carl Beyer, and C. Bergsterman, who will report at the next meeting of the club.

Herman Niehaus, one of the workers at Berning's wholesale house, was married on Saturday, Oct. 19, to Miss Cora Reed. Herman will defer his honeymoon trip until later. He received congratulations from the trade early Monday morning.

J. J. Beneke, secretary of the Florist Club, informs us that President R. Vincent, Jr., of the S. A. F., will lecture before the club at its December meeting on the International Show, held in London last May, and other European shows. Arrangements will be made at the next meeting for entertaining the president on that day.

Visitors: Tim. Waters, of Poehlman's, Chicago; Julius Dillhoff, of Schloss Bros., New York, and James Morton, Chicago.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Max Villar has resigned his position with Johnston Brothers.

F. B. Pierce has opened a new flower store at 115 Elmwood avenue.

Louis J. Reuter of Westerly is spending a three weeks' hunting trip in Maine.

George Johnson of the Elmwood Nurseries has received judgment against Edward Healey in the Sixth District Court for $336.33.

Morris Miller, formerly in business on upper Westminster street, but who recently gave up his place of business, is now employed by F. Hoffman at Pawtucket.

Louie D. Pierce of Norwood, a former florist in that town, is a candidate for president of the Norwood Town Council on the Democratic Division-Bull Moose-Fusion ticket.

THE EXHIBITIONS

THE ST. PAUL FLOWER SHOW.

The Minnesota State Florists' Association has arranged for its second fall show to be held in the St. Paul Auditorium, November 8 to 12. The newly elected officers of the State Association are Hugh Will of Minneapolis, president; O. J. Olson of St. Paul, vice-president; E. P. Holm of St. Paul, treasurer; S. D. Dysinger of St. Paul, secretary. Theo. Wirth and C. N.

son, vice-president; C. F. Vogt, treasurer; S. D. Dysinger, secretary; with a full complement of committees including all the prominent members of the trade in Minneapolis. O. R. Eckhardt is chairman of the finance committee, Max Kaiser of the show committee, O. J. Olson of the publicity committee, and E. W. Reid of the decorative committee.

An ample guarantee fund, pledged by the St. Paul florists, has been subscribed and a large portion of it already paid in with the understanding that all premiums awarded to outside exhibitors shall be paid first. The show committee has enlisted the services of society ladies of both St. Paul and Minneapolis who will act as patronesses of the show and will attend the opening evening in colonial costume. The debutantes of the season will sell flowers at a finely decorated booth in the center of the hall. The Guild of Catholic women—an organization with 1,200 members—will serve light refreshments in another well arranged commodious booth.

On the second day the school children will be admitted during certain hours at a reduced rate. In this connection Prof. Finney, superintendent of the city's school gardens, will exhibit model gardens in the hall and will distribute prizes awarded the past season for the best kept gardens to the winners, who will be the guests of the show for the occasion. On Sunday the Symphony Orchestra will give a popular concert in the hall—which has a seating capacity of about 10,000. It is expected that this will prove a very profitable drawing card. On Monday and Tuesday evenings Mr. J. K. M. L. Farquhar of Boston, president-elect of the Society of American Florists, will give lectures in the hall illustrated with lantern slides of views taken on his world-wide trips in Europe, Japan and many other countries of the globe. On other evenings the Scandinavian and German Singing Societies with choruses of several hundred voices will entertain the crowds. An orchestra of twenty pieces will discourse music every afternoon and evening and prominent vocal soloists will also lend their assistance.

The show has been strongly endorsed by the Association of Commerce in a letter mailed to each of its 1,200 members, and a delegation of its members will solicit the sale of sea-

HENRY A. DREER, Inc.

714 Chestnut Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

A large and attractive premium list has been arranged with prizes aggregating $6,000 or more in value. A class for amateurs has been provided for as well as a special class for photographs of lawns and gardens. A large number of cash prizes and trophies are offered by members of the trade and its allied industries throughout the country. The St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press and the St. Paul Daily News both offer valuable silver cups, while a number of cups and other trophies will be offered by the St. Paul merchants. The Chrysanthemum Society of America offers an affiliation cup. The Minnesota Rose Society has sent out a letter to all its members urging attendance at the show and competition in the photographic contest. It is expected there will be keen competition in all classes and with weather as favorable as other conditions this show should be a record-breaker.

The following gentlemen will serve as judges: W. N. Rudd, Morgan Park, Ill.; J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.; W. L. Rock, Kansas City, Mo., and J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.

NATIONAL CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY, LONDON.

On the second and third of October the above society held its first show of the season at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham. The usual competitive classes were well filled with blooms of excellent quality. In the classes for six and for twelve cut blooms of Japanese varieties there were some remarkably fine exhibition flowers. Table decorations were numerous, baskets, vases and epergnes in the decorative section were nicely and artistically set up in most cases; choice effects being often obtained by the judicious use of autumn foliage, the bronzy, subdued tones of which shone out in delicate contrast with the brilliant tones of the flowers.

We must, however, pass over these purely competitive classes, meritorious as they were, and devote a few lines to a superficial review of the most interesting features of the miscellaneous trade displays which were the most attractive part of the show in the eyes of the ordinary visitor.

First and foremost comes Norman Davis' beautiful gold medal group arranged on the ground level. A long, irregular oval edged with a layer of fern fronds enclose a choice selection of fine cut blooms of chrysanthemums and Michaelmas daisies, right in the middle a huge sheaf of solidago. At intervals round the group were tall vases containing huge show blooms, one variety in a vase.

William Wells & Son also received a gold medal. If variety is charming then Wells' lot is entitled to be so described. There were all types, the whole brightened up by the addition of delphinium, Michaelmas daisies, autumn foliage, etc.

H. J. Jones set up a run of about 50 feet of excellent stuff the whole enclosed in a winding border of adiantum. A gold medal was awarded to him also. Here again the judicious employment of Michaelmas daisies did much to improve the tout ensemble of the group.

A silver gilt medal was awarded to F. S. Ware & Son. They showed dahlias in infinite variety with heleniums, pyrethrums, rudbeckia, tritoma, etc.

J. B. Riding is a dahlia specialist who is rapidly making headway with the new Collette section. He had an enormous run of beautifully grown and nicely shown flowers of this type, and the silver gilt medal he received is well deserved.

James Carter & Son received the same award. Their group was surmounted by a kind of floral canopy. Pteris ferns were used as an edging, then a row of asters. At the corners Michaelmas daisies, the filling in being done with cactus dahlias and more greenery. The arms or supports of the canopy were decorated with glass bowls of asters.

F. Brazier got a small silver gilt medal for a composite lot of early chrysanthemums and Michaelmas daisies and autumn foliage.

A. H. Coll contributed floral designs (small gold medal), Cragg, Harrison & Cragg, market chrysanthemums (silver medal), and H. B. May an excellent collection of ferns and begonias.

The floral committee awarded two first class certificates, viz.: to H. J. Jones for Bob Pulling, and W. Wells & Son for Mrs. G. Lloyd Wigg, both new Japs.

At the judges' luncheon Mr. Thos. Bevan presided over a comfortable little party who were in the best of spirits. Toasts were drunk in honor of the King, the judges, the exhibitors, the visitors. Responses were made by W. Wells, Sr., who said it was the finest early show he had seen, by J. N. Moorman who complimented the exhibitors on the work they had given the judges to do, and by the writer on behalf of the visitors. Among those present were Gaston Clement, president of the Paris Chrysanthemum Committee; Henri Nonin, son of the well-known raiser, and E. Delanoue of Paris. After a little turn at yarn spinning the party broke up well pleased with the day's proceedings.

chairman of the decorating committee. As before, the show will be arranged for comprehensive artistic effect and Wm. Pitkin, Jr., and F. L. Trautmann have prepared the plans. John Dunbar is president of the Association, and is well supported by the entire florist and nursery trade in making this a record exhibition.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW, 1913.

C. H. Totty, chairman of the National Flower Show Committee, announces the following special premiums in addition to those already announced:

The Nassau County (N. Y.) Horticultural Society will donate a silver cup, value $50, to be used as the committee thinks best, but for competition by private gardeners only.

The Westchester (N. Y.) and Fairfield (Conn.) Horticultural Society will donate a silver cup value $50, and will leave the disposition of same to the committee.

The Morris County (N. J.) Gardeners' and Florists' Society offers a prize of $50 in cash, to be offered as the committee sees fit.

Henshaw & Fenrich offer a silver cup, value $25, class to be announced by the committee.

John Waterer & Sons, of Bagshot, England, offer $100 for a group of rhododendrons covering 100 ft.

For full information, schedules, space for trade exhibits, etc., write to: John Young, Secretary and Manager for Trade Exhibition, 54 W. 28th St., New York City.

The American Institute of the City of New York offers the following medals of the Institute for award as the committee sees fit: The special medal of silver; the bronze medal of superiority; the bronze medal of excellence; the bronze medal of merit.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. offers a $25 silver cup, to be awarded for twenty-five blooms of the best pink forcing rose not yet disseminated, either of domestic or foreign origin.

The Yokohama Nursery Co., New York, offers a prize of $20 to be used in the discretion of the committee.

John I. Pratt offers a prize of $25 in the class for gardenias.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society offers one gold medal and three silver medals for award in classes to be announced later.

The New Jersey Floricultural Society offers a silver cup, value $25, for competition in any class the committee desires.

The Lenox (Mass.) Horticultural Society offers a silver cup, value $25, for a vase of twenty-five roses, any one variety except American Beauty, the competition to be open to private gardeners only.

PLANT QUARANTINE RULES.

Circular of Information to Importers of Nursery Stock.

Under the plant quarantine act, approved August 20, 1912, the importer of nursery stock must attend to the following conditions of entry:

(1) He must take out a permit therefor in advance. This permit should preferably be taken out by the person who is to receive the goods at final destination. A broker or commission merchant may take out a permit in his own name, if he imports for his own account, or he can act as agent for and take out the permit in the name of the actual purchaser.

(2) He must see that each package on arrival bears the proper certificate of foreign inspection. (See Regulation 6.)

(3) He must see that each package is marked in accordance with Section 3 of the act. As a matter of convenience, this marking should also contain the additional information called for in Section 4, to avoid the trouble of remarking before the goods can be delivered for interstate shipment. The certificate and marking should preferably be on the goods before they leave the foreign port.

(4) After December 1, 1912, each shipment must be accompanied with the consular declaration called for in Regulation 9. This declaration must accompany the consular invoice and is not to be attached to the individual container.

What the importer or broker must do before the goods can be shipped or removed from a port of entry:

(1) He must immediately (before shipping or removal) advise the Secretary of Agriculture and State Inspectors in accordance with Section 2 and Regulation 8.

(2) He must see that each container is marked in accordance with Section 4; that is in addition to the information in the label of entry, each container must bear the name and address of the consignee at destination, where the stock is to be inspected by the State, territorial or district official. (See Section 2 and Regulation 8.)

Importers are warned that failure to meet the requirements of the law as outlined above subjects them to the penalties fixed in Section 10 of the act.

Federal Horticultural Board.

Approved: James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture.

A BIG CHRYSANTHEMUM.

I think the biggest bloom of a chrysanthemum I ever saw was a F. S. Valis, shown a few years ago at the Paris show by Dubuisson-Foubert. It measured from tip to tip 46 centimetres. This now appears to have been beaten by a Miss Dorothy Goldsmith, recently grown by a French amateur, Albert Cuisin. At a meeting of the French Association of Amateurs the bloom was examined and measured by the committee who certify to its being 52 centimetres in diameter—that is about 21½ inches across, the petals, of course, laid out flat. Albert Cuisin therefore holds the record and the prize of 100 francs, or $20 in American money.

Seed Trade

The Astor Seed Crop.

Aster seed is now being harvested on the Rochester farms of James Vick's Sons, and present indications point to a satisfactory crop. The fifty acres on the two farms are an important factor in the aster situation in the United States, and the writer was pleased to be able to make a thorough inspection of the fields.

The season has been backward. Two months of showery weather, while promoting a good growth of Late Branching varieties, has retarded the ripening of mid-season asters. A full yield of Queen of the Market varieties seemed assured. The stock has been cured and is nearly ready for delivery and it is now awaiting only the completion of new threshing and cleaning machinery.

The harvesting of varieties like Day-break and Purity did not begin until after October 15th. The rows of late varieties are well filled with plants and an examination of the heads promises a crop fully up to the average. About the same conditions are found on the farms of other growers in western and central New York.

A general improvement in the character of the stock of the older varieties is apparent from year to year, and many new things of merit are being developed in the aster trial grounds. Two novelties are to be offered to the trade this season—a new and desirable shade in Branching to be called "Peach Blossom," and a large mid-season upright white to be called "Vick's White Perfection." The "Perfection" is unlike anything I have seen, the whole flower being strongly whorled, and the effect is decidedly pleasing.

The development of the aster is now more rapid than ever before. There were flowers in Vick's trials this summer like perfect incurved chrysanthemums, and actually larger and more double than the early chrysanthemums. These types are well fixed and can be had in commercial quantities in a year or two.

Roy C. Faulwetter of the Department of Plant Pathology, Cornell University, was a recent visitor at the Vick farms, collecting material for a study of diseases of the aster plants. No work has been done along this line for many years and it is to be hoped that Mr. Faulwetter may be successful.

Notes.

Seattle, Wash.—A two-story packing shed is being erected by the H. B. Burdett Co. at First avenue and Denny way.

New Orleans, La. — Chris. Reuter, seedsman, 1140 Decatur street, has recently annexed the building next to him and will handle a full line of grass and field seeds, etc., in addition to his regular line of vegetable seeds for southern market gardeners.

Denver, Colo. — The Colorado Seed and Nursery Co. has begun business at 1515 Champa street. C. R. Root, formerly with the Barteldes Seed Co., is president of the company and has associated with him L. Malone, William Horlacher and R. A. Gettelman.

Cleveland, O.—A new company has been incorporated here to deal in field, garden and flower seeds under the name of the Templin-Crockett-Bradley Co. The capital stock is $10,000 and incorporators are R. L. Templin, P. J. Crockett, Mary E. Templin and Carl R. Brown.

There is little to be added to our recent notes regarding seed crops. Peas, probably the most important item on the list will, it is expected, be delivered on contracts to the extent of 60 to 70 per cent of amount named in each case; this will stand as an average for the full list of varieties. Beans are more likely to be short. Onion sets are a fair crop in the west and southwest but fully 50 per cent of these crops are "pickler size," and Pennsylvania and New Jersey crops are not large; in fact, some sections have very light crops.

A VALUABLE FRENCH PUBLICATION.

La Vie a la Campagne is a French journal, as its title indicates, largely devoted to rural affairs and is under the editorial charge of M. Albert Maumene, at one time the sub-editor of our contemporary "Le Jardin." Gardening of course occupies a large part of its columns and we make mention of it now chiefly for the purpose of drawing attention to the Special Rose Number issued a few weeks ago. Among the illustrations are several reproductions of roses painted by the great Redoute in color. There is an article on the Rosery at La Malmaison, some cultural notes, an article on modern rosaries including those of C. Hay and Bagatelle. Several on English rose gardens, with an enormous number of views executed in capital style. In fact it is a veritable rose growers' vademecum, and does the editor great credit. There are not fewer than 130 illustrations of plans, designs, etc., in black and white.

Obituary.

William A. Yelland.

William A. Yelland, traveling salesman for C. C. Morse & Co., seedsmen, San Francisco, Cal., died suddenly in Darien, Conn., recently, aged 52 years. He leaves a wife and five children.

James C. Murray.

After a long illness James C. Murray, florist, of Peoria, Ill., died at his home on October 13, aged 63 years. He was born in Yarmouth, England, and came to the United States in infancy. He began the florist business in Peoria thirty-five years ago. His wife and one son survive him.

George J. Edwards.

George J. Edwards, of the Edwards Folding Box Co., 27 North Twenty-sixth street, Philadelphia, Pa., died recently, aged 75 years. He had been connected with the paper box business all his life and originated the lock corner flower box so universally used. He was for a number of years a member of the S. A. F. & O. H. The business will be continued by his sons. His wife, two sons, and a daughter survive him.

Henry M. Wilson.

Following a long illness, Henry M. Wilson, nurseryman at Middletown, near Newport, R. I., died at his residence, on Oct. 17, in the eighty-first year of his age. The Wilson Nursery which he established about thirty years ago, has long been noted for its fine specimen plants and well kept appearance. The business will probably be continued by his son, J. Edward Wilson, who has had the management of the concern for some time.

MUST INSPECT FREE PLANTS.

The time-honored free-plant distribution to Congressional districts has fallen under the inspection requirements through a postal regulation directing that nursery stock shall be admissible to the mails only when accompanied by a certificate that the stock has been inspected and found to be healthy. The Government is the most extensive shipper of plants and shrubs, which are nursery stock.

Department of Agriculture officials are struggling with the problem of how best to inspect the several hundred thousand packets of plants, bulbs, and shrubs annually distributed throughout the country at the instance of members of the two houses of Congress. The Department probably will inspect the plants in bulk instead of each individual shipment among the 200,000 or 300,000 sent out at the request of Senators and Representatives. The 12,000,000 shipments of seeds which Congress sends its constituents do not come within the inspection department.—New York Press.

Floral Park, N. Y. — A range of houses owned by John Lewis Childs have been leased by O. B. Coomes, Jr., of Jamaica. He will use them to grow stock for his store.

Lima, Ohio—The Swan Floral Co. has moved its salesroom to the ground floor of the Masonic Temple on West High street.

A very pretty little rose is displayed in Penn's window, Bromfield street, Boston, this week, under the name of Fire Flame. Despite the fact that it is a single rose—simply five petals—it attracts the passers-by because of its lovely copper yellow color and the graceful poise of its numerous flowers and buds. There is a place for these dainty little roses in tasteful floral work.

TWO NOTABLE MEMORIAL DESIGNS.

The two elaborate floral pieces illustrated herewith were, as indicated on the ribbon inscriptions, tributes to the memory of George Washington from the foreign delegates to the fifth International Congress of Chambers of Commerce held in Boston, and to the memory of Friedrich the Great, from the German delegates, respectively, when the delegates visited Washington, D. C., after the adjournment of the Congress. Both pieces were made by Gude Bros. Co.

FLOWERS FOR HALLOWE'EN.

The New York Florists' Club has sent out many thousands of the following circular to the retail florists of that city and vicinity, to be distributed among their customers.

The general purpose of the various national customs of celebrating Hallowe'en was originally to enable the young people to learn by vaticination the names of their future wives or husbands. This was effected through pulling kade in the garden, or oat straw from the stack; the roasting of nuts on the coals; the catching in the mouth of the twirling apple, or dipping for it or forking it in a tub of water; by three dishes, one of clean, one of foul water and one empty. The family bonfire antedating all these soon passed into disuse. Further more, Hallowe'en was the anniversary night, not only of the good fairies, but also of witches, devils and other mischief-making beings. From the United Kingdom, Hallowe'en observance came into the United States, "England's eldest daughter." Here, in recent years, former Hallowe'en customs have all too often degenerated into rude, uncouth, meaningless and sometimes harmful tricks and pranks.

The world, however, moves and for the customs which used to be associated with the observance of certain holidays in one century, often others of an entirely different character are substituted in the next. Sometimes even a decade brings marked changes in the observance of holidays. This is true in the case of Hallowe'en.

As Paris in matters of dress sets the fashion for the old world, so in New York are inaugurated many new customs for the new world. Therefore, it is not strange that in this great cosmopolitan city the custom has been established and is fast growing in popularity of celebrating Hallowe'en, not with bonfires and jack o'lanterns, not by mischievous and rude pranks, not by fireside revelries and the learning by divination of the name of a future sweetheart, but in a much more delicate and refined way.

In this new observance of Hallowe'en, the father brings home to his family, the lover sends to his lady, friends send to friends, not forgetting the sick in their homes and in hospitals, beautiful and fragrant flowers, the chrysanthemum, queen of autumn; the rose, queen of all flowers; the carnation, the divine flower; the aristocratic uniquely beautiful orchid, the modest lily of the valley, and the queenly lily. Could any innovation be more commendable or more to be encouraged than this change from the rude methods of observing Hallowe'en in the old days to the present custom of using flowers on that occasion?

CHICAGO NOTES.

Thursday, Nov. 7th, will be Ladies' Night at the Chicago Florists' Club meeting and a fine program is under preparation.

The erroneous report in the Tribune of the death of Otto Bach, an employee of the Poehlmann Bros.' Co., provoked a smile, notwithstanding the seriousness of the subject.

Clifford Pruner will hereafter travel in the interest of Poehlmann Bros.' supply department. It is sixteen years since he started with E. H. Hunt and during most of these years he has represented that well-known house in various capacities. His ability as a salesman is well known and with his pleasing personality he will be a strong factor for the success of the new department.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Ella Pearce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Pearce of 2,137 Clybourn Ave., and Ashton Ricketts. The wedding will take place Nov. 20 at the Evangelical Bethlehem Kirche. It is interesting to note that the same pastor, J. Kircher, who will perform the ceremony, officiated at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Pearce. Miss Pearce's sister, Mrs. George Tegelaar, who was a bride last spring and went to Holland with her husband, who is a bulb grower, is home for the wedding.

Visitors: Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Scott, Navasota, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. George Tegelaar, Holland; P. N. Obertin, Kenosha, Wis.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—The flower shop of Mrs. Lydia Auger, 114 East Washington street, has been purchased by Herbert Zurmuehlen, formerly manager of the Bradley Flower Shop.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

D. B. Edwards of Atlantic City was a visitor here last week.

It is reported that the firm of J. R. Freeman has purchased a one-ton automobile delivery truck.

Gude Bros. have a good sized thermometer bearing their advertisement which they are distributing around town.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Company is now showing the new Irish Fire Flame rose, a single recently introduced which, because of its handsome color, should prove a great favorite here.

Z. D. Blackstone and William Marché took prominent parts in the luncheon-meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association, of which they are very active members. The former is chairman of the committee on the florists trade.

If the florists and commission merchants of this city desire to continue doing business, they must renew the licenses issued to them by the District of Columbia assessor of taxes promptly after October 31, the date of expiration of the present licenses.

NEW YORK NOTES.

Alfred G. Campkin, late of Watkins & Simpson, London, has joined the staff of Arthur T. Boddington.

Peter Henderson & Co. are showing a very interesting collection of squash, about thirty varieties. They have also a good display of named chrysanthemums.

H. M. Robinson Co., 26th street, have just had installed two new ice boxes. They received this week the first installment of the new chrysanthemum Ivory.

Visitors: John K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston; Thos. Roland, Nahant; J. B. Agnew, Agnew, Calif., and W. C. Mountain, bulb grower, Constantinople.

Clubs and Societies

THE NORTHERN INDIANA FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

The Northern Indiana Florists' Association held their quarterly meeting at Kendallville, Ind., on Oct. 16. The day was pleasant and program fine. A trip of greenhouse inspection took in the establishment of the Johnson Floral Company, who have just installed two new boilers. The meeting was held at the First M. E. Church. A fine exhibition room was provided which was well filled with exhibits which would do credit to a larger city and which during the day was visited by a large number of the flower lovers of the city.

Frank & Sons, Portland, Ind., had one of the finest exhibits of roses we have ever seen, including W. R. Smith, White and Pink Killarney, Maryland and Kaiserin. W. W. Coles, Kokomo, also staged a fine lot of roses. In carnations, Johnson Floral Co., L. A. Cole, Kokomo, W. W. Dederick, Warsaw, Ind., were leaders. Ten Eyck & Son, Auburn, staged chrysanthemums, as did also South Bend Floral Co. Christ Winterich, Defiance, Ohio, had some cyclamen plants in 6 and 8-inch pots which certainly did him credit. Other exhibitors were: Johnson Floral Co., a fine display of plants; Simon Humfeld, Muncie, plants and florists' necessities; Mt. Gilead Pottery Co., pots and pans; A. A. Arnold, Chicago, cut flower boxes; A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, florists' supplies; W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, florists' supplies and bulbs.

At the noon hour the ladies of the church had an elegant banquet spread, after which the tour of inspection was resumed by automobile, visiting the Kendallville Celery Gardens; Flint & Walling (Star) pump and windmill works; the McCray Refrigerator Co., where were seen refrigerators, great and small, in all stages from the first stage to the finished product and we can testify there is no shoddy work done here.

Christ Winterich, Defiance, O.; Theodore Haserodt, Mt. Gilead, O.; A. W. Herre, Chicago, Ill.; C. O. Wilcox, Chicago; S. H. Ten Eyck, Auburn, Ind.; Otto O. Shrock, Ligonier, Ind., and Arthur E. Sumner, Garrett, Ind., were added to the membership roll.

Columbia City, Ind., was selected for next meeting place which will be Jan. 15, 1913. A. J. WAGONER, Sec'y.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The home address of Mrs. Charles H. Maynard, Secretary Ladies' S. A. F., will be at 260 Rosedale Court, Detroit, Mich. Mr. Maynard will be found at 6 Adams Ave., W., as manager of the Detroit Cut Flower Supply House.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held on Monday evening, November 11th, and will be known as "Chrysanthemum Night." Growers are invited to send any novelties or seedlings that they may have in condition at that time, and they will be passed upon by the committee.

The New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association had their usual fall trip of inspection among Long Island places last Monday, 25 members participating. Visits were made to the establishments of A. H. Hews & Co., Whilldin Pottery Co., W. H. Siebrecht, Phil Einsman, T. W. Langen, A. Schultheis, L. Dupuy, Knight & Struck, Hinode Florist Co., W. Pankok, H. Dreyer, Fred Marquardt, A. L. Miller, John Scott and John Wagner.

The committee on nominations of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society announces the following list of candidates to be offered at the annual meeting, November 16: President, John K. M. L. Farquhar; vice-president, Richard M. Saltonstall; trustees, A. F. Estabrook, William Downs, N. T. Kidder, C. W. Parker, George R. White; nominating committee, H. L. Frost, H. S. Hunnewell, T. D. Hatfield, H. W. Rawson, William Sim. In accordance with the by-laws of the Society two weeks are allowed for further nominations, should any be desired.

The annual fall exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York takes place on November 1st to 5th, at the American Museum of Natural History. Schedules may be had by addressing the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York City.

A meeting of the society takes place on Saturday, Nov. 2nd, at 4 P. M., at which a lecture will be delivered by George V. Nash on "Horticulture in the Northwest," illustrated with lantern slides made from pictures taken by the lecturer during his visits to that country.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island was held in Swarts Lodge Hall, Monday evening, Oct. 21, with a fair attendance. The resignation of Prof. H. J. Wheeler, a director of the Agricultural Experiment Station of the Rhode Island State College and an active members of the Florists' Club, was received. Prof. Wheeler is seeking a wider field of opportunity and will sever his connection with the State College on Dec. 1. It is with keen regret that the club accepted the resignation and expressed deep regret that it was about to lose the wise counsel and ever-willing support of one who has done much for the florists and gardeners of the state in advancing their interests. As a fitting recognition of his labors in the club it elected him to honorary membership.

The Cook County Florists' Association, Chicago, held its regular monthly meeting October 17, and elected to membership Edw. A. Ollinger, 706 Buckingham Place; E. R. Armstrong, 163 N. Wabash Ave.; Harry C. Young, 10 N. Wabash Ave., and Fred Lautenschlager, 440 W. Erie St. The following names were proposed: Frank Oechslein, 4911 Quincy St.; C. Flannfelder, 3343 Madison St.; C. L. Washburn, 131 N. Wabash Ave., and Arthur Dickum, 1604 S. 8th Ave., Maywood, Ill. A vase of a new single copper colored rose, called Fireflame, was exhibited by the Pennock-Meehan Co. A vote of thanks was given H. N. Bruns for his interesting talk on what he had seen of the flower industry while on his recent trip abroad. Considerable amusement was afforded the club by a standing vote for the presidency in which Roosevelt won out.

National Association of Gardeners.

A bowling tournament has been arranged for in connection with the annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners, which will be held in Newark, N. J., on November 19th.

The tournament will be rolled on the Tuxedo Academy alleys, Halsey street, Newark, N. J., on Monday evening, November 18th, and Tuesday forenoon, November 19th. Teams, of three men, members of the local societies, or clubs they represent, and members in good standing of the N. A. G. will roll on Monday, the tournament beginning promptly at 8 o'clock in the evening. A silver challenge cup, to be known as the "Aphine" cup, will be contested for in the team tournament. Entries will close for teams on Saturday, November 16th, and should be sent to M. C. Ebel, Secretary, National Association of Gardeners, Madison, N. J., before that time. The individual tournament will begin at 9 o'clock sharp on Tuesday morning. To be eligible in this tournament bowlers must be members of good standing in the N. A. G.

The president's cup, offered by President Thomas W. Logan, will go to the bowler making the greatest number of strikes during the tournament. There will be many other prizes offered, both for teams and individuals. For further particulars address the secretary of the association.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON "Very druggy" is the verdict this week on the cut flower situation. Of roses, chrysanthemums and carnations there seems to be no end and as to price, there is no bottom. The situation looks very unpropitious for the coming weeks, for even should the weather become inclement instead of summery as it now is, the crop will be there, regardless. There is some call for orchids, but no difficulty in satisfying same. American Beauty roses are away down and violets are a surfeit. Altogether, the present is one of the dullest weeks on record for the grower and wholesaler. The retail dealer seems to be pretty well satisfied, however.

BUFFALO Weather conditions are perfect for a good fall business and the past week found the trade a busy lot. Autumn weddings, store decorations and social affairs galore caused the merchant to be on the lookout for stock and there was enough of everything except chrysanthemums, of which the early varieties have about ended and the late ones are just coming on. Robt. Halliday, Pacific Supreme, Pride and others are coming on this week. Roses continue good and carnations and violets are improving each day, also the demand. Lily of the valley has a good call and lilies have been on the short side. Dahlias are still with us, also cosmos, but gladioli and asters have finally ended.

CHICAGO Stock is a little more plentiful than one week ago which does not mean that more could not be handled to advantage, especially as All Saints' Day always makes a heavy demand for shipping orders to the south. It is seldom at this season to see so few chrysanthemums on the counters, orders taking them almost as fast as they are unpacked. Some fine Chrysolora, a variety we mentioned last week, were seen and of splendid size and form. It seems to be the yellow needed to follow the early varieties. Tousset, Glory of the Pacific in both white and pink, and Virginia Poehlmann represent the bulk of the stock this week, though flowers are hardly in long enough to be noted. Prices are holding firm along all lines. Beauties are in excellent demand and stock is of best quality. Roses are easing up a little but the best grades of some are not equal to the demand. White Killarney were scarce in the best grades with many houses. Carnations are bringing in the money and the growers have no trouble in getting their prices. Dahlias and some gladioli are about all that are left of out-door flowers. Green is in active demand, helped along by the scarcity of flowers.

CINCINNATI The market for the past fortnight has experienced an inertia that was anything but gratifying. With the almost summer weather we have had the market took a turn for the worse. The demand was fairly steady, especially from out of town, but the supply was so overly large that in most cases it was absolutely impossible to realize a fair price for anything but the best stock. Chrysanthemums have up to this time been selling and clearing up the best of all. At this time of the year, however, it is hard to tell just how long this condition will continue. The supply is growing larger day by day and if they keep on increasing at the same rate they will reach a point where they cannot be used as fast as they come in. All other lines of stock are in a large supply, especially roses and carnations. Lily of the valley, orchids and sweet peas sell nicely. The call for gladioli and lilies is all that can be desired.

Single violets have been moving fairly well.

We have had two very busy weeks during which society weddings, some of them very elaborate, played a very important part. Roses are coming in very good and plentiful, but carnations are of very inferior quality. Chrysanthemums are slow in coming, especially as compared with a year ago, but their quality is much better. The demand for large varieties far exceeds the supply. Calls for flowering plants are increasing, but the local market offers very little in that line at present. The few cyclamens which are seen occasionally are good and find ready buyers.

NEW YORK The condition is certainly worse than last week which, is saying a whole lot, but complaints of bad trade are general and none of the retail stores are doing that amount of business which usually keeps them on the run at this time. The supply of all stocks continues far above the demand. Good American Beauty roses are little asked for, while Killarneys have sold well. Brides and Bridesmaids of fine substance and color are difficult to move. We still have some dahlias, also plenty of cosmos. Lilium longiflorum do not move at all. Carnations are fast improving and chrysanthemums continue to be very fine.

PHILADELPHIA Business picked up a little last week and on the whole the situation was fairly satisfactory. The weather remains warm, causing a large amount of outdoor stock which has a depressing effect on the market. Besides this, the indoor stock is also prolific—so that quite a large amount of the medium and lower grades of almost everything is hard to sell at anything like value. But this is not so with special and fancy grades of the choicer flowers, such as American Beauty and other roses, chrysanthemums, carnations, etc. Orchids are in fair supply and hold their own as to quality and price but the latter has not yet reached the figure which the grower regards as satisfactory. Lily of the valley is selling much better and violets are also in good demand; but the weather is against them—being much too warm for their keeping quality. Dahlias are still plentiful but the quality is beginning to go back a little. The greenhouse men are sitting up nights and sending prayerful petitions to Jack Frost. The dahlia men are also sitting up nights and making petitions—to Old Sol! Some of the growers can talk ice in five languages but on the other hand the Jersey man is a warm proposition. Really an interesting psychological contest and rather amusing to an onlooker with no leanings either way. The great old standby among the chrysanthemums is expected in a few days. There is no really good yellow at present. Some very nice pompons are to be seen around. Stroud's yellow "Overbrook" is one of the best.

WASHINGTON The frost last week diminished the supply of dahlias and cosmos but chrysanthemums are very plentiful and lessen the demand for all other flowers. Orchids are plentiful; supply exceeds the demand. Violets are far from being at their best as the weather is very warm again.

ST. LOUIS The local market here was very much overcrowded all during the last week, and prices took a big drop in all grades. One can get any amount of good roses. Violets are becoming more plentiful than ever but are not of as good quality as they will be later on. Carnations in all varieties and chrysanthemums are becoming more and more every day. Outdoor stock is holding up better than usual. This consists of cosmos, dahlias, tuberoses, etc. Lilies are not any too many for the demand.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

Holiday time is fast approaching and the question of suitable gifts for one's family and friends will soon demand attention. As a broadly general statement, it may be said that a well-selected book is always an acceptable gift, at once entertaining and instructive. Our readers will want something besides strictly horticultural books for this purpose and so we take the liberty of introducing them to a set just published by the well-known Boston house of L. C. Page & Co., which in diversity of character will furnish a selection for a variety of ages and tastes and are all beautiful products of the printers', engravers' and bookbinders' art.

Mary Ware's Promised Land, by Annie Fellows Johnston.—A most entertaining story by a most entertaining author. The route to the "promised land" which is traversed in its chapters is one that young lady readers will find a veritable enchanted country. $1.50 net.

The Chronicles of Quincy Adams Sawyer, Detective, by Charles Felton Pidgin.—Here is a book that will make the boys "sit up and take notice." Full of mysterious affairs and melodramatic situations. Of engrossing interest from the first to the last chapter. Price net, $1.25; prepaid, $1.40.

The Pioneer Boys of the Great Lakes. An engrossing tale for boys of the "Indian story" age. By Harrison Adams, illustrated by Charles Livingston Bull. Not only the boys but some of our older readers will enjoy this thrilling narrative of adventure on the trail of the Iroquois. Price $1.25 net.

Jack Lorimer, Freshman, by Winn Standish. One more book in the popular "Jack Lorimer" series, by Harold J. Cue. A story of college life that the youthful reader will enjoy. It is full of the characteristic love for adventure, exhilaration and rollicking fun, and will be read with avidity by both boys and girls of seminary age. 300 pages; price $1.50 net.

The Grand Opera Singers of Today, by Henry C. Lahee.—The author is a painstaking researcher and in this volume he has given a fine collation of facts about all the most famous singers of today, including those of the rising singers whose history is likely to be of interest to the public. It is correct in its data and will be read with pleasure by music lovers. There are forty-eight full-page plates in duo-

The Raphael Book, by Frank Roy Fraprie. This is an account of the life of the great painter, and his place in the development of art, together with a description of his paintings and frescos. There are fifty-four illustrations of the most noted works of Raphael preserved in the European galleries, several of these being reproductions in colors. The florist who makes a study of art in its best sense will find much in this book to interest him and the time will not be wasted. Publisher's price $2.50 net.

The Romantic Story of the Puritan Fathers, by Albert Christoph Addison. In his address at Provincetown, Mass., in 1909, Ex-President Roosevelt said: "The Puritans' task was to conquer a continent; not merely to overrun it, but to settle it, to till it, to build upon it a high industrial and social life; and, while engaged in the rough work of taming the shaggy wilderness, at that very time also to lay deep the immovable foundations of our American system of civil, political and religious liberty achieved through the orderly process of law." How the Puritans went about it, the quaint and humorous as well as the serious phases of their career and its influence upon New England history and upon New England character are, in this book, graphically recounted. We have noticed, invariably, among the many floricultural visitors to Boston how deeply all are interested in the ancient landmarks of the town and the stirring records of its early days, preserved in legend and poetry. From this fact we conclude that the book in question will find a warm welcome among the readers of HORTICULTURE. There are some seventy illustrations of scenes in Old Boston, England; Boston, Mass., and vicinity; portraits, etc. The price of this book is $2.50 net.

READ THIS

You will need to buy something this fall—stock, supplies, equipment, etc., for store or greenhouse. Look through the Buyers' Directory and List of Advertisers in this paper and you'll probably find what you want listed there. We are proud of the fact that HORTICULTURE is recognized as the best paper of its class in this country in quality of reading matter and also of the fact that it is coming to be acknowledged as the best advertising medium. The best friends of HORTICULTURE are those who buy from HORTICULTURE'S advertisers whenever possible and, in corresponding with the dealers always take the trifling trouble to refer to the paper. We have many such friends, otherwise our advertising columns would soon be deserted. Don't forget to do your part.

TO get a greenhouse job to do is one thing—to get the job done when you want it done is quite another thing. If you are in a hurry for your house, we are in just as much of a hurry as you are. Never in our half a century and more of business have we been turning out houses with such speed. Our Des Plaines factory is a new one—up-to-date in every particular.

The entire Irvington factory has practically been rebuilt and modernized. The handling of the work more carefully systematized.

All this is telling, and telling big, in both the speed and quality of our work.

If you want the best of work, and quickest work possible—you want us. Write at once and let's get things started.

A DAHLIA WALK

500% Profit on Lily Bulbs

A NY retail florist who has selling ability, and can market a few lilies every month, can make a larger per cent. of gross profit on HORSESHOE BRAND COLD STORAGE GIGANTEUM than on any other article connected with his business. They cost no more to produce than other things netting much less profit. The average cost of HORSESHOE BRAND GIGS, for delivery throughout 1913, does not exceed $20.00 per case, if ordered now. This means an investment of about $250.00 per annum. Based on the general average of flowering results it means about 8000 flowers per annum. These flowers, retailed at 20c. each, would bring $1600.00, which would make the gross profit about 540%—call it 500%—or even sell them at half-price and cut down the per centage; where can you invest money to give such profits? The wholesaler at from 6 to 10c. per flower can make more than on anything he can grow, at the same risk, in the same space and time consumed.

A $225 INVESTMENT

Will cover the cost of a sufficient amount of first-class HORSESHOE BRAND GIGANTEUM to last throughout the year, if you order now. This leaves a margin of $25.00 or over 10% from above figured cost, for freight and potting expense. The price of $225 is made special, and applies to the list as given below. It includes storage charges and everything up to the time of delivery, f. o. b. cars New York.

As an investment, this is one of the best a florist could possibly make. Besides this, it will be a business-booster, for all live florists should have lilies on hand the year around. Some can use 24, 36, 48 or even 100 or more cases per annum—we have customers who consume from 500 to 1500 cases annually. Their profits are of course large, owing to the quantity marketed. The only limit to your profit is that limit marked by your ability to sell and market the flowers on a business basis, and it is a big country we live in. If this list does not appeal to you, ascertain how many flowers you can dispose of during a year's time, and let us figure on the lot, giving you desirable shipping dates, flowering time and other information. Don't wait—those who wait generally get left—now is the time to order—right now. Then it won't be forgotten, and deliveries will be made automatically, relieving you of the bother. Write us.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

American Beauty Roses for Easter

Roses that have been grown all summer in the field, if intended for forcing for Easter, should now be lifted. For a compost use any good rose soil and give them either 6, 7 or 8-inch pots, according to their size. Do not overlook giving them ample drainage with plenty of crocks in each pot. When potting see that you get the compost well in and around the roots and firm the soil well. To make them easier to handle you can prune them down to about a foot and a half. They should not be pruned too hard immediately after lifting; this can be done before you start them up. It is well to place these roses in a cool house for about two weeks and give them a syringe now and again, but do not encourage any growth. After this time they can be placed in a deep cold frame. While they are in the cold frame see that they are kept moist at the roots; if this is not done they are very liable to be ruined by the frost. Before hard weather sets in plunge the pots up to the rims and then they can remain here until wanted for forcing.

Care of Calceolarias

It will be best to house all your calceolarias now. When they are kept out in a frame too late you have to shut the sashes down so early to retain enough heat to keep frost away that they always make a very soft growth. The tightly closed sashes are bound to create an over moist atmosphere which is very detrimental to this air-loving plant. They will require the coolest house you may have, where they can have at the same time all the sunshine there is. While these plants like plenty of ventilation they should never be subjected to any direct cold drafts. The proper way to ventilate is to start early in the morning to increase the air, as soon as the temperature shows a tendency to rise and until the maximum has been reached. In the afternoon reduce the same way, leaving a little on all night whenever possible. Fumigate each week which will help to keep the plants clean of fly.

Dahlias

When the blooms have been touched by a few frosts it is time to lift the roots. They never winter so well when left to be entirely cut down by hard frosts. When digging them up it is always better to leave the clumps in the field for the sun to dry them out. When dry they can be stored away in a cool-dry place. If given a too warm place where there is the least bit of moisture they will soon start into growth. Any place that will keep potatoes good will be right for dahlias. Where you intend to get new stock there is no better time than the present to do it, so place your order now with any one of HORTICULTURE's advertisers.

Gardenias

To have these plants good great care will have to be taken from this out, especially where they are wanted for winter flowering. It is a big mistake to allow the temperature to become so low that the atmosphere has a cold and clammy feeling. The minimum temperature should never be allowed to go below 65 degrees at night. Before ventilating let the thermometer reach 75 degrees and then only give a little air at a time so as not at any time to cause a chill in the air. Start early in the afternoon and reduce the air the same way, and finally close up early enough so the glass will stand at 75 degrees or thereabouts. Never let the soil become either overwet or at all dust-dry as either condition always paves the way for the loss of buds and gives that sickly looking yellow foliage. Look over the benches every day and water any dry spots, for in watering the aim should be to keep all the roots in an even state of moisture at all times. Give a good syringing early in the morning on all clear days and keep the plants nicely tied up. Now that the dark and gloomy weather will soon be with us go slow in feeding these plants. They can have an occasional light mulch from now and up to the new year; after that date the preference can be given to liquid manure. When too much feeding with manure water is done early in the season it is liable to cause a wholesale dropping of the buds.

Growing Sweet Peas

In growing sweet peas for winter flowering there is nothing gained by trying to hurry them along by a too high temperature. They are cool-blooded subjects and will not respond to any hard forcing. If your plants are to remain in a vigorous growing condition, with strong stems and fine flowers, never let the temperature go over 48 degrees at night. Keep a dry cool atmosphere by giving them plenty of ventilation on all favorable occasions; this will give you less trouble from their dropping their buds. While the beds will not need watering every day it is well to go over them often to ensure an even amount of moisture at the roots. Keep the leading growths faithfully tied up from time to time; where this is allowed to be neglected for any length of time the stems will become crooked, which impairs their market value.

Spiraea Japonica

The roots of spiraea—or astilbe—will soon be arriving, so make it your plan to secure them as early as possible. Any one of the half-dozen or more varieties usually shipped here every fall is worthy of being included in the florists' Easter and spring stock. Where spiraeas that have been unpacked show a good ball of firmly matted roots, which is the rule, an immediate potting up will not be necessary. They can be heeled in some frames and a mulch or covering of straw or coarse manure will keep the ground in a condition that will make the removal of the clumps from the frame at any time during the mid-winter an easy matter. When wanted they can be potted into 6 or 7-inch pots, using a good rich compost.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Care of Amaryllis; Cattleya Trianae; Gladioli for Forcing; Easter Schizanthus; Lilium speciosum; Stevias.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Root Pruning

Do not delay this important job after the leaves commence to turn color and fall on those trees which have been "marked" for erratic growth. It is a common thing to meet with people who do not understand the scientific phase of root pruning. The prevalent idea is to cut the strong wood out and thus make room for more fruiting wood the next season. This, of course, makes those few eyes which are left grow equally strong the following season and so on until the tree either attains great proportions, or the food substances wear out in the soil, which takes time and means light crops or none at all. There is no reason why a tree planted under glass should not carry a crop of fruit the second year after planting. This is referring to the necessity of root pruning young trees only. These are the greater offenders, but it sometimes happens an older tree will start and make much too heavy wood. This is sometimes accounted for by the roots' getting out of control or continued light, cropping with heavy feeding. Whatever the call may be do not hesitate to prune the roots if the fruiting wood produced is not satisfactory. Two points are essential for success, viz.: do it at the right time and see that the roots do not become dry before the trees are started into growth; the roots are "the root of the evil" and this itself explains why their sphere should be reduced and in time they will produce the required fruiting wood. Second, the soil in the border should be in a "workable" state at the time; that is, not to be excessively dry or wet. To proceed, mark a semi-circle on the soil around the base of tree at a reasonable distance and dig down to the drainage on this line, throwing the soil well out of the way; any roots encountered at this distance can be discarded. Now proceed to loosen the soil from the ball with a small digging fork, throwing it out of the bottom after it is loose. After the first trench is dug around the tree a spade or shovel should not be used again, excepting to throw out loose soil, or good roots are liable to be broken. Bad trees will be found to have strong roots right down to the drainage. These and others having a downward tendency must be worked up nearer to the surface. Bunch them up with a piece of raffia and sling them to the trellis out of the way. It is of no use to half-do young trees; get right under them. When the ball has been reduced sufficiently to allow of tunneling under, do one half first and pack it up again, which will prevent the ball from breaking. If your border is too dry to work properly, here's where you get your trouble. With cross-trellis trees it will be necessary to do both sides of the trellis alike, and to be sure the tree has been properly got under, at the time of starting to replace the soil on the first side, push two or three yellow leaves to the back of the ball which will serve as markers when working on the opposite side. Fill in some of the bottom soil before replacing any roots; this and all the soil must be rammed quite firm as it is replaced. The actual pruning of the roots is a simple job; use a sharp knife and always make a clean oblique upward cut. Experience is the best teacher as to how far to cut them back; be governed by the growth made. When replacing the roots see that they are all laid horizontally, spreading them evenly over the surface and taking care not to bunch them by carelessly throwing the soil on to them. Get them as near to within three inches of the surface as you can. Give the trees a soaking soon after the work is completed. This is a job which cannot be rushed; the man who tries to do so courts failure as it takes time to do it properly.

Melons in Pots

To keep up a continuous supply of melons throughout the year regular sowings should be made each month. For midwinter work pots are best used in preference to benches. The former have distinct advantages over the latter at this time of year. Each plant is under separate control and they also dry out much more quickly, making it easier to finish the fruit. The sowings made about the 1st of December can be the first for bench work. Sow the seeds in three-inch pots and cover them over with a sheet of glass. This will help to keep the soil moist after they are watered in and also be the best preventive against the ravages of vermin. If there are any around they will soon find melon seeds and give them small show after the first night. As many as forty seeds have been known to disappear in one night.

When the seedlings have nicely filled the threes out with roots, move them on into sixes, from which they should go to the finals. These should be not less than fourteen-inch. Use a good open compost and make it moderately firm with the rammer. Keep the base of the stem nearly as high as the sides of the pot; this keeps it out of the water and is a preventive to canker. It will pay better to be satisfied with one good fruit off each plant than to have several small half-finished fruits.

Radishes

Radishes are one of the quickest vegetables to give returns and are easily grown. They utilize very little space or can be grown between other crops without injury to either. Sown between spinach they are pulled before either is crowded. If young lettuce are transferred to the benches when small, radishes will mature before they are in the way. Given a bench to themselves they can be sown broadcast in rows. If the latter way is used make the rows about four inches apart.

Lettuce

Plants growing in the cold frames will now have good heads on them and should be kept cool. Remove the sashes soon after the sun raises the temperature to 45 degrees and do not put them on in the afternoon so long as the sun is shining and the temperature does not recede below the previous figure. When watering do so in the morning or early enough in the afternoon so that the plants can be dry before night time. Younger plants coming on in the vegetable house will need to have the surface soil continually broken up to admit air to the roots.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Liquid Manure and Mulching

Which one of the above is the better, largely depends on the place, houses, benches, location, variety of roses grown, and—last and most important of all—the growers themselves. We do not favor a very heavy mulch by any means, and the way mulch is applied in some places is a discredit to the managers, for a large portion of this manure is wasted—waste pure and simple—for roses, no matter how freely growing, will take only a certain amount of nourishment and no more. The successful growers know about how much this is and then they apply no more. Good cow manure is expensive, so the less wasted the better.

A very heavy mulch applied now is not a good idea by any means. The fall is bound to have more or less dark weather and with a heavy mulch on the benches you will have all sorts of trouble to dry out the soil. This especially applies to places where six or more inches of soil were used. We would never recommend more than four inches and, to go further, we grow extra good Beauties in less. With six or seven inches of soil and an inch or two of mulch on top of that, a man has something to worry about, if a month of dark weather strikes his place.

With us, for instance, where we have little soil in the benches (and that well prepared) and use only enough mulch to afford protection to the roots, things are a little different. Instead of using heavy mulching we prefer to use a little liquid manure to supply all necessary nourishment the plants may require. A little bone-meal is also applied now and then; only a little at a time and always just before watering. Before applying liquid manure always make sure that all plants are plenty wet enough. Better water them all with clear water first and then apply just enough liquid manure to saturate the soil. In watering with clear water, use plenty of it and soak the benches thoroughly. We find we can control the plants much easier with little soil, little mulch and liquid manure. We go over the benches as often as necessary and cover over the bare soil. Thus the front row on front bench will at times receive a mulch two or three times while the back bench in the same house will receive only one mulch. This is the only way to do, too, as mulch is consumed much quicker along the front of the benches and the plants would suffer if not mulched and the back rows again would suffer if mulched, so there you are.

With Killarneys, Radiance and a few more of the free growers we prefer liquid manure alone, using a coarse mulch of one-half sod and one-half manure. Mind now we did not say soil, but sod; soil would not be as appropriate. This mulch is applied about now and the liquid manure is given the plants and plenty of it, too. Of course when the plants are cutting heavily or when buds begin to show color it is unwise to use liquid. But if the plants are growing freely little harm can result if liquid is properly applied.

Green Fly

We have not seen one for so long that we came near almost forgetting that such a desperado exists. Watch your plants closely and do not let Mr. Green Fly put in an appearance for he delights in bringing on all his cousins, etc., and once established they may cause you some trouble, for law cannot compel them to move out. There are many good insecticides in the market, some of the best being advertised regularly in HORTICULTURE, that will make short work of greenfly and any other insect. We find cyanide of potassium as good as anything and very simple, although it has to be used with great care. The amount to use depends largely on the brand of cyanide you wish to use, the condition of the growth and atmosphere. The best brand that has so far come to our notice is the Merck 98 to 100 per cent. pure. Two ounces of this in a tight house of about 42,000 cubic feet will destroy every green fly visible. Of course no doubt atmospheric conditions have a good deal to do with its effectiveness. A house is never so air tight as it is when it is raining and that is the time to use gas or to fumigate, providing of course the houses are low enough, say 66 or so. Well experienced growers who knew their plants can often use gas or fumigate when house stands 70 or a little more, but our advice is never to attempt fumigation of any kind unless the house is below 70 degrees F, and the lower it is the better.

Disbudding

Keep right after this all the time. Have regular days each week for the men to do this and then it will never be neglected. Those little side-shoots certainly do take strength away, so get rid of them.

Regulating Temperature in Houses

Sometimes it happens that even with the best of care the houses will run up in temperature too high above the normal mark. It is here where the skill of the grower plays an important part. Do not become worried or excited and lift the ventilators so that houses come down at once, usually too low. Put a little air on and very slowly increase this so that houses take at least an hour to drop back to their normal temperature. Remember sudden changes of temperature mean mildew.

Cheaper flowers.
How?
No argument or demonstration is needed to convince the readers of this paper that the cost of fitting up and conducting a retail flower store is today very much greater than it was a few years ago. Ice boxes, mirrors, tiled windows, electric lighting and other furnishings of the average flower establishment are only a part of the luxurious outfit which one must have in order to compete successfully for trade. Auto delivery cars, uniformed messengers, fancy boxes, stationery, etc., all help to make the expense account such as would have appalled even the most ambitious a few years back. All this has to be covered in by the selling profit. With the cost of doing business so much increased and salaries and the "cost of living" advanced in equal degree we can't see much encouragement for those who are constantly clamoring that the public should get their flowers from these stores at lower prices. Indeed flowers are one of the very few commodities on which prices have not advanced in recent years. If they are to be sold at a still lower figure it must be by means of some much less costly medium than the up-to-date city flower store.

Worthy novelties
In favor
The eagerness with which any worthy novelty in flowers is now welcomed by the retail florist trade is one of the most gratifying signs of the times and that the producers are ready with an enthusiastic response to this encouragement so long denied them, is the natural result. For many years the rather antagonistic attitude of the influential retailer often acted as a deterrent to any great investment of enterprise in the introduction of new varieties. Now, the reverse is true and the man with novelties in any line is the one most sought after. And all this is advancement in the right direction and a good thing for the flower trade. Of course the "novelties" must be novelties in fact and not merely counterparts of things already common or already discarded as unworthy. The sacrifice of the goose that laid the golden eggs will again be repeated if "progressive principles" are not strictly adhered to by the introducers. As a check upon the indiscriminate dissemination of things of unproven value the various special societies are doing a great service to the trade. There may be an occasional exception, but it will be prudent to assume that a seedling rose, carnation, chrysanthemum, dahlia, sweet pea or peony introduction which cannot show credentials from its respective society usually belongs in the discard.

Imitation versus real flowers
Our horticultural friends across the Atlantic are somewhat worked up about the increasing popularity of artificial flowers and the willingness of florists to sell them. In this country the problem is by no means a new one and the increasing skill shown in the production of these imitation flowers should not be underestimated. It must be admitted, however, as we have before remarked, that the artificial flower has its place and an unqualified denunciation of it by the grower of fresh goods would hardly serve any good purpose. The sinning which we all can consistently condemn is its use as a substitute for the real thing where the latter can and should properly be used. Fresh flowers in a ladies' hat are as impracticable as a bridal bouquet in cloth imitation would be abominable. Last winter it was quite a common thing to see on Broadway silk cattleyas worn as corsage adornment, but everybody could see they were imitations and on freezing days when fresh flowers could not be worn we must admit there was some common-sense in the practice. "The eternal fitness of things" is a good standard to have in mind. Any florist who would encourage the use of artificial flowers as substitutes for the genuine when the latter would be practicable and fit is a proper subject for censure, but there are plenty of uses for the former and the more nearly perfect they are made the better we enjoy seeing them. Let us be careful not to stand up so straight that we tumble over backwards.

THE GREAT NEW ROSE MRS. CHARLES RUSSELL.

We had the pleasure of paying a visit of inspection under the sheltering care of P. Welch to the Waban Rose Conservatories on October 27th to see the great new rose Mrs. Chas. Russell, which is to be sent out next spring. Mr. Montgomery has some 20,000 plants of this and they are certainly a sight to warm the heart. It is a great rose in every way; big as American Beauty, and with as delightful and powerful fragrance; color a lighter shade of cerise which does not fade to blue, but turns a lighter rose as the flowers age; a splendid keeper; and last but not least will give four times as many flowers as Beauty. Mr. Montgomery certainly has a great thing in this and we expect there will be a rush for it not only among commercial growers, but by private gardeners also. The latter will find this a great substitute for Beauty which is very unsatisfactory to grow in limited quantity in a mixed collection—and no amount of explaining ever satisfies the employer for the lack of plenty of flowers of American Beauty from his conservatories.

Nearly all of the professional rosarians who have seen the rose have jumped to the conclusion that it has American Beauty blood in it; but this is not so—although the conclusion is a perfectly natural one from the general make-up of the rose. Mr. Montgomery has a rose stud book which gives all the ramifications of the various crosses and recrosses back to the commencement. Without going into the bewildering details of this stud book it may be stated in brief that the following well-known roses have all figured at one side or the other during the process of evolution: Marquis de Litta, Chateaufort, Testout, Climbing Belle Siebrecht and General McArthur. At no stage has American Beauty ever figured in the parentage.

One of the most remarkable things about the rose is its keeping qualities. This fact makes its popularity with the flower buying public an assured thing if there were nothing else. But when to this is added size, fragrance, and perfection in form and color the combination is irresistible. We predict a great future for the rose and feel glad that Mr. Montgomery has decided to give it to the world. This decision contrary to what most people imagine is rather against than in favor of the commercial side of the question. Many good judges and successful business men think the owners should keep the monopoly of this splendid thing and sell the flowers only. There is a good deal of truth in this and we are glad that so keen a business man as Mr. Montgomery has been able to place public spirit above the dollar and decided to let all the world share in his great "find."

A NEW BURPEE SWEET PEA.

BURPEE'S NEW WINTER FLOWERING SWEET PEA.

The accompanying engraving has been made from a photograph of one of W. Atlee Burpee's winter-flowering Spencer sweet peas as yet unnamed. The variety is an immense pink and white true winter-flowering variety in color similar to Blanche Ferry (Christmas Pink). As can be noted from the picture the flowers are beautifully waved in truest Spencer form, and the variety will be a decided acquisition to market growers.

CINCINNATI NOTES.

Thos. Windram has gone to the Lake Shore Ferneries, at Leesburg, Fla.

The Hill-Heller store held an exhibition from Thursday to Saturday of last week. It consisted principally of chrysanthemums.

E. G. Gillett is getting about by sheer grit and contrary to his physician's orders these days. On Saturday on his way home he turned his ankle and fractured a bone.

Albert McCullough returned from Florida the past week. J. Chas. McCullough was shot by an unknown person as he was alighting from a car in front of his office. The bullet took effect in his arm.

Visitors: Arthur Zirkman, representing M. Rice & Co.; Harry Tredway, Dayton, Ohio; Meyer Heller, New Castle, Ind.; and E. G. Hill, Fred Lemon, Earl Mann and H. Shephard of Richmond, Ind.

CO-OPERATIVE FLOWER MARKET.

The Co-operative Flower Market of Boston held their annual meeting and banquet at the American House Saturday, October 26, with about fifty stockholders present. The general routine of business was carried out and there were interesting speeches by several of the stockholders. The following board was elected: Donald Carmichael, treasurer; William Tailby, secretary; John McFarland, Ed. Wood, Robert Montgomery, Norris Comley, William Elliott, James Wheeler, L. E. Small. The president is yet to be elected. An invitation to unite with the Boston Flower Exchange in their move to Winthrop square was read and will be acted upon at a special meeting of the board on November 2. The financial report was read and proved very satisfactory. A dividend of 20 per cent. was declared with a good balance on hand. An orchestra from Joseph Brock & Sons furnished splendid music.

THE EXHIBITIONS

LENOX HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The first fall exhibition of the season opened in the Town Hall on Oct. 24th. The exhibition was well arranged, five groups on the main floor occupied the premier position, the intervening space being used to display the large vases of chrysanthemums. The judges were Wm. Kleinheinz, Thomas Logan, Jas. Stewart and A. E. Thatcher. The competition was very keen in the important classes. The groups were very pleasing and artistic, Fred Heeremans, superintendent for W. D. Sloane, winning the Breck silver cup with an effective and harmonious arrangement. Second prize to Allen Jenkins, superintendent to S. P. Schotter, using four cocos flexuosa, crotons and gloxinias in small pots arranged on a cork frame. Third prize to Ed. Jenkins, superintendent to Giraud Foster, a massive central column of foliage plants, edged with nerines, clerodendron fallax and Farleyense fern. The Boddington prize for orchid group was easily won by A. J. Loveless, superintendent to Mrs. Griswold; second to Fred Heeremans. The other orchid prizes were shared by A. H. Wingett, superintendent to Chas. Lanier; E. J. Norman, superintendent to Mrs. Westinghouse, and J. J. Donohue, superintendent to Mrs. Jesup. Thos. Proctor, superintendent to R. W. Paterson, staged a most interesting and educational orchid exhibit in a glass case, of seedling cattleyas. The large specimen chrysanthemums were probably the finest ever shown at Lenox. The C. S. A. cup brought out six competitors and was won by C. Carlquist, superintendent to Mrs. Winthrop, with superb Mrs. J. C. Neille. Second, Allen Jenkins, same variety, and third A. Loveless, with peerless Wm. Turner. For 24 distinct Fred Heeremans won with fine blooms. Second, Allen Jenkins, third, Ed. Jenkins. Twelve distinct fell to A. J. Loveless including the largest flower in the show, Wm. Turner (9 inches deep). The same exhibitor won a silver medal for new variety named Ursula Griswold, a sport from Etherington, color cream white. Thos. Proctor staged superb Wm. Duckham for six pink. The exhibition of vegetables is always a feature of great merit and rivalry. This year Fred Heeremans captured the silver cup donated by Mrs. Winthrop for collection of 18 varieties, with a superb display, closely followed by Ed. Jenkins and G. Thompson, superintendent to C. deHeredia, for 12 varieties. C. Carlquist won the president's cup and Allen Jenkins the Stumpp & Walter cup for six varieties. The single dishes of vegetables were of high order especially the onions and mushrooms. Ed. Jenkins won with fine bunches of well-shouldered Barbarosso grapes.

Trade Exhibits.

C. H. Totty staged a fine exhibit of new novelty chrysanthemums and some well grown singles; also a large vase of his magnificent new rose, Mrs. Geo. Sawyer, which attracted much attention and won the society's diploma. Julius Rochrs Co. put up a table of choice exotics and orchids. Scott Bros. staged single and pompon chrysanthemums, also a good vase of their new carnation Wm. Eccles. Certificates of merit were awarded A. N. Pierson for new crimson rose Milady, and to J. D. Cockcroft for new carnation Northport.

TUXEDO HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The fall exhibition of this society was held in the ball room of the club house at Tuxedo Park on Oct. 25, 26 and 27. The exhibition was a decided success from every point of view, the exhibits were remarkably good, especially the bush and standard chrysanthemums shown by Mr. Richard Mortimer, Carl D. Schaeffer, gardener. They were the most observed in the whole exhibition. The groups of miscellaneous plants of Frank Tilford, G. G. Mason and others were excellent also, as were the many other ornamental foliage plants and ferns. The roses and carnations were above the average. The vegetables were nothing less than a revelation to the old timers familiar with the like of those seen at shows in this neighborhood some years ago. The table decorations were a credit to every one of those having a hand in their makeup. The fruit alone was below the standard of what might be expected after looking at the other exhibits. The judges were Messrs. Blair, Allen and MacKenzie.

There were many trade exhibits. Henry A. Dreer showed Adiantum Gloriosa, an easily grown fern of the Farleyense type. The whole stock was bought up in the exhibition hall. Chas. H. Totty showed that grand new rose Mrs. Sawyer. Scott Bros. showed their new red carnation, Wm. Eccles. Carl D. Schaeffer showed a seedling anemone chrysanthemum "Elenor" possessing many attractive qualities.

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At the meeting of Oct. 25th, two new members were elected, bringing the roster up to its highest point, namely, 208.

A handsome exhibition of chrysanthemums was made; J. Alfred Weber showing William Turner, white, and Mrs. C. H. Kelly, red, and Alfred Cebelius showing well-trained bush plants. T. B. Brown of Windsor staged two seedlings grown by him. George B. Baker, William H. MacKenzie and John Gerard acted as judges. They made awards as follows: Honorable mention to T. B. Brown for the seedlings; a first-class certificate to J. A. Weber for the cut blooms, and a cultural certificate for mushrooms; and a cultural certificate to Mr. Cebelius for the bush plants. The secretary, by request, read a magazine article by Dr. Edward F. Bigelow, entitled "The Perfections and Imperfections of Nature."

Mr. Gerard, in the general discussions, advocated the idea of our national government granting letters patent to the originators of new species of flowers, vegetables and fruits—a practice that obtains in all countries as regards mechanical inventions.

The next meeting, on Nov. 5th, will be "Chrysanthemum Night," and a fine exhibit of this favorite flower is expected.

GEORGE W. SMITH,
Secretary.

NASSAU COUNTY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Nassau County Horticultural Society held its exhibition at Pembroke Hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., on Oct. 29th and 30th. In addition to the regular classes there were 42 special classes. Mrs. Francis S. Smithers gave a silver cup for the best collection of hardy chrysanthemums, grown and flowered outside, not to exceed 50 varieties, Mrs. Herbert Lee Pratt a silver cup for the best table decoration, Mrs. James H. Ottley a cup for 18 pink Killarney roses, and among the other colonists who are offering awards are Mrs. John R. Maxwell, for a collection of outdoor flowers and six kinds of vegetables; Howard C. Smith, vase of eight chrysanthemums; Mrs. Henry W. J. Bucknall, for vase of six chrysanthemums, six varieties long stems; A. G. Hodenpyl, collection of eight vegetables. The judges were Robert Angus, William Duckham, John MacNicol, Howard Nichols.

MASSACHUSETTS AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

The annual exhibition of chrysanthemums and other flowers was given in French Hall at the college, Oct. 26th, under the direction of Prof. Edward A. White. The horticultural department showed 200 varieties of chrysanthemums, together with carnations, roses and violets. The competitive decorations of banquet tables was given, in which 16 members of the floriculture department competed. The judges were Mrs. K. L. Butterfield, Mrs. E. M. Whitcomb, Miss Mabel Whitman, Mrs. Anna P. See and Mrs. E. K. Eyerly, all of Amherst. The prize table was decorated in buff Peter Pan chrysanthemums with asparagus.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Englemann Botanical Club of St. Louis will hold its meeting November 11th in the lecture room of the Missouri Botanical Garden.

A paper on the retailing of cut flowers by Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind., will be read at the next meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club November 7.

The Retail Florists' Association of St. Louis held its meeting on last Monday night at the Washington Hotel. The entertainment committee made its report and it was decided to have a banquet early next month. All the officials were present.

"Bulb Culture in Open Border, Indoors and Greenhouses," was the subject of an interesting address by Prof. E. K. Thomas, of the Rhode Island State College, given at the regular meeting of the Rhode Island Horticulture Society on Oct. 16. There was a large attendance.

The Florists' Club of Washington will hold, on Nov. 4th, a meeting at 1214 F street, N. W., to discuss certain proposed amendments to the by-laws. Plans for an advertising scheme, previously announced, for the coming Thanksgiving Day trade will also be discussed.

The annual meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be held at the American Institute, 19-21 West Forty-fourth street, New York City, Wednesday, Nov. 6th, 1912, at 3 o'clock. This is the first day of the exhibition and a large attendance of the members is desired.

The officers of the St. Louis Florist Club held a meeting last week at Smith's wholesale house to arrange for the reception of President Vincent of the S. A. F. and to lay out a programme for the winter meetings of the club. The reports of this meeting will be read before the club on November 14th.

The next meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club will be held Thursday evening, November 7, at the Union Restaurant, 72 West Randolph street, Chicago, at 8 P. M. The club will then nominate its candidates for offices for the ensuing year in accordance with its new by-laws. The arrangements for Ladies' Night will be announced at this meeting. All members are earnestly requested to attend.

A meeting of the Lancaster Florists' Club, Lancaster, Pa., was held October 24th with an endeavor to get at the cost of our productions, which brought out a lively discussion, but not much in the way of practical results. Henry Rohrer gave a very interesting account of a trip through the West and his visits to various florists, among them

Breitmeyer's at Mt. Clemens, Mich., Van Bochove Bros., at Kalamazoo, Mich., E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., and others. The Board of Trade rooms were engaged as a meeting place for a year. Henry Rohrer exhibited some very fine chrysanthemums, as did Rudolph Nagle. An exhibit of chrysanthemums and carnations was also made by Mr. Spinner, gardener for the Locher estate.

BOSTON FLOWER EXCHANGE.

The annual meeting and banquet of the Boston Flower Exchange was held at the Quincy House, Boston, on October 26. The reception was held in the parlor at 6.30 with a large attendance. A fine orchestra furnished music. During the banquet an invitation to unite the two markets in the move to Winthrop square was read and a motion made and approved that the invitation be sent to the Cooperative Flower Market Committee then holding their meeting and banquet at the American House. A dividend of 10 per cent. was declared which might have been much larger but for the fact that funds will be needed for the prospective move. There was considerable argument about moving as the lease of the present market does not run out till June. It was decided to move in the early spring. The same board was elected with the addition of A. S. Parker of Stoneham, to replace Thomas Pegler. After the election there was an intermission during which solos by W. B. Goodnow and fine chorus singing was enjoyed. The affair broke up at 10.30 and all declared it was a very enjoyable evening.

SEED TRADE.

The seed trade of the old Bay State are law abiding people but they are wondering what's going to happen to them after January first next. The new law says that peas must be sixty pounds to the bushel. There is another law which says that thirty-two quarts make a bushel. Now, it is a well known fact that a bushel of wrinkled peas weighs only about fifty-six pounds and the question arises, which law are they to obey: the thirty-two quart law, or the sixty pound law. One Boston firm wrote to the sealer of weights and measures for instructions. All he got out of him was that the law would be enforced as writ. Which was highly illuminating. We await with interest to see how this queer mixup will work out.

Over in New York state they are worrying because the law says they must put on every packet the percentage of purity and germination and there are, of course, penalties if the said packet is found at any time or place afterwards and fails, which it assuredly would in time to the said percentage. Also how is a seedsman to know what happens to a packet after it leaves his hands. The legislators say we made the fertilizer folks do it, why not you seed folks. They forget that seeds are live entities like a horse or other live thing; and so one would ask a guarantee that a horse would not fall and break his leg or that a brick would not fall on his head and kill him the day after the sale. That would be going into the insurance business and would of course entail an insurance premium, and would enormously increase the cost of seed. A fine help that for the farmer!

A Boston seedsman asked the writer the other day: How is it that a wee country like Scotland looms up so big with its men at the head of affairs in the seed trade of the United States and Canada? We modestly opined that it must be because they were all smart, clever lads. But he wouldn't have it that they were any smarter or shrewder than the Yankee lads. Which is true. In fact more so. The secret of it lies probably in the apprentice system in vogue in the seed trade of Scotland. Most of the boys to begin with are from the country districts, sons of farmers or gardeners, and have the fundamental knowledge of common agricultural and horticultural things on which to lay a knowledge of the intricacies of the wider auxiliary profession. Such boys when given rotation in all branches of the business make as a rule better seedsmen than city boys of equal mental ability.

Oswego, N. Y.—Patrick Campbell, who has been in the florist business here for some years, will go into the moving picture show business. His flower store has been turned into a theatre.

Brunswick, Me.—Thomas Pegler, formerly manager of the Flower Growers' Sales Co., Boston, Mass., has leased a greenhouse and store on Jordan avenue and will probably build later for himself.

Frank J. Farney and Robert Shoch, traveling representatives of The House of Rice, are at home this week and both report excellent sales, and say that the florist trade everywhere is going to have a dandy season.

Lancaster, Pa.—At Albert M. Herr's carnations have been relegated to one large house for rooted cuttings. The other houses are all filled with stock plants of geraniums. He recently bought his father's place and erected one large house intended as a start for a range of cut flower houses.

NEW YORK NOTES.

The plant auction sales have been very poorly patronized by trade buyers this season.

A. F. Faulkner is once more a New Yorker, as local representative of one of our western contemporaries.

George M. Stumpp, who has been suffering from an attack of rheumatic gout for three weeks past, has now quite recovered.

The Flower Auction Co. report increased attendance at their sales day by day and that satisfactory prices are being realized.

A consignment of 7000 lily of the valley pips for the late firm of Rickards Bros. was sold at public auction on Oct. 29, bringing a very low price.

E. B. Sutton, formerly a well-known Babylon violet grower, but now retired, has suffered a second stroke of paralysis and his condition is serious.

Mrs. C. H. Totty of Madison, N. J., has been very seriously ill for the past week but reports from the hospital are now favorable for her speedy recovery.

We are very sorry to learn of the continued poor health of Mrs. J. Austin Shaw and the condition of her eyes, which it is feared will result in total blindness.

The examining committee of the New York Florists' Club visited the greenhouses of C. H. Totty at Madison, N. J., to inspect the new rose, Mrs. Sawyer, growing, and their report will be made at the November meeting of the club.

H. A. Bunyard is a candidate for the presidency of the N. Y. Florists' Club. Mr. Bunyard has been an indefatigable worker for the club in many positions and has won recognition by the hustle which he has put into every duty with which he has been entrusted.

B. S. Slinn has moved up one flight in the Coogan Bldg., W. 26th street, and is now on the same floor as Frank Millang and Phil Kessler, with ample room and facilities for the conduct of a big wholesale flower business. Up-Hudson violets are Mr. Slinn's stronghold.

The Hallowe'en poster sent out by the New York Florists' Club has proved a great and glorious success and undoubtedly helped much to increase the sale of flowers for that merry occasion. The next poster will be an original artistic production by Charles Livingstone Bull, and already a brisk advance call has developed.

Visitors—J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston; Carl von Dippe, Quedlinburg, Germany; W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

OUT OF THE GINGER JAR.

A visiting stranger familiar with the advertising methods in vogue among the retail florists of Philadelphia, New York and other cities, must be struck with the clean cut methods of the Boston retailers. Conspicuous among the many admirable stands Penn. Not only his store but the newspaper and billboard all attest the master hand. What we admire most is not only their instant appeal to the eye, but the good taste. There is so much back of them all—only suggested but suggested in the most emphatic way. The best window we saw in Boston was Carbone's. Chaste, lovely, suggestive, up-to-date, and not overdone. Inside this store was equally indicative of the master brain. Not an inch wasted. Every corner and the whole outfit appealing to the refined and aesthetic. Wax Bros., on Tremont street, also appealed to us as worthy of notice. Their symphony in yellow: roses, carnations, and chrysanthemums—a dream.

The catch-as-catch-can element in Boston retailing of flowers seems also well represented. In one place, twenty-five roses for fifty cents nicely arranged in a box, was a feature. There is no money in that, of course, but it is good advertising. Helps to counteract the yawns about high prices which the Sunday supplements are so fond of exploiting.

The Hallowe'en cards seen in all the flower stores were very attractive. We are told the S. A. F. publicity committee were responsible for these. If so, they have made a good beginning and are entitled to the backing of every retailer and grower. Wallace Pierson tells us the committee has elaborate plans under way for other special occasions during the year. P. Welch says: Make that Hallowe'en card twice as big next year. A good thought.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

CHICAGO NOTES.

Another new store this week at 3433 North avenue with Johansen & Cammen, proprietors.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. now have A. F. Longren and C. Pruner traveling for their supply department, the latter starting on his initial trip Sunday.

At E. H. Hunt's preparations are under way for moving the stock and packing equipment from the fifth floor to the rear of the main floor, where orders can be handled more expeditiously.

Miss Drake, daughter of W. H. Drake, of Kenosha, Wis., spent several days in Chicago getting new ideas for their store which they will again assume the management of, after having leased it for some time.

At the private conservatories of E. G. Uihline, 2041 Erving place, there is one of the largest collections of orchids to be found at any private place in this country. There are ten houses and the gardener, H. Skjoldager, has been in charge seventeen years. Some fine plants of the fantastic Acalypha Sanderii (Chenille plant) were also noted.

Visitors: August Kellner, Milwaukee, Wis.; Jas. A. Wilson, Des Moines, Iowa; Geo. F. Crabb, Grand Rapids, Mich.

PROVIDENCE NOTES.

E. E. Howard, proprietor of the Eden Park Nursery is building a house 28x50.

William Cohen, employed for some years by William Hoffman of Pawtucket, is working for Joseph Kopelman on Washington street. Maurice Miller has accepted a position with Mr. Hoffman.

Visitor: E. Buchanan, proprietor of the Blue Bell Greenhouses.

MADISON, N. J.

Obituary.

R. G. Pierce.

After a long illness, R. G. Pierce, florist, 810 Summit street, Oregon City, Ore., died on Oct. 12, aged 63 years. He was a native of New Jersey.

William F. A. Kendel.

William F. A. Kendel, younger member of the firm of A. C. Kendel, seedsman, 2010 Central avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, died on October 22. The business will be continued by C. E. Kendel without change of name.

Charles W. Reimers.

On Oct. 15, Charles W. Reimers, florist, of Louisville, Ky., died after several months illness, aged 60 years. He was born in New York and had lived in Louisville for about forty years. His wife and one brother survive him.

L. P. Walz.

L. P. Walz, manager of the Seattle Cut Flower Exchange, 1608 Second avenue, Seattle, Wash., died suddenly on Oct. 16, aged 53 years. He was manager of the H. Harrington Co. where they first began business and later opened a store on Second avenue.

August Balluf.

August Balluf, associated with the Chicago trade in various capacities for a number of years, passed away at Cook County Hospital, October 23rd. The funeral took place from the Western Casket Co.'s rooms, October 25th and interment was in Oakwood's Cemetery. He leaves a wife and two sons.

John Spinier.

By the death of this gentleman the country loses one who has done a great work among the school children. In 1896 he joined the Agricultural Department of Cornell University. Since then he has been engaged in his work amongst the children. Nature study classes were introduced into the public schools mainly through his efforts. His death occurred at the Ithaca Hospital on Oct. 24th.

DETROIT NOTES.

John Breitmeyer's Sons have out invitations for their annual fall opening and chrysanthemum show, November 7 and 8.

Trade is moving along nicely and all branches of the retailers' work are liberally patronized. The automobile has discredited a most valuable decorative material because everybody seems to journey in the country to gather fall foliage.

We all regret to see Mr. Davis, for many years head gardener of the large Newberry estate, leave us, because of the great work his untiring energy has done for horticulture and the local club. He will go to Sidney, Australia to found a new home.

Hallowe'en has brought out many attractive window decorations. Somewhat different from others is the window of Mr. Fettes, who after arranging a background of corn, has a number of pumpkins cut out in various forms. These are lit up and decorated with corn in the shock and fruits of all kinds, producing very artistic arrangements.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Fred H. Kramer has returned from a business trip to New York.

Thousands of people are this week visiting the propagating gardens of the Department of Agriculture. Over 160 varieties of chrysanthemums are being shown, among them several new ones.

The Pennock-Meehan Company's new building at 1216 H street, N. W., has been completed and the firm is this week taking possession of it.

Gude Bros. Company have purchased a large tract of land at Mt. Olivet and Bladensburg roads, immediately adjoining the property they purchased some years ago from the American Rose Company. On the new property is a 12-room house, which will be occupied by the superintendent, and a large power house. In addition, greenhouses will be erected for the growing of roses.

The newly established horticultural board of the Department of Agriculture, is holding hearings at which a number of New England nurserymen are appearing, with a view to deciding whether or not the shipment of Christmas trees into adjacent states will cause a spread of the gypsy and brown-tail moth and other plagues, and to formulate certain domestic quarantine laws and rules that will tend to minimize such dangers.

Several untimely frosts in Belgium have badly injured the azalea buds and incoming shipments are much reduced in consequence. Some growers managed to give adequate protection to their plants but, on the whole, no salable stock is left anywhere for the late comers.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

$8.00-25.00 per 100.

Our growers are strong on the mid-season varieties, and they include all the best of the season.

Pompons

$3.00, $5.00 per dozen bunches. In great variety of colors. Liberal sized bunches.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON The market has been well stocked with nearly everything this week. Roses are plentiful and cheap, the best sellers being Killarney Queen and double White Killarney, Russell and Cardinal. Lily of the valley is selling well. Carnations are of good quality, stems longer, flowers larger, and demand good. Violets are plentiful, both single and double. Chrysanthemums are in excellent condition and of fine quality, Bonnaffon being most in demand.

BUFFALO Fall business was going at a good clip until Wednesday last when a cold drizzling rain set in for three days and gave a set-back. The merchants having no buying spirit it was up to the wholesaler to carry a little surplus for the time being, especially in the rose line which saw a good adding up. Chrysanthemums were not too plentiful and there was very little to carry along except cleanings of the early varieties. Bonnaffon is bad, also Josephine, and yellow were in fair supply. Mrs. Weeks was in poor quality, Halliday almost gone, white and pink Ivory coming on though small and the best pink being Pacific Supreme. Pompoms are in good supply, fine varieties and have moved satisfactory. There are still dahlias and cosmos, but demand is lacking. Other stock plentiful and no shortage exists. Violets had no life and remained with the merchants.

CHICAGO Warm Indian summer weather prevails and stock is being hurried on rapidly. Chrysanthemums are in the lead with many wholesalers and for the first time this season the supply has been equal to the demand. All the mid-season varieties are now in and the pompoms are coming in quantity. These are growing in favor each year, retailers claiming they are easier to sell than the larger blooms for they can be used in so many more ways. Beauties are not bringing so high a price as last week. All kinds of roses are to be had in sufficient quantity and carnations may be safely relied upon to fill the largest orders. Eastern violets are naturally affected by the warm weather and shipments are more or less affected. Vines are in remarkably good condition out of doors, no killing frost having occurred at this writing.

CINCINNATI The various decorations at the cemeteries for All Saints' and All Souls' Day brought with it a demand that was much better than at any time during the past fortnight. Many of the growers who cater to the trade at these cemeteries on these particular days have held their stock for the better prices there; as a result, the supply in the wholesale houses has been decreased to marketable proportions. This also served to make room for increased shipments of roses. These are in good supply and of A1 quality. The offering in each variety is complete in every respect. Chrysanthemums now enjoy the active demand. Good, medium-sized stock has no trouble in finding a market. Among the other flowers now offered are callas and double violets. As a whole, business is more satisfactory, with prospects of it continuing to hold up nicely.

WASHINGTON There is plenty of stock in the market, of all kinds but there is little or no demand for the greater part of it. The several large football games held here weekly are increasing the demand for chrysanthemums.

There is a decided change for the better in the market this week. There is not that great surplus of almost everything that has had to be recorded of late, and although prices have not much advanced our wholesale men seem to be altogether on better terms with themselves. Trade in the retail stores is now brisk owing no doubt to the return from the country and abroad of many New Yorkers.

The past week has been a fairly satisfactory one taking into consideration the time of the year.

Beauties not very plentiful and selling up in good shape; prices holding firm. Richmonds more plentiful, quality good. Killarneys very plentiful and quality of some is very good while there is also some poor stock coming in. The color the last few days has been off quite a little, the Marylands being much better color than the Pink Killarneys. White Killarneys are very good particularly the Double White, which have been showing up as fine as at any time so far this season. Taft is still selling well, probably better than any other one rose coming to the Philadelphia market. The yellows, particularly Sunburst, are selling in good shape. Sunburst is a very promising rose and is meeting with universal favor with the retailers, although the others, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Hillingdon are holding their own and selling well. Irish Fire Flame as a novelty is a decided success.

Carnations are moving in fair shape prices low, quality probably not as good as it should be at this time of the year on account of the warm weather which we have had. Stems on a good many varieties are quite short, in fact, shorter than they should be, the Wards and Pink Delight being about the only good long stemmed ones.

Gardenias are in much shorter supply than they were a couple of weeks ago. Lily of the valley is still plentiful but moving well.

Cattleyas are very plentiful and prices low although at times there are big quantities being used but these large orders do not seem to keep down the supply. Good white orchids are selling right up. There are also some Phalenopsis, Oncidium and a few Cypripediums.

Violets, both single and double, are becoming more plentiful, particularly the singles; quality of both good. Hudson River Violets are reaching the market in very good shape considering the weather we have been having.

The early chrysanthemums are practically all over and the mid-season varieties such as Bonnaffons, Charles Razer, Ivories and blooms of that character are now coming in. Bonnaffon is exceptionally good and bringing fair prices although no very fancy figures.

The wholesale market during the last week was in such a shape that any of the retailers could get any amount of stock they needed and at most reasonable prices. Business, too, was good with the retailers. There has been no clean-up reported of late as there was always plenty left over from the day before. Chrysanthemum blooms are coming in strong but the real fancies are not any too many. Roses are very much in evidence and are sold at low prices. Extra fancy hold up. Carnations are also a great many more than can be disposed of, the short stemmed stock are in the great majority. Lilies and lily of the valley are fine and in demand. The weather has been too rainy for fancy violets though they are in plenty just now. The market has a good stock of greens.

The Soft Brown Scale.

Coccus Hesperidum (Linn.).

It is probable that no other species of scale insects infests so many species of plants as this one. It is widely distributed, being found practically all over the world. The adult female varies somewhat in color from red brown to dark brown, or almost black. The insect is viviparous. The young after remaining under the body of the female for several days crawl out and establish themselves upon the leaves or stem. In greenhouses, breeding is continuous, several generations being produced in a year.

The scale is usually accompanied by a black fungus growth which grows upon the honey dew secreted by the insect, giving to the surface of the infested leaves a dirty appearance.

Some of the food plants are Begonias, Crotons, Palms, Ficus, Cyclamens, Anthuriums, all Citrus plants, Euonymus, Roses, etc. It is controlled by applications of soap solutions.

The Olive Scale.

Saissetia Olese (Bern.).

The Olive Scale is another very common species, although it does not have so many food plants as the former species. In warm climates it is an outdoor pest of Citrus plants, causing much injury to Citrus fruit in California and Florida.

In temperate regions it only occurs in greenhouses.

The Olive Scale is quite large, an adult female varying from a height of 1 to 3 mm.; length, $2\frac{1}{2}$ to $5\frac{1}{4}$ mm.; width, 2 to 4 mm. The color is dark brown to almost black. The female lays from 1000 to 2000 eggs and it usually requires nearly a year (about 10 months) to reach maturity. Similar to the Soft Brown Scale, this insect secretes honey dew which serves as a host for a sooty fungus, which develops on infested plants.

This scale attacks Citrus plants and palms, but will also be found on Oleander, Ficus, Euonymus, etc. It is likewise controlled in greenhouses by spraying or washing the infested plants with a strong, soapy solution.

The Oleander Scale.

Aspidiotus Hederae.

This is the most common of the armoured scale insects found upon greenhouse plants. Differing from the former scales, the insect itself is beneath a circular, slightly convex, pale-orange colored scale, made up of exuvia and molts given off by the insect. The scale is about a millimeter in length and width.

Eggs are deposited beneath the female scale, and hatch in a few hours, the young settling either on leaves or stems. The time required to complete its life history is about 80 days, so that in a greenhouse, several generations are produced within a year.

The Oleander Scale may be found attacking a variety of plants, including Oleander, Cycads, Palms, Citrus trees, Orchids, Cyclamens, etc. It is controlled by treating with a contact wash.

The Euonymus Scale.

Chionaspis Euonymi (Comstock).

This scale insect is the most serious

FOR SALE; several thousand feet of double thick greenhouse glass 10 x 15, second hand, clean and good as new; also one thousand feet 4 in. cast iron pipe and one Hitchings No. S-16 greenhouse boiler, very low price for cash and immediate delivery. F. E. Palmer, Brookline, Mass.

insect pest of the various species and varieties of Euonymus in the Eastern United States. In fact, these plants are so likely to be attacked by this pest that they are being abandoned for decoration plants by many gardeners. It is a greenhouse pest, only when some varieties of Euonymus are grown in pots or otherwise.

The scale of the female is dark brown, of heavy texture, convex and broader posteriorly. It is about 2 mm. in length. The insect is very prolific. Under outdoor conditions eggs hatch about May 15th to June 1st. There are at least two broods each season and a probable third one in Southern States or under greenhouse conditions.

It is best controlled by spraying with Kerosene Emulsion just as eggs are hatching.

The Circular Scale.

Chrysomphalus Aonidum (Linn.).

This is probably the most common armoured scale found in greenhouses. It is widely distributed; in semi-tropical regions it is a serious pest of outdoor plants.

An adult female scale is comparatively large, circular, quite convex with a nipple-like prominence in the center, which is grayish and surrounded by a reddish-brown ring. The young scale differs from the armoured scales in that it does not remain fixed after it begins secreting its scale covering. The life cycle of the insect may be completed under greenhouse conditions in from 60 to 70 days, therefore, there may be about six generations during a year. This scale attacks Palms, Cycads, Ficus, Oleander and Citrus plants. It is controlled by treatment with strong soapy solutions.

READ THIS

You will need to buy something this fall—stock, supplies, equipment, etc., for store or greenhouse. Look through the Buyers' Directory and List of Advertisers in this paper and you'll probably find what you want listed there. We are proud of the fact that HORTICULTURE is recognized as the best paper of its class in this country in quality of reading matter and also of the fact that it is coming to be acknowledged as the best advertising medium. The best friends of HORTICULTURE are those who buy from HORTICULTURE'S advertisers whenever possible and, in corresponding with the dealers always take the trifling trouble to refer to the paper. We have many such friends, otherwise our advertising columns would soon be deserted. Don't forget to do your part.

60 Years of Experience Goes Into Our Houses

You know experience is a sure teacher—also sometimes rather expensive. Inasmuch as we have so many years' experience in the greenhouse business and have such a reputation for fine, well built, enduring houses, then what's the use of experimenting with concerns and constructions that have limited experience and must of necessity be experimenting on you?

Do you want to be experimented on?
Of course you don't!

HITCHINGS & COMPANY

Spring and Louisa Sts., Elizabeth, N. J.

The SERVICE BUILDING is usually a source of great annoyance to the up-to-date gardener and it requires architectural ability to design appropriate Potting Houses that will add to the attractiveness of the Greenhouses. You will admit that this SERVICE BUILDING is unusually attractive. Its Old English Architecture is along the same lines as other buildings on this large estate; it is equipped with all modern improvements for the comfort of the gardener and his assistants and the connecting house, sixteen feet long (ample for Propagating purposes), prevents the shading of adjoining houses.

Will be glad to talk to you on the SERVICE BUILDING.

THE BEAUTIFUL SYMMETRY of lines ONLY secured in THE LUTON PATENTED CURVED EAVE IRON FRAME HOUSE is easily distinguishable. It is the ARTISTIC application to the small details that commands the attention of the most CRITICAL.

JUST note the construction of the HOOD over doorway. ITS SIMPLICITY and how IT HARMONIZES with the general appearance of the construction. THAT is only one of the details. Throughout the entire arrangement the same original mechanical ability is employed. THEN again this construction is patented, UNITED STATES PATENT NO. 902,155. A POSITIVE ASSURANCE of receiving the genuine successful CURVED EAVE. Write for more particulars.

The subjective mood, past perfect tense of the verb "to know" is responsible for a very large per cent. of failures. It goes something like this:

IF I HAD KNOWN.
IF THOU HAD KNOWN.
IF HE HAD KNOWN.

IF WE HAD KNOWN.
IF YOU HAD KNOWN.
IF THEY HAD KNOWN.

It's the saddest tense in all the business world, and is usually used as a result of careless consideration in beginning an undertaking.

To embark in the art of lily growing without protection as to quality of the bulbs you embark with, is like buying a ticket in a raffle—there's but one chance to win and many to lose. We know of no more undesirable investment than an undertaking in the lily growing business without such protection.

We reap what we sow—and generally a little bit more. Plant good bulbs and you will reap good results. Always buy the best you can get and you will always have the best average of results and profits. After all, it's the profit you are after—you are not in business to see how cheap you can conduct it—but to see how profitable you can make it. A good investment is a good speculation. BUY HORSESHOE BRAND BULBS.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Care of Amaryllis

Bulbs that are being given a rest should have the water withheld gradually until they are thoroughly ripened up. Do not hurry them by a rapid process of ripening, because it will only result in injury to the bulbs. It will not be necessary for them to lose all their foliage during this resting period, as vigorous bulbs will retain some of their leaves until they begin to start up again. When the bulk of their foliage has gone you should lay the pots on their sides in a nice dry place where the temperature will not fall below 50 degrees, which will give them their needed rest and also keep the original ball from becoming sour. In order to have fine flowers they should not be started before the first of January. Where you have a batch that has had a good season of rest and are now showing spikes, these can be given a bench well up to the glass in a house where the temperature runs from 60 to 65 degrees at night with a rise of from 10 to 15 degrees on sunny days. When they have made some top growth they can be given some liquid manure once a week.

Cattleya Trianae

Some species of cattleyas may have more showy flowers, but when it comes to furnishing through January, February and March your winter flowers of Cattleya Trianae make the pace. It behooves the grower to give them every attention from this out. Keep the night temperature as near 58 to 60 as possible during the next four months and from 70 to 75 on all bright days, but during dull weather 65 degrees will be about right. These orchids enjoy a location near the glass and all the direct sunlight that is possible from this out, so do not place them in some dark corner and expect them to do well. Give ventilation with care as they abhor anything like a stagnant air; of course you will have to be guided by the outside condition as to the quantity given. They should be carefully looked over every day and given water as needed, but remember it is better that they show a sign of dryness before giving them any water. Syringe overhead in the mornings of bright days and keep the floors and benches well damped. Look the plants over often and sponge for thrips and scale, as they soon accumulate.

Gladioli for Forcing

Such varieties as Colvillei, The Bride, Peach Blossom and Blushing Bride, as soon as they show a couple of inches of top growth, will be all right in a house where the temperature is kept about 50 degrees at night and from 10 to 15 degrees higher during the day with sun. Be careful to keep the flats at an even degree of moisture all the time. They like a syringing on bright mornings so as to allow the foliage to dry before nightfall. When they have made some growth you can apply liquid manure once a week, but discontinue entirely when the spikes begin to show color. Where you have bench space in chrysanthemum houses you can plant some of the large flowering gladioli such as America, Augusta, Mrs. Francis King, Shakespeare and May; these will all make excellent varieties for forcing. The old chrysanthemum soil can be used, spading it over and planting bulbs about a foot apart each way. Give water, air, and a temperature of from 45 to 50 degrees at night. Gladioli have become quite popular for winter decorative use, so it is well to start now and plant quite a few.

Easter Schizanthus

Schizanthus has now become a useful and popular Easter pot plant. Make a sowing now which will give fine strong plants by that date if grown along under proper conditions. Sow the seed in large shallow pans that are well drained. Make a compost of loam, leaf mold and sand, mix well and fill the pans to within an inch of the top and then sift some nice and fine for the top. Add this fine mixture until within half an inch of the top and press the surface smooth. Give the pans a good watering and, when drained, the seed can be sown, not too thickly, over the surface. Cover only slightly, placing a piece of glass over the pans and give them a house where they can have a temperature of about 55 degrees at night. The sun should not strike them until the seeds begin to germinate, when they will stand all the light and sun that they can get. When large enough pot off into small pots, using a rich soil and keep on shifting until they are in 7 or 8 inch pots, using a richer compost each time. Give water, air, and general attention and keep in a temperature of from 45 to 48 degrees at night.

Lilium speciosum

To have some lilies to come in before the outdoor beds begin to flower, by all means pot up a good batch of Lilium speciosum as soon as you can get them, for they will prove very useful in many ways. When potting allow a single bulb to a 6-inch pot, three bulbs to an 8-inch pot, and six bulbs to a 10-inch pot. These two last sizes are the best when growing for cutting. Use a fibrous soil well enriched with old manure, but be very careful not to use any fresh manure as it is liable to produce disease. Give plenty of drainage so the water will pass off freely. When they are potted give them a watering to settle the soil good and afterwards at no time must they be allowed to become dry at the roots, or overwatered either; avoid any extremes either way. They can be placed in any dry frostproof cellar or shed or placed outside in a cold frame and covered with about six inches of soil and as the weather becomes severe they should be covered with shutters or sash to prevent too hard freezing, as it is liable to break the pots. Look them over from time to time and when you see the growth appearing they should be housed in the coolest house you have.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Asparagus plumosus; Carnations; Begonia Gloire de Lorraine; Evergreens in Pots for Christmas; Freesias for Christmas; Paper White Narcissi.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Cleaning and Renovating Early Vinery

Immediately after the leaves have fallen in the early vinery the vines should be pruned and the wheels of the winter cleaning machinery set in motion, in the event of a start into growth to be made December 1st. When pruning young vines do not be in too great a hurry to have them fill up the house. It may seem a shame to cut away so many good looking eyes, but in the interest of the lasting constitution of the vines they must be sacrificed. The stronger the canes made, the more eyes may be left to grow the following year, but three to four feet should be the limit. Weak canes should be cut back shorter. Do not lose sight of the truth that "prevention is better than cure," which will remind one of bleeding vines last spring. The special preparation, "Styptic," which can be obtained from all seed stores, is the best thing to use. Varnish and shellac are used with variable success. It is essential that the whole cut be covered with the preparation, and a clean cut is the only way to insure this. Should a lateral have been broken off close to an eye, so that it is impossible to make a cut, saturate the broken end two or three times.

After pruning thoroughly, wash down the house—glass, woodwork, walls, etc.—everything which goes to make the interior of the house. Whale oil soap in solution will act both as an insecticide and soap. No corner should be overlooked or the main object of this work will be lost. Pests always seem to provide for the coming generation and leave behind enough to establish their "kingdom." This stock will receive a severe shakeup if the house is washed down from top to bottom, omitting no crevice or cavity which will harbor them. The washing and cleaning of the vines is even more important. If they were clean through the growing season, it will be sufficient to rub off all the loose bark you can with the hand. Dirty rods should receive a scraping with a hard piece of wood or blunt knife, but avoid the barbarous practice of scraping them down to the live bark. This is injurious. The outer barks of the vine are given for protection and so long as they are not loose nothing can be underneath them.

Winter Washes

Winter washes for vines are numerous and range from clear water to "adulterated mud." Forms of the latter which really are insecticides mixed into clay are sometimes advisable on real old vines having lots of holes to fill up and thus debar any bugs a hiding place next summer. For average rods which were fairly clean last season we use the old preparation "Gishursts' Compound." This is perfectly safe and does the work. Where red spider was prevalent mix a little sulphur into it, but in no case must it touch an eye.

The Border

Taking the work in rotation as it comes along we come last but not least to the border. Vines that are being built up may want an addition, others only a top dressing. Additions are similar to making new borders, which will be dealt with later. When top-dressing, first carefully remove the old mulch. If the roots have made their way into it, this may have to be done with the hands to avoid breaking them. If any top soil can be removed without damaging the roots do so with a small digging fork, leaving the surface loose to receive the top dressing, which should be of the very best loam, coarse bone meal and charcoal.

Where outside borders are in use it will now be necessary to protect them from the heavy rains and frosts. This is best accomplished by covering them with dry leaves two feet deep, and then placing some long straw manure over them to keep them in their place. Over the whole should be placed some waterproof material—sheet iron, tin, or wood to throw off the winter rains. The roots of vines cannot stand any very severe weather.

Strawberries to Winter Quarters

When there is danger of freezing the soil in strawberry pots they should be plunged or the majority will be broken by the expansion of the freezing earth. In states where cold is experienced to any degree provision should be made to have these packed away in cold frames so that additional protection can be given them in the severe weather. Secure a quantity of dry leaves when the lawns are being cleaned off and pack them around the pots, which should be placed close together. Make the whole thing solid so that the frost will not penetrate. As they are being packed away examine each crown and remove any side growths or suckers, as they only rob the crown and have to be removed later in the spring. Take care to have large labels placed so that there is no difficulty to distinguish the varieties. Should a spell of good weather set in the plants may need a watering after plunging.

Forcing Asparagus

Asparagus will force easily after a frost. A few roots can be lifted to have the full benefit of the first cold nights, but see that they do not get dry from exposure through the day. They will move much quicker if placed on a mild hot-bed. Any fine soil will do to cover the roots with; take care to get it down between them. Rough leaf soil will answer well to cover over the crowns as it is moist and offers no resistance to the young grass. Give a night temperature of 58 F. to 60 F. degrees with the usual advance by day and plenty of water.

Pinching Growth in Beauty Houses

Pinching in Beauty houses, like everything else, can be overdone and the result may be that the houses are crowded with wood, yet but little stuff is cut. We do not believe in no pinching at all, as it is absolutely necessary to pinch the growth at times to save the plants and keep them thriving. In many cases, especially in the late planted houses, short stuff that is now pinched will flower early in January and it is then when many of us need the roses.

Do not pinch out any buds that are of any size. Take only those that are about the size of a pea or those that are just beginning to show the bud. Any growth pinched after the bud is nearly developed will become hard and the chances are the break from that will hardly flower early enough to be worth the sacrifice. Then, too, a bud nearly developed will be cut in a few days and you can then look forward to two breaks instead of one.

Do not do any pinching where there is plenty of wood in the house. If this is done in such houses the plants will be benefited but very little and you less. Take a house where the plants are low and but little wood. Such a house will be greatly benefited by pinching all the short stuff as most of it will then run up into fancies and specials and be cut profitably.

Pinching Newly Set Growth

There are many theories about this and will no doubt continue to be, as long as there are different systems of growing Beauties. Many may claim that if they break the tops out of all the short growths now, the break ensuing from the top-most eye will run up a little way, then set and be in for Christmas. No doubt under certain conditions this would work beautifully, as it is but very seldom that a shoot with a joint in it does not set. Taking it as a rule, however, we would advise anyone taking or contemplating taking such a system as a standard, to give it a thorough tryout first, before working it on a large scale.

Those Little Black Spiders

It is very annoying at times to walk through the houses and have your face full of fine cobwebs all the time. We have often seen these so thick in the houses, that they become a regular nuisance. Cyanide will destroy the little black spiders that seem to be responsible for all this trouble, and where it can be used there is nothing else so effective. The little rascals are hidden in nooks and rooks where it is almost impossible to reach them with spray. Syringing will eventually clean them out, as a large number can be washed out, and syringing will knock them around so that life to them will be no pleasure. The simplest, and no doubt the best remedy of all, is bonemeal. Take a little bonemeal and screen it so it will run nicely through a pair of bellows. It should be perfectly dry, too, so as to dust well. This can be blown over the plants, and the little black rascals seem to vanish almost immediately after one or two good doses. Of course do not cover the plants an inch thick with the bonemeal, for it is a fertilizer and will likely burn the foliage if not used carefully.

Nitrate of Soda

Nitrate of soda is really a necessity in the growing of roses, and if used cautiously and with great care, it is a great help in lengthening the stems of the tea roses, and giving the Beauty foliage extra lustre, and promoting growth as well. In using, remember to use it more as a stimulant, and not as a plant food. In applying never use more than one six-inch pot full for 3000 plants, and never apply it more than once a week, depending of course, on the stage of growth the plants are in.

National Sweet Pea Society.

A very satisfactory report was presented at the annual meeting of this Society on October 17th. There are now over 1,200 members, and these include residents in Japan, Peru, Russia, Switzerland, France, Germany, Australia, New Zealand, Canada, South Africa and the United States. The Society is in a sound financial position. Arrangements had been made for holding next year the Society's trial at the Burbage Experimental Station, Hinckley. Sir George Trevelyan, Bart., was elected president; Edward Sherwood, treasurer; Herbert Smith, Birmingham, chairman of committee; and Chas. H. Curtis, secretary. Subsequently, a dinner and conference were held. At the latter a paper on "Rogues in Sweet Peas," was read by Major Hurst, the director of the Burbage Experimental Station, Hinckley. It was shown that a majority of the rogues which appear in a stock of sweet peas a second year are to a great extent due to cross-fertilization by some outside agency. This cross-fertilization occurs in this country on a rather large scale, although not so extensive as in California. The agency most largely responsible for cross-fertilization in this country is considered by Major Hurst to be the leaf-cutter bee, though weevils and blue tits were also considered to be possible agents. Apparently rogues due to various causes can be almost eliminated by breeding sweet peas on Mendelian lines. When this is done not more than five rogues per thousand are given.

New Chrysanthemums.

A batch of novelties recently received awards from the floral committee of the National Chrysanthemum Society. Toddles is a useful single variety, brilliant crimson, with a narrow yellow zone around the disc. This was shown by H. W. Thorp, Durrington, Worthing, Sussex. George Mileham, Leatherhead, Surrey, had a capital trio which were certificated. These were Hon. Mrs. John Ward, a sport from White Queen, primrose tint; Master Rex, bright amber Japanese; and Miss Joan Miller, rose pink Japanese, with silver reverse. Mrs. John Maher, a good Japanese white, was exhibited by Thomas Page, Hampton, Middlesex, and received a first-class certificate. Norman Davis, of Framfield, Sussex, received certificates for the following novelties: Sussex Yellow, bright yellow; Ideality, single white; Mrs. Loo Thomson, primrose sport from Mensa, a single; Charles Kingsley, rich yellow single. J. W. Streeter, also certificated, is a primrose yellow sport from H. W. Thorp. This was shown by Cragg, Harrison and Cragg, of Heston, Middlesex. Primrose Queen, for which Martin Silsbury, Sandown, Isle of Wight, received a certificate, is a bright yellow Japanese bloom. Commendations were made by the committee to the following: Vera Potterton, a pink Japanese, shown by Thomas Page; Phyllis Cragg, a light pink Japanese, shown by Cragg, Harrison and Cragg; White Beauty, a pure white single, shown by Philip Ladds, Swanley, Kent. host of new roses that are to supplant all the older favorites, because they are better in one or the other quality which the consumer approves or which brings the producer a surer and more ample compensation. The chrysanthemum grower or dealer cannot fail to note the trend to finer forms and more brilliant colors, particularly in the single and semi-double flowering varieties, so effective for decorative use in spray form and for which public appreciation is rapidly growing. And all this is an education, inspiring and profitable.

Evolution and elaboration of the flower show

Flower show promoters and managers all over the country seem to have come to a realization that, in these excitement-loving days, it takes more than liberal premium lists and gardeners' cultural achievements, essential as these unquestionably are, to make a popular success of an exhibition. What with elaborate floor plans, novel illumination, electric advertising, band music and singing, election bulletins, special free days for the aged and orphans, at Rochester; society patrons in continental garb, public christenings of new rose and new chrysanthemum, horticultural photographic contests, fancy stickers and other modern publicity methods, at St. Paul, we certainly have conspicuous examples of the new idea in flower show exploiting. In fact these are no longer mere flower shows but veritable fetes or festivals. Note in the exhibition just closed in San Francisco the many unique features, miniature landscape gardening, etc., all of which is declared to have produced a spectacle which in point of luxuriance and originality of design excelled anything of the kind ever seen in San Francisco. In all of these cases the daily newspapers gave freely of their best space to describe and picture the various scenes. If there is any spirit or local pride in a community, such enterprises will surely bring it out and floriculture moves up another step in the estimation of the people.

The only way out

It is too much to expect that any great striking increase in trade would immediately follow the initial publicity effort in a campaign such as has been inaugurated by the New York Florists' Club. It will take persistence and patience before conspicuous results will materialize. But the movement has been well managed and an excellent beginning has been made. Unfortunately the rank and file of the retail florists are reluctant to invest any effective amount in general and indirect advertising. They are, however, eager to take all possible advantage of whatever effort may be made in this direction by others as evidenced in the lively demand for the Hallowe'en window poster sent out by the New York Club and as, no doubt, will be again shown in the demand for the Thanksgiving poster which we illustrate elsewhere in this paper. Of course, the club cannot be expected to stand the very considerable cost of these things and if the system thus so hopefully inaugurated is to be carried forward to full efficiency the money must come from somewhere. As the original inciters in this movement which now promises to be country-wide we would reiterate our conviction, as before expressed, that the most of the burden must be assumed by the growers of plants and flowers. Any proposition otherwise would, unquestionably, be doomed from the start. This is the order of the day in many other lines of manufacture and it will be increasingly more so as time passes. It is "up to" the producer to put into operation the publicity which, under modern conditions, is so indispensable in creating a market for his goods. However hard the shoe may pinch it offers the most practical relief from the very unsatisfactory conditions which some of the large flower producing centres seem now called upon to face.

Useful object lessons

All roads lead to the exhibition hall in these early November days. For the observant visitor who goes to the shows with a desire to inform himself on the progress of his profession there will always be a few things that stand out convincingly among the great diversified mass of prize-winning material and which are bound to exert a strong influence on his mind and eventually on the lines of development in his business. No rose grower, for instance can contemplate the fall shows this year without feeling the conviction that the glorious Mrs. Shawyers and Mrs. Russells are the advance guard of a

NEW ENGLAND NURSERIES VINDICATED.

There has been a great deal of "scare talk" in the papers of late about a proposed quarantine in New England against the further spread of gypsy and brown-tail moths. On the 30th of October a hearing was held in Washington, D. C., which the writer attended. For the relief of the minds of the New England nurserymen as well as others who may be interested, I am writing these lines regarding the situation.

The New England nurserymen may rest assured that the Department at Washington will do nothing to place undue hardship upon their business. They are well satisfied with the thoroughness of the inspection made under the direction of Dr. H. T. Fernald in Massachusetts, which is at present the chief battle-ground. What they do want is to enlarge the scope of the inspection so as to include all material subject to infestation, such as telegraph poles, railroad ties, building material, Christmas trees and greens.

Every one at all conversant with the nursery situation in Massachusetts recognizes the fact that the chances of disseminating the pests by means of nursery stock are very small as compared with other means of distribution. It is these other means which are occupying the attention of the Federal authorities and which were the occasion of the call for the hearing of October 30th. That there may be no uncertainty about this, I wish to introduce remarks made by Dr. L. O. Howard, Chief of the United States Bureau of Entomology, at the hearing October 30th before the Federal Horticultural Board at Washington, D. C., as follows:

"Mr. Chairman, just a moment. I wish to go on record with the statement that three times, at least, I have visited Mr. —'s nurseries without his knowledge, or in his absence, and I have seen this careful State inspection going on. It is certainly done in a perfectly efficient way by a large and competent force. I feel so assured of the absolute reliability of this inspection that I wish it placed on the records of this meeting, that if I were a New York purchaser of nursery stock, I would buy my stock from these nurseries with the feeling that I would be quite as safe as I should if I were to order from an uninfested state."

These remarks were greeted by applause because they came so unexpectedly and were spoken with such sincerity. It was a great tribute to Dr. H. T. Fernald and his efficient lieutenants.

And what is true of the nurseries referred to is equally true of all others in the state over which Dr. Fernald has jurisdiction. Moreover, it was with no intention of comparison among the New England States that these remarks were made; but it happened that, at that time, the discussion was centered on Massachusetts. In justice to all concerned, let it be said that very little, if any, infection is to be found in other parts of New England where nurseries doing an interstate business are located. Let the general public rest assured that there is no occasion for undue alarm over the introduction of these pests by means of nursery stock from New England. Field inspection is made several times during the season, and when stock is brought to the packing-sheds it is again inspected, plant by plant, as a further precaution.

That these pests will ultimately get into every state in the Union, I have no doubt; it is only a matter of time. But it is automobiles, steam and electric cars, etc., that disseminate the gypsy moth and the winds that distribute the brown-tail. No amount of legislation can prevent the possibility of spreading them by these means. Ultimately, I predict that they will be found everywhere, but by that time we shall have lost our terror over them, for the parasites will have become so prevalent as to hold them in check. I predict that our children will regard these pests with far less alarm than do we of this generation. Fifteen years ago, the San Jose scale was regarded with more alarm than it is today, and yet, I regard the San Jose scale as the greater evil of the two. I know of no parasite which is holding that in check, as in the case of these moths.

In certain parts of Europe they have had these pests for centuries and yet they are given no more heed than is given in this country to the tent caterpillar. The parasitic life is there fully developed. It will be here in due course of time. Meanwhile, let us keep working at our task; for it is as true in the horticultural world as in the political that "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

W. H. WYMAN.

A VISIT TO ADRIAN, MICH.

Notwithstanding the heavy pressure of business 35 Detroit florists broke away from the daily turmoil and boarded a special Pullman car at 9 A. M., October 29th, to visit the well-known chrysanthemum specialist, Elmer D. Smith. Arriving there they found a similar number of visitors from Cleveland and Toledo, besides E. G. Hill of Richmond, Ind., and Mr. Karins of H. A. Dreer, Philadelphia.

These constituted a heavy line-up of very critical judges, but what they saw in novelties far surpassed their expectations and unanimous was their admiration of such things as Chrysolora which was voted the best ever. Smith Sensation, a silvery pink, Naamah, a large white, Roman Gold, a very fine yellow bronze all received points away up in the nineties. Ramapo, a large yellow, was also most favorably commented upon and really looked great just ready for a trip to the St. Paul show to gladden the hearts of visitors there.

While one could write for hours on the floral wonders housed at Mr. Smith's place we do not forget to mention the very aptly named straw-colored variety, Aesthetic.

While Mr. Graham of Cleveland most properly expressed the thanks of the visitors, E. G. Hill most aptly expressed the thought that the work of Mr. Smith in raising those superb novelties helps all of us to offer to the public not only new flowers, but we are enabled to create more artistic combinations which after all is the foundation upon which to build larger demand.

NEW ROSE MRS. CHARLES RUSSELL.

Our cover page this week is devoted to a portrait of the sterling new rose raised at and to be disseminated by Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass., and which under its designation as Mrs. Charles Russell has already attained a great popularity among the flower fanciers of Boston and also of New York. This rose, its origin, etc., was the subject of an interesting article by George C. Watson in our issue of last week and we would respectfully advise those of our readers who did not peruse it to do so as there is no question that this fine rose has a brilliant future as a profitable forcing rose and, in many respects, as a rival for American Beauty.

THE EXHIBITIONS

MORRIS COUNTY GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' SOCIETY.

The Madison (N. J.) Flower Show this year had some very noticeable features—it has had some every year. The judges were Wm. Turner, Eugene Dailledouze, and Albert Maillard, so everybody got what was coming to him. Chas. H. Totty's bank of bush chrysanthemums, perhaps a thousand of them, backed up by graceful palms, made the stage of the James Hall look like a fairyland. The musicians were hidden behind. The groups of chrysanthemum plants, foliage, and flowering plants, on a space of 50 square feet, were the best we ever had, in quality of flowers, and artistic arrangement. Harold B. Vyse was winner here. It was a close race, John Downing, Morris Plains, and A. A. Macdonald, Somerville, getting the other honors in the order mentioned. The vegetable classes had five entries, and all good. The Boddington prize was won by Robert Tyson, superintendent to Mrs. H. McK. Twombly, who was first with one of the most artistic exhibits ever shown here. A. A. Macdonald was second and James Fraser of Cedar Court, third. The Henderson prize was won by A. A. Macdonald. The display of single chrysanthemums was fine, especially the novelties of Totty. The table of orchids from Wm. Duckham, staged by John Dunn, was grand. John Jones of Convent had another table of them, splendidly arranged and of the highest grade. Lager & Hurrell's display of orchids in the novelties was most interesting. We had the following novelties in carnations and not a bad one in them: Wm. Eccles, from Scott Bros.; Enchantress Supreme, from Dailledouze Bros.; Matchless, from Cottage Gardens; and Northport, from J. D. Cockcroft; each had distinctive qualities. In roses, Totty's Mrs. Geo. Sawyer took the Badgley, Riedel & Meyer prize for the best vase in the show. A. N. Pierson's Milady took everybody's fancy and there was a hundred special features in smaller lines which space will not permit to mention.

The list of winners in the 76 regular classes included such well known experts as William Duckham of Madison, A. A. Macdonald of Somerville, C. H. Totty of Madison, Alex. Mackenzie, Harold B. Vyse, Ernest Wild, James Fraser, Edw. Reagan, Dudley Olcott, R. D. Foote, in cut chrysanthemums; L. A. Noe, L. M. Noe Estate, E. H. Behre, L. B. Coddington and others on roses; Wm. Duckham, C. H. Totty, Ernest Wild, S. M. and A. Colgate and others on carnations; Peter Duff, H. B. Vyse, A. A. Macdonald, and C. H. Totty on chrysanthemum plants; A. A. Macdonald and E. Reagan on hot-house grapes; Robert Tyson and Duke's Farm on vegetables.

NASSAU COUNTY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At the eighth annual exhibition of this society briefly described last week the two main floors of the large hall were well filled. Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., showed his new pink rose Mrs. Geo. Sawyer and was awarded a certificate of merit. Scott Bros.' Wm. Eccles carnations also received a certificate of merit as did J. D. Cockcroft's Northport. Julius Roehrs Co.

had a table of orchids which were greatly admired. The chrysanthemums of course were the chief attraction and the following varieties were best in their respective colors: White, Wm. Turner and Naomah; pink, Lady Hopetoun and L. Rosseau; yellow, Cheltoni and Mary Donnellan; crimson, Woodmason and Pockett's Crimson; any other color, Mary Mason. Woodmason carried off the honor for the largest bloom, 10 inches in diameter. The attendance was large on both days and the management are to be congratulated on the well arranged and successful exhibition.

Special Prizes.

Mrs. F. S. Smithers cup for hardy chrysanthemums and Bon Arbor Chemical prize for twelve blooms, Mrs. H. L. Pratt, gard. H. Gaut; Mrs. H. L. Pratt cup for table decoration, and Elmer D. Smith prize for chrysanthemum Artistic Queen to H. Ladew, gard. J. Adler; Stump & Walter cup, Burnett Bros.' prize and Mrs. J. R. Maxwell prizes for vegetables and Boddington prize for salads to A. G. Hodenpyl, gard. P. Patroccia; Mrs. J. H. Ottley cup for Killarney roses, Mrs. Maxwell prize for outdoor flowers, H. S. Shotwell and H. Schultz prizes for roses to Mrs. B. Stern, gard. W. D. Robinson. C. H. Totty prize for group of chrysanthemums, Titus & Bowne. Mrs. H. W. Bucknall, Weeber & Don. E. M. Underhill prizes for cut blooms, J. W. Gammack and F. B. Edmonds prizes for begonias, to Percy Chubb, gard. A. Mackenzie; Hitchings cup for plant group, M. Stapleton for bush chrysanthemum, and Roehrs prize for orchids to Capt. de Lamar, gard. P. Marshall; H. E. Smith prize for chrysanthemums, Peter Henderson & Co. prize for chrysanthemums arranged for effect, to J. H. Ottley, gard. Jas. MacDonald; Mrs. D. Burns prize for chrysanthemums to W. D. Guthrie, gard. H. Cliff; Vaughan prize for single chrysanthemums, Marshall prize for hardy do., and W. R. Kinnear prize for violets to John Pratt, gard. J. Everitt; Kohler prize for palm and Cottage Garden prize for carnations to F. S. Smithers, gard. V. Cleres. All the above named and others participated in the regular classes in number too numerous to mention.

CHRYSANTHEMUM NIGHT AT ITHACA.

Chrysanthemum Night was celebrated by the Horticultural Lazy Club of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University on the evening of November 4th. The meeting was held at the greenhouses of the horticultural department and the program consisted of the chrysanthemum news of the year by A. C. Hottes, '13; some of the older types of chrysanthemums, by Prof. A. C. Beal; chrysanthemum seedlings, by Miss L. A. Minns. Miss Minns had on exhibition some seedlings which she has raised from seed secured from several crosses made last year; M. Free, assistant gardener, spoke on the growing of chrysanthemums in England. The club then adjourned to inspect the beautiful display of blooms in the houses which had been lighted for the occasion. There were also on exhibition some of the newer varieties sent by Elmer D. Smith. Among these were Elberon, a seedling numbered 17-7-10, Smith's Sensation, Yonkers, Poughkeepsie, Tarrytown, Hirondele, Minta, Baby Marguerite, La Purete, Fairy Queen, Julia Lagravere, Mary Colladay, Anne, Sylvia Slade and Hilda Wells. Refreshments consisting of cider, doughnuts and apples were served. R. H. PATCH.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.

The November show of this Society was held in the Museum of Natural History on the 1st to 5th inst., and was without a doubt from all standpoints the finest and most satisfactory the Society has undertaken. In point of quality the exhibits were far above the average and competition was exceptionally keen, as many as fifteen exhibitors competing in one class. This is a step in the right direction, and with the thousands of visitors, who during the four days took such an interest in the magnificent display it should have good effect and be the means of giving that stimulus to horticulture which our societies are so much in need of. Chief interest was centered in the specimen bush chrysanthemums, which were the feature of the show. The three magnificent plants sent by Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, obtained first prizes in their respective classes and were also awarded a special gold medal. The varieties were Lady Lydia, white, Wells' Late Pink, and R. F. Felton, yellow. The latter plant was 11½ feet in diameter, surely a record for this or any other country! Grand plants also came from Samuel Untermeyer and W. B. Thompson, Yonkers. Of the latter gentleman it is interesting to note that although this is his first year of exhibiting he was successful in no less than nine classes, taking six firsts and three second prizes. Roses and carnations were largely shown and in excellent form, but the staging of many exhibits left much to be desired, the careless way the flowers were placed in the vases giving one the idea that they were there under protest.

The Exhibition Committee of the show were F. R. Pierson, chairman; George V. Nash, secretary; and T. A. Havemeyer, I. S. Hendrickson, J. E. Lager, J. A. Manda, John Canning, and James Stuart.

List of Awards.

In the bush plant classes, A. Lewisohn, Ardsley, gard. John Canning, won three 1sts and two 2nds, and the silver medal sweepstake for best plant in the show; S. Untermeyer, Yonkers, gard. W. H. Waite, six 1sts and three 2nds; W. B. Thompson, gard. R. L. Cushman, one 2nd; Geo. Schlegel, Bay Ridge, gard. S. G. Mulvey, two 1sts; C. Hathaway, E. Orange, N. J., gard. Max Schneider, one 2nd; H. M. Tilford, Tuxedo Park, gard. J. Tansey, one 1st; Mrs. Myron I. Borg, Stamford, Conn., gard. Jas. Aitchison, one 2nd. In the cut bloom section for commercial growers, the class for vase of 25 arranged for effect was won by Traendly & Schenck, and the silver medal for six new varieties not in commerce was won by C. H. Totty, the varieties being G. 40, incurved, red with yellow reverse; H. 10, light pink, curly petals; Gertrude Peers, reflexed dark red with bronze reverse; F. 83, an enormous broad petalled incurved, copper red with yellow reverse; Chicago, incurved dark red with yellow reverse; H. 3, lemon yellow reflexed. Other awards in this section were Traendly & Schenck, Rowayton, Conn., three 1sts.; C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., two 1sts., two 2nds.; Scott Bros., Elmsford, one each 1st and 2nd.; C. A. Rice, Roselle Park, N. J., one 2nd. In the non-commercial cut bloom section the principal winners were Miss M. P. Cockcroft, Saugatuck, Conn., gard. A. Peterson; W. B. Thompson; Mrs. W. E. S. Griswold, Lenox, Mass., gard. A. J. Lovelless; Miss C. A. Bliss, New Canaan, Conn., gard. J. T. Burns; Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaronck, gard. Jas. Stuart; Percy Chubb, Glen Cove, gard. Alex. McKenzie; H. L. Pratt, Glen Cove, gard. Henry Gant; Miss Blanche Potter, Ossining, gard. Geo. Wettlinger; Chas. Mallory, Portchester, gard. W. J. Sealey; Fred Sturgis, Fairfield, Conn., gard. Thos. Bell. In roses there were five classes of fifty blooms for commercial and five of lesser number for non-commercial, besides a gold medal for new variety not in commerce. The medal was worthily won by C. H. Totty with Mrs. Shawyer. The winners in the other classes included L. A. Noe, F. R. Pierson Co., L. B. Coddington, Traendly & Schenck in commercial, and H. M. Tilford, Mrs. F. A. Constable, W. B. Thompson and S. Untermeyer in private classes. The carnation classes were divided in like manner, the winners being Traendly & Schenck with four 1sts and a silver medal for best vase; Scott Bros., J. D. Cockcroft and Cottage Gardens Co. in commercial, and Miss C. A. Bliss, four 1sts and a bronze medal for best vase; H. M. Tilford, F. R. Newbold, Mrs. Griswold, Jas. A. Macdonald and W. A. Henry in private classes. In foliage and decorative plants, open to all, S. Untermeyer, Julius Roehrs Co., Miss Potter, W. B. Thompson, A. Lewisohn, F. R. Pierson Co., all sported 1st prizes, and in orchid plants Lager & Hurrell secured six 1sts; Julius Roehrs Co., one. In non-commercial orchids, S. Untermeyer won the majority of the prizes. In cut orchids, Jos. A. Manda won the prize for collection beautifully banked in moss, and Lager & Hurrell for cypripediums. In the non-commercial the winners were exhibitors previously mentioned, including Mrs. B. B. Tuttle, Naugatuck, Conn., gard. M. J. Pope. Mr. Pope also was given a silver medal for Odontoglossum grandiflora. Mr. Pope is HORTICULTURE'S special orchid contributor and recognized as one of the most skillful growers of this specialty. A fine display of dahlias was made by H. D. Darlington.

PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The big event of the year in Philadelphia horticulture is the Annual Fall Show. As usual this was held in Horticultural Hall, opening on Tuesday night and continuing until the evening of Friday. On the whole, it was a very creditable exhibition. The quality of the flowers and plants were fully up to the highest standards in cultural skill. The quantity may have fallen off a little from what it was last year—owing to the absence of several of the usual large regular exhibitors—chief among whom may be mentioned the Widener gardens. Family bereavement (the Titanic disaster) is responsible for the latter.

The arrangement and the decorations were beyond all praise, and the general effect produced was exceedingly artistic and effective. William Graham had charge of the decorations and he is a master hand. Raised platforms with seating capacity, ranged along the north and south sides of the hall. These had tall white pillars at intervals, entwined with bronze oak foliage and green wild smilax. From the tops of the pillars swung in graceful curves ropes carrying yellow Japanese lanterns enclosing electric globes. Back of all and higher up in the niches were palms and evergreens. The stage was nicely arranged with palms and specimens of Ficus pandurata. In front of the stage was the Dreer collection of ornamental foliage plants, conspicuous in which was a fine showing of the new Farleyense fern Glory of Mordrecht, and a nice lot of variegated pineapple.

The main hall was as usual devoted to the big specimen chrysanthemum plants of which there was a very good showing, indeed—better on the whole than we have seen for some time. Newbold, Sinnott, Hunter, and Pepper were the stars in this—and creditable showings were also made by Ellison and Eulalia. Two fine groups of foliage and flowering plants adorned each end, and reflected much credit on the Newbold and Pepper forces. The center of the hall was occupied by a large group of specimen crotons.

A big feature of the show was the orchid displays. Never have we had the pleasure of seeing anything richer, rarer or more varied. And never have we seen greater artistic skill in the arrangement and staging—at least not in Philadelphia. The great National Show in Boston excepted, however, the general excellence has never to our knowledge been surpassed in this country. Louis Burk was the bright particular star—and surpassed even his last year's splendid record. Joseph Heacock made a great showing, as also did John Wanamaker. Last but not least came Alphonse Pericat with a beautiful and varied collection of new and rare varieties. These orchid displays were mostly in the main hall, although the beautiful Heacock exhibit was in the foyer among the specimen foliage plants; and another one was downstairs to the right of the entrance.

The specimen cut blooms of chrysanthemums were arranged mostly on the stairways and upper landings and passageways. Some magnificent flowers were shown, especially the three big vases, assorted colors, at the center and sides of the first landing where they were the cynosure of all eyes and attracted the greatest admiration. The much coveted honors in this contest went to the Countess Eulalia, and Clement B. Newbold, the president of the Society. Pepper came out on top with the best fifty, his varieties being Mary Mason, Wm. Duckham, Mrs. D. Syme, Glenview, Merza, R. Vallis, Fair Acres, Smith's Sensation, Beatrice May, and B. H. Bromhead. Wheeler had first in single stem, six-inch, yellow, and any other color. There were two exhibits of Lady Carmichael, but the show was about a week too early to see these at their best. Mrs. Frank Thomson was again on view, passee as ever. Not in it, any more, and distinctly an object lesson as to what not to grow. The writer knows perfectly well why the travesty is kept up; but the public does not, and an educational society should never give first prizes to poor flowers. What it should strive to do is encourage perfection not to try to galvanize dead horses.

In the lower hall were the seedsmen's and nurserymen's displays. Mitchell, Dreer and Waterer put up excellent exhibits of bulbs and sundries. Burpee, Mitchell and Meehan had fine showings of hardy chrysanthemums. Edward A. Stroud was also conspicuous in the hardy chrysanthemum exhibits—his showing being perhaps the largest, most varied and most beautiful of all the fine collections of this leading and growing popular class to be seen in the hall. Lord & Burham Co. put up one of their model greenhouses, which was an object lesson in completeness and finish; and Montagu Wright and his corps of assistants were kept busy demonstrating to a large and interested audience all the time.

Chas. H. Totty was on hand with a fine vase of the new rose Mrs. Shawyer; and nearby appeared Montgomery's Mrs. Chas. Russell, exhibited by the Pennock-Meehan Co., and a vase of Milady sent by the A. N. Pierson Co. Mr. Totty also had two fine carnations, Northport and Commodore, and a collection of hardy chrysanthemums. Frank Birnbrauer showed a beautiful vase of pink snapdragon, unusually fine for this season of the year.

The Moon Co. sent several big wagon loads of specimen evergreens; big and little; carefully named; carefully and artistically arranged about the entrances to the hall; a very beautiful and educative display. One of the conifer groups had five families and thirteen varieties; another eight families and twenty-six varieties. There were eleven varieties of spruce; nine varieties of juniper; and eleven varieties of pine. We consider this Moon showing one of the finest and most interesting features of the exhibition. The only improvement we could suggest would be to have the names stand out better so that each plant might be better identified.

There was an interesting display of amateur paintings of Mallow Marvels, for which Thomas Meehan & Sons had offered prizes.

We congratulate the officers of the Society, the committees, and the exhibitors; all of whom it is evident must have worked like beavers for weeks to produce this splendid show. It is a great credit to them all, individually and collectively.

G. C. WATSON.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

The Chrysanthemum Society of America held their exhibition at the Berkeley Lyceum, New York, on the 6th-8th insts. There was a very excellent collection of the gardeners' best efforts, the chrysanthemums being superb and compared very favorably with the giants at last week's big show. The specimen plants, standard and bush, made a grand show, and with the great size added to perfect color of the cut blooms the exhibition as a whole will not be surpassed this year. C. H. Totty of Madison took premier honors as prize winner and in a non-competitive group he staged upwards of 100 vases in variety. He was also showing the new rose Mrs. Shawyer, in its usual fine form. A. N. Pierson also put up a fine display of chrysanthemums with a centre vase of their new rose, Milady, not for competition. The other roses on show were Lady Alice Stanley from F. W. Vanderbilt, Hyde Park on Hudson, N. Y., Henry J. Allen, gard. Irish Fire Flame from S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, for distribution in spring of 1913. Mrs. Charles Russell from Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass., for distribution in spring of 1913; a creamy white sport from My Maryland from E. H. Behre, Madison, N. J., and Bulgarie, Sunburst and Radiance came from Traendly & Schenck, Rowayton, N. Y. This firm were also showing excellent examples of carnations Pink Delight, Mrs. C. W. Ward, White Perfection and the new Salmon Queen. Some of the finest chrysanthemums staged came from the amateurs, of whom the most successful were:

H. C. Gould, Port Washington, N. Y.; Mrs. S. J. Smith, New York, N. Y.

N. Y., gard. W. H. Macbean; George Schlegel, Bay Ridge, gard. Stephen Milloy; Mrs. J. Crosby Broom, Orange, N. J., gard. Peter Duff; Clarence C. Chapman, Oakland, N. Y., gard. Frank Black; Robert K. Scoville, Chapinville, Conn., gard. W. Angus; Percy Chubb, Glen Cove, L. I., gard. Alex. Mackenzie; C. K. G. Billings, Fort Washington, gard. Jas. Ball; Chas. Hathaway, Orange, N. J., gard. Max Schneider; Mrs. J. S. Lyle, Tenafly, gard. J. G. P. Kennedy; C. W. Harkness, Madison, N. J., gard. Ernest Wild; E. D. Adams, Rumson, N. J., gard. Geo. H. Hall; R. Mortimer, Tuxedo Park, N. Y., gard. C. D. Schaeffer; J. H. Otley, Glen Cove, L. I., gard. J. Macdonald; Harry E. Converse, Marion, Mass., gard. D. F. Roy; Paul Dana, Glen Cove, L. I., gard. J. F. Johnson; E. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., gard. P. W. Popp.

YONKERS (N. Y.) HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The exhibition of this Society was held on October 30, 31 and November 1st at the Armory and was a very pleasing success. The classes as a rule were well filled, and although the judges could never have been in any difficulty, the competition was, nevertheless, pretty keen. There is plenty of room in the Armory and the admirable way in which the exhibits were arranged so as to give the idea of a "full house" reflects great credit on Mr. Milliot and those who assisted him in the work. The most attractive features in the show were, of course, the chrysanthemums in pots and cut blooms. In the former for single specimen plants, Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y., gard. J. W. Canning, was first in the two classes, with Samuel Untermeyer, gard. W. H. Waite, second. For group of chrysanthemums and foliage plants, 50 square feet of space, W. B. Thompson, gard. R. L. Cushman, was an easy first. For 24 cut blooms, Mr. Untermeyer was well to the front with a grand lot of flowers, J. Eastman, Tarrytown, being second. For 12 blooms, Arthur Bodington's prize, Miss G. H. Dodge, Riverdale, N. Y., gard. Wm. Wright, was first, and M. L. Sand, Ardsley, gard. T. H. Lee, second. The best collection of pompons was staged by H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, gard. P. W. Popp, a tastefully arranged lot of good flowers, second going to C. Mallory, Portchester, gard. W. J. Scaley. A fine vase of American Beauty roses obtained the Macdonald silver cup for Mr. Untermeyer and Mr. Fred Potter was first for 12 whites, staging grand flowers of Kaiserin A. Victoria. The Stumpp & Walter cup, for vegetables, was won by S. L. Coster, Irvington, gard. Ed. Kane. The trade exhibits were from Julius Roehrs, orchids and foliage plants; Scott Bros., carnation Wm. Eccles; Chas. H. Totty, new rose Mrs. George Sawyer; Jas. Cockcroft, carnation Northport; Louis Milliot, palms; H. A. Dreer, Adiantum Farleyense gloriosa.

MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

As we go to press the annual chrysanthemum show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is just receiving its finishing touches at Horticultural Hall. With it is combined the Apple Show, which, in itself, is quite a drawing card. Both large halls are occupied by the floral display, which, by the way, is far from being an exclusive chrysanthemum show. The stupendous specimen plants that gave distinction to the Boston show in former years are no longer in evidence and the long ranks of specimen blooms are a memory only. In their place are other attractions, including the pretty single and semi-double chrysanthemums in their graceful sprays and pure colors and there are grand groups of decorative plants from the conservatories to fill the gap. Most noticeable are the efforts of the retail florists in their exemplification of floral decorative art. We are glad to see this new interest displayed by a section of the floral craft that, until now, held aloof, much to the disadvantage of their business progress. There are no less than eight dinner tables in competition and all are very elaborate and attractive. The yellow and bronze idea is in the majority by far, there being only two others—with the old favorite white anemone Merza for a central idea. There are also big baskets, four or five feet high, in competition and some of them displaying brilliant decorative skill. The prettiest effect in any of the work seems to be obtained by a combination of Major Bonnaffon with the yellow Baby Pompon chrysanthemum and ribbons to match. There is one very fine entry in the class for table of fruit arranged for effect. There are some fine orchid groups, that by Wheeler & Co. being beautifully arranged. Alex McKay shows some fine Lorraine begonias and George Melvin his new solanum. Two magnificent groups of stove and greenhouse plants by Ed. MacMulkin and W. W. Edgar Co. fill one side of the large exhibition hall. Thomas Roland's display of flowering plants—cyclamen, erica, celosias, begonias, etc., filling one entire end of the lecture hall is a striking feature. The only trained specimen chrysanthemum plants are from the T. E. Proctor estate, gard. James Marlborough.

NOTES.

In the great exhibition at San Francisco which closed on October 26th, the big winners in the trade were MacRorie-McLaren Company, Pelicano, Rossi & Co., Julius Eppstein, H. Plath and A. O. Stein. Golden Gate Park contributed a magnificent display of stove and greenhouse plants.

A very laudable innovation among several that have been put in operation for the St. Paul Flower Show this week is an Information Committee of ten members, who are on the floor at all times to answer questions by visitors regarding the variety, care, cultivation, etc., of the flowers and plants shown.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Minnesota State Florists' Association will give a banquet on Monday evening, November 11, in honor of visiting members of the trade.

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for the election of officers for the ensuing year will be held at Horticultural Hall, Boston, at 12 o'clock, noon, on Saturday, November 16, 1912. Also several proposed amendments to the by-laws are to be voted upon at this meeting. The voting will be by Australian ballot and the polls will be open continuously between the hours of 12, noon, and 4 in the afternoon. J. K. M. L. Farquhar is the regular nominee for the office of president and we hope his many friends will attend and roll up a big vote for him.

Clubs and Societies

FLORISTS' CLUB OF PHILADELPHIA.

The meeting of the club held on the 5th inst. was rather slimly attended on account of the flower show and election night. Only routine business was transacted. The following committees were appointed:

Club Room: Fred Hahman, D. T. Connor, J. Westcott, G. Burton, G. Craig.

Games: Andrew Graham, Jno. H. Dodds, U. G. Rowley, Theo. Shober.

Novelties: Robert Craig, E. A. Stroud, W. Kleinheinz, H. S. Betz, A. M. Campbell.

Essay: Edward Reid, E. A. Stroud, Alfred Burton.

Membership: H. F. Michell, Chas. E. Meehan, Arthur Niessen.

Exhibits: Robert Kift, A. Farenwald, John F. Sibson, Leo Niessen.

New Committee on Publicity: S. S. Pennock, Robert Kift, E. A. Wohlert, George C. Watson, Montagu C. Wright, Robert E. Pyle, E. A. Stroud, Parker Thayer Barnes, Robert Craig, Howard M. Earl, J. D. Eisele, C. H. Fox, A. M. Herr, Thos. B. Meehan, Adolph Muller, David Rust, S. S. Skidelsky, J. Otto Thilow.

S. S. Pennock as convener of the latter committee has issued a call to meet Monday, November 11, 3 P. M.

Ex-Mayor Smith was reported seriously ill and as this is the first fall show he has missed the club decided to send him a fine offering of flowers and the big official of the Scottish Rite Temple will take them down in his auto to Jersey on Wednesday. S. S. Pennock was entrusted with the duty of making up this token of goodwill and esteem for an old friend of the club and the society.

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The annual banquet and dance which will on this occasion celebrate the club's twenty-fifth anniversary, will be held at Horticultural Hall, Boston, on Monday evening, November 11, 1912, at 6 o'clock. There will be a fine array of speakers, including the Governor of Massachusetts and Mayor of Boston, in addition to many noted horticulturists from a distance. There will be a splendid entertainment, followed by a dance. There has already been a large sale of tickets, and any member who has not procured any should do so at once. As near as can be estimated, 300 will attend the banquet. Secure tickets from William Sim, H. H. Bartsch, P. M. Miller, William J. Patterson, W. J. Kennedy, Robert Cameron, Peter Fisher, S. J. Goddard, or Secretary W. N. Craig, North Easton, Mass.

Next Monday evening, November 11, will be Ladies' Night and Chrysanthemum Night at the New York Florists' Club. Frank H. Traendly will have charge of the catering and Charles Schenck will manage the vaudeville entertainment. The nominating committee will report lists of officers to be voted on at the December meeting, for 1913.

The forty-second annual meeting of the Michigan State Horticultural Society is to be held in Grand Rapids, November 12, 13, and 14. This date and place was selected so that the meeting might be held in conjunction with the apple show. The Michigan State Horticultural Society, like many others in the west is, practically, an organization in the interests of commercial fruit growing.

Washington vs. Baltimore.

The bowling team of the Florists' Club of Washington entertained a similar body representing the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore at supper on Wednesday of last week and thereafter treated them to a severe defeat when the two teams clashed on the alleys of the Rathskellar for a three-string series. The Baltimore aggregation consisted of Messrs. Boone, Perry, Moss, Bauer and Klotzer, who came over early in the day to take in the chrysanthemum show held last week by the Agricultural Department. Their opponents were Messrs. Cooke, Shaffer, Dalglish, Ernest and McLennan.

Notes.

The Chicago Florists' Club announces November 14th as Ladies' Night and promises a fine entertainment at the Hotel Sherman, free to all members whose dues are paid and their ladies.

The Cook County Florists' Association, Chicago, will give a reception and dance at Buch Temple, Chicago avenue and Clark street, on Dec. 4th, from eight till twelve o'clock. Tickets 50 cents each. Allie Zech, chairman of the sports committee, has the matter in charge and hints that there is a surprise in store for the ladies.

NEW YORK NOTES.

A letter from Julius Roehrs, Sr., who is in Trinidad, states that he is feeling fine, but that the weather is uncomfortably hot there.

George Ditzenberg of the Woodcliffe Floral Co., N. J., is dangerously ill in the hospital at Hackensack, suffering from a serious malady.

Charles Thorley has closed up his branch store on West 28th street but has taken a store in West 29th street which he will use for receiving department, stock room, etc.

Peter Henderson & Co. are making elaborate preparations for their large exhibit at the National Flower Show and will have a display that will cause a sensation.

August Jurgens, the well-known florist of Chicago, was in New York last week as a witness in the case of the Federal Government against several forwarding agents of Chicago, charged with receiving rebates from the B. & O. R. R. on shipments of imported merchandise. It will interest some of our western readers who were fleeced by these custom house brokers to know that they pleaded guilty and were sentenced to one day's imprisonment and fines from $1,000 to $2,000.

Very few florists in large cities have the facilities and advantages that Geo. M. Stumpp enjoys in the possession of over an acre of ground with greenhouses and frames, on East 67th street. Here are raised much of the plant stock, ferns, young palms, etc., for the demands of his large store at Fifth avenue and 58th street. The palm houses are at present filled with prime decorative stock, including specimen palms of large size and superb quality. An interesting and very pretty little novelty for this season is some standard thymus in 3-inch pots in exact miniature of standard bay trees. These little gems which are about ten or twelve inches high, Mr. Stumpp says were grown from cuttings made last spring. They have been selling at $3 apiece!

Accident to J. Chas. McCullough.

We desire to correct an error that has appeared in several papers; the impression was given out that J. Charles McCullough, seedsman, Cincinnati, was shot while in front of his office. As a matter of fact, Mr. McCullough was on the Zoo-Eden Park street car, returning to the office, just ready to leave the car, when a revolver in some one's pocket was accidentally discharged, the bullet going through the fleshy part of the right forearm, just below the elbow, not injuring any of the bones. Mr. McCullough was immediately taken to the Good Samaritan Hospital where he is recovering rapidly and no serious results are anticipated.

Lily of the Valley Crop in Germany.

Later reports confirm the statements made some weeks ago in these columns by Chas. Lenker, relative to the condition of the lily of the valley crop about Hamburg. The pips have suffered from last year's drought and although the plants looked fine after a favorable summer this year, the pips have not regained sufficient strength to form flower buds. Deliveries will have to be cut down considerably.

Notes.

Escondido, Cal.—The German Seeu & Plant Co., of Los Angeles, has purchased a tract of land here said to contain 5,175 acres, at a reported cost of $175,000.

Lexington, Ky.—The Central Kentucky Blue Grass Seed Co. has been incorporated with a capital stock of $20,000. Clarence Le Bus, S. H. Halley, and C. H. Berryman are the incorporators.

The seed trade will be pleased to hear that Mr. Thomas W. Chisholm, sales manager for the Braslan Seed Growers' Company, Inc., is leaving the coast for his annual visit to the trade. After being in close personal touch with this season's harvest and the apportioning of the various acreages for the coming year's crop, Mr. Chisholm is well prepared with first-hand information for the trade.

The Department of Agriculture has issued instructions to consuls abroad that they shall make no charge for nursery stock certificates. Importing houses on this side should keep this fact in mind; also that there is nothing to pay for permits here and brokers who are charging $5.00 apiece for procuring same for their customers are simply "roasting" them. Direct application to the Department is the remedy against this hold-up.

Herbert Greensmith has resigned from his position as landscape gardener of Cincinnati parks. W. R. Munger, tree surgeon in the department, will succeed him temporarily. Mr. Greensmith has been in the employ of the board for three years.

OBITUARY.

Gottfried Gross.

Gottfried Gross, florist, Twentieth and Main streets, Quincy, Ill., died on October 28, aged 64 years.

David A. Graham.

On October 20, David A. Graham, florist, of Joplin, Mo., died at his home, aged 56 years. He was born in Philadelphia and had been a resident of Joplin for about eight years. He leaves a wife and one daughter.

John Ross.

John Ross, proprietor of the Ross Nursery Co., 2820 Vermont avenue, Los Angeles, Cal., died on October 23, aged 82 years. Mr. Ross came from Toronto, Ont., Canada, over thirty years ago and had built up quite a business. Several sons and grandsons in the business survive him.

Charles E. Schoenle.

The sudden death of Mr. Charles E. Schoenle, who passed away Tuesday morning, October 29, was a great shock to his many friends in the trade here. He died of heart failure when just about to start from his home to open his retail store which he and his wife conducted at Lafayette and Jefferson avenues. Mr. Schoenle was a member of the St. Louis Florists Club and had just completed his three years as trustee. He was a faithful worker and will be greatly missed at the club meetings. He leaves a wife, a mother, four brothers and a sister to mourn his loss. The sympathy of the members of the club was expressed by attending the funeral which took place on Thursday, Oct. 31, from his residence at 3665 Cook avenue. Many beautiful floral pieces were sent.

Mr. Schoenle was 39 years of age and was connected with the flower business ever since a small boy. His first employment was with Luther Armstrong in the store and later with M. M. Ayres until he opened his own place. No one had more loyal friends than he and they all extended their sympathy to those he left behind.

GERMAN NOTES.

We are in receipt of another letter from Charles Lenker, dated at Hamburg previous to his sailing for New York on the Pennsylvania in which he tells of having seen a bill rendered for 100 carnation blooms, 28 marks, with express and packing charges added, C. O. D., which as we figure it made the cost to the retailer about $7.75. No wonder Mr. Lenker adds: "I wish I could stay here."

He says: "Nothing impressed me more than Pape & Bergman's single flowered chrysanthemums, grown from seed sown in early spring. They make immense bushes with gorgeous flowers. A great deal of experimenting is done in the establishment of Mr. Pfitzer at his new place in the hybridization of the gladiolus. As it was just digging time my attention was drawn to the many seedlings, each carefully numbered, and the bulb put in a paper bag. There were over 13,000 of those single bulbs, each in a separate bag. Then come the diverse seedlings of one year's standing which are all planted in frames, and the num-

PERSONAL.

Announcement is received of the engagement of Miss Hazel B. Lease of Spokane, Wash., to James Frederick Dawson, of Jamaica Plain, Mass. Miss Lease is a very popular young lady and a gifted musician. Mr. Dawson is the son of Jackson T. Dawson of the Arnold Arboretum and is a member of the firm of Olmsted Brothers at Brookline, Mass.

Dr. Frederick W. Hamilton, recently president of Tufts and Jackson Colleges, has re-entered the business field from which he withdrew several years ago for professional work as an educator, and has taken the position of general manager of the American Forestry Company. As a young man, Dr. Hamilton's successful business career combined with his broad education early brought him to the front. For many years he was a trustee of Tufts College and later became its president, keeping at the same time other high positions in the educational world, including membership of the Massachusetts State Board of Education. Dr. Hamilton will from now on make his headquarters at the offices of the American Forestry Company at 15 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

William F. Gatchell has entered the employ of George C. Shaffer. Mr. Gatchell was formerly employed by Fred H. Kramer.

Charles Scarborough is again at the store of Gude Bros. Company after a very long stay on his father's farm in New Jersey.

Leonard Lynch is now at Marche's, having returned from Richmond, Va., where he has been employed since the first of the year.

A. Lauscher, for a number of years in the employ of Z. D. Blackistone, leaves this week for Lynchburg, Va., where he will engage in the florist business for himself.

The Retail Merchants' Association, of which several florists are members, are about to take the field against the vendors of fruits, vegetables and flowers who line Seventh street and sell goods to the detriment of legitimate dealers.

August Poehlmann, of Morton Grove, Ill., appeared before the Interstate Commerce Commission at a hearing given upon a complaint made that the coal freight rates of a certain railroad out of Chicago were exorbitant and discriminating. As Poehlmann Bros. consume over 30,000 tons of coal a year, a rebate of 40 cents per ton, as asked for, would count up.

Visitors: J. McHutchison and A. F. Faulkner, New York; Will Craig, S. S. Pennock, C. E. Meehan, Ed. Fancourt, Sydney Bayersdorfer, Frank Goudy and Robert Shoch, all of Philadelphia; J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Wm. J. Stewart, F. W. Rane, Dr. Fernald, and Albert E. Briggs, all of Boston; Theo. F. Borst, South Framingham, Mass.; Thos. B. Meehan, Dreshertown, Pa.; Prof. A. E. Stene, Kingston, R. I.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Company are now doing business in their handsome new building at 1216 H street, N. W., although all the fixtures have not as yet been installed. One innovation in this new store is the natural-air-cooled chamber for the storage of carnations and other flowers which do not have to be kept in a refrigerator. The outside air comes down a shaft which opens out near the floor, while the warmed air escapes through a similar shaft having an opening near the ceiling. This room is in the basement where also has been built a large ice room for the storage of certain flowers, and greens, and the heating plant is towards the front. The store itself is exceptionally large and has a cement floor and metal ceiling. The furniture is of mission oak with a silver gray finish. There are two entrances, one at the front for customers and a large double door at the rear, up to which wagons may drive to receive or deliver goods and beside the latter are two windows which, with two skylights and a large display window at the front, light the store. Powerful electric lamps are suspended from the ceiling and ten drop lights in the display window show up the pot plants to good advantage. The offices are at the rear on a balcony floor. Mr. William E. McKissick, who is in charge, hopes to have everything completed by November 21, when the formal opening of the store will take place.

HALLOWE'EN WINDOW.

Our picture shows the Hallowe'en window decoration in the new flower store of O. A. C. Oehmler at 1329 G street, N. W., Washington, D. C. Au-turn foliage, cornstalks, pumpkins and weird lighting were well used and chrysanthemums gave the finishing touch to a scene that attracted many.

FLORISTS' TELEGRAPH DELIVERY ASSOCIATION.

We extract from a letter of President Irwin C. Bertermann the following interesting paragraphs regarding this useful Association and its possibilities if properly supported by the trade it seeks to serve:

"This is an organization with now some sixty members who are interchanging business. Confidence inspired by the knowledge that flowers may be sent without shortcomings, will certainly tend to increase sales enormously. Flowers have a peculiar advantage over all commodities in that they are used for the important events of life upon which anything else would not bear the delicacy or diplomacy possible with flowers. W. L. Rock, of Kansas City, at the recent F. T. D. meeting, spoke as follows:—

"During the year 1909, which was the year previous to the birth of this organization, if I remember right, we sent out 360 orders from our place of business, amounting to $2,950.00. In the year 1910 we sent out 405, aggregating $3,150.00. In 1911 the business aggregated $3,450.00 with 435 orders sent out."

"The above statement would justify an approximate estimate of the inbound and outbound business to be $7,000.00 annually. Multiply this by sixty, the membership of the F. T. D., and you have $420,000.00 worth of business possible by sixty members, equalling in size the Rock firm. Taking two hundred firms on the same basis, would result in a volume to $1,400,000 worth of business possible and probable for a year!"

We don't see how any enterprising retail florist can afford to stay out of such an organization. The small annual dues, as compared with the advertising received, not to mention the actual business transacted, and the general upbuilding of the flower business, amount to practically nothing. Albert Pochelon of Detroit, Mich., is the secretary.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Mr. Eschner of M. Rice & Co. comments on the ready sale of thistles and poppies which the trade seem to value highly as useful accessories.

The supply houses are working nights. This shows what push and liberal advertising can do. The old conservative houses may complain. The "everlastingly at it" are pointing the way.

Eugene Weiss will open a retail flower store at Cheltenham and Germantown avenues in a few days. This with the two Berger stores and the Heilerman and Hastings places will make this neighborhood quite a retail center. Five stores all within a block or two. Mr. Weiss is well known in the retail trade, having for many years conducted a store on North Eighth street.

Visitors: J. Benson Stafford, Wm. F. Kasting and W. J. Palmer, Buffalo, N. Y.; J. L. Ratcliffe, Richmond, Va.; James Hill, Jacksonville, Fla.; E. A. Seidewitz, Baltimore, Md.

PERSONAL.

John T. Lovett, Jr., of Little Silver, N. J., was married on October 24th to Miss Gwendolyn Towt, of Nyack, N. Y.

Miss Margaret Norberg has resigned her position with the Henry Smith Floral Company, Grand Rapids, Mich., and is now employed by the Grand Rapids Floral Company, 18 Monroe avenue.

Miss Eva Beatrice Newman, of Malden, Mass., has left for Oakland, Cal., where she is to marry Arthur Polley, who is engaged in the florist business there. The marriage is the result of an acquaintance that began before either came to America from England.

CHARLES H. TOTTY

MADISON, N. J.

BOOMING THE BUSINESS.

The accompanying illustration shows in black and white the Thanksgiving Day show card which the Publicity Committee of the New York Florists' Club is going to distribute to the retail trade for display in their shop windows the week preceding November 28, Thanksgiving Day. This card will make a very taking appearance, printed in three colors on a sheet 12¼ inches wide by 11 inches deep. This show card in turn is mounted on a neutral cardboard 14 inches wide and 13 inches deep, the board being punched for a cord by means of which it is suspended. These cards are forwarded to each recipient in large, manila envelopes, into which are also placed 50 box slips, about 4½ x 6 inches, on which will be printed a few facts concerning the observance of Thanksgiving Day and the use of flowers for that occasion. Retailers will be requested to place one of these slips in each package or box of flowers they send out prior to Thanksgiving Day, in order to promote sales of flowers on Thanksgiving Day itself.

The drawing is by a celebrated artist, Charles Livingston Bull, and represents a spray of deep pink roses as the leading feature. In the lower left hand corner is shown a Puritan and his wife going to Thanksgiving service in the little stone church in the distance. The Puritan is armed with his flintlock musket, as was the custom in those days. The ancient and modern customs of celebrating Thanksgiving are thus brought into full contrast.

This will be the second show card distributed by the Publicity Committee of the New York Florists' Club. The first, a Halloween show card, met with great favor, and it is expected that the Thanksgiving card, on account of its artistic execution, will be in still heavier demand. At least 2000 of these latter will be distributed in New York City and its immediate vicinity, and it is expected that this distribution will have a marked effect upon the people at large, inducing them to purchase flowers for Thanksgiving.

Sedalia, Mo.—Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Archias celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary recently, at their home, Fourth street and Park avenue. Mr. Archias is manager of the Archias Garden and Farm News.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON

Business is quiet but not entirely asleep. It might be better but, considering the prevailing conditions of weather and supply, nobody can reasonably find fault. There is no pressing demand for anything. There is a heavy load of the cheaper grades of chrysanthemums hanging around to the great detriment of everything else. Carnations are improving; White Wonder and Enchantress are pretty well up to winter standard. Single violets lead the doubles in popularity and price. American Beauty does not enjoy the spurt reported from other cities but shares with the smaller roses the condition of "innocuous desuetude" which is a thorn in the flesh of the rose grower at such times as the present. Outdoor flowers got their quietus on Sunday and Monday last—a very late date in this latitude.

BUFFALO

A good week in the sale of chrysanthemums, but not so well on other lines. Roses were abundant, with a good assortment of all varieties, grades and quality and the demand lacked, especially on short grades. Red Killarney are in excellent color, and are at times preferred to pink. Carnations are coming on better and the quality is good, White Perfection, Enchantress and Beacon are best, though good Ward, Ideal and Pink Delight are had, but stems a little short. Lilies are scarce and with no special call. Beauties continue good, cattleyas not over-plentiful and violets have sold better. The coming week is looked for to consume a good lot of stock, as the flower show begins on Wednesday and continues throughout the week.

CHICAGO

Market conditions the past week have fluctuated more than for some time, each day varying from the other. It is hard to generalize, for with both stock and demand, wholesalers are apparently finding their experiences differing widely. For many weeks stock has been uniformly scarce but now chrysanthemums are coming in about as fast as they can be used and, with some dealers, faster. With others, however, they only remain long enough to be unpacked. Pompons are now in their prime, every color and size being in evidence. Carnations are by no means fancy in size or stem, but so generally scarce are they that the price is what fancy would usually bring. Sweet peas are scarce, few being seen in the market. Roses are quite equal to the demand and the quality good. Home-grown violets are plentiful, the quality fair and price low. American Beauties of all lengths are to be had and the shorter lengths sell quickly. As is to be expected, chrysanthemums reign supreme and most dealers are inclined to think the quantity grown not so large as in previous years.

CINCINNATI

The market is well stocked in every line. The aggregate sales are good but the highest prices are scarcely ever realized on the stock. Shipping business is good. In chrysanthemums white are clearing up regularly. The yellow are a little more abundant than conditions require. In the offerings of this last color are the most elegant line of Major Bonaffon this market has ever known. The rose market is easy. An adequate supply of each variety is offered. Only the best find a ready sale. The call for American Beauties is again increasing. The carnation supply is not large. It is good that this is so for the pompon chrysanthemums are attracting a good bit of the general demand that would ordinarily go to them. Lily of the valley, double violets, orchids, lilies and sweet peas are good sellers.

NEW YORK

er in the early part of the week business was certainly getting good, but with a return of the genial autumn warmth things lost that snap and go which should now be with us to stay. Prices are not anything like good enough to please the grower, but what can one do? The goods are there but no purchasers. It has been a bad week of trading all around, apart from any ill effects which the election always brings to business. Chrysanthemums are now very fine, as are roses of all stocks, but American Beauty is just now shy with us. All other stocks are in good enough supply.

Tone of market PHILADELPHIA rather better. No advance in average prices; but better clean-up, and returns on the whole have showed an improvement. American Beauty roses scarce and probably the best seller on the list. Among pink roses Killarney and Maryland are the leaders and both very good, indeed, especially Maryland, which have improved greatly both in stem and flower. Size and substance is now at high standard. Double White Killarney leads the procession in whites. As for the yellows—the market is certainly very rich in these and Sunburst is at present the bright particular star as a golden glory. A great feature of this new rose is its keeping qualities. Mrs. Aaron Ward is also among the favorites in the "seven great yellows." Just think of it—seven yellow roses, and all going well! How many of our readers would have believed such a thing possible seven years ago? Up to very recently yellows were not wanted, but since Melody came note the change in sentiment! A marked advance is noticeable in carnations, both in length of stem and substance of flower. The leaders are still Ward and Pink Delight. Bonaffon is the boss of the chrysanthemum situation. In whites at present Razer holds sway, but by the time this gets in print it will be Chadwick. There has been a falling off in the cattleya supply and prices have improved slightly. Weather cooler and consequently more favorable for the keeping quality of violets. The last of the dahlias came November 4th. Never before have we seen them hold on so long. But at last these and all other outside stuff are gone and the poor harassed greenhouse men draw a sigh of relief.

ST. LOUIS The market had a fairly good week in trading. Cut flowers of all kinds were in plenty at any of the wholesale houses. Business seems good in all branches among the local retailers but the supply has been so great that the commission men seem unable to dispose of their consignments unless in big lots and at cheap prices. Chrysanthemums are the selling flower just now and this is the cause of the big glut in roses at the present time. Roses, unless sold cheap, have little call except for the extra fancy grades. The same may be said of carnations. This market has too many of the common short stem ones which don't sell well. Violets are coming in better and there are plenty of them. Lily of the valley and lilies sell well and all greens had a good call all week.

WASHINGTON Business during the pre-election week was quite slow as usual during election years. The cold wave has killed off considerable of the outdoor stock which has been flooding the markets since last August. There is a plentitude of everything with the one exception of carnations, which are scarce in the colors. The Fire Flame (single) rose is one of the season's latest offerings and of these there is a moderate supply at $1.50 a dozen. American Beauty roses are being offered at from $2.00 up; other roses are bringing from $4.00 to $7.00, and even more for the choice stock. Violets are more plentiful and are in better condition.

The creation of a new horticultural station, to be known as the South Idaho station, and located at Jerome, Idaho, has been authorized by Dr. B. T. Galloway, the director of the bureau of plant industry. Its work will include the solution of important problems connected with the raising of potatoes under irrigation methods and the production of sugar beet seed.

PRESENT KNOWLEDGE OF SWEET PEA DISEASES AND THEIR CONTROL.

A paper by J. J. Taubenhau, Delaware College Agricultural Experiment Station, Newark, Del., read before the American Sweet Pea Society, Boston, July 13, 1912.

I have already mentioned the spotted, or mottled disease of sweet peas under glass. This is a new disease to this country and it is a very dangerous one. In its attacks it is not restricted to greenhouse conditions alone but it is also a serious disease of sweet peas outdoors. For the sake of convenience we will call this the "mosaic disease." It is readily distinguished by a yellow dotting or mottling of the leaf, presenting in some instances a beautiful mosaic structure, hence its name. Affected leaves seem to linger for a time but they eventually lose all the chlorophyll and soon drop off. A better symptom of this disease is a curling of the leaves at the tips, very much resembling the curling of leaves induced by the green aphids, but in this case the aphids has no association. The disease makes its appearance after the seedlings are from three to four weeks old. Often, the disease is so bad and the curling so pronounced that the plants thus affected cannot make any headway and remain dwarfed. An attempt is made of these curled parts to produce a few flowers, but the latter are borne on very short peduncles as compared with the long peduncles of healthy plants of the same variety. Frequently, however, the affected plants outgrow the disease entirely, and thus a distinct line of demarcation can be made between the previously diseased part and the healthy part of the new growth. At other times infected plants keep on growing, and even flowering, with the disease keeping pace. Attempts to culture and to isolate the organism which causes this mosaic disease have failed. Like the Peach yellows, the mosaic disease of the tobacco and tomatoes, this mosaic disease of the sweet pea, too, can be reproduced by a puncture with a sterile needle from a diseased into a healthy leaf. Yet no organism could be obtained in culture, nor could it be detected with the microscope. Nevertheless, this disease is contagious, as is the Peach yellows. When the disease first made its appearance in our experimental sweet pea field, the diseased areas were immediately located in order to learn something of the spread of the disease. They formed two small areas, one in about the center of the field, the other in the southeast corner. Within ten days another survey was made and the whole field was found to be contaminated. With the exception of the dwarf Cupid varieties, which are seemingly immune, all the rest were found to be affected with the mosaic. When first investigating this disease we thought that, perhaps, this mottling of the leaves was merely a variegated condition. We also thought that perhaps the curling of the tender tips as well as the mosaic effect was due primarily to the presence of aphids, which at the beginning of the season were so plentiful. Experiments were then undertaken to determine definitely these points. Accordingly, sterile pots with sterile soil were planted with sterilized seeds. Each pot was isolated in a glass chamber and the plants were allowed to grow for three weeks to see if any disease would develop on them. However, the plants remained very free from any diseases. The pots with plants were then divided into four lots; into lot I. were introduced a few stem mothers of aphids from affected mosaic plants in the field. In lot II. were introduced a few stem mother aphids, from apparently healthy plants in the fields. The plants in lot III. were punctured with sterile needles and by pricking a mosaic-affected leaf, and then puncturing with the same needle the healthy leaves. Lot IV. was merely punctured with the sterile needle, and these were designed to serve as checks. In each lot there were two pots with plants in order to duplicate each experiment. After ten days the lots which were inoculated with the aphids from diseased and healthy plants both began to show the symptoms of mosaic. This would therefore appear to show that the mere puncture of aphids would be responsible for the mosaic disease. However, this is not the case, as we will soon see. Moreover, it is easy to suppose, and that on very good grounds, that the aphids taken from seemingly healthy plants in an infected field might themselves have been infected before. But this would be no valid proof. Lot III., which was infected with needle punctures from diseased leaves, began after ten days to show the mosaic disease, while the check punctures remained all healthy to the end of the experiment. This definitely proves that the aphids are not the cause of the trouble but are merely the carriers of the mosaic disease. It seems, therefore, that any steps taken to control the aphids may also serve to control the mosaic. From this, too, it seems that not only the aphids, but also any biting or sucking insect may help to spread the disease.

CHICAGO NOTES.

Theodore Vogel severed his connection with The Alpha Floral Co.'s retail store on November 2nd.

Fred Lautenschlager will represent Kroeschell Bros. at the St. Paul Flower Show, November 8-12.

Ed. Eisner has closed his retail store at 55th and Halsted streets and the windows bear a "for rent" sign.

Chas. Zapfe, 62nd street and South Park avenue, is preparing to celebrate in a fitting way the completion of his first year in the retail business, November 16th.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association has again added more growers to its long list of stockholders. A project is under consideration whereby the company hopes to build a range of greenhouses of its own.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Spencer of St. Paul, Minn., visited Chicago on their honeymoon trip. Mrs. Spencer, formerly Agnes C. O'Keefe, is proprietor of the Swanson Flower Shop of that city.

Invitations have been received here for the marriage of Alverta May Prall and Arthur John Bauscher of Freeport, Ill., to take place at the home of the bride's parents in that city, November 18th. The groom is a promising young florist.

The new scarlet carnation, The Herald, now offered for the first time by the Chicago Carnation Co., is attracting many visitors to the company's plant at Joliet. Last week visitors from Oregon, California and Mexico were among the number.

Visitors: J. J. Karins, of H. A. Dreer's, Philadelphia; Wm. Hild, Milesville, S. D.; R. A. McPherson, Litchfield, Ill.; A. L. Glaser, Dubuque, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Spencer, St. Paul, Minn.

WASTED bench space in greenhouses is the direct cause of thousands of dollars loss annually in the florist business. Even wasted space under benches is a serious loss to most growers. The man who can produce the largest crops per annum in a given space is the best grower—the most profitable grower to employ. Keep your greenhouse space from the top of the benches down, constantly in use—use it for something. The writer knows a man in Montreal who even operates a cellar under his house, where is produced mushrooms, etc., utilizing the same greenhouse heat. He knows the real value of greenhouse space, and is able to consume double the quantity that most growers handle in the same space and time. A journey through this man's place would be an eye-opener to many florists. Cold Storage Giganteum is an excellent article to fill in with—you can put them underneath the benches for a considerable time, then bring them on, one crop after another, all through the year. Lilies can be used profitably for many purposes and Horseshoe Brand Giganteum are dependable. Try them—you could not make a better investment. Write now.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Asparagus plumosus

Now is the time to give this valuable green careful daily attention. A house where the temperature can be easily held at about 65 degrees at night, in the coolest weather, and a good, deep and richly manured compost are the first essentials to successful asparagus culture. Keep the house moist as when this is wanting luxuriant growth is impossible. See that the young leading growths are kept nicely wound around the strings. From this out it is always well to let the surface of the soil become fairly dry before giving water. When doing it, however, give them a good soaking. Give the surface a frequent stirring to keep the soil open and sweet. Asparagus plumosus is a greedy feeder, and additional nourishment in some form must be given. From now on there is nothing better than a good rich mulch, put on from time to time. After the new year they can have plenty of liquid manure.

Carnations

From now on but little syringing should be practiced. It is well to remember in watering or syringing carnations to do it as early in the morning as possible so that the plants will not be wet at nightfall. Every plant should be perfectly dried off by about four o'clock in the afternoon. We are now running into shorter days which makes the allowance of fresh air less possible, so take advantage of every good day to give ventilation; this will help to harden the plants before winter sets in. The grower's great difficulty will come now when we have so much of muggy cloud-darkened or rainy spells, often lasting many days. It is then that firing should be run more brisk, which will permit of more ventilation to hold the atmospheric condition of the houses right. Watering can be overdone as well as too little. Watch the places that are over or close to the pipes. Where the plants are well studded with buds you can alternate every other time with weak manure water to help your crop along. Fumigation should be practiced regularly.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine

To have exceptionally fine stock of Begonia Lorraine for next year you should start propagating now. There is no doubt as to the superiority of early-propagated stock. So now get busy. From now on you will have steady bottom heat that can be depended upon to produce the right conditions for their rooting. When selecting material take well-matured leaves of a spotless green from the most vigorous plants. Trim away the stubby end of the leaf stalk, about half an inch below the leaf and insert in the sand until the base of the leaf is in close contact with the surface and see that they are well firmed in the sand. Keep up a steady bottom heat of not less than 70 degrees with a somewhat close and moderately humid atmosphere, but a muggy, stagnant atmosphere is bound to result in a great loss of cuttings by decaying. Every day they should have fresh air admitted. It is a good plan to have them covered with sashes while you are ventilating the house to ward off draughts or excessive changes in the temperature. Exclude sunshine and give them frequent sprinklings and they should root in about eight or nine weeks.

Evergreens in Pots for Winter Use

Every year there is more demand for evergreens in pots or tubs. On the approach of winter the florists of all large cities are called upon to have something to break the bareness of the entrances to hotels, stores and dwellings. Now is the proper time to get a good lot of these potted up and they can be set under cover outside for some time to come, which will help to keep the foliage in better color and give the plants time to make some roots before they are sold. Make an assortment of the many varieties of retinosporas, arbor vitæ, junipers, yews, spruces, etc. These should be available in all sizes for pots or tubs. When plants are wanted for inside or where freezing will be very slight, Euonymus japonica and its varieties will make excellent plants to break the monotony of so many conifers. Where you want trailing evergreens, Euonymus radicans and English ivy can be used to good effect.

Freesias for Christmas

To have these plants in flower for Christmas they should be placed where they can have a temperature of about 60 degrees at night. Place them well up to the glass so that they will not "draw" and become weak. Do not overlook watering, as they will require a copious supply from this out. They will appreciate liquid manure now and up to when the flowers show color, about once a week. They should be far enough advanced by this time to demand some support; this should not be overlooked.

Paper White Narcissi

The earliest planted batch of these narcissi that have developed plenty of roots should be given a house where they can have all the light and sun that will be going. For them to do well you should give them a place rather high up on a bench or shelf where they can be near the glass. Maintain a steady temperature of from 50 to 55 degrees at night, with a rise of from 10 to 15 degrees higher with sun heat. See that they have abundant ventilation to make good substance and strong stems, and give attention to the matter of watering, as these bulbs require plenty of water at the roots. They take about seven to eight weeks to be nicely in flower.

Stevias

Keep these plants as cool as possible. Any house that is just clear of frost will do for stevias. You can place a batch in a little more heat as needed, thereby making more of a succession. During November there is always a quantity of flowers in season so make plans to keep them back as far as possible for a little later on when there will be fewer flowers on the market. Make it a point to keep them supplied with plenty of water at the roots.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Care of Cypripedium insigne; Chrysanthemum Stock; Cocos Weddelliana; Filling Boxes and Vases for Winter Effect; Herbaceous Border, etc.; Lily of the Valley.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Work in the Early Peach House

Where trees are not grown in pots for the early crops a planted-out house will have to be forced. Pot trees have many advantages over their greater sisters for this early work; one noticeable feature is—should a tree not set a crop it is easily moved to less conspicuous quarters—the one planted out has to remain. Where it is contemplated to use a house the first crop preparatory work should be proceeded with soon after the leaves have fallen. If disbudding and a thinning-out of the old wood soon after the crop was gathered was attended to there will be very little pruning to do, yet the trees should be looked over before being cut away from the trellis. To cut all the old ties off is a good initial step as the tree can be tied together in several bundles which keeps them out of the way and protects the buds from possible rubbing during cleaning. A thorough wash down is always desirable in fruit houses; it not only improves the looks of the interior, but is sanitary. This is the time to repaint fruit houses; it is impossible to do them when some plant houses are done during the summer months.

The extent of cleaning and spraying in a peach house depends entirely on the cleanliness of the trees. A spraying with some good insecticide should be given them anyway, as a preventive, also a spraying of some fungicide will greatly benefit the trees from possible attack next season. Any renovation of the border—top dressing and so on—should now be done. Make all the new soil quite firm; should it be wet at the time allow it a few days to dry before attempting to ram it. With the work done up to this stage the tying can be left for a stormy day when other work is stopped.

Pot Vines

Pot vines having been properly ripened and having had some frost on them can be started now. A small house should be given up to them to get the best results. Plunge the pots to the rim in clean oak leaves, which will afford a mild bottom heat up until the vines are started into growth and later on the mulch will greatly benefit the growing vines, preventing the roots from becoming excessively hot and dry. If this can be so arranged that the bench has the heating pipes underneath it, so much to the good; a steady bottom heat is insured. See that there are a quantity of leaves underneath the pot as this will prevent any excessive heat from the pipes reaching the pot and also encouraging the roots to grow away through them. There should be no pests of any kind on the canes. All that is necessary is to bend them around in a circle so that all the sap does not rush up to the top of the cane, causing a few strong breaks there at the expense of the lower ones. Syringe twice daily with chilled water. Keep a night temperature of 40 F. to 45 F. degrees, closing the house early enough to give the canes a mild sweat.

Soil Heaps

All soil heaps not under cover which may be needed through the winter months should now be covered up with leaves and straw manure. Heap the leaves two feet thick around the sides and on the top, over which a foot of straw manure should be placed to keep them in position. If something can be laid on the top of this to run the water off, the efficiency of the protection will be increased a hundred per cent and good dry soil will always be available. By taking this precaution it is possible to make new borders or top-dress old ones any time during the winter. Otherwise, once the soil gets frozen up, the work will have to wait until spring, and those months are always crowded with work which cannot be done earlier.

Protect Celery and Cabbage

These two valuable winter vegetables will need to be stored away or protected (if not already done). Small quantities, or the earliest of larger numbers, can be put in the cellar. Keep them away from the heater or heating pipes. Others must be protected with leaves and earth. Cabbage will be best stored in a barn where the cellar fails to accommodate them. Late celery will keep best in the soil if amply protected. Whatever method is adopted always bear in mind that they need keeping away from all water yet do not want to be real dry.

Rhubarb

Rhubarb forces easily after a few light frosts. Like asparagus, roots can be lifted and exposed to the elements for a time, which will help them to force easier. I always advocate a hot-bed for early forcing of this class of stuff. They start away easier which means quicker returns. Rhubarb will force in any dark corner or under benches providing there is a night temperature of 55 degrees. Little can be lifted each week if a succession is desired. Give the roots a good supply of water and see that the soil goes in between them at the time they are brought in. Syringe the growth once a day.

Specialize on Something Fresh

Anyone who can take his memory back forty or fifty years will have no difficulty in calling to mind the various collections of general nursery stock both of flowering and decorative plants which at that time were the main features of the various establishments he visited, both private and trade. The list of varieties grown in one and the same place was of quite formidable dimensions. I have said "grown," but in regard to many species they simply existed; they were alive and in fair health; they were not what a grower would call "grown" now, and how the public were satisfied then only shows how easy they were to please. But a new era was dawning and one thing after another was selected from the general mass and really properly "done"; grown in bulk; a house or range of houses devoted to one and the same thing. Every single thing that could be done was done for the plant in hand and splendid results were attained. I will just enumerate a few that responded to the more liberal treatment, as the stock now placed on the market by the growers who specialize amply testify: azaleas, acacias, araucarias, bouvardias,

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Watering

Be careful and not allow your plants to become so dry between waterings, that the soil becomes hard and cracks here and there. This does not do the plants any good and will likely do great harm. Beauties will quickly show the effect of being kept too dry as the growth will become thin and spindly and all leaves will be small. Later trouble will be experienced in making the wood set as it will just grow along and no signs of buds. We always advocate letting the plants become quite dry before watering them again, and then watering very heavy, but this must not be carried to extremes. In watering be careful not to wet the bottom leaves any more than you can help. Also water in the morning, and do not do any watering after noon, or you will be inviting a dose of black spot, and you know what that means.

Killarneys, Radiance and a few others of the free-growing varieties will take just about twice as much water as Beauties will and should be watered accordingly. Many growers make the mistake, where Beauties and Killarneys are grown together. Often the Killarneys have to be watered twice while the Beauties are being watered, only once.

Some growers have a habit of holding the hose a long distance from the surface of the bench, practically syringing the bottom foliage of the plants. This is improper and dangerous as well, as pointed out above. Some will say—"Oh they grow just as well"—but take it from us there is a difference when one gets eight to ten blooms from one Beauty plant and another only three or four. That is the "just as good" way, and we leave it to the growers themselves to decide which pays in the long run.

Yellow Leaves

Do not be worried if your roses appear to be losing a large amount of foliage. If the plants are growing nicely with large, perfect, glossy leaves, you need not worry even if a large number of the bottom leaves turn yellow and fall. It is better thus than to get a dose of spot or something and having to pick them off. Plants that are well cared for and not allowed to become extremely dry while growing, will not lose any leaves, save the old ones that have accomplished their work and are worse than useless, for were they to remain the foliage would become so thick that it would be impossible to keep it free from spider and spot. With Teas it is the same. If these are carefully tied so that they are not bunched up too much around the stakes and as long as the tops are of a good color, strong and vigorous, do not worry about a few yellow leaves around the bottom.

We find Radiance to be a very good rose to hold its foliage and the Double White Killarney about the poorest in this respect. Often after cutting a heavy crop the plants are almost bare save the two leaves left with the two eyes when cutting. It is surprising, however, how quickly the plants come back to crop, a light syringing once or twice during the morning hours of the day doing a great deal to help them along.

The New Roses

By all means try to see some of the new roses growing and if your bench room will warrant it, try them out for yourself. When one stops and looks back a few years, one can note the great strides that have been taken toward improving and modernizing rose growing of the past. Not so very long ago the first Killarney made its appearance and since then several of its sports—White Killarney, the Double Killarneys, Killarney Queen, Dark Pink Killarney—have practically replaced the original, just as Bride and Bridesmaid replaced their parent the Mermet.

While in conversation with one of the prominent rose growers of this country, I inquired as to the amount of bench space devoted to the culture of these two old standbys—the Bride and Bridesmaid—and the reply was, "Four benches and no more of them next year." Yet this place was all Brides and Bridesmaids a few years ago. No doubt these old varieties of roses such as the above and the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, are excellent and when grown properly are hard to beat, but when it comes to producing cut blooms for the market these old varieties are not in it. Kaiserin as a rule is a poor keeper and the same may be said of the Bride and Bridesmaid.

Another thing with most of the new roses is that they can be planted over and over again and they seem to get better with age. A bench of five-year-old Killarneys came to my notice the other day. These had been cut down and replanted each season, and yet a bench of young stock could not begin to compete with these old plants when it came to producing flowers.

begonias, boronias, carnations, cattleyas, cyclamen, ferns, gardenias, heaths, lilies, palms, roses, etc., etc.

Not only is there great advance in the quality of the product but the lengthening of the season during which they can be had is greatly increased, thanks in many cases to the retarding process now so easily accessible. But we seem now to have come to a stop. We are continually asked, "What is there that is fresh?"—and there are many who begin to tire of the same thing over and over again. Yet there are vast numbers of well known gems which are only seen here and there and in botanical collections that are only waiting for someone to take and give the same special care now meted out to their more fortunate brethren, when they would quite as readily respond and would repay the grower who gave it to them.

I will name a few and many others will no doubt suggest themselves to the reader: Aotus gracillima, amaryllis, chironias, Clerodendron Balfouri, Choisya ternata, Daphne indica rubra, epacris, eristemons, Fabiana imbricata, Hoya bella, ixoras, leschenaultias, Mitraria coccinea, pimeleas, Rochea falcata, statice; and shall we ever see Boronia serrulata, Leschenaultia biloba? Oh! the loveliness of them!

Show, of a committee for purposes of information. It was the duty of the gentlemen who were appointed on this committee, all supposed to be fully informed regarding variety, care, cultivation, etc., to be present and prepared to answer questions asked by visitors and to give, at every opportunity, such instructive information as would promote practical horticultural interest among the people. The usefulness of every exhibition as a fountainhead of horticultural education would be greatly enhanced and extended if such a plan should be universally put in operation. Much of the good which a floral exhibition might accomplish in a commercial way is entirely lost and much of the hard work made profitless through neglect of making this self-evident provision for supplying that knowledge of the goods, where they may be procured and how they must be treated, which almost every visitor to such a place is curious and eager to find out.

It was something quite out of the ordinary to find eight decorated dinner tables at the Boston Fall Show, as well as a goodly number of entries in other classes for floral arrangement, indicating that the retail trade are beginning to take some interest in the exhibitions. This will, in addition to its direct suggestion to the visitor, tend to have a still further influence upon the exhibitors in other classes and possibly incite them to a greater care in placing the flowers or plants that constitute their own display. One fault of flower shows, generally, has been a lack in this respect. There is yet much to be learned by the average exhibitor in the art of staging. We are apt to give too much attention to the individual flower and too little to the happy grouping of the whole. In the new forms of single and semi-double chrysanthemums, an unprecedented opening is afforded for the exercise of artistic sense in the blending and contrasting of color tints and shades and the production of pleasing effects through natural airy and graceful placing of the flowers, all of which will go to contribute a charm hitherto lacking in the majority of chrysanthemum exhibitions.

New England nurseries insect-free

The report just issued by the Federal Horticultural Board on the proposed quarantine upon New England commodities exposed to possible infestation from the moth pests, must be very gratifying to the nursery trade of those states as it indicates plainly that the Federal authorities do not propose to interfere with efficient state and individual inspection work and that, in whatever restrictions they consider necessary, the nursery trade is exempted. The hearing before the Board at Washington two weeks ago fully demonstrated that so far as the nursery interests are concerned no menace to anybody exists in the shipment of New England nursery-grown stock to any section but, on the contrary, the extraordinary precautions which the growers in this section have felt compelled to take for years, even for their own protection, have brought about conditions of cleanliness in all respects which probably are not equalled in the nurseries of any other part of the country. This light on the situation in New England ought to operate greatly to the advantage of New England nurserymen and will undoubtedly help to restore the interstate shipping trade which has been suffering more or less on account of the unfounded alarm. When Dr. Howard made the statement that he considered the stock of the Massachusetts nurserymen just as safe as that from Geneva N. Y., for instance, a better endorsement of the care exercised by the New England nurserymen can hardly be imagined.

Well done, St. Paul
Among the various innovations and forward steps adopted at the several flower shows this season to increase interest and efficiency, none will meet with more general commendation than the constituting, at the St. Paul

THREE NEW CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

MARY E. MEYER

The varieties here illustrated are introductions of Elmer D. Smith & Co., who sent us the following descriptions:

Mary E. Meyer.—Japanese of medium size and especially adapted for commercial use. Growth short-jointed, excellent stem and clothed with ample foliage which extends up to the bloom. In perfection Nov. 1st. Best bud Aug.

ELBERON

25th. Height 3 feet. C. S. A. Certificate 93.

Elberon.—An exceptionally large Japanese incurved 8 by 9 inches, of the M. Loiseau-Rousseau color and type, having less contrast between the upper and under surface of petals and presenting a more pleasing shade of pink. Very strong grower, with heavy rigid stem and ready to cut Oct. 15th. Unsurpassed as an exhibition sort either for collections or vases. C. S. Certificate 95.

Yonkers.—A yellow Japanese nearest to Yellow Miller in color, which it equals in size. Strong sturdy stem with foliage close to the bloom. Adapted for commercial and exhibition use. Best bud Aug. 15th, cut Oct. 25th. C. S. A. Certificate 89.

OUT OF THE GINGER JAR.

Be progressive but not too progressive. Do not forget that most of the things we know today we have inherited through forty million years of our forefathers' mistakes. Let your young imagination soar to new worlds to conquer; but do not forget to hold fast to the old pastures your forebears have prepared for you. We rise on stepping stones of our dead selves to higher things.

When I was seventeen I knew an awful lot more about everything than I know now about anything. It takes a long time to find out what a blooming fool one is really; sad but true. Yet, I suppose, I must have been more crisp and interesting in my crassness at seventeen, than I am now in my ripeness at fifty. So I say be progressive but not too progressive. "Stop, look, and listen." Our dear old enthusiastic Adolph consigned Richmond rose to the nethermost pit once. The years rolled by and what happened? We hear nothing about Liberty any more, which shows that the wise thing is never to "knock" a novelty until you know.

According to P. Welch, one of our liveliest wires, to be a critic is creditable and useful. You can say many commendable and charming things for the uplift. But to be a "knocker" is the unforgivable.

My sermon about the not too progressive, is really a hallelujah. The whole world, Europe, Asia, Africa, America and Australasia is most gloriously progressive today,—makes one thankful to have lived long enough to see such wonderful changes. While heartily joining in this hurrah let us remember however that there is a happy medium in everything. The old Scottish ditty puts the thought very nicely on the "moderation" subject.:

I can drink and no be drunk,
I can fecht and no be slain,
I can kiss a bonnie lass
And aye be welcome back again.

Never overdo, either in eating, drinking, courting or in progressiveness. All the legislation of the past in America has been repressive and much of it reprehensible. Let us now have a little change for a change. Something constructive instead of destructive. If you can't do that then let well enough alone. There's no sense in pouring sand into the works of a fine watch.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

AN ADMIRABLE SET OF PARK CONSERVATORIES.

Our cover illustration shows a view of the enlarged range of houses for Delaware Park, Buffalo, N. Y. The builders, Messrs. Lord & Burnham Company, of New York, send the following notes concerning the structure:

There were four houses and a work-room in the original range. Last year the palm house, 125 ft. long and 50 ft. wide, and the house just back of it, were added, making five houses and a palm house.

In the interior of the palm house there is a fountain at each side, with a grotto effect, which covers the entrance way to the boiler room.

The greenhouses have a very prominent location, just opposite the Albright Art Galleries.

PERSONAL.

David A. Broderick is now with George G. McClunie, florist, 187 Main street, Hartford, Conn.

Wm. Eccles, superintendent for Mr. Mortimer Schiff, Oyster Bay, Long Island, N. Y., sailed for Europe Nov. 16, on the Caronia, for an extended vacation.

William Hooper, greenhouse foreman at Bellefontaine, Lenox, Mass., started on November 12 for a visit to Detroit, Mich., and from there he will go to Winnipeg, Can., to visit his brother.

Alexander Dallas, Waterbury, Ct., a prominent florist, shot off two fingers of his left hand Nov. 4 while hunting. The charge struck his left hand, tearing off the second and third fingers. He was taken to the Waterbury hospital.

A. C. Ruzicka, well-known as HORTICULTURE'S regular correspondent on "Roses Under Glass," has resigned his position at Duke's Park, Somerville, N. J., and will take charge of the florist business of F. J. Ruzicka & Son, Pine Grove Gardens, Sayville, N. Y.

Boston visitors: A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.; J. Otto Thilow, Phila., Pa.; James Robertson, John Urquhart and Mr. Grey, Newport, R. I.; Prof. E. A. White, Amherst, Mass.

Cincinnati visitors: Miss White, Lexington, Ky.; Mrs. Lampert and daughter, Springfield, Ohio; Eric C. Dietz, of the Wm. Buhria Co., New York; G. Reising, of L. Baumann & Co., Chicago, Ill.

THE EXHIBITIONS

TARRYTOWN, (N. Y.) HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The 14th Annual Exhibition of this Society was held in Music Hall, Tarrytown, on Nov. 6, 7, and 8, and was a most gratifying success in quality and extent of exhibits and in public appreciation. A large proportion of the prizes offered were by special donors. Lack of space prevents our giving as much room as we should like to the award list. As condensed below, the first name given is that of the donor, then we give the class, and the names of first and second winners follow in sequence, the name of the gardener exhibiting being given once only.

F. R. Pierson (cup), sweepstakes—Wm. Rockefeller, gard. Geo. Middleton. J. D. Archbold, 12 blooms—Wm. Rockefeller; S. P. Shotter, gard. Allen Jenkins. F. Hermann, 20 blooms—E. Berolzheimer, gard. Wm. Jamieson; Wm. Rockefeller. A. T. Boddington, 6 blooms—George Legg, gard. John Elliott; Chas. Mallory, gard. Wm. Sealey. C. P. Johnson, collection of singles—H. Darlington, gard. P. W. Popp. Vaughan's Seed Store, 3 blooms—W. Rockefeller. A. Johnson, vase 18 blooms arranged—S. Untermeyer, gard. W. H. Waite; Miss Blanche Potter, gard. Geo. Wittinger. Chas. Certificates of merit were awarded as follows: E. Berolzheimer for dinner table decoration; C. H. Totty for rose Mrs. Geo. Sawyer; A. N. Pierson for rose Milady; W. Rockefeller for carnation Rockwood Hall. Cultural certificate to W. R. Harris for plumed cockscombs. Honorable mention to F. R. Pierson Co. for exhibits of ferns, roses and chrysanthemums.

WESTCHESTER AND FAIRFIELD HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The second annual fall show of this society was held in Germania Hall, New Rochelle, N. Y., Nov. 7, 8 and 9, and members may well be proud of its great success. The hall, one of the largest in the country, was well filled up, the chrysanthemums, of course, being in the majority; quality and quantity could be seen in all the different classes, causing the visitors to wonder at those marvels of nature, products of the skill of the best gardeners in the country. James Stuart's group of foliage and flowering plants was simply splendid, well deserving its blue ribbon; orchids, staged by John F. Burns, won first honors; a table of orchids, staged by the Geo. E. Baldwin Co., Mamaroneck, was awarded a certificate of merit. Northport, J. D. Cockcroft's new carnation, Mrs. George Sawyer, Chas. Totty's new rose, and Milady, A. N. Pierson's new rose, all received a certificate of merit. Scott Bros. and Traendly & Schenck also won first prizes with 50 blooms each of their sterling carnation novelties. A. S. Peterson was awarded a certificate of merit for his splendid display of evergreens. Special mention was awarded to Thos. Meehan & Son for display of pompon chrysanthemums, also to S. Pendorf for display of palms. Honorable mention to C. H. Totty for new single chrysanthemums, P. W. Popp for splendid vase of Dahlia Geisha. Other winners were:

W. J. Leahy, one 1st and one 2d; E. Mackenzie, seven 1sts, four 2ds; James Aitchison, five 1sts, eight 2ds; Thos. Aitchison silver cup, bronze medal, seven 1sts, nine 2ds; A. Bieschke, gold medal, two 3ds; James Stuart, eight 1sts, two 2ds; A. Paterson, seven 1sts, two 2ds; T. F. Burns, silver medal, bronze medal, four 1sts, five 2ds; G. C. Allan, one 1st, one 2d; W. Maginnis, one 2d; A. L. Marshall, five 1sts, two 2ds; J. B. Roy, one 2d; Th. Ryan, one 1st, three 2ds; N. Stentiford, one 2d; James Foster, two 1sts, two 2ds; P. W. Popp, three 1sts, one 2d and bronze medal; Th. Bell, one 1st, two 2ds; Wm. Smith, one 1st; R. Allen, two 1sts; Wm. Cohen, one 1st; D. S. Miller, two silver cups, gold and silver medals, two 1sts, one 2d; Oscar E. Addor, one 1st; A. E. Townsend, two 1sts, three 2ds; A. Wynne, two 1sts, two 2ds; A. Pederson, one 1st, one 2d; A. Geddes, three 1sts, three 2ds; M. Glendon, one 2d; A. Allins, two 1sts, one 2d; Henry Gaut, one 2d; W. S. Hitchcock, silver medal, one 1st, one 3d; Paul Dwenger, one 2d; Mrs. Pitt, silver cup, two 1sts; Miss Rixen, one 3d; Mrs. L. Richard, one 2d.

The special feature of the show was the table decorations by gardeners on Nov. 8th, Th. Aitchison winning first with a "dream"—the only way you can describe his simple but splendid display. Henry Gaut was a good second. On Nov. 9 the ladies' amateur table decorations, Mrs. Pitt winning with a most beautifully arranged center of colored leaves and berries; Mrs. Richardson second with berberry; Miss Rixen with roses.

THE ST. PAUL SHOW.

This widely advertised event opened on Friday night, Nov. 8th in a most brilliant manner. The opening exercises included speeches by Mayor Keller and Governor Eberhart both of whom spoke proudly of the exhibition and its good influence. The affair was well patronized by all classes of society, the attendance on the opening day being about 8000. Much enthusiasm was manifested in the drawing of a name for a new chrysanthemum submitted for this purpose by Elmer D. Smith. A procession of this season's debutantes was formed. A large basket filled with chrysanthemums was placed on a pedestal in the center of the improvised stage. Walking up to the flowers two by two the debutantes each picked up one of the ribbons to which the flowers were attached and drew one. Miss Lucille Quinlan drew the one to which the card was affixed and the flower was named after her. The young ladies remained clustered around the flowers as Miss Quinlan, after the established custom baptized it with a bottle of wine. The orchestra struck the opening chords of "America," the audience rose, a beautiful bouquet of the Lucille Quinlan chrysanthemum was placed on the pedestal where the others had stood, and the girls, two by two, left the scene of the ceremony.

Saturday was "Rose Day," and the evening was especially devoted to the Elks and traveling men and every lady who attended was given a chrysanthemum. Monday was "Carnation Day." In the evening J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston gave a lecture with stereopticon views, on the gardens of Japan and there was a grand chorus of 150 voices by the United German Singing Societies of St. Paul. Tuesday had table decorations as a special feature and Mr. Farquhar lectured again in the evening, on the gardens of Italy, the United Scandinavian Singing Societies contributing the vocal music.

The Sweepstake cup offered by the Pioneer Press and Despatch, for the most meritorious exhibit was won by Holm & Olson with a magnificent group of decorative plants, orchids, etc. The second prize, the A. H. Stem cup went to the Merriam Park Floral company. The Minneapolis Park Board was given special honors for a group of Celosia Pride of Castle Gould. For 12 roses, not yet in commerce—C. H. Totty's, "Mrs. George Sawyer," 87 points; A. N. Pierson's "Milady," 85 points; both received certificate of merit.

Holm & Olson won first in many classes, including Liliun auratum, L. speciosum, basket of roses, window box, cyclamen, Lorraine begonias, specimen blooming plant, orchids, plant basket, twelve classes of chrysanthemum plants and three classes chrysanthemum blooms, 150 sq. ft. of decorative plants, specimen kentia, phoenix, palm any other variety, pandanus, 100 sq. ft. of ferns, 50 ft. ferns, specimen ferns, araucarias, and group of bay trees. Poeslmann Bros. Co. won first on 100 Beauties, 100 Richmonds, 100 yellow roses, 100 White Killarney, 100 any other variety, Lily of the valley, 35 sq. ft. blooming and foliage plants, pompon chrysanthemums. Holton & Hunkel won first on 100 Killarney. In the classes for 50 roses the leaders were St. Paul Floral Co., N. C. Hansen, Clinton Falls Nursery Co., Merriam Park Floral Co. and A. N. Kinsman. St. Paul Floral Co. were first also for lilies and anthuriums; Clinton Falls Nursery Co. for sweet peas; Merriam Park Floral Co. for fern basket, 100 sq. ft. of chrysanthemum plants and 75 sq. ft. blooming and foliage plants. L. L. May first for 50 sq. ft. decorative plants and flowers for bridal party; Loeffler and Riverside Greenhouses for violets; L. S. Daldson for crocuses, primroses; Warrendale Floral Co. for anemone chrysanthemums, and single do.; C. C. Pollworth, three firsts for chrysanthemum blooms; L. W. Hill two firsts for chrysanthemum plants and one for blooms, also meritorious plant not otherwise provided for. Elmer D. Smith & Co. won the sweepstakes for best six chrysanthemum blooms entered in four lots.

MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

To our general notes of the opening day of this exhibition, published last week, we would add the following: In addition to the plant groups there enumerated were decorative plant groups from Mrs. J. L. Gardner, gard. W. Thatcher, Wm. Whitman, gard. Martin Sullivan, Mrs. F. Ayer, square feet, commercial growers excluded: Mrs. J. L. Gardner.

Table of orchids, both plants and flowers—1st, Wheeler & Co.; 2nd, Edward MacMulkin.

Vase of ten blooms, red: 1st, Edgar Brothers; 2nd, Edgar Brothers; inclement weather during the week had a tendency to check the attendance though a quite satisfactory turnout was had.

A rustic flower booth was under the management of W. H. Eiss. Wm. Legg, had not only a fine display of chrysanthemums, etc., but a fine collection of plants. The Erie Floral Co. showed choice white and pink Killarney, also Richmond, Sunburst and Maryland. A vase of Mrs. Shawyer roses came from Chas. H. Totty. Chas. Guenther made a fine display of Killarney, Double Killarney, Kaiserin, Maryland, together with chrysanthemums, and they were excellent. The young but not inexperienced florist and decorator, Teddy, who is popular around the east side, had a beautiful display. His exhibit of a bride was startling and realistic, and his space was well filled with choice bloom.

Outside the sunken garden to the right J. J. Albright's exhibit, gard. Chas. Sandford, was an inimitable display of the autumnal wealth of his houses, including orchids of rarest species and beautiful specimen chrysanthemums. Humbolt, South Park

BUFFALO FLORISTS' CLUB.

The Annual Flower Show of the Buffalo Florists' Club ended on Saturday evening last. The interior of Elmwood Music Hall was turned into an Italian garden. This was all designed by Geo. McClure & Son, landscape artists. A sunken garden extended through the center of the hall with a fountain centrally located and hedged in by silent cypress and shrubs. The and Delaware Park helped a great deal to fill the massive hall, and adding to the effect.

S. A. Anderson had a large and artistic exhibit advantageously placed. Along the right and side to the extreme end of the hall was a deep bank of Betty Anderson Gloire de Lorraine terminating in a winding electric-lighted grotto. A beautiful crane stood ankle deep in moss, beneath the translucent greenery of a huge cybotium fern.

Joe Streit showed a choice variety of chrysanthemums, and one in particular being the newly-named "Eileen." A set table was ribboned off between four white posts trimmed with southern smilax with brass boxes filled with Whitmanii fern. The corsage bouquets were of orchids and Ward roses. The center piece was a gilt basket tied with Ward-tinted ribbon and filled with oncidiums, Hillingdon roses and golden pompons. A Japanese garden in miniature created much favorable comment. The Scott Co. had a very fine exhibit of decorative plants surrounded by large vases of chrysanthemums. Stroh's Quality Shop contributed beautiful beds of plants and tables in which baskets of roses were artistically arranged, also a dinner table arranged with yellow Baby Pompons, Sunburst roses and stavia. The corsage bouquets were of Ward roses. L. H. Neubeck exhibited a splendid variety of tropical plants and chrysanthemums. Frank's greenhouses had a similar effect, using lilies, White Killarney and Timothy Eaton chrysanthemums.

A fine collection of specimen plants came from George Urban, Jr. Benson Stafford also made a grand showing of the latest things in corsage work and basket effect, beautiful beyond words. A fine display of baskets, pottery and jardinières were original and varied. A long table center in Japanese style showed deftness of design and workmanship.

To the left of the stage Palmer's floral tribute was arranged beneath an ivory white pergola alive with climbing ivy. Chrysanthemums were used with striking effect. A breakfast table, fully set, with center piece of Baby Pompons and fruit was very attractive and in the floral basket exhibit the proverbial expression of "a thing of beauty is a joy forever" has unquestionably been realized. RHODE ISLAND HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual autumn show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, held in Providence, R. I., Nov. 8-9, was a complete success. The quantity of exhibits was larger than in many years, and with the limited space at their disposal, the show committee found it difficult to accommodate many exhibitors. Cornelius Hartstra, gard. for the Rhode Island Hospital, was one of the most conspicuous exhibitors, making a clean sweep with his chrysanthemums, more than 100 varieties. John A. Macrae also displayed some fine chrysanthemums. William Appleton staged palms, ferns and crotons and Edward L. Nock of Edgewood had a fine display of orchids and foliage plants. A fine showing of bay trees was made by the Norwood Floral Company. Two mantels with smart decorations were shown by Eugene Appleton and T. J. Johnston. In the cut flower section there were also elegant displays. The exhibition was arranged by Eugene Appleton in his customary pleasing manner.

The show committee included Eugene A. Appleton, R. M. Bowen, E. K. Thomas, A. C. Miller, Thomas Hope, Providence; Joshua Vose, Pontiac; Harry V. Mayo, East Providence; Miss Addie F. Holland, Auburn.

Following is a condensed list of the awards in the professional and commercial classes:

Burke & Burns, 1st in all the rose classes; John A. Macrae, 1st in four, John Mar shall 1st in one, carnation classes; Wm Hoffman 1st in one, John A. Macrae 1st in five, F. Macrae & Sons 1st in four, John Marshall 1st in three, R. I. Hospital 1st in two, chrysanthemum classes; A. Holscher, 1st on violets; Wm. Jurgens, 1st on lily of the valley; T. J. Johnston & Co., 1st for basket of chrysanthemums, mantel decoration and bride's bouquet, Wm. Appleton, 2nd on same classes; Wm. Appleton 1st, T. J. Johnston & Co. 2nd, on group of foliage plants. The Mrs. B. A. Holbrook prize for three vases long stemmed chrysanthemums was won by John A. Macrae.

TUXEDO HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Our report of the Fall Show of the Tuxedo (N. Y.) Horticultural Society, was unavoidably condensed as, indeed, have been the reports of all shows coming within the congested period of shows everywhere at almost one and the same time. We take pleasure in appending the names of the prize winners at Tuxedo who contributed so much to make that event an unprecedented affair from a cultural standpoint.

Pres. Tansey special for largest chrysanthemum—A. Biesenne, gard. for Wm. Ziegler. Cups for table decoration, August Kamman; 2nd, to Jos. Beevar; 3rd, W. Brock. Center piece, Geo. Thompson, gard. for Wm. Dinsmore; 2nd, D. S. Miller; 3rd, J. Beevar. Center piece (assistants), D. MacGregor; Edward Smart. Regular classes: Plants, 10-in. pots group, F. Tilford, gard. J. Tansey; 6-in. pots, Geo. G. Mason, gard. D. S. Miller; E. Richards, gard. J. Beevar; 3rd, G. F. Baker, gard. J. MacMahan. Fern specimen, R. Dellafield, gard. W. Brock; 2d, F. Tilford; 3rd, Mrs. C. M. Bell, gard. D. McIntosh. Three ferns, Tilford, 1st; Bell, 2nd; Baker, 3rd. Ornamental foliage, Bell, Tilford, Baker. Lorraine Begonias, Geo. G. Mason, Mrs. Murray Mitchell, gard. T. Wilson, R. Dellafield. Cosmos, Tilford, Mason. On chrysanthemum plants, Richard Mortimer, gard. C. D. Schaeffer won six 1sts. E. Richards one 1st, F. Tilford one 1st. For best 18 blooms, 18 varieties, Frank Tilford was 1st, also for 25 arranged for effect and he won five 1sts in other classes. Other winners in the cut bloom classes were Eben Richards, Geo. G. Mason, A. Seton, R. Mortimer, R. Dellafield, Mrs. Carhart, G. F. Baker and H. Vogel. First prizes on roses were captured by R. Dellafield, G. G. Mason, F. Tilford, Mrs. M. Mitchell, gard. T. Wilson, and Mrs. C. M. Bell. First on carnations, Tilford, Dellafield, Mrs. Carhart, Mrs. Bell, Mrs. M. Mitchell and G. G. Mason. In the fruit and vegetable classes all the above names appear as winners, also Mrs. Spencer, gard. E. Barth, and Dr. Douglas. Mrs. Carhart's special prize of $25 for 12 chrysanthemum blooms was won by F. Tilford, who also won the MacMahan prize for rose disseminated in 1912, with Sunburst.

PITTSBURGH FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

Awards of Judging Committee, November 5 (Chrysanthemum Night):

A. R. Peacock's exhibit of Rose Pockett is especially good in foliage, stem and bloom; certificate of merit.

W. A. Morten's stand of pot-grown chrysanthemums; first class certificate. Dixmont Hospital, cultural certificate.

The exhibit from the Bureau of Parks is perhaps the finest we have seen at any of our meetings. The Mrs. Gilbert Drabble from Schenley Park is the best white ever shown in Pittsburgh; also Winifred and Mrs. Wm. Mease are especially good. From the Phipps Conservatories on the North Side splendid blooms of Wm. Turner are shown. The single chrysanthemums are elegant and graceful; in fact, the exhibit is the best we have ever seen here; first class certificate.

Fred Wissenbach has no greenhouse, and his group of pot-grown plants are a great credit to his cultural skill; cultural certificate.

Paul Randolph's vase of commercial varieties is good, and considering the proximity of railway and industrial plants to the greenhouse, we award a cultural certificate.

Elmer D. Smith, Adrian, Mich., has staged the best commercial varieties among which are Naomah, Smith's Sensation, Hirondelle and Ueberon.

As a new exhibition variety Yonkers promises well, and pompon Fairy Queen is exceptionally good; cultural certificate.

C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., sent several new singles; also his new pink rose "without a fault," Mrs. George Shawyer; first class certificate.

The commercial varieties shown by the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. are all standard varieties and especially well-grown; cultural certificate.

Robert Lillie, Jas. Wiseman, C. H. Sample, Neil McCallum, Committee.

SPECIAL AWARDS AT ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF THE PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Gold medal for orchids and cybotium ferns, to Joseph Heacock Co.; certificate of merit to Thomas Meehan & Sons for hardy chrysanthemums and evergreens; certificate of merit to W. Atlee Burpee & Co. for collection of hardy chrysanthemums; special prize to John Wanamaker for single chrysanthemum plants; certificate of merit to Robert Craig for Ficus pandurata; honorable mention for Antirrhinum rosea, by Frank Birnbrauer; certificate of merit for single pompon chrysanthemums by Charles H. Totty; honorable mention for hardy chrysanthemums by Thomas Meehan & Sons; honorable mention for hardy chrysanthemums by H. F. Michell Co.; certificate of merit to Henry A. Dreer, Inc. for Adiantum Farleyense gloriosa, Ruhm von Mordrecht, for Cocos Weddelliana and eunomous, and for collection of foliage plants, and silver medal for display of cybotium and araucarias; special mention for display of variegated pineapple plants, exhibited by Henry A. Dreer, Inc.; special mention for new chrysanthemum pompon by Thomas P. Hunter; special mention for trade display by H. F. Michell Co.; silver medal for display of paintings of Meehan's Mallow Marvels, by Thomas Meehan & Sons; silver medal for hardy chrysanthemums by Stafford Flower Farm; certificate of merit for hardy chrysanthemums by H. F. Michell Co.; certificate of merit for rose Mrs. George Shawyer, by Charles H. Totty; certificate of merit for rose Milady, by A. N. Pierson; certificate of merit for rose Janet, by Robert Scott & Son; certificate of merit for rose Mrs. Forde, by Robt. Scott & Son; silver medal for rose Irish Fire Flame, by Robert Scott & Son; special mention for rose Killarney, by Joseph Heacock Co.; certificate of merit for display of evergreens, by William H. Moon Co.

Notes.

The Rhode Island Horticultural Society held an exhibition of chrysanthemums, carnations, violets and fruit in Elysium Hall, Providence, on Nov. 8 and 9.

In the list of awards at the exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York, a silver medal was given to M. J. Pope for Odontoglossum grande, not O. grandiflora as given in our report last week.

Late arrivals at the Chrysanthemum Show, Berkeley Lyceum Building, N. Y., were two plants of the new Solanum capsicastrum Melvini—introduced by George Melvin of South Framingham. The plants were well covered with berries of deep orange scarlet and were very favorably noticed.

The Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club had an exhibition on November 4th at the Royal Guardians' Building. Chrysanthemums were in fine array. T. Arnold, gard. for Mrs. C. M. Hays, L. Arnold, gard. for J. Sutherland, J. A. Travis, gard. for A. H. Sims, J. W. Turner, gard. for E. B. Greenshields, Hall & Robinson, McKenna & Sons, J. Eddy & Son were the principal prize winners.

NEWS NOTES.

Mitchell, So. Dak.—The general management of the Newburys (Inc.) nursery business has been taken over by W. T. March, formerly of McCook, Nebraska.

Waynesboro, Pa.—The Blue Mountain View greenhouses, Henry Eicholz, proprietor, Ringold road, were damaged by fire recently to the extent of $5000; no insurance.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

On Monday evening, Nov. 11th, occurred the celebration of the silver jubilee of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, with a banquet, music, speeches and a dance, at Horticultural Hall. The weather was glorious, the decorations lavish, the singers and musicians accomplished, the banquet sumptuous, the officials assiduous and the speeches were full of life and spirit. There must have been close to 400 present, all told, of whom fully one-third were ladies. An atmosphere of jubilation pervaded the assembly and the affair was one of pleasure unalloyed from start to finish. A large Massachusetts" which was responded to by Alex. McGregor of the Governor's Council, who presented the greetings of Governor Foss and made a most patriotic, eloquent and flowery speech, full of imagery and poetic sentiment. Wm. J. Stewart was then introduced as the first president of the club and club historian. Mr. Stewart recounted briefly the motives and incidents leading up to the formation of the club, 25 years ago last December at his flower establishment in Bromfield street, its rapid growth to a position of influence in the horticulture of the entire country, the fraternal and social advantages it had fostered and its cordial relationship with other similar bodies elsewhere, expressing the hope that the prosperity now enjoyed might be continued and enhanced.

anything laid up for a rainy day it is because of the rose. A communication from Philip Breitmeyer, president of the American Carnation Society, having been received pleading engagements at home and regrets at inability to attend, Peter Fisher responded for his pet society instead. Mr. Fisher spoke of "Phil" as a man who carries sunshine wherever he goes, "whom to know is to love." He congratulated the rose men on their progress but thought that carnation was destined to continue the flower of the people. He paid a high compliment to Mr. Patten's new carnation, Princess Dagmar, which he admitted made it necessary that he should look out for his own laurels. Then President Parker responded briefly for the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and was followed part of the plant exhibits from the show which closed the preceding evening had been left to do duty as decorations on this occasion and they formed a rare background all about the big exhibition hall where the tables were spread. Floral adornments included such prime novelties as Montgomery's rose, Mrs. Charles Russell, and Patten's crimson carnation, Princess Dagmar. Wm. Simi donated a huge bunch of violets for each of the ladies accompanying invited guests. The lecture hall was reserved for the dancing, which began at 10 o'clock on the conclusion of the speeches. Vice-President W. J. Kennedy occupied the chair and, after a brief word of welcome and congratulation introduced Walter Ballantine of the Boston City Council as toastmaster. The first toast was "The Commonwealth of

J. Otto Thilow, president of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia was then called upon to speak for the Florists' Clubs of America. Mr. Thilow paid a fine tribute to the work and influence of the florists' clubs, and the fraternal spirit which these organizations have installed. His text was the inspiration and independence and stimulating atmosphere which has resulted from the principle of co-operation applied to the florist business. It was a well-prepared and thoughtful address and we hope to present it more fully in a later issue after the flower shows have ceased their demand upon our space. A. Farenwald next responded for the American Rose Society. Mr. Farenwald never made a finer address. He asserted that the rose is the mainstay of the profession and claimed that if any members of the craft have by Secretary W. N. Craig as spokesman for the ladies, a subject which that gentleman handled in a masterly and impressive manner, admitting that he loves the ladies, always did and always will, asserting that the women's suffrage plank was instrumental in making him a "Bull Moose" and quoting Scott, Burns and others in persuasive proof of his principles and convictions as regards the fair sex. A congratulatory telegram from Thos. Pegler was received with applause. Then the chairman announced "On with the dance," and soon the merry whirl was on, lasting until midnight.

Between the speeches most delightful musical numbers were contributed by Miss Katherine Singer, pianist; Miss Ella Edmonds, soprano; Miss J. A. Corson, violinist, and Mr. Jas. Singer, baritone, and Hutchins' orchestra also did fine work throughout the evening.

The regular monthly meeting of the club will be held at Horticultural Hall on Tuesday evening, November 19, 1912. The lecturer of the evening will be Prof. E. A. White of the Massachusetts Agricultural College on "Horticultural Education for the Gardener and Florist."

Nominations of officers for 1913 will be made from the floor, as is customary at the November meetings. There will be reports from the banquet and other committees, and much other business of importance. All interested in horticulture are cordially invited to be present, no matter whether club members or not.

W. N. CRAIG, Secretary.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF GARDENERS.

The annual meeting of the association will be held in the New Auditorium Hall, 81 Orange street, Newark, N. J., on Tuesday afternoon, November 19th. The meeting will be called to order promptly at two o'clock.

Following routine business and election of officers, the meeting will be addressed by the following speakers:—

Robert Craig, of Philadelphia, Pa., "A Talk to Gardeners."

Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., "International Flower Show of 1912."

Prof. J. J. Taubenhaus, of the Delaware Agricultural College, Newark, Del., "Problems of Plant Diseases that Confront the Gardener."

Harry A. Bunyard, of New York, an illustrated lecture, presenting seventy stereopticon views of the International Show in London.

Following immediately after the meeting, a banquet will be given at the Continental Hotel. The dinner will be served promptly at six o'clock so that members who desire to catch early trains for home will be able to do so. A number of notable guests will be with us. Patrick O'Mara will preside as toastmaster. Members intending to attend the dinner should notify the secretary immediately so that tickets can be reserved for them. Dinner tickets, $2.50.

The team bowling tournament will take place on Monday evening, November 18th, at eight o'clock, at the Tuxedo Academy Alleys, Newark. Teams to consist of three men, members of the local societies or clubs they represent, and members in good standing in the N. A. G. Entries close on Saturday, November 16th, and should be sent to the secretary's office before that date.

The tournament for individual bowlers will take place on Tuesday morning, November 19th, at nine o'clock. To be eligible for this contest, bowlers must be members in good standing of the N. A. G.

The Continental Hotel will be the headquarters of the N. A. G. during the convention. Accommodations for members can be obtained at reasonable rates.

An exhibit of this year's novelties is invited, both from private and commercial growers. Exhibits can be expressed care M. C. Ebel, secretary N. A. G., New Auditorium Hall, Orange street, Newark, N. J., so as to reach there on the forenoon of the 19th inst.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF WASHINGTON.

At the November meeting the members decided that it would be good advertising to show the cards now being gotten out by the N. Y. Florists' Club for the booming of the coming holiday business, and the secretary was instructed to order fifty of these for distribution.

The committee having in charge the distribution of prizes among the public school children in the club's garden contest reported that in view of the limited interest taken in the matter despite the hard work of some of the leading spirits, it was decided that it would be impracticable to make the awards this year. They further reported that the school authorities agreed with them in this decision.

A letter was read from a New York nursery firm in which information was asked as to the status of the Industrial Home School, of Tennytown, D. C., the disbursing officer of that institution having asked that wholesale prices be granted it. At this institution gardening and horticulture is taught and although the members were of the opinion that the work was a laudable one they could not agree that the same prices as are given florists, who made a business of selling their stock, should be quoted them. It is said that the output of the school is sold and it is therefore in competition with the florists. Then again, it could not be seen where it was necessary for them to seek lower prices in that the Government made up any deficits the school experienced. One member said that there were too many of these places in and about the District of Columbia and that the line should be drawn somewhere, although he disliked doing it in this case.

N. L. Hammer, chairman of the bowling team of the club, reported that he had been elected to that position by the members of the team the other officers being William H. Ernest, captain; George Dalglish, secretary, and George Cooke, treasurer. He further reported that the team was making a good showing against its opponents and that it would be in fine shape to gain the championship at the S. A. F. and O. H. convention.

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

November 8th was Chrysanthemum Night and brought out a large attendance and a splendid array of blooms in all classes. The exhibitors were John F. Huss, Alfred Cebelius, gardener for Prof. M. W. Jacobus, the Whiting Greenhouses (Carl Peterson, manager), and J. Alfred Weber, gardener for Walter L. Goodwin. The awards were as follows: A first class certificate to Mr. Huss and to the Whiting Greenhouses; a certificate of merit to Mr. Cebelius and to Mr. Weber; and a cultural certificate to Mr. Cebelius for a collection of plants of Begonia Lorraine.

The secretary read from the horticultural press an instructive article on "The White Fly and Its Control," by Prof. J. J. Taubenhaus, and a soul-stirring address by Dr. W. S. Whitmore, entitled "Flowers and the Gardener."

The next meeting will be held on the 22nd inst at the County Bldg., Hartford.

GEORGE W. SMITH, Sec.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

The 11st inst., was chrysanthemum night but when one adds to this "Ladies Night" it is unnecessary to say that it was quite a brilliant and enjoyable meeting, there being no less than ninety ladies present, with about 125 members. Charles Schenck provided an excellent vaudeville entertainment consisting of a violin soloist, lady vocalists and dancing, all of fine talent. There was also a recherché little supper provided for the ladies by Frank H. Traendly and of course the members were not neglected. Mr. Hendrickson, chairman of the publicity committee exhibited the design for the Thanksgiving card and also stated that the committee was in need of the sinews of war to carry on the work successfully.

The nominating committee put in nomination for the year 1913 the following gentlemen:—For president, J. A. Manda, William Duckham, W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., and H. A. Bunyard; for vice-president, I. S. Hendrickson, John Donaldson and J. H. Fiesser; for secretary, A. R. Kennedy, Thos. B. de Forest and John Young; for treasurer, W. B. Rickards, Philip Kessler and C. Schenck; for trustees, F. H. Treandly, Chas. B. Weathered, Harry Turner, John Miesem, A. T. Boddington, F. R. Pierson, H. E. Froment, W. F. Sheridan, P. Hornecker and A. H. Langjahr. President Manda declined re-nomination.

The committee on awards which visited the greenhouses of C. H. Totty last week read its report which gave the new rose Mrs. George Shawyer a record of 901.6 points. Six new members were elected and ten new ones proposed. R. E. Berry was authorized by the club to reply to the courteous invitations of the bowling contingent of the Cook County Florists' Association of Chicago.

Exhibits: "Matchless" carnation from the Cottage Garden Co.; chrysanthemums, Traendly & Schenck; Wm. Eccles carnation, Scott Bros.; Solanum capsicastrum Melvini, A. T. Boddington; a vase of roses from J. J. Brozart of N. J. anent which there was considerable discussion. Experts present were of the opinion that it was the very floriferous and useful bedder Madam Jules Grolez sent out by Guillot in 1897, but the matter was referred to the December meeting for adjudication.

MARYLAND WEEK.

The official program of the annual meetings and exhibition of the Maryland State Horticultural Society is a 50 page book, handsomely gotten up, and interesting. The event will occur on Nov. 19-23 at Fifth Regiment Armory, Md. With 60,000 sq. ft. of floor space covered with exhibits; addresses, papers, moving pictures, and other special features of entertainment and instruction "Maryland Week" promises to score an unprecedented triumph and offers a tempting opportunity to everyone engaged in horticultural pursuits.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island will be held in their rooms at 96 Westminster street, Providence, on Monday evening, Nov. 18. The principal business will be the election of officers for the coming year.

On Saturday evening Nov. 9, R. Vincent, Jr., president of the S. A. F., lectured at New Orleans, La., before the New Orleans Horticultural Society on "Plants and Flowers of America and Europe." The lecture was finely illustrated with stereopticon views.

The Engelmann Botanical Club held a very interesting meeting last week in the lecture room at the Missouri Botanical Garden. There was an illustrated talk on "The Royal Gardens at Kew," by Secretary George H. Pring. Dr. G. T. Moore, director of the Garden, presided.

The members of the St. Louis Retail Florists' Association spent a pleasant evening at the Washington Hotel, the occasion being their annual banquet. The tables were beautifully decorated. C. C. Sanders was toastmaster. Those who spoke were R. J. Windler, F. C. Weber, Jr., and C. C. Sanders.

Ninety thousand six hundred and seventy-nine persons attended the flower show at the Museum of Natural History in New York on Sunday afternoon. This is said to be a record crowd for the Museum for the time it lasted—just four hours. Thirty-one thousand were admitted within the first hour. This is a good omen for the International Flower Show next spring.

The Chicago Florists' Club held its regular meeting, November 7. The principal business of the evening was the nomination of officers with the following result: For president, Duncan Robertson, Guy French; vice-president, John Degnan, A. Henderson and Chas. Bond; treasurer, Edw. Winterson; secretary, Louis Winterson, Wilder Deamud, S. A. Jamieson. H. N. Bruns was nominated to succeed himself as trustee. The coming banquet was discussed and a good time is promised all who attend.

The regular meeting of the Tuxedo Horticultural Society was held in the Parish House on Nov. 6th. The chief business was in connection with the late fall show, and in the general discussion it was conceded to have been the best thus far. Special attention was drawn to the able and painstaking manner in which F. Bentley, the manager, carried the arrangements and he was given a rising vote of thanks. Mr. Bentley replied in a very feeling and appreciative manner. The meetings of this society are held on the first Wednesday in each month.

The New Jersey Floricultural Society held their regular monthly meeting,

CARNATION "PRINCESS DAGMAR."

We present a picture of Patten & Co.'s new crimson seedling carnation, "Princess Dagmar," which is a cross between Genevieve,—a large white seedling,—and an unnamed crimson seedling. The color is a fine deep crimson not too dark. Flowers large, averaging three and one-half to four inches, borne on strong stiff stems, Nov. 8th, at Orange. Chrysanthemums were the principal feature of the occasion and hundreds of people viewed the display.

Lager & Hurrell had a nice display of orchids, for which they received a first class certificate. They also received 85 points for Vanda Sanderling. A. C. Von Gaasbeck, gard. John Dervan, also received a first class certificate for chrysanthemum Wm. Turner, exceptionally large flowers. He also captured first for 10 distinct varieties: S. M. & A. Colgate, 2nd. Joseph Manda's prize for the best centerpiece for table was won by Charles Hathaway, gard. Max Schneider; S. M. & A. Colgate, 2nd. Mrs. Wm. Barr, gard. Emil Panuska, won the prize offered by Frank Drews for hardy chrysanthemums; Chas. C. Goodrich, gard. Fritz Berglund, 2nd.

The collections of single and anemone seedlings shown by Frank Drews were awarded cultural certificate and certificate of merit. Certificates were awarded to Thomas A. Edison, gard. Geo. B. Wilson, for roses; Chas. Hathaway for standard and bush chrysanthemums, etc.; Walter D. Sargent, gard. Thomas Hopkins, for Cattleya labiate, S. M. & A. Colgate for carnations.

A committee was appointed to arrange for the annual dinner, the ladies to be invited, and to have a dance afterwards; this event to be held the latter part of January.

which hold the bloom perfectly erect at all times. The calyx seldom splits. Plants are perfectly healthy in every respect; a strong grower and propagates easily; an average bloomer and one that attracts instant attention.

Awarded a silver medal at the Chrysanthemum Show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Nov. 7-10.

The Worcester County Horticultural Society held its annual meeting on Nov. 6 and elected the following officers: Edward W. Breed of Clinton, president; Arthur J. Marble, Charles Greenwood and Herbert R. Kinney of Worcester, vice-presidents; Leonard C. Midgeley, secretary; Burt W. Greenwood, treasurer; Miss Lucy M. Coulson, librarian.

The committee on medals reported that medals for excellence in displays had been awarded to Leonard C. Midgeley, William Anson and George McWilliam, who were awarded Blake medals, and Alden Derby, Herbert A. Cook, Walter D. Ross and George McWilliam, who were awarded medals from the Hadwen fund.

PRESENT KNOWLEDGE OF SWEET PEA DISEASES AND THEIR CONTROL.

A paper by J. J. Taubenhaus, Delaware College Agricultural Experiment Station, Newark, Del., read before the American Sweet Pea Society, Boston, July 13, 1912.

It has been also definitely proved that the mosaic disease is a contagious one, since it can be produced at will by artificial inoculations. I believe with Professor T. F. Manns, chief pathologist and bacteriologist of our Delaware Experiment Station, that the mosaic disease is caused by a protozoic organism which neither our microscopes nor our present cultural and staining methods are sufficient to detect. The symptoms produced in artificial inoculations of this disease are similar to those in the field, namely, a yellowish spotting or mottling of the leaves and a tendency of the leaves of the tips of the plant to curl. Judging from all our observations, it does not seem probable that this mosaic disease of the sweet pea is either introduced or carried with the seeds. The mosaic disease has not once made its appearance in the laboratory during two years work on the sweet pea diseases, and in sowing both sterilized and unsterilized seeds were used all the time. However, it must be added in this connection that we have always used sterilized pots and soil. This at once suggests the possibility of the soils being the source, where the organism is harbored. On this point we are now working. Should we find the soil to harbor the organism then we shall be on the road to discovering some means of treatment.

In England the sweet peas suffer from a disease known as "streak." This disease is very much dreaded by the English gardeners, as it causes great losses. From the descriptions given of that disease it seems to be similar to the new mosaic disease of this country. However, we refrain from passing final judgment until we have the opportunity of seeing the English specimens and of making comparisons. In England the streak disease is attributed to a fungus, Thilavia bassicola, which attacks the roots. In our investigations we have not found the Thilavia fungus or any other organism associated on the roots of mosaic affected plants. In fact, such affected plants were found to have as normal a root, with as much in the way of legume nodules as the healthy ones. If our mosaic disease proves to be the same as the streak disease of England, it will be safe to assume that the Thilavia in England is secondary and merely follows the already weakened mosaic affected plant.

The Anthracnose of the Sweet Pea.

This is another new and American disease of the sweet pea. It was first described by Prof. Sheldon of the West Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station. The disease, although recently worked out, is apparently an old disease known under the name of "wilt" or "drop." In some works on sweet peas it is spoken of as "bud drop," and is attributed to heavily manuring and also to wet seasons. A rich soil and wet climates cannot produce the drop. These are only factors which help the disease in its destructive work. The cause of the anthracnose disease is a fungus (Glomerella rufomaculans), which also is the cause of the bitter rot of the apple. Cross inoculations have been carried on with these two organisms, and their identity definitely established. This means that if your sweet peas grow near some apple orchard, and if the latter suffers from the bitter rot, it will be carried readily by the wind or some insect to the sweet peas and produce the anthracnose disease. We have also proved that the organism which cause the anthracnose of the pepper, the persimmon fruit, and the May apple fruit will also produce the anthracnose disease of the sweet pea and the bitter rot of the apple. It is thus seen how serious a proposition this becomes when we consider the many hosts which can communicate this disease to the sweet pea.

The symptoms of the anthracnose of the sweet pea are diverse. Sometimes the disease is manifested in a wilting and dying of the tips. These diseased parts become whitish and brittle and soon break off. Sometimes the dying works downward, and this involves the entire branch. Oftentimes the leaves are attacked and they soon die. On the leaves the disease soon starts as a white spot, which enlarges and involves the entire area. On the blossoms the fungus either attacks the junction between the flower buds and the peduncle—in this case the bud drops off leaving the peduncle intact—or it attacks both flower bud and peduncle, and this time both dry up but do not fall off. The seed pods are also attacked in all their stages of development; in this case the fungus works inwards until it reaches the seeds. The fungus is capable of living over winter on diseased parts of the plants, in the soil or on the seeds, as was definitely proved.

Mildew.

There is another disease known as mildew. This disease is caused by a fungus which lives on the surface of the leaves and sends suckers into the interior tissue of the host. The fungus attacks both indoor and outdoor sweet peas. However, it need not be feared as it is easily controlled by sulphur dusting.

Methods of Control.

Little is done or known in the way of controlling the diseases of the sweet pea. There are, however, certain measures of control which we can adapt from methods applied to other plants which suffer diseases in nature similar to those of the sweet pea. For the nematodes and all the other root and soil diseases of the sweet pea under glass we would recommend the same treatment as that recommended in Ohio by Prof. Selby for Lettuce disease under greenhouse conditions. The treatments recommended are of two kinds, namely, steaming the soil, and formalin treatment of the soil. The formalin treatment of the soil consists first in spading the soil and bringing it to a good tilth condition as to moisture content. Then the soil is treated with a solution of formalin made of two pints of a 40 per cent. formalin in 50 gallons of water, at the rate of one gallon of the preparation to each square foot of the surface. The application may be given with an ordinary watering can. After the "heavy wetting down" the soil should be left free for about two weeks, until all the formalin evaporates. This treatment will rid the soil from all fungus pests. But it will not be effective in controlling the nematodes, hence the heating method is the best. It is as follows: It is essential that the soil should be sufficiently moist and at the same time fairly loose. The steaming consists in burying a series of pipes in the soil and letting live steam pass through them. The pipes are perforated, and have cross head and boiler connections. The surface soil is then covered with canvas and the steam passed into the pipes. The temperature for best results is 181 to 212°F., maintained for a period of one hour. For cutworms the following treatment is recommended: Bran, 15 to 20 lbs.; middlings, 10 lbs.; white arsenic, 3 lbs.; molasses, or any cheap sirup, one gal.; freshly chopped green clover, alfalfa, etc., enough to make the mixture of a greenish tint. Mix thoroughly, add just enough water to allow of molding into small balls. Put a pinch at intervals of the row.

The biting insects could be controlled by the same methods used to control the Cucumber striped beetle, a sprinkling of Paris green and flour. Considering the important role aphids play in carrying the mosaic disease, it is very important that the sweet pea aphid should be kept in check. There are two ways of accomplishing this: the first is spraying with any compound of nicotine, the other is to have Nature do it for us. In Nature the green aphid is parasitised by several species of ladybird beetles. The latter can be seen to feed voraciously on the aphids, hence ladybird beetles should not be molested. Green aphids are also parasitised by a small hymenopterous minute wasp-like insect.

We now have a series of experiments under way on different spray mixtures to control the anthracnose. Although it is early yet to reach any conclusions, it seems that potassium permanganate is the most promising fungicide. A one-half per cent. solution will control the anthracnose. The solution has a wine color but it is more or less colorless when applied to the plant. It spots the flower, therefore it should be applied after picking. Spraying at intervals of two weeks will be sufficient.

This concludes my remarks on the sweet pea disease. It does not, however, exhaust the subject. There are many more things that we would wish to know about sweet pea diseases and their control that we do not know. We would like to know more about the relation of lime, manure and fertilizers to the diseases of the sweet pea; the effect of excessive feeding; the effect of drought and of watering, in their relation to the diseases of the sweet pea; the effect of deep and shallow planting; of thin or thick planting and their relations to the disease. More studies are necessary to be made of this mosaic disease before we can conjecture any plans for control; and more studies and trials of insecticides and fungicides are necessary in order to get the best results. We believe that one more year of research will yield us the desired information. For some reason or other the experiment stations have not as yet cared for the interests of seedsmen and florists as they have for the interests of the farmers. Plant pathologists have not as yet busied themselves with flower diseases. The Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station is the first and only one in the country to take up the diseases of the sweet pea, both on a scientific and economic basis. But for the reason already stated we, too, cannot devote all our time to the study of flower diseases. The study of the sweet pea diseases at the Delaware station is only a part of a large problem outlined for the investigation of the legume diseases. We have started the work and opened the way.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The 52nd Annual Report of the Board of Park Commissioners for the City of Hartford, Conn., combined with the 4th Annual Report of the Public Cemeteries of that city has been issued. It is a comprehensive and interesting document, especially the report of Superintendent George A. Parker. There are several handsome illustrations and a portrait of former Park Commissioner Lucius F. Robinson, who has retired after serving seventeen years.

Michigan Bird Life, by Walter B. Barrows, Professor of Zoology.—Special Bulletin of the Zoological Department of the Michigan Agricultural College, East Lansing, Mich. Just published. Eight hundred and twenty-two pages, 70 uncolored plates and 152 text figures. Weight about 4 lbs. Contains full descriptions of all birds found in the state, with an account of the migration, food, song, nest, eggs and general habits of each species. This bulletin cannot be distributed gratis but will be supplied at actual cost plus transportation. It is sold at the College for 45 cents, in paper covers, or 60 cents, bound in cloth; transportation 35 cents additional and must be prepaid. Applications should be sent to Secretary A. M. CHICAGO NOTES.

Theodore Vogel, has accepted a position with Lubliner & Trinz.

C. M. Dickinson, manager of E. H. Hunt, is laid up with an attack of blood poisoning in his hands.

Another of the large department stores has put in a plant department and expects to add cut flowers in the near future.

A large mahogany and gold ice box 5 by 22 was installed at J. Mangel's last week, also a new table of red Italian marble.

G. Vournikes who left the Alpha Floral Co., three years ago to go into the retail business for himself in Ohio, is now back at his old place.

The Chicago Carnation Co., received a telegram from its manager A. T. Pyfer, at the St. Paul Flower Show, Nov. 12th, as follows: "Bringing home the bacon; First prize on The Herald; first on Enchantress; second on White Wonder and Washington." Mr. Pyfer leaves for Cleveland, Thursday, when he will also exhibit.

Kroeschell Bros. received orders for two of their greenhouse boilers on election day, one coming from Kansas and the other from Pennsylvania. Fred Lautenschlager states that business is remarkably good for the season. He has just returned from Vincennes, Ind., where his firm has an order for a central hot water heating system designed for John J. Frisz, the largest vegetable grower in Indiana.

Sunday, Nov. 10th, was a day of genuine Indian summer weather and chrysanthemum exhibitions opened at both Lincoln and Garfield park conservatories. At Lincoln Park, head gardener August Schile said he never before had seen the attendance so great, the grounds about the entrance to the conservatories being packed for a block. 25,000 or more viewed the display on Sunday at this park. A pleasing feature was the pompons in hanging baskets. Some excellent trained bush plants and a grafted plant with 56 different varieties were noted.

Obituary.

Robert Turton.

Robert Turton, florist, of St. Louis, Mo., died of heart failure on Oct. 25. He was a civil war veteran. A wife and five children survive him.

Henry Greschens.

Henry Greschens, a florist, of Alameda, Calif., died at his residence, 2527 Clement avenue, on November 4; aged 62 years.

Linden Bree.

Linden Bree, Nevada County horticultural commissioner, and a well-known horticulturist, died at the home of his mother in Grass Valley, Calif., on Nov. 1; aged 39 years.

John Watson.

On Oct. 30, John Watson, formerly a florist in Seattle, Wash., died at the home of his daughter in Albany, N. Y., at the age of 77 years. He was born in England but had resided in America for over 30 years. He leaves a widow and three sons.

James Kerr.

We learn from our British contemporaries of the death of Mr. James Kerr, of the firm of Messrs. Kerr Brothers, nurserymen, florists and seedsmen, Dumfries. Mr. Kerr died in the hospital at Napier, New Zealand, where he was engaged in horticultural pursuits. Violas and dahlias were among his specialties. He was a brother of G. W. Kerr, well known as a sweet pea authority, associated with W. Atlee Burpee & Co., at Fordhook.

Joshua I. Maxwell.

In the death of Joshua I. Maxwell, on Oct. 23, Geneva, N. Y., loses one of the founders of the nursery business in that city, a business which has made the section famous. In 1852 he, with his brother, who had begun business a little earlier, started the nursery business when there were but two other nurseries in town, and the total plantings did not exceed ten acres. When they gave up business, about twenty years ago, they alone had over 1000 acres planted. Mr. Maxwell was 88 years of age.

Death claimed for its own last week in Hamilton, Ohio, one of Cincinnati's old retail florists, Casper Titenberg.

FLOWERS DESTROYED BY SEWER GAS.

On November 8, when the flower store of Morse & Newell, 135 Marri-mack street, Haverhill, Mass., was opened, the entire contents, plants and cut flowers, were found dead. Most of the foliage was on the floor. The principal loss will be ten large 4-8 ft. palms and the cut flowers. The cause was traced to a sewer, but this was denied by the owner of the building. Newell claimed that the heavy rain of Thursday night drove the foul air from the main sewer pipe into an open drain where no trap had been placed under the building, and as the heavy air could not get out as rain acted as a barrier, and filled the basement and percolated all through the store. The matter was pushed to a finish, when the city ordered an investigation, and city engineers and inspectors of plumbing first declared it impossible, but after one defect after another was shown and when the inspectors and Newell went to the hotel toilet in the second story of the building and turned down hot peppermint in the bowl and found it filled the basement, they both declared that the entire sewer system will have to come out and new put in, and that there was no other cause than this that spoiled the stock in Morse & Newell's. The owner of the building was then requested to pay for what was damaged and dead. There were four drains and none of them had any traps and nothing to prevent sewer matter running into the basement, yet for three years the holder of the lease had been unable to get a thing done. It was proved that the entire fault rested on the owner of the building, and the city ordered repairs at once.

In connection with the above facts, Mr. Newell wishes to state through this paper that he has been buying carnations from Leonard Cousins, Jr., Concord Junction, Mass., and blamed him on a shipment made early in the week, where the flowers closed up over night, but has now become convinced that his goods were A No. 1 and the trouble was caused by a leak in a sewer. He wishes to publicly apologize to him, finding his goods just as he represented them.

THE SWEET PEA IN AMERICA.

It is now some time ago since I read your delightfully refreshing letter by Rev. W. T. Hutchins, telling of the "Great Triumph of the Sweet Pea in America," as seen at the Boston Show of the American Sweet Pea Society.

I have been surprised that only in 1912 were the American seedsmen, growers and press realizing the beauty and possibilities of the sweet pea. The old proverb "It is never too late to mend" must bring cheerful consolation to the parties mentioned. Never did the proverb carry so much hope as it did at the Boston Show. I imagined when reading the reports, that I saw such staunch enthusiasts as Mr. W. Atlee Burpee, Mr. Sim, Mr. Bunyard, Mr. Geo. Kerr, Rev. W. T. Hutchins and others, shaking hands and congratulating one another that at last they had crowned their "Queen" and a long reign of popularity was assured.

The British Society has done and is doing wonderful things, but what has enabled the Society to do these things? My humble opinion is that to Thos. Jones, Ruabon, Wales, Alex. Malcolm, Duns, Scotland, and other amateurs, who in the earlier days of the sweet pea showed us the possibilities of the flower, is due a large share of the honor. Perhaps, however, the greatest honor must be given to the British seed trade for the way they educated the public in sweet pea matters. True they had their axe to grind but for a while the grind was slow. The seedsmen who have gained distinction and success with sweet peas have been the men who loved the flower and who had the desire to see the sweet pea in the front rank of popular flowers.

With the exception of but a few houses such as C. C. Morse & Co., and W. Atlee Burpee & Co., the seed trade in America has done very little for the sweet pea. But probably this tardy awakening of enthusiasm amongst seedsmen and with it the tardy awakening to the business possibilities connected with the sweet pea "craze," will not prove to be time lost. As yet, many of the sweet peas which were novelties in England five years ago, are unknown to the vast majority of the amateur growers in America. If all the seed-houses were to educate the public as to what varieties to grow and what a little attention will do, I feel sure it would prove well worth while.

Spencers offered by growers at a low figure really as a rule, turn out to be mostly grandifloras. In England the experience was that amateur growers were willing to pay the price for the true thing. If the sweet pea is to continue its growth of popularity in America, the amateurs must have true stocks.

From what Prof. Taubenhaus said he finds the sweet pea very much subject to all kinds of insects and fungous diseases. In my nine years experience of growing sweet peas I can honestly say that in the sweet pea I have seen very little or no trouble from insects or disease. That the diseases exist I know, and that insects attack them I know, but in a normal season and under good cultivation one does not get much trouble. In California this year, all growers suffered severe losses through the attack of green fly. But most growers put it down to the bad season, late rains, light rainfall, etc. It was only because of the enormous acreage that the aphids could not be dealt with and had the trouble been in an ordinary garden, it could easily have been handled.

It has been suggested to me that sweet peas cannot be grown to as great perfection in this country as in Great Britain. I have seen sweet peas grown in the East and in California and I was greatly impressed with the possibilities suggested by the results the growers had. I have read reports from and have had conversations with growers in the Middle States and all are enthusiastic over their results. It is my firm conviction that better sweet peas can be grown in America than in England. All that is necessary is to get the enthusiasm up and then the amateurs will put that little bit extra into their growing methods. Already many amateurs are doing this and I have met many who want me to go right to their homes to see the results. The craze will spread so long as these results are seen. As President Sim has said, "All it takes is a few enthusiasts to start the thing going."

The time is ripe for putting the flower before the public. Let the American trade, the American press and the American amateurs and gardeners join with the American Sweet Pea Society to push the flower on to its rightful place in the gardens of this country. With all my heart I wish them success.

FRANK G. CUTHBERTSON.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Report of Entomologist.

The Circular Scale.

Chrysomphalus Anidum (Linn.).

This is probably the most common armoured scale found in greenhouses. It is widely distributed; in semi-tropical regions it is a serious pest of outdoor plants.

An adult female scale is comparatively large, circular, quite convex with a nipple-like prominence in the center, which is grayish and surrounded by a reddish-brown ring. The young scale differs from the armoured scales in that it does not remain fixed after it begins secreting its scale covering. The life cycle of the insect may be completed under greenhouse conditions in from 60 to 70 days, therefore, there may be about six generations during a year. This scale attacks Palms, Cycads, Ficus, Oleander and Citrus plants. It is controlled by treatment with strong soapy solutions.

Miscellaneous Scales.

There are several other scale insects that are commonly found on various greenhouse plants such as Cyclamen and Lantana Scale. Aspidiotus Lantanae (Signi), which is often found on Cyclamen, Lantana, Laurus, Palms and Citrus trees.

The Greedy Scale, Aspidiotus rapax (Comst), is sometimes found in greenhouses but seldom very troublesome. The Chaff Scale, Parlatoria pergandii (Comst), is also commonly found on Citrus plants, grown under glass.

Other scale insects such as the San Jose, (Aspidiotus perniciosus) Oyster Shell Scale, (Lepidosaphes ulmi), the Scurfy Scale, (Chionaspis furfura Fitch), are of common occurrence on various trees and plants that surround a home. These latter armoured scale are controlled with the lime-sulphur remedy.

Remedies for Scale Insects.

The length of this report already prevents an extended discussion of the remedies and precautionary measures for the control of scale insects that may trouble the florist. As a rule, these pests may either be controlled by fumigation or application of a contact insecticide, in the form of a wash or spray. Care must be exercised in either case not to use a strength that will injure the plant.

Fumigation with Hydrocyanic Acid Gas is a most useful and satisfactory treatment for greenhouses that are infested with Mealy Bugs, White Fly, Thrips and various species of aphids. Care must be taken in the strength of the doses used depending on the character of plants growing. After extended tests, Mr. A. B. Gahan, in Bulletin No. 19, Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station, reports the following table of potassium cyanide used and length of exposure given to various plants without injury. Recent tests with tomato and cucumber indicate that a 50 per cent reduction in the strength of cyanide would be as effective and safer against the White Fly.

It is best to fumigate with cyanide at night. It usually requires a second or third treatment with the above strengths to kill all Mealy Bugs.

Hydrocyanic-Acid Gas is made by combining in a crocken jar, Potassium Cyanide one ounce, sulfuric acid (commercial) one fluid ounce, water three fluid ounces.

The house should be made as tight as possible, and great care exercised in handling these chemicals. For scale insects other than Mealy Bugs, a strong soap solution seems to be the best general remedy.

Whale oil soap used at the rate of one pound to one gallon of water is useful in treating all kinds of plants usually grown in greenhouses, with the exception of ferns. Ferns may be treated with either Lemon Oil or Fir-tree Oil, at the rate of one to forty parts of water, which will usually control the Hemispherical Scale so common on this plant.

These solutions can either be sprayed thoroughly on the plants or the plants may be dipped in the solution. A 10 per cent. kerosene emulsion can be used successfully against some scale insects, such as Oyster Shell Scale or Euonymus Scale insects, when the eggs are hatching. Oftentimes a free use of water applied vigorously will wash off scale insects, especially young ones.

These insects as well as San Jose and other outdoor scale insects are usually best controlled by dormant spraying with lime-sulphur solution.

The matter of controlling these insects is, therefore, simple if remedies are applied at the right time. Florists should watch their houses and not permit any pest to gain a headway.

Effects of Weather Vagaries on Trade.

There are reports that the continuance of warm weather has had the effect of retarding activity in the bulb trade and that there is likelihood of a considerable carry-over on certain lines, but with the advent of colder weather—whenever that arrives—the probabilities are that there will be no large quantities left in the hands of the dealers. It is certainly a fact that we are having exceptionally warm, open weather for the time of year, though it is now so late that a sudden change to wintry conditions need not surprise any one.

The Potato Question.

Despite the Government report that we have harvested the largest crop of potatoes in the history of the country, prices continue fairly high and this is explained by reports of rot of a more or less serious character. If one may judge from the quality of the tubers served on our tables, there must be some foundation for these reports, as a really fine mealy potato is a rarity. Just how the stock will winter and what the situation will be next spring the future alone can answer.

Onions Keeping Poorly.

We have already called attention, not only to the potato question but to the condition of onions, and additional information has only served to confirm earlier reports that a very large percentage of the crop is soft and will have to be consumed speedily or will have to go to the dumps. Where onions have been grown on a sandy or gravelly loam they are generally of very good quality, but those grown on low muck land, on account of continued late rains, did not ripen down, and many had green tops when they were harvested. Under such conditions it is of course evident that such stock cannot be carried far into the winter, and a further evidence of this is that late buyers who usually store onions for spring shipments are buying very sparingly and are allowing the farmers to winter the bulbs. As the latter in most instances have not the best of facilities for caring for them over winter, the shrinkage when spring arrives will be very heavy.

Cabbage and Bean Crops.

The cabbage crop is a very heavy one and prices at this date are ruling very low,—from $3 to $3.50 per ton in marked contrast to the prices ruling last spring,—ranging from $40 to $60 per ton. However, it has happened more than once that extremely low prices in the fall have been followed by a strong high market in the spring, and history may repeat itself. It may seem somewhat absurd, yet the fact remains that no definite information concerning the bean crop has yet been issued by the growers, and it is well along towards the middle of November. Such a situation is certainly most unsatisfactory, yet no one can be held responsible as conditions are certainly very much mixed and one would not be able to give probable percentages without a more or less blind guess. It is of course known, in a general way, that the crop has been very badly damaged, especially in Michigan, where the situation is reported to be much worse than in New York State. However, time solves all problems, and we shall learn some time before the planting season opens another year what the crop really is.

The Celery Stringency.

There has been considerable discussion in the trade regarding the available stocks of Golden Self-Blanching celery seed and it seems to be very clearly established that never in the history of the trade has this item been so scarce as this year. We have been reliably informed that the large retailers are getting from $20 to $30 per pound for the French grown stock, and cannot supply the more or less restricted demand even at these prices. Not only is the French grown stock well nigh a failure, but the California crop is but a little better, deliveries from the best growers averaging from 10 to 20 per cent. It really begins to look as if the trade would have to turn their attention to the development of some other variety to take the place of the Golden Self-Blanching as the present type is so lacking in vigor that it seems incapable of producing seed. Just at the moment there is no other variety which can be considered as in the class with the Golden Self-Blanching, but it is one of the fortunate features of our human existence that generally something is found to meet the requirements when the necessity becomes pressing enough, and doubtless the situation will be met in this instance.

THE FUNERAL FLOWER CONTENTION.

The Rev. Dr. Mark A. Matthews, moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, has joined hands with the Roman Catholic priest who lately went on record as opposed to flowers at funerals. In an address Mr. Matthews, said:—

"My desire is to banish all flowers from funerals. What is the use of blossoms on a coffin? Christianity ought to educate this custom out of the ideas and ideals of Americans. Take the roses and put them, not on a coffin, but in the lapel of the laboring man on his way to work. Send the lilies into the workshop, into the sweat shop, there to brighten lives."

This idea of paying tribute to the living instead of the dead is gaining converts every day. The ostentation attending funeral services is gradually growing less even among the class of people financially able to make a display. Instead of putting up pretentious monuments to commemorate the dead many people give money to undertakings in memory of the dead which shall benefit the living.

But in this matter of flower giving the clergyman takes it for granted that the blossoms are wasted because the dead cannot appreciate their beauty. This is not true. As a matter of fact it is the living grief-stricken people who are considered as much as the memory of the departed. The fragrance and beauty of the flowers are a source of comfort and pleasure to the sorrowing ones and tend to lighten the burdens of those left to mourn. The flower custom may be abused as when the sender cannot afford the tribute, but when reason is used flowers may be a potent help in time of trouble.—

THE RETAILING OF CUT FLOWERS.

A Paper by Irwin Bertermann before the Chicago Florists' Club, Nov. 7, 1912.

The merchandising of cut flowers is in itself closely allied in general principles with the selling in small quantities of any other article. The man who is capable of selling real estate or greenhouses is equally capable of selling roses. It is not the man who sells flowers sluggishly at a profit of 15 per cent, but the one who can brilliantly present to the public, quantity of flowers at a gross profit of 150 per cent, by closely watching the market, who is a live factor in the up-building of the retail business at the present time.

The intensive form of conducting the retail business is much like intensive farming. A greater quantity of business may be transacted in a given space and time but it takes much more energy and expense to do it. Unpopular as the practices may be with the greatest number of retailers the methods of some of the pushers as exploited by the trade papers at different times, showing the terrific manner of inducing trade, is certainly a good object lesson in showing how large quantities of flowers may be distributed among the transient trade, with much accruing good to the producer.

Indirectly the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, still in its infancy, is making great strides in educating the flower-buying public. When we think that a first-class florist in a town of say 500,000, approximately, does an out-bound and in-bound business of $7000 annually, is it wonderful to think of 1,000 florists doing a business of $7,000,000, annually? A conservative estimate of the transferred orders received by New York florists in the season is from $750,000 to $1,000,000 per year. This important phase of the retail business should certainly be given impetus by grower and retailer alike.

The inspiration of the retail business—new varieties of flowers—should receive its just attention in all quarters. A new flower invariably brings a slightly higher price, and more than repays the slightly increased cost in the friends it makes and the popularity it incures. Mrs. Aaron Ward, Lady Hillingdon, and Melody have added tremendous influence upon the flower-buying public. The roses—Milady, Mrs. Chas. Russell, the new French hydrangeas, Mrs. F. Sander daisy, also several other novelties may be counted upon in making thousands of friends for those interested in buying nature's wares in the near future.

Publicity with its versatile and great accomplishments seems to be the slogan—"First, last and all the time," with florists who are disposing of the greatest quantities of flowers. Those unwilling to take up the great selling cudgel are liable to at any time be surpassed by those who are willing to dispose of good goods at moderate prices and inform the public of just what they have to sell in an attractive manner. The good work now being done by the New York Florists' Club in the distribution of posters, displayed simultaneously, clearly shows what collective effort may do in publicity work. They plan for a great Thanksgiving campaign, and the outcome is awaited with interest. Advertising is a separate department in all the big stores of the country, but it is a sadly neglected art with many of the retailers who are wont to treat it as a side issue, and place it in the hands of the inexperienced for use. There is a vast difference between the maintainer of price and shrewd merchandiser, and the trade spoiler, who is harmful to himself and fellow-men, both in selling and advertising.

"As ye sow, so shall ye reap" is nowhere better exemplified than in the comparison of a community of cheap florists, and one worthy of prosperity and in which each is himself successful. It is just as possible to have each home in a town contain ten plants and have an educated love for them, as one plant in each fifth home with a shy acquaintance with nature's wares due to lack of interest in the seller himself.

The sale of potted plants, particularly in the larger flower centers, is a new channel which offers a great field for those willing to take a forward step and rise above the rose and can-nation farms so popular and indicative of the day. The wonderful features of the Boston National Flower Show in the potted plant line will no doubt be duplicated and surpassed in the coming New York Exhibition, and may be a proper incentive for the westerners in the art of plant production. It is highly essential that the prosperous retailer interest the public in the growing plant as well as in the short-lived cut flower. It is almost impossible to present the wondrous and changing beauty of the flower possibilities to the public without the elegant displays of roses, rhododendrons, azaleas, bougainvilleas, acacias, and particularly hydrangeas, cyclamen and the like.

A higher standard of salesmanship is an essential that must be reckoned with in all the retail stores. The great strides made by the dealers in accessories, such as baskets, ribbons, and supplies which outshine in many instances in a wholesale way those of the retailers themselves, are an instance of what first-class salesmanship (and to that it must be greatly attributed), may do. A clerk who is not able to sell quantities of goods at a fair price, is no more destructive than one who is shrewd enough to obtain more from a purchaser than he is really willing to spend. A first-class clerk, who has judgment, gaining the confidence of the patron and his employer, and who is able to arrange blossoms in a fine individual style, is a scarce article. There is and always will be room at the top for those climbing that way.

"Artisticness" is a leading factor in the disposition of flowers. To offer them for sale in unsightly masses at a low price is not sufficient. It is far better to sell a few flowers, well arranged, than many of them which in the end will detract, rather than aid the general love of flowers. Elegant window displays, taste in store and house decorations, promptness, fairness in dealing, progressiveness, constant energy and alertness are the older virtues with which the striving store-man is ever face to face in his race to out-class his competitor and to dispose of his wares, 'striven equally hard for by his brother grower.

The general use of flowers is increasing far greater than the increase in population. This may be attributed to two factors—one that the masses live farther removed from Nature's beauty than formerly, thereby creating a general craving for it, and the other stronger one—the educational campaign of the retailers in the constant displaying and publicity of the flower business. Will it not be well then, to follow the trail which has been leading forward for many years?

Our age has not been blessed with miracles, and it has been and always will be impossible for the flower stores to dispose of undue masses of flowers brought forward by climatic conditions. It is however, possible for the retailer to watch the trend of the market so as to aid in the fullest possible extent the disposition of the largest numbers at the most favorable time.

It is unreasonable to expect that the erecting of greenhouses may proceed at the same enormous rate as in the last few years. It will be far better for the grower to produce more beautiful and varied varieties, and for the retailer in his mission to so install the love of flowers in the American hearts, that they will be found in the homes of all in uninterrupted beauty, fragrance and refinement.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Several of the local firms have been holding chrysanthemum shows and their stores have been filled with admirers. Gude Bros. had their establishment decorated throughout with running vines, palms, ferns and plants. Large pedestals were topped with potted ferns and vines were placed over white screens to good effect. Among the chrysanthemums were some record breakers as regards size and the display included all the varieties now being shown in the local market. The greenhouse at the rear of the store was also elaborately decorated.

J. H. Small & Sons exhibition was the largest this firm has held in years and was marked by the exceptional beauty of the chrysanthemums. Their display of orchids and of many novelty roses was good.

Fred H. Kramer showed a large number of varieties from his Anacostia houses, set off by growing plants. Japanese lanterns were strung from the roof of the conservatory at the rear of the store. Mr. Kramer is at present holding a sale of ferns and palms in jardinières at reduced prices and of bulbs in decorated Japanese dishes.

NEW YORK NOTES.

P. Hamilton Goodsell of 200 Broadway has leased eleven acres of the Astor Estate at West Farms for growing nursery stock.

Colin Ogston, supt. of the Kimball Conservatories Rochester, claims to possess the first sport from an orchid in existence. This is from Cattleya Harrisonian and the color is pale yellow. Mr. Ogston has been making a visit to the nurseries in this vicinity during the past four days.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

M. Rice & Co. are exploiting an ingenious novelty in cape flower sprays, introduced by them this season, made of natural prepared ferns, tipped with natural colored cape flowers.

Kline & Pappas, at 50 North 15th street, have a nice little store, near Broad street station, and seem to be doing a thriving business. The new boulevard when completed will no doubt draw other flower stores to the vicinity.

Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., is on duty again after a week at home—severe attack of rheumatism. Captains of industry are quickly missed. What a glorious thing good health is! And how little we appreciate it until it flies the coop.

Gardenia foliage for making up wreaths, etc., is a new wrinkle in the local market. The high-toned stores have taken to this with avidity and are making it quite a feature. The glossy green leaves are very chaste and effective and give a touch of distinction to a bouquet or design not otherwise easily attainable.

Gaul's Flower Room had its formal opening on the 9th inst. Mr. Gaul is a Battles graduate and has secured an ideal location at 17 South 13th, opposite Wanamaker's. He comes from a school fertile in the art of advertising and we look for some hustle in that connection. Battles is one of the few who "know how." Your good store, and your good goods, and good prices, are no good—good as they all may be—unless you get the people there. That's the supreme test—which few survive to reach.

The new publicity committee of the Florists' Club met on the 11th inst. Seven members attended. Nothing definite was accomplished. Another call has been issued for Thursday, the 14th, when a fuller attendance is expected. This committee is up against a tough proposition. Everybody wants publicity, of course. The big ones want their own individuality kept sacred—and will pay the piper. The rank and file would like publicity, too—provided it does not cost them anything. But it hardly seems fair to ask the big fellow to pay a share of his competitors' publicity bill—even if he is not so big. "Find a farden for yourself, puir body!"

A silver medal was awarded to Fire Flame, the new single rose exhibited by Robt. Scott & Son at the Fall Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society. This is a unique and beautiful introduction and is one of the daintiest things in the bud stage. It is also beautiful when full open—with its five petals shining and alluring in its lighter colorings. It may not take as a single; but great as a bud. The color is unique.

Certificates of merit were given to two others of Messrs. Scott's introductions on the same occasion. They were Janet and Mrs. Forde. Janet is a new hybrid tea rose deep orange center with lighter reflex, the petals being gracefully and distinctly received. Mrs. Forde is also a new hybrid tea; in color a soft rose, with lighter shadings. Both are good size; distinct and beautiful; and we look for further developments as to the commercial merits of them both. Needless to say we have the utmost faith in the good judgment of Alexander Buchanan Scott in picking these from the hundreds of new seedlings clamoring for recognition.

John Stephenson's Sons deserve a word of praise for a splendid vase of Radiance, and John Welsh Young, not to be behind, came in with a fine showing of Maryland. These were only a few of the fine things on the second day of the Fall Show. Totty's Mrs. Shawyer, and Pierson's Milady were both given certificates of merit. The Mrs. Russell from Montgomery having been given a silver medal last year could but shine and stand pat. Heacock's Johnson sent in a great vase of Killarney from Roelofs.

Miss Burk and Herman Van Gloden gave us two wonderful miniature model gardens. The amount of work and ingenuity and imagination and care that must have gone into these is beyond compute. We trust the results in the uplift of the public mind to higher and better gardening will justify these strenuous endeavors. All honor to them. But wouldn't the same amount of genius and earnest effort tell better in other directions? This is not a criticism—only a thought. For instance, let them show the multitude how to make a bare and uninteresting front or backyard look beautiful and artistic with a few well arranged plants, shrubs, etc., and green sod without nick nacks and alongside a sample of the neglected. That would be an object lesson that would mean something and bear good fruit. And that's what horticultural societies are for. Raree-shows can be found for a nickel anywhere and they are worth about one-millionth of that important coin. A horticultural society should keep clear of that stratum in human affairs.

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

Leroy Smith, vice-president of the J. F. Ammann Co., at Edwardsville, made an announcement that he had been a married man since last July, having then married Miss Ida Epps at St. Charles, Mo. Mr. Smith will take up a residence at Edwardsville with his bride.

Robert Thomson, the local greenhouse builder, is building two houses, 30 x 100, for John T. Millegin at Crescent, Mo., where the latter has 1000 acres of land. Mr. Millegin says that if these are a success he will order a large range—perhaps 100,000 feet—and grow for the St. Louis market. John Himmer, Jr., has charge of the few small houses built some time ago for private use. Mr. Millegin is a gentleman with enormous capital.

Visitors: Oliver Crissman, Punxsutawney, Pa.; Arnold Ringier, representing W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; F. J. Farey, representing M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia; F. J. McPherson, Litchfield, Ill.

Ellis McLean & Co. have opened a retail flower store at 1061 Linn street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

BOSTON In common with the rest of the country this market is suffering from the rapid accumulations consequent upon the chrysanthemum season, accentuated by the continued warm fall weather. Nothing is moving faster than the supply warrants and nothing is in demand that cannot be furnished in quantity at buyers' price. Quality is excellent on all varieties of roses and carnations, on violets, lilies, etc., and as to chrysanthemums there is no limit on quality or quantity, although it is a fact that the $3.00 to $8.00 grades are most easily unloaded. The retail trade is fairly good for the season and it is only the grower and wholesaler who has cause for complaint. It is just possible that the anxiety may shift on to other shoulders before the Thanksgiving holidays.

Not alone has the weather been bad but business on the same basis throughout the entire week except Saturday. The flower show had a tendency to keep away the buyers and speculators and stock of all kinds accumulated throughout the week. This was a week of chrysanthemums and in which a good many of the late varieties were brought in and when Golden Wedding, Maud Dean and Mrs. Jerome Jones varieties are seen we know that the height of the chrysanthemum season is at hand. Bonaffon, the well-known yellow, was seen in good quantity and quality also white and yellow Eaton, Golden Eagle, Mrs. Wilks and other varieties and prices were not of the best. There seems to be a heavy supply of singles this season, which do not move satisfactory though double yellow and button varieties have the best demand. There were plenty of roses, the bad weather checking to some extent, but the accumulation of the early part of the week caused prices to fall to low ebb. In the Beauty line the medium grades have taken better and the quality is excellent at present. Richmonds are becoming better and Wards and Sunburst are great favorites. Double White Killarney are only in short supply. Good giganteum lilies are scarce. A nice lot of mignonette is coming in, also sweet peas, pansies, violets and lily of the valley, the latter having exceptionally good call. Good carnations are not over plentiful.

CHICAGO The chrysanthemum season is at its height. There is an unusual number of pompons this year and this week is the first that there has been any more offered than could readily be sold. Prices on the whole are averaging up as well as in other years. American Beauties are in very good demand and quality is excellent. Roses are not keeping up so well. Ward and Sunburst are especially in demand, the latter being seen in extra high grade; both have proven popular here. Richmond is shortened up a bit, but there are enough generally. Carnations are quite scarce as they have been all the fall. Lilies are selling rather slow and the price has dropped. A few callas are appearing. Plant trade is beginning to settle down to the fall demand and there is a large variety of plants to be had. Very good specimens of Gloir de Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias and cyclamen are now seen, which together with the chrysanthemums lend color to the plant offerings. Peppers have been in good demand and the stock is not sufficient to meet the demand. It is evident that the department stores are going to be lively competitors for florists to contend with. Their trade seems to increase each week.

The general market conditions are nothing to brag of except as far as the quantity and quality of stock is concerned. The supply is large and the quality is, as a whole, very good. The demand is, however, not equal to the task. The good chrysanthemums have been finding a pretty steady market. The same, however, is not true of their smaller brethren, the pompons. The latter seem to be moving very slowly this year. The rose cut has shortened considerably and this fact has probably saved a glut. Carnations have, up to a few days previous to this writing, been selling nicely. Since that time they, too, seem to have struck a light slump. Other flowers have been cleaning up fairly well.

The wholesale market here is completely demoralized. With a continuation of the warm weather which has now joined hands with the

Indian summer time, we have an avalanche of chrysanthemums such as this market has never before experienced. The wholesale business is in a deplorable state and it is not possible to quote any reliable prices, the market being in such a very unstable condition. Many growers have been trying to hold back for Thanksgiving, but the weather has vetoed this. Other stocks are quite as plentiful as chrysanthemums in proportion and the prices quoted on these are in like manner unreliable.

PHILADELPHIA Chrysanthemums are now in their full glory. Splendid Bonnaffons are the leaders in yellow; and the three Chadwicks, white, yellow and pink, are in the front rank in their special class. Yellow and white Eatons are also conspicuous. Some of the varieties usual only for Thanksgiving have already been cropped. This has brought immense volumes of flowers to market for the week but withal the prices have held their own fairly well. In consequence of this unusually early cutting it is prophesied that Thanksgiving flowers will be scarcer than usual. Roses are fine stock all along the line. We have never seen finer Maryland at this season and the Killarneys are also magnificent. Beauties are still rather scarce and are higher in price. Indications point to increased production within the next week or so. Yellow roses are still going well, with Sunburst leading and Ward and Melody pulling right up. The cooler weather has shortened up the carnation crop, and the market on these is of the healthiest character; quality improving. Orchids are in fair supply with demand good. Violets plentiful and selling well. Sweet peas have made their appearance and are fair for so early in the season.

The local florists are tumbling over themselves to get a few flowers of Fire Flame rose to present to their extra special customers. All of which is good business, and in line with the new publicity campaign which we hear so much about.

Few changes, only that

ST. LOUIS there are more chrysanthemums of the fancy grade. Business is not any too brisk. Most of the leading retail stores are making great chrysanthemum displays in their show windows and say there is very little call for anything else. Roses are very plentiful. Carnations are improving in quantity and quality. Violets were in big demand all during the week, with not too many coming in.

There is more stock in the market than is needed and as a whole business may be termed dull. Prices on all varieties are low. The large quantity of chrysanthemums that are now coming into the market are displacing all other flowers. Locally grown roses in many cases are exceptionally fine and violets are coming into the market in better shape. It is expected that the unrest caused throughout the government circles by the change in the administration will tend to materially decrease the demand for cut flowers and this condition will continue until after Inauguration Day and until the employees are absolutely sure that no changes will be made for political reasons.

READ THIS

You will need to buy something this winter—stock, supplies, equipment, etc., for store or greenhouse. Look through the Buyers' Directory and List of Advertisers in this paper and you'll probably find what you want listed there. We are proud of the fact that HORTICULTURE is recognized as the best paper of its class in this country in quality of reading matter and also of the fact that it is coming to be acknowledged as the best advertising medium. The best friends of HORTICULTURE are those who buy from HORTICULTURE'S advertisers whenever possible and, in corresponding with the dealers always take the trifling trouble to refer to the paper. We have many such friends, otherwise our advertising columns would soon be deserted. Don't forget to do your part.

The John Hopkins Horticultural Laboratories and Greenhouses at Baltimore, Md.

Two Interesting Examples of "L and B's" Greenhouses Forming Part of the Educational Equipment of Prominent Institutions

Here, there and everywhere all over this big prosperous country, institutions are building greenhouses as an essential part of the educational equipment. No longer are they confined to Agricultural Colleges and experiment stations.

JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY at Baltimore, Md., conducts a distinct horticultural course. The botanical laboratories and experimental greenhouses are set in the midst of a beautiful formal garden filled with countless domestic and foreign specimen plants. Many of these are very rare. The greenhouse work is carried on in the same vigorous, thorough way so characteristic of this wonderful institution.

THE COLLEGE OF ST. ELIZABETH is a Catholic institution for girls, located at Convent, between Morristown and Madison, N. J. On the campus is this attractive group of houses where the girls have both laboratory work and practical greenhouse experience. The course is somewhat like the one so ably conducted by Professors Genung and Canning at the Smith College greenhouses erected by us several years ago.

We will gladly give you details of both these greenhouses. If you haven't our catalog, send for it.

THE edible bulbs produced in Japan are the Auratum, Platyphyllm and the Tigrinum chiefly, which are boiled and eaten like the common French artichoke. The Magnificum, Rubrum and Roseum are broken up and the scales dried, after which they are exported to China, for eating purposes. Formosa lily bulb scales are also soaked, and then made into a powdered starch, which is cooked and eaten in the shape of cookies, cakes and other goodies for everyone. So do not think that all bulbs are used solely for flowering purposes. Those which are used by the florist, however, must be of superior quality to those that are eaten. In all sorts of merchandise, in things to wear, in things to eat, or in things for the home, there are a few names denoting either maker or brand, which stand for quality. These names are isolated from a hundred inferior products, simply because they have been tested in the laboratory of public opinion and stamped with the seal of public approval. In the lily bulb line the name Horseshoe Brand is distinctive in itself, and denotes the best there is during the current season. You can safely buy that brand and be assured that you are getting the best that is possible to buy. There are none better and many not as good. Horseshoe Brand Cold Storage Giganteum is a good investment just now—and a good investment is always the best to speculate on. They are always an absolute necessity to a progressive florist. Write now.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Cypripedium insigne

These orchids will now be showing well developed flower spikes and should be given a rather high bench or a shelf near the glass, so they can have all the light possible. Allow plenty of room between the plants so the air will have a chance to circulate between them. Damp down often enough so you will not have a harsh or dry atmosphere, but not to excess as too much atmospheric moisture is bound to be injurious to these orchids. The temperature from this out should be held at anywhere from 55 to 60 degrees at night with about ten degrees higher during the daytime with sunshine. Now that the solar heat is on the decline they will stand full sun without burning. While they like a liberal supply of water at the roots you should allow the compost to dry out occasionally so as to keep it sweet and give regular ventilation whenever possible. Keep a lookout for thrips and sponge occasionally to keep them in check. You should make it a rule to fumigate once a week.

Chrysanthemum Stock

Make it a point to visit some of the big exhibitions and growers of repute and get informed on the best and most valuable commercially in the early, mid-season and late varieties. There is nothing like taking good care of your stock right from the start. Place them in flats or boxes and see that they are accurately labeled. They can be kept in any frost-proof cold frame, or you can give them the coolest house you may have, placing them well up to the light. When you want them, give them a little more heat and they will send up large quantities of thrifty cuttings. Be very careful with watering; they will not need very much until February. From now on they can be kept in a temperature of about 40 degrees at night as you do not want them to grow very much.

Cocos Weddelliana

This is the palm of all palms for centers for fern dishes and when grown larger they become very graceful. Look over your stock and if you are short in this line place an order now and get ahead of the rush. These plants should be grown in a house where they can have plenty of atmospheric moisture at all times. To thrive the temperature of the house should run from 65 to 70 degrees at night, and in the day time it can run up to 78 or 80 degrees. Considerable care will have to be exercised in watering from this out. They like a nice, even amount of moisture at the roots. When watering is done without great care the plants will soon be showing yellowish foliage, which makes them stand almost stationary for weeks, and even if they finally resume a vigorous growth they rarely become a profitable plant. Where such accommodation can be given they should have at least a bench for their exclusive occupancy, and still better a house for themselves. The one imperative thing in giving ventilation is to avoid all cold draughts from striking these palms.

Filling Boxes and Vases for Winter Effect

It has been customary for many years, especially in the larger cities, to have boxes filled with something green for the winter months. So now is the time to go around and drum up trade in this line, which is bound to become a very profitable side line with most florists. These boxes can be filled with boxwood, aucubas and small conifers, which will make a very attractive showing for stores, hotels and clubs. It is a good plan to make up some of these boxes and have them displayed properly so as to catch the public eye.

Herbaceous Border, Etc.

Now is a good time to give borders a good dressing of manure. The winter rains and snows will drive it down so that when the spring comes they will have something to feed upon. When the ground becomes frozen to a depth of 3 or 4 inches they can be given their winter's protection and there is nothing much better or handier than a protective covering of dry leaves held in place by some sticks or short brush placed here and there. All these borders are better for some winter protection, because the loss suffered by florists every year in stock usually styled hardy is enormous. Beds holding lilies of the species auratum, candidum, speciosum, etc., will need a surface covering of litter or manure, quite heavily spread. Beds of hardy bulbs such as hyacinths, narcissus, tulips, etc., will be benefited by a good layer of manure scattered evenly all over. It is always better to give this protection.

Lily of the Valley

In order to have a good batch of lily of the valley for Christmas get your cold storage pips planted any time before the first of December and they will come along all right. They will do well in a mixture of soil and sand and can be planted quite closely together, just having their tops even with the soil and their roots straight down. Place in a house where they can have a bottom heat of from 75 to 80 degrees, while the temperature of the house should be carried rather cool, say from 50 to 55 degrees. For the first ten days or two weeks the pips should be very heavily shaded, and then the shade should be gradually removed until they are standing full light. This will impart durability and a better texture to the bells. While forcing lily of the valley it is very important to keep them very moist—it might be said to keep them in a soaked condition all the time. When watering or spraying do it with water that is about 100 degrees of warmth. Give them several sprayings overhead daily until the bells are well formed, when it should cease. Where you want a succession plant about every three weeks during the winter.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Camellias; Care of Fuchsias; Daffodils for Early Forcing; Forcing Ixias; Hybrid Perpetual Roses for Easter; Sowing Candytuft.

Watering Late Grapes

Vines still having a crop or part of it hanging must not be allowed to become too dry at the roots. Everything throughout the house appertains to dryness. To keep the berries in good shape, do not be afraid to give them a watering when the soil is "dry." A thorough examination should be made first, to ascertain the condition of the soil, as any water given when the vines are not in need of it will be a detriment to their welfare. Do not make the mistake so often made of giving them a little. There should be no half watering, if the soil is dry it needs a thorough soaking. Another thing, the dry surface will cause the water to stay on it for a time making one believe the soil has sufficient water already. Make an allowance for this and go over it a second time. Choose a fine bright day and get the job done between nine and twelve o'clock. A large house will be best done in sections to avoid the consequent excess of moisture which is injurious to the ripe fruit. Keep the pipes warm, with lots of air on after a watering. It will be advisable to look over your bunches a few days after watering to remove any berries which may have been affected by the unusual conditions.

Making a Vine Border

Making a vine border is a very important job as so much of future results depends on it, both the crops and the life of the vine. All vine roots must be under absolute control to do them right, so it is necessary to have a concrete bottom put underneath the border and have the side walls go down to it, so that the roots cannot get away. This bottom or floor should have a grade on it sloping to a drain to allow the water to pass away. Some floors are graded saucer shape and this answers the purpose, but I prefer the same grade right along the border from back to front and let the channel here fall to the drain. This makes it easier to water any section of the border without any fear of the water reaching roots other than those actually watered. The drainage is the next item and one which must not be neglected; a poorly drained border is never satisfactory. The best material for this is broken bricks. Throw them in as rough as possible,—any attempt to place them nullifies the effect to supply open drainage. At intervals of six or eight feet land draining pipes should run through the broken bricks; this makes sure of open passages direct to the drain. If the bricks are continually dumped from the barrows in one place and then transferred to their destination the small stuff which will accumulate at the bottom should be removed before covering it over with the sod. This sod should be the best green sod procurable and placed face downward over all the drainage ready to have the soil put on to it. The object of this is to keep the fine soil from going down into and blocking it up. Four feet of soil is enough to give young vines for a start and three feet as additions later so it will be necessary to either board or brick up the side at this distance. The object of only a small amount of soil to grow in is to give them additions of new sweet soil later on when they need it. If all is filled in at once some must be wasted as the roots cannot utilize it all at once and it goes sour. Now the composition of the soil is a hard thing to put on paper, as soil varies so much. Real good loam will grow grapes without any additions. Poorer soil should be enriched with coarse bones crushed into half and one-inch sizes. If there is any tendency for it to go sour mix in some charcoal. Use it in large lumps just as it comes. Some heavy soils will need opening material; the brick used for the drainage broken down to pieces as large as one's fist will furnish this. Make the soil firm as it is filled in and keep it level when doing so. If a man is allowed to throw the soil in one place all the time and make a heap of it all the rough stuff will fall to the bottom, and when two heaps meet, a vertical seam of rough material will be made in the border, which will cause it to dry out irregularly. Do not try to make up a border when the soil is wet.

The Melon Houses

At this season of the year the growth made by melon plants will be much weaker than in the spring and summer. Opinions differ as to the right method to treat top growth of melons. Giving them their "head" or letting the young growths grow on will cause more root action but I cannot say it makes larger fruits in the summer time. At this season, however, with a weaker action all round it is advisable to let the growth remain until there is a danger of overcrowding. Cover all the trellis with good foliage and always have a few growths growing away unchecked. Watch the bed carefully for water and make allowance for it drying out underneath from the fire heat. Growing houses will need very careful ventilation through the cold weather, any great influx of cold, frosty air will cause mildew and other trouble. Try and give the house a little fresh air each day, if only half an inch during the noon hour.

Spinach

This has been a good fall for this vegetable to last outside and save the supply growing under glass, which has also made good growth. Look through the rows occasionally and remove any yellow leaves, keep the surface soil cultivated and after the plants have fairly good roots give them a little wood ashes and later some stimulant in the form of manure. Be sure and keep this from the leaves as they burn very easily.

Mushrooms

New beds can be made providing a suitable place is available to cure the manure in. This requires to be frost proof and rain proof. Watering a mushroom bed is a last resource we know, yet it pays when a bed is apparently played out, often bringing a crop which would otherwise be lost without it. This crop can be timed to come in from two to three weeks after watering. Use water having a temperature of 70 degrees F., applying it in such a manner as not to flood the bed, but gradually soaking it in. Half watering is to be avoided here as elsewhere.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Cutting

Now that the cool weather is here to stay, all roses can be allowed to remain on the plants a little longer, allowing the buds to become much larger. You do not have to let them open any more than is necessary but they can swell to nearly twice the size of the ordinary tight cut bud. Of course on places where stuff has to be held quite some time or where only a little is cut and shipped two or three times a week things have to be done differently, but on a place shipping every day there is little excuse for having buds cut so tight that they will not open for a week.

Tying

Never neglect keeping the roses tied up properly, for there is nothing in it. It is a shame the way stuff is allowed to lie around at times, there always being one excuse or another advanced, but when it comes to cold facts, there is really no excuse at all. Beauties are the first to feel this neglect, and generally do not hesitate in showing it either. Keep them tied fast to the wires. It does them no good to have their heads bumped against the glass. Bend them down and avoid this.

Right here you can get a little point, although many "experts" laugh at the idea; we always try to bend all the wood towards the west, finding just a wee bit of difference in the setting of buds.

Syringing

Do not neglect this by any means, or you may have a chance to regret it before the season is half over. Be careful, however, not to take too big chances with the weather. Then be careful not to drown the roses by syringing carelessly. Always aim to syringe so as to throw the water into the next walk and not on the bench as is done by many. Another thing to be careful of, is not to have the plants too dry before syringing, or you will scald the foliage badly. The Beauties seem to be a little more hardy, while the Killarneys are just the reverse, being very sensitive in this respect.

Green Fly

This is so rare with us that we have almost forgotten that such a pest would consider the sweet sap of the roses palatable to his particular taste. There are many excellent preparations on the market for exterminating this pest, should Mr. G. Fly and his kin think of playing havoc with the contents of a nice greenhouse. They seldom bother those wide-awake chaps giving preference to the more easy-going ones. So do not let this Mr. G. Fly catch you napping.

Black Spot

Repeatedly we have given hints on the prevention of this disease, yet it seems only few take heed, and soon it is too late, for a bad dose of spot has wrought havoc with the foliage of the plants, the lower branches being almost devoid of leaves. This condition, however, is brought on by the grower himself so he should not complain of "hard luck" and all the rest of it, but should hustle around and try and save what foliage there remains on the plants. Pick off all leaves which show signs of spot and burn them. Do not do as many do, just simply throwing them outside the potting shed door and letting them remain there. That to say the least, is unsanitary. A good spray of ammoniacal carbonate (copper), will also help to keep spot from spreading. Then try to keep a dry, fresh, sweet atmosphere in the house, using plenty of dry, air-slacked lime, blowing it around underneath the plants every evening. Also do not do any syringing unless it is absolutely necessary; then only a light quick syringe should be given. Try to coax the plants to grow by giving them a little liquid every now and then. Do not mulch the plants as it would be much more difficult to make them grow. After a good growth starts then apply a light mulch with some good bonemeal, the latter being applied first.

Tobacco Stems

We would never recommend burning tobacco stems in rose houses, to rid same of greenfly and other pests that try to make the grower's life miserable. Much damage can be done this way, and with all the simple remedies now in market I cannot see why growers should bother with this old-fashioned way of doing. We even do not like to see them strewn in the walks and under the benches, as is the custom of many. They are all right in their place but we find they keep the air unnecessarily damp.

A privilege we should have

During the past week the French Chrysanthemum Society's exhibition has been in progress at Nantes. At the conference, which was part of the affair, many papers and discussions were on the program and the list of entertainments provided for visitors fully matched up to the most ambitious of our own S. A. F. convention festivities, for these Frenchmen do know how to make their guests enjoy themselves. We would call attention to one feature in which they get the better of us—that of cheap transportation, for all members of the Society can travel from any part of France to the show by any class at a half-rate fare. In this country, instead of advancing we have been going backwards in that respect, until now no inducements whatever are offered to such gatherings and the attendance at meetings, exhibitions and conventions has sustained a severe set-back.

No Christmas green famine

It is very evident from the tone of consternation in the daily press and in the market comments one hears, since the announcement of the embargo to be placed on Christmas greens shipped from the section where gypsy and brown-tail moths have been found, that the situation is not well understood and that wrong inferences are being drawn. Let it be borne in mind that the quarantined territory is a comparatively small section of New England and does not include the territory from which the greater part of the trees and almost all the laurel are cut. Further there is no restriction upon the shipment to and fro between points in the quarantined territory nor upon shipments into this section from outside points. So that any attempt to boost prices of these holiday goods on a pretext of scarcity is liable to meet with a chilly fate. And there are not a few people who would view with satisfaction and delight any enactment that would have for its object the prohibition of all cutting or selling of mountain laurel within New England territory for the next twenty years. It is our most beautiful native shrub and one cannot but deplore the wanton destruction that has been going on with increasing rapidity each year.

An ominous outlook

We learn from our exchanges that the California State Commissioner of Horticulture has issued a quarantine order, under the approval of Acting Governor A. J. Wallace, against all vegetables, nursery stock, scions, grafts, buds, cuttings, orange seeds, trees, vines, plants and shrubs of all kinds from the states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas and other sections known to be affected with Aloyrodes citi (citrus white fly) or Aloyrodes Nubifera (another species of white fly.) The same authorities have also declared strict quarantine against shipments into California of alfalfa, alfalfa seed and colonies of bees from every county in the states of Utah, Wyoming and Idaho in an effort to prevent the advent into California of the pest known as Phytonomus pesticus (alfalfa weevil). While fully sympathizing with any community in its efforts to exclude pests dangerous to its agricultural and horticultural interests, we think we can see, in these constantly recurring interstate embargos, a gathering cloud for trouble in the near future. This habit of shutting out the products of sister states is liable to grow and the sentiment of retaliatory measures is a not impossible result. Who can say to what extent this new exercise of state rights will develop as a mischief maker? Surely there is need for great deliberation and wise counsel in the exercising of such far-reaching prerogatives.

INDIVIDUALITY A FACTOR IN THE ADVANCE OF HORTICULTURE.

A Paper by Richard Rothe, read before the Bar Harbor Horticultural Society, March Meeting.

"This forms a man's chief attribute,
And reason is to him assigned,
That what his hands may execute,
Within his heart, too, he should find,"

Thus wrote Friedrich von Schiller in his famous "Song of the Bell." The meaning of the sentences quoted leads to individuality; the working of each individual with hands and personal ingenuity for his own ends. The opportunities for the exertion of individuality in our age of manufacture by machine-craft have greatly diminished, the consequences of this state from the purely ethical standpoint being by no means extraordinary happy ones to mankind. We, therefore, have first of all good cause to congratulate ourselves upon the fact that our calling as practical horticulturists not only leaves ample freedom for personal thought, but also that success to a large extent depends on the skill and the intellect of the individual. A vocation taxing physical and mental faculties equally is wholesome, and the conditions for development of strong individualities are, indeed, from the very outset favorable. No two men are alike. Both have their strong points and appear weaker in others. Speaking in a general way, it is of importance for a young man to become in time aware of his individual trends and inclinations, and as far as they appear advantageous in horticultural pursuits, cultivate them. We all know the value of handicraft. The wizard in swift potting, the champion in quick and accurate budding and grafting, and the man with an eye for even grading, are in keen demand and command good pay. The founder of a business in monetary affairs, in planning and overseeing the technical part of his structures, in the decision on what to grow, to find a profitable market; the foreman of a large range, as experienced grower, capable of handling men, alert to sudden weather changes and ever watchful to produce quality and quantity at the lowest expense; the retailer in studying the possibilities of the market, in timely securing the best assortment of stock and in attracting and satisfying his customers; all these men, perhaps, well experienced in their respective lines are nevertheless almost daily confronted with new problems or incidents, necessitating immediate personal disposal. It is here where individual strength in judgment, foresight, calmness, presence of mind, timely action, tact, etc., is invaluable. We can to some extent acquire these qualities by training, still, superior to us is the party talented with individuality, providing this talent has been awakened and cultivated. The experienced craftsman will in many instances produce quality of standard plants, or cut flowers, eclipsing mediocrity, but he will very rarely discover or venture upon unknown avenues.

Mark Twain says, "The man with a new idea is a crank, until his idea succeeds." There are plenty of individualities airing new ideas which never can succeed. As cranks they prove boring, annoying; good-natured, they represent that class which the German calls "Originale." It is individuality non-productive, save that by freaks and whims it frequently turns out to be an everlasting source of amusement. The negative, however, does not in the least reflect on the stimulating strength of individualism as a factor in all sound progress.

In no other horticultural branches is personal ingenuity esteemed and needed as in its purely artistic ones. The floral designer and decorator without individual taste and inventive power is not only a failure, but also frequently an obstacle in the path of advance. For the talented and gifted individuality there is hardly a richer field in which to work than floral designing. We have in most of our large cities certain artists whose creative originality is so telling that their work can be distinguished at sight. It bears a certain characteristic stamp of their personality extremely hard, if not impossible, to imitate. Such cases illustrate the individualism of the pathfinder, the educator, the refiner of public taste and the promoter of trade. Let us hope that the same tendency may grow and become a discernible feature of the achievements of landscape gardeners and garden architects. Garden designing as an art has been discussed in this country for over half a century, still the artistic opportunities the American garden offers today remain vaguely realized and, in practice, rarely exhausted. Less traveling on the well trodden road of conventionality and the more personal contriving, individual conception and independent thinking will soon elevate, especially our suburban gardens, to a higher artistic level and increase activity and business wonderfully.

Our country could never have become the leader among nations in the production of high quality roses and carnations under glass if it were not for the individualism of our veterans in the field. With no literature, no trade press, no market, they began working, devising and experimenting with nothing to rely on, but their own personal enterprise and intellect. The present generation well equipped with all expedients should keep this in mind. The opportunities of our calling, while in its infancy, were not even plainly in sight and, at all events, limited. Now they appear almost unlimited. Individual cunning and strife is more important in our day than it ever was before. The question before each of us is: Am I going to be led by a conventional herd-instinct to merely imitate, or have I a footing on something stronger? Am I to be only the receiver of the fruits of intellect and experience of my fellow craftsman, or do I possess that amount of individual resourcefulness to contribute toward the fund of knowledge of my profession and thus become a repaying giver?

The most progressive nations of the world, our country, Great Britain and Germany, firmly believe in individualism as one of their vital powers. Out of it cropped all that they have to show of greatness, in statesmanship, science, art, inventions and commercial and industrial enterprise. Gustav Freytag in his classic novel "Soll und Haben," written over half a century ago, gives the Germans a monumental pen-picture of a successful wholesale merchant. There is nothing sensational about it: no mushroom growth, no daring stock manipulations, but the struggles of a dauntless personality, who, as master of a large firm with interests all over the European continent, through prosperous and peaceful eras and turbulent periods of adversity, wins by perseverance and honest principles. An absolute king within his realm, calm, unassuming, big-hearted, still shrewd and having immovable will power based on individual conviction.

Some six or seven years ago I wished to call on a friend, who is director of a department of one of our largest incorporated horticultural firms and asked for an appointment. "Not tomorrow, Mr. Rothe. That is the day of our annual business meeting at our president's house and office. Review of the past year's campaign and planning for the coming season, you know." There was a certain undertone in his voice and a certain sparkling in his eyes that spoke volumes. A meeting of generals, at the intervals of great business battles, keeping millions rolling. A meeting of gentlemen and individualities of respect, and immense executive power, resourceful in device and imbued with that enthusiasm which is bound to conquer. Receivers of dividends, which no honest thinking mind can begrudge. On the other end of the line, busy young assistants plant-propagating, budding, hybridizing, packing, labelling, doing a hundred and one things, none among which should be done automatically, none where lethargy of thought can be tolerated. Are they going to cultivate their latent talents and gradually climb up the steep ladder of success, or, will they join the great army of discontented?

Hitherto I have chiefly dwelt on the commercial side of horticulture. In addition I wish to say that there is hardly a single private gardener in this country without some leeway for development and exertion of specific individual faculties. In many cases his liberties and facilities are even away ahead of those at the command of his commercial fellow-craftsman.

And now before I close this paper, let us step out of the professional sphere for a few minutes and take into consideration the vast army of amateur horticulturists with little gardens of their own. Does not here individuality mean everything as far as pleasure is concerned? Last spring I had started some flower beds, which were left in care of the lady who had ordered them, on her arrival. Some months later on seeing everything in bloom, looking gay and bright, I congratulated her on her success. "Thank you, but, oh, did it not keep us busy! We had to work like beavers all along." Upon expressing regret and the willingness to supply help, if wanted, she said: "Oh, no; you misunderstand me. Don't you know that it is one of my greatest pleasures to fuss with my flower beds?" Here we meet with individualism of purely idealistic type—horticultural activity as a source of happiness. The professional grower naturally looks at the flowers from an entirely different standpoint than the amateur. With the former, commercial value, perfection in shape and color, lasting quality in a cut state, etc., render the decision; the latter is simply enjoying beauty. To us gardening is simply a means of livelihood; to the amateur his flowers are objects near to his heart. Let it therefore be our steadfast aim to awaken and strengthen individualism among our garden owners.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The regular monthly meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston was held in Horticultural Hall on November 19, at 8 p. m., with Vice-President Wm. J. Kennedy in the chair. During the regular routine of business the banquet committee reported a balance on hand which was voted into the entertainment fund. The landscape class committee reported progress but stated that as the old teachers could not be depended upon, new ones would have to be selected. Two names were proposed for membership and accepted: The following officers were nominated: For president, William J. Kennedy; vice-president, Herman Bartsch, Eber Holmes; secretary, William N. Craig; treasurer, Peter Fisher; executive committee, John Reid, William J. Patterson, F. E. Palmer, Henry Penn, Duncan Finlayson, A. K. Rogers, Robert S. Edgar, Charles Sander, Peter Miller, James L. Miller, John Slawson and William C. Rust. Professor E. A. White, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, read a very interesting paper on "Education for the Gardener and Florist." This called forth some animated discussion, the gist of which was expression of strong support in the establishment of an extension school under the auspices of the club. A standing vote of thanks was extended to Prof. White. Lunch was partaken of and routine business then continued until late. The floral display at this meeting was not large but what was shown was of excellent quality. M. A. Patten showed a vase of Carnation Princess Dagmar. A well grown specimen plant of Begonia Winter Cheer, on which the flower lasted six weeks, was shown by W. Downs. W. W. Edgar Co. had an excellent display of small stock among which was a splendid standard heliotrope. A vase of Carnation Gloria was brought by Prof. White.

NASSAU COUNTY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The monthly meeting of the Society was held at Glen Cove, L. I., on Nov. 13. There was a fine display of late flowering chrysanthemums, Wm. Turner, Wells' Late Pink and H. E. Converse being very fine. Prizes were offered for three white, three yellow and three pink and the winners were J. W. Everett, Henry Gaut and James McCarthy. F. Petrocchia received thanks of the society for new pink celery. H. Gaut was awarded cultural certificate for three flowers of the chrysanthemum H. E. Converse, collection of single chrysanthemums and for six blooms grown in six inch pots. H. S. Laden, of Glen Cove, was elected to honorable membership. Five new members were elected and four applications were received. Prizes are offered for three poinsettias, fifty violets and twenty-five carnations, mixed, at the next meeting.

JAMES MacDONALD, Cor. Sec.

RHODE ISLAND GARDENERS' FORM ASSOCIATION.

The Providence Market Gardeners' Association, comprising all of the leading gardeners in and about Providence, R. I., have formed an association, the object of which, according to the constitution is "for the betterment of the business conditions under which we are compelled to do our selling, and a promotion of closer relations between the consumer and producer." The new association held a meeting last week and elected the following officers: President, Harold F. Thompson of Attleboro; first vice-president, H. Evans West, Seekonk; second vice-president, F. L. Gardner, Swansea; secretary and treasurer, Everett C. Potter, Auburn; executive committee, Eugene Peck, Seekonk (chairman); George L. Tinkham, Warren; Cosmos D'Acchioli, Thornton; Thomas Boyle, Auburn; Gardner Keiley, Warwick.

The members of the Market Place committee are Horace W. Tinkham, Warren (chairman); Joshua Vose, Cranston, and C. H. Paterson, Seekonk. Legislative committee, Dexter E. Horton, Swansea; Everett C. Potter, Auburn; Gardner H. Keiley, Warwick. Social committee, Olney Green, Seekonk (chairman); H. B. Tinkham, Warren and Eugene Peck, Seekonk.

THE WESTCHESTER AND FAIRFIELD HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The regular monthly meeting of the society was held in Greenwich on Friday, Nov. 15. One application for membership was received and six new members elected. A temporary report of the show was read, showing that financially it was a great success, and a hearty vote of thanks awarded to the manager and the exhibition committee. The following awards were made at our New Rochelle show:

To C. H. Totty, for new rose, Mrs. Geo. Shawyer, certificate of merit; Scott Bros., for carnation Wm. Eccles, certificate of merit, also hon. mention for collection of single mums; A. N. Pierson, Inc., for new rose Milady, certificate of merit; J. D. Cockcroft, for carnation Northport, certificate of merit; Anthon S. Peterson, for display of evergreens and potted plants, certificate of merit; Thos. Meehan & Sons, for collection of hardy pompons, special mention; George Melvin, for solanums, honorable mention; Geo. E. Baldwin Co., for display of orchid plants, certificate of merit.

YONKERS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

There was a large attendance at the November meeting, held in Hollywood Inn, on Friday, the 15th. The principal business was the nomination of officers for 1913. The following were elected: President, W. H. Waite; vice-president, J. Canning; secretary, H. Nichols; treasurer, Wm. Wright; corresponding and financial secretary, W. Mills; executive committee, R. Rennison, S. Mahoney, R. Cochrane and Ernest Miller. It was decided to form a bowling club in connection with the society, and as soon as the committee can engage alleys the members will begin practice. The next meeting will be held on Dec. 6.

MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

There was a large attendance at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society Nov. 16, with President Charles W. Parker in the chair.

William P. Rich presented the annual report which showed that appropriations for prizes and gratuities for the coming year amounted to $7500. C. Harmon Payne of London was elected to corresponding membership. A number of amendments were voted upon.

The following officers were elected: John K. M. L. Farquhar, president; Richard M. Saltonstall, vice-president; William Downs, Arthur F. Estabrook, Nathaniel T. Kidder, Charles W. Parker, trustees for three years; Edward B. Wilder, trustee for one year; Harold I. Frost, Theophilus D. Hatfield, Henry S. Hunnewell, Herbert W. Rawson, William Sim, nominating committee.

The committee on gardens of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society announces the following list of awards made to gardens and estates visited during the current year:

For Garden of Spring flowering plants: 1st, Bayard Thayer, South Lancaster.

For Garden of Summer or Fall flowering plants: 1st, Mrs. Charles W. Parker, Marblehead; 2d, Col. Harry E. Converse, Marion.

For Garden or Collection of peonies: 1st, Wilton Lockwood, South Orleans.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF GARDENERS.

The annual meeting of the Association was held in the new Auditorium Hall, 81 Orange street, Newark, N. J., on the 19th inst., and it was the largest and most enthusiastic which has taken place, the members present numbering 129. The business of the meeting having been duly transacted, the chairman, Thomas Logan, introduced the speakers of the afternoon: Robert Craig of Philadelphia, Pa., who chose for his subject, "A Talk to Gardeners;" C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., who spoke on the "International Flower Show of 1913;" and Professor Taubenhaus of the Delaware Agricultural College, Newark, Del., whose subject was, "Problems of Plant Diseases That Confront the Gardener." The speeches were highly interesting and were received with the greatest of attention and appreciation. Harry Bunyard was to have given a lecture presenting his stereopticon views of the "International Show in London," but as time would not allow this the audience had unfortunately to be content with a view of the pictures alone, which were very beautiful, but would be more so if they were colored. About 120 members sat down to the banquet, after which speeches were the order and with Patrick O'Mara as toastmaster things went with a swing. The following gentlemen were the speakers: James Bell, Wm. Kleinheinz, Thos. Logan, Samuel Bacheller, John H. Dodds, C. H. Totty, F. W. Kelsey, Jos. Manda, Wm. H. Waite and M. C. Ebel. The arrangements were well attended to, for which Secretary Ebel deserves unstinted praise for his indefatigable energy and to Mr. Austin C. Saylor for his valuable assistance. The returns of the Bowling Tournament are not yet received as we go to press, and will be given in the next issue.

Officers were elected as follows:

President, W. H. Waite, of Samuel Untermeyer's Greystone Gardens, Yonkers, N. Y.; vice-president, A. J. Smith, Lake Geneva, Wis.; Secretary, Martin C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.; treasurer, James Stuart, Mamaronock, N. Y.; trustees, Wm. Kleinheinz, Alex. Mackenzie, Peter Duff, Wm. Duckham, John H. Dodds.

Following is a list of the awards:

Certificates to Traendly & Schenck, for Carnation Salmon Beauty; Wm. Reid, for Carnation Seedling No. 3; C. H. Totty, for Rose Mrs. George Shawyer; Waban Conservatories, for Rose Mrs. Charles Russell; H. Dreer, Inc., for new Fern Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa; Traendly & Schenck, for Rose Lady Alice Stanley; Colonel Charles O'Fall, for Solanum capsicastrum Melvinii; Scott Bros., for Carnation Commodore; Jas. D. Cockerott, for Carnation Northport; W. A. Manda, for display of flowering and foliage plants, also for Fourcroya Watsonii and Polypodium Maudslayi. Special mention to Wm. Tricker for an interesting group of hardy plants, including Vinca minor aurea; Thomas Meehan & Sons, for collection of hardy berried plants; C. H. Totty, for Rose Sunburst and Carnation Northport.

Officers of the Arkansas Horticultural Society held a conference at Fort Smith, Ark., on Nov. 7, and completed arrangements for the coming annual convention to be held there Jan. 21-22. The premium list was revised and the total amount set aside for prizes was placed at $1000.

NEW ROSE MILADY.

This new claimant for the favor of the rose growing fraternity has already won many honors in the exhibition halls and promises to take high place among the standard florists' stock. It is rich dark red in color and is fragrant and long-keeping and a very abundant bloomer. Its habit of growth is well illustrated in the picture of a house full of it at the introducers, A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.

The forty-sixth annual meeting of the Minnesota State Horticultural society will be held December 3-6, in the assembly hall of the Minneapolis Court House. In connection with this gathering will be held the annual sessions of the Minnesota State Forestry Association, the Minnesota Rose Society, the Plant Breeders' Auxiliary and the Women's Auxiliary and the Beekeepers' Association. Speakers from these organizations will have parts in the program and a fruit display will be one of the features.

HOUSE OF MILADY

THE EXHIBITIONS

NATIONAL CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY, ENGLAND.

The great annual Autumn fete and exhibition of this society was held on October 29, 30 and 31 at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, and an excellent show it was in all respects as regards quality and competition, but to our mind it would have been more generally artistic had the show filled a little less space and the exhibits been arranged with more cohesion. But, as a French critic recently said, the difference between the English flower show and a French one is easily seen at a glance. The English exhibitor is an individualist, he cares nothing for the general aspect of the show so long as his particular lot is set up to his satisfaction. "Each man for himself and the devil take the hindmost" is his motto.

At this great show, which the N. C. S. has held in some place or other for 65 years consecutively, there are nowadays one or two salient features. They may be described as the trade groups, the competition in the big cut bloom classes, the artistic decorations. The trained specimen plants, once so important a part of the show, have disappeared altogether. On the continent, however, these form a most attractive feature of the shows, especially at Paris, where some of the growers produce many very attractive objects in trained plants.

But we are dealing with the N. C. S. show as it is. Norman Davis, a veteran grower and exhibitor, is awarded a large gold medal for a magnificent display about 85 ft. in length enclosed within a border of Isolepis gracilis and ferns.

On the other side H. J. Jones has arranged a similar group rivalling the other in extent and in artistic display. A serpentine edging of crumpled crimson velvet with a border of adiantum, then a row of small blooms of Japs with huge vases in the rear, the whole mingled with autumn foliage, palms and other greenery justly entitled the exhibitor to the gold medal awarded.

W. Wells & Co., Ltd., set up a group on the ground level the same as the two preceding. A gold medal is awarded to them also. If anything this group seems to be fuller of color and the artistic design in which the charming shades of American oak and autumn foliage vie with the more brilliant colors of the flowers is one that attracts the greatest possible attention. Decoratives are well represented by what we call the "Cap" family, that is a series of varied sports from Caprice du Printemps, a most effective little Jap, probably well known in the states. Singles are numerous and in good form. Japs are a study and are staged in giant examples of all the best novelties. Specially fine are Wm. Turner, Queen Mary, H. E. Converse, Mrs. R. A. Witty, Mrs. R. Lusford, Mrs. C. H. Totty, Mrs. G. Lloyd Wigg, Mrs. G. C. Kelly, Mrs. Gilbert Drabble, varieties that will become historic.

A small gold medal was awarded to John Peed & Son for a circular group of big Japs filled in with singles and decoratives. Wm. Howe won the first prize for a pretty miscellaneous group of chrysanthemums, ferns and foliage. Cragg, Harrison & Cragg staged a dwarf group of finely grown singles with a border of ferns in variety. A small gold medal was awarded. Henry Cannell & Sons (silver gilt medal) staged zonal pelargoniums and chrysanthemums, the brilliancy of the former did not in any way detract from the latter which included some of the old anemone type, incurves, fine singles and Japs. The competitive classes were well filled. In the affiliated societies competition the Wulwich Society won the challenge shield. Thomas Stevenson was the champion in the big bloom classes. In one class Stevenson had to reckon with thirteen competitors.

All the other competitive classes were more or less well filled. For a dozen incurves G. Hunt was first with a fine collection of beautifully grown blooms.

Hobbies' Limited made a pleasing presentation of roses and collerette dahlias. Young & Co. staged carnations (silver medal). A very effective display of ferns came from H. B. May & Sons enlivened by the additions of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, cyclamen and Primula obconica. There were several exhibits of tables of singles and a new feature was a class for cut blooms, a dozen, of large Japs arranged on a table with decorative ferns, foliage, etc. Some of these were prettily arranged and quite original in design.

The artistic floral decorations were by no means the least attraction of the show. In the dinner table decorations there were ten entries in the yellow and bronze colors only and in the same for any other color twelve competitors entered. There was quite a large show of bouquets, vases, baskets and other designs in the artistic section, attractive to the visitors and to the friends of the exhibitors but having no interest perhaps for the general reader. The luncheon was presided over by Mr. Thos. Bevan, who welcomed sev-

OHIO HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The first chrysanthemum show ever held in Cleveland, O., opened Nov. 14 at the Grays armory. The show was held under the auspices of the Ohio Horticultural Society, and continued Friday and Saturday.

The list of exhibitors included among others, Elmer D. Smith & Co.; A. N. Pierson; the Waban Rose Conservatories; E. C. Cockcroft, Charles H. Totty, W. H. Taylor, L. E. Holden, W. G. Mather and others.

Great interest was shown by Cleveland florists in their numerous entries in classes providing cut flowers and pot-grown plants of commercial value. The table decorations and bouquets caused keen competition, and commanded much interest among the visitors.

The armory was specially decorated for the occasion, plants being sent from the conservatories of W. G. Mather, A. F. Holden, L. E. Holden, the city's and other greenhouses.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Chicago Florists' Club held a very successful banquet and dance in the crystal room of the Sherman Hotel, November 14th, a large number being present. The chairman of the committee in charge was Guy French of Poehlmann Bros., Morton Grove. The occasion added new impetus to the interest of the club.

The North Shore Horticultural Society, at its annual meeting, November 15th, elected the following officers: President, John Chapman; vice-president, Eric Wetterlow; clerk, James Salter; treasurer, John Jaffrey; librarian, Robert Mitchell; executive committee, William Swan, Joseph Clark, William Till, Alfred Parsons, Herbert

Shaw. It was voted to hold a banquet, the date to be announced later.

The 46th annual meeting of the Minnesota State Horticultural Society will be held in the Court House, Minneapolis, Dec. 3-6, 1912. A number of other organizations are scheduled to meet at the same time. Banquet on Thursday evening, Dec. 5. A very extensive program of addresses has been prepared, mainly on topics of interest to fruit growers.

Regular meeting of Cincinnati Florists' Club was fairly well attended. Chas. H. Hoffmeister, A. C. Heckman, Jr., and Ray Murphy were appointed a committee of three to arrange for a banquet on the night of December 9th. The committee have selected the Bennett House at 8 P. M. Richard Vincent, Jr., will give a talk, illustrated by lantern slides, on the London Flower Show last spring. After the business meeting the members sat down to an informal lunch and smoker.

At the last meeting of the Newport (R. I.) Horticultural Society a new variety of Jerusalem cherry (solanum capicastrum) was exhibited by George Melvin of South Framingham, Mass., who grew it and has named it Melvini. The Society awarded its gold medal to Mr. Melvin for his exhibit. A first-class certificate of merit was awarded to Mr. William Gray, gardener for Mrs. William B. Leeds, for an unusual variety of mushrooms. A committee of seven was appointed to meet a committee of the Garden Association to arrange plans for the June Flower Show, to be held under the auspices of the two organizations.

THE NEW GOLD MEDAL ROSE MRS. CHARLES RUSSELL

This Giant Forcing Rose is an American Seedling raised at the WABAN ROSE CONSERVATORIES, and has been tested in our houses for several years. It has proved to be a strong, vigorous grower, and its freedom of bloom is remarkable for a rose that is FULLY AS LARGE AS AN AMERICAN BEAUTY.

With its large pointed buds of a clear rose pink and delightfully sweet fragrance, it is the admiration of all who have seen it, either growing in our houses, or as exhibited by us at the different shows.

IT HAS RECEIVED HIGH HONORS when exhibited at such centres as Philadelphia, New York and Boston. At the latter place the Massachusetts Horticultural Society honored it with a GOLD MEDAL, a rare distinction from this conservative society.

Plants will be ready for delivery after March 1, 1913

The Cult of the Chrysanthemum.

One noticeable feature of the show held by the National Chrysanthemum Society, at the Crystal Palace, on Oct. 29, '30 and 31, was the wide selection of varieties brought together. Some remarkable strides have been made since 1846, when the Stoke Newington Society—the parent of the National organization—held its first show. The number of new introductions which were exhibited fully indicated the increased attention which is being paid to the raising of novelties by home and continental growers. The show was very satisfactory as regards the number of entries and the high quality. For the admirers of the huge "mop headed" flowers, there were a number of new specimens of ample size to satisfy the requirements of the most exacting lover of this section. For instance, Queen Mary, a new Japanese, is a mass of snowy white petals of remarkable size, and was evidently at the top of the list as regards actual dimensions. Wells & Co., of Merstham, Surrey, received a first-class certificate for this bloom, and a gold medal for the group. William Turner, shown by the same firm, is another gigantic white of handsome proportions. A most complete collection was shown by Norman Davis, of Framfield, Sussex, embracing the best specimens of the various sections. This admirably arranged group well merited the large gold medal awarded. It was one of the chief attractions of the exhibition.

Some Further Novelties.

Mr. Davis also received a certificate for a fine rich crimson Japanese, His Majesty. There were some choice novelties amongst the singles, including Sussex Yellow, of a tint its name indicates; Ideality, a pure white obtained from a cross between Mary Anderson and Mensa; Mrs. Loo Thomson, a primrose "sport" from Mensa; and Charles Kingsley, an excellent rich yellow bloom. Some sterling novelties were to be seen from the H. J. Jones' nurseries, Lewisham, London. Miss Elsie Davis is a massive globular flower of an amaranth tint, with silvery reverse. Frances Rows has reflexed florets of a pleasing shade of bronzy red on a yellow ground; Miss A. E. Roope resembles the well known variety, Boule d'Or, the long reflexing florets being of a rich golden yellow hue. Each of these varieties received a first-class certificate, in addition to the gold medal award to the group. A meritorious array of singles was contributed by Cragg, Harrison & Cragg, of Heston, Middlesex. Amongst the best were Celia, one of the choicest yellows; Mensa, white; Caddie Mason, bright crimson; Edith Pagram, pink; Mrs. Tresham Gilbey, yellow, and Merstham Gem, rosy crimson, with a yellow disc. Ivernina, shown by Stredwick & Sons, St. Leonards, Sussex, is a useful Japanese bloom, of a buff hue, suffused with rosy bronze. Miss Thelma Hartman, an attractive exhibition bloom, is of a blush tint. This was sent by W. Jinks, of Thomas Ditton, Surrey. Sidney Lawrence, a bright amber single, was exhibited by L. Lawrence, of Shoreham, Kent, and Mrs. Gertie Ladds, by P. Ladds, Swanley, Kent, the latter being a chestnut crimson single.

Orchid Show.

The Royal Horticultural Society has entered on a new departure this season in holding an autumn orchid show. This event was successfully held in London on Nov. 5 and 6. The groups were very fine, the leading orchidists sending their most valued floral treasures. In the open class for a group the gold medal was secured by Charlesworth & Co., of Haywards Heath, Sussex. The epidendrum vitellinum were particularly good. Sander & Sons, St. Albans, Herts, also secured a gold medal for a splendid group, some very fine cattleyas, cyripediums and odontoglossums being included. Stuart Low & Co., of Bush Hill Park, Middlesex, showed to advantage some of their cattleyas and dendrobiums, which received a gold medal.

I Want to Get in Touch with a Big, Broad Man in the Seed Trade Who Isn't Happy in His Job

I want to hear from the best seedsman in America who wants a bigger, broader, richer future than his present position or business holds.

This man is needed by one of the oldest seed businesses in America—a house with an enviable reputation, built up by fair dealing, consistent advertising, and honest seeds.

The business is big and steady; it is in a large eastern city, but its trade extends from coast to coast. It can be made much greater—it ought to be doubled. It is on the up-grade now.

For the man who can take hold and help put this seed business where it ought to be, there is an unusual opening. If he measures up to requirements, he will have an opportunity at once to acquire an interest in the business.

A man with capital—possibly a manager or a partner in another concern—is preferred. The business is paying and additional capital is not needed, but it is felt that an investment by the right man will cause more rapid growth.

This is a big thing, and I can give the details only in person. If you think you're the right man, write me fully, telling what you are doing, what you have done, and whether you would consider an investment after investigation had shown it advisable. Address me in confidence—no one else will see your letter without your permission.

I know, too, of several good openings in the nursery trade, and invite letters from expert growers, shipping foremen, correspondents, etc. Tell in your first letter what you have done, to whom you can refer, and what salary you command.

ST. LOUIS FLORISTS' CLUB.

The members of the St. Louis Florists' Club met November 14th in the Odd Fellows' building. The meeting was well attended with all the officers present and President Fred H. Weber presided for the first time since his election. After the regular preliminary proceedings and reports of committees resolutions were read on the death of the late Charles E. Schoenle. Two candidates were elected to membership, and four applications were received.

There were four candidates for S. A. F. state vice-president for Eastern Missouri and Edwin Denker of St. Charles, won out. The treasurer's report showed a healthy balance on hand. Short talks were made by some of the visitors. Weber's Nursery showed a vase of a fine yellow chrysanthemum which according to the growers present was Dollie Dimple. The next meeting takes place December 12th.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Alameda County (Calif.) Floral Society has been organized. J. M. Carroll, of Fruitvale, Calif., is secretary.

Trustees of the Worcester County (Mass.) Horticultural Society had their annual meeting in the library of Horticultural Hall, Nov. 13.

President Edward W. Breed, Clinton, presided at the meeting and committees were appointed and appropriations made for premiums for next year.

Twelve hundred dollars was appropriated for premiums for flowers, $1000 for premiums for fruits, and $650 for premiums on vegetables and $300 for winter meetings. It was voted to have the children's exhibitions in July and August, the same as last year.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club, of Rhode Island, held its annual meeting and election of officers in the club rooms, Monday evening, November 18th, with a good attendance present. Eugene A. Appleton was re-elected president. Other officers elected were as follows: Vice-president, Cornelius Hartstra; secretary, William E. Chappell; treasurer, James Hockey; librarian, James Dillon; executive committee, H. C. Neubrand, James Dillon and Cornelius Hartstra. Addresses setting forth the necessity of combined efforts of the florists in the interest of the industry were made by Michael Sweeney, William E. Chappell and Charles MacNair.

Seed Trade

Shortage of Crops.

The cucumber, musk and water melon, pumpkin and squash crops have turned out fairly well in most instances, but there will be a shortage of a few varieties, although nothing serious.

The early and late varieties of sweet corn are turning out very poorly, the early varieties being very short and light yields and the late varieties not having become well matured, so that a scarcity of early and late varieties of sweet corn is looked for. The medium early varieties have turned out somewhat better and it is believed there will be sufficient to go around of these varieties.

The field corn crops are making fairly good yields, but some of the larger kinds have not ripened up as they should and a hard cold spell may effect the germinating qualities. If we have some nice weather for the next month it will help all of the corn to quite a large extent. It is rather difficult to tell just how these crops will turn out prior to their being harvested and delivered.

Obituary.

Arthur Harbison.

Arthur Harbison, florist, of Harrodsburg, Ky., died on November 11. He was born in Shelbyville, Ky., and moved to Harrodsburg about six years ago. He leaves a wife and two children.

J. F. C. Ludemann.

J. F. C. Ludemann, who for nearly fifty years conducted the Pacific nurseries, in San Francisco, Calif., died on October 31, after a long illness. He commenced in the early sixties and carried on the business until old age caused him to give up active work. One son and a daughter survive him.

George F. Ditzenberger.

About six weeks ago George F. Ditzenberger, proprietor of the Woodcliff Floral Co., Woodcliff Lake, N. J., received an injury, by falling, which resulted in his death on Nov. 11. He was thirty-three years of age and founded the Woodcliff Floral Co. about eight years ago. He is survived by his wife and one daughter.

Walter S. Nichol.

On November 12, Walter S. Nichol, florist, of Barrington, Conn., died as the result of a shock received two weeks before. He was a native of England, coming to this country when five years of age. About twenty years ago he moved to Barrington where he was in the florist business for many years. Three daughters survive him.

Harry C. Phillips.

While on a visit to Chillicothe, O., Harry C. Phillips, president of the Phillips Nursery Co., 16 State street, Rochester, N. Y., was suddenly stricken with heart disease and died on Nov. 3. He was born in London, Ont., Canada, 69 years ago, and went to Rochester about fifty years ago. For many years he was with James Vick's Sons.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

The flower show held last week by Gude Bros. Co. was notable for many things; for the many people well-known in public life who attended it and for the novelties introduced.

O. A. C. Oehmler took advantage of the football fever which raged here last Saturday and had 500 eight-inch pennants attached to large chrysanthemums which he sold at from 75 cents to $1 each.

The Florists' Exchange has moved from 1213 I street, N. W., to the building formerly occupied by them at 1214 H street, N. W., which place has undergone extensive improvements. The usual display window has been done away with at this store and in its place a sheet of glass extends from the door frame to the wall. Aside from a small amount of space at the rear occupied by the office the entire first floor is given over to the display of palms and ferns and for the distribution of goods.

Visitors: George C. Watson, of Philadelphia, and S. S. Skidelsky, Jr., of New York.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Frank Polites, the Chestnut street florist, has returned from a four months' sojourn in Europe.

Lots of grip going the rounds these days, nearly everybody has a touch of it. Albert Cartledge, Jr., of Pennock Bros., is one among the many sufferers. He was laid up for over a week.

E. H. Flood, burgomaster and glass manufacturer, is absent from our midst these days, being on a beneficent mission to supply the denizens of Pittsburgh and Memphis with bargains in the brittle. We wish him luck.

That the florists of today are up to the minute was amply demonstrated by one of the leading florists of Savannah, Ga., who wired B. Eschner, of M. Rice & Co., Saturday, making an appointment to purchase a complete wedding outfit—arriving in Philadelphia Sunday at 4 A. M., making his selections and leaving same day on the 3 P. M. train. Covering 1600 miles is surely going some.

Visitors: John Wolf, Savannah, Ga.; W. B. Girvin, Leola, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Guille, Portsmouth, Va.; Chas. Vorkeller, S. Bethlehem, Pa.; Patrick O'Mara, Peter Henderson & Co., M. B. Faxon, New York City; Antoine Leuthy, Roslindale, Mass.

The Rhode Island State College was well represented at the meeting of Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations held this week at Atlanta, Ga. The delegates from Rhode Island were President Howard Edwards, Dr. Homer J. Wheeler, Dr. B. L. Hartwell and Prof. A. E. Stene.

CHICAGO NOTES.

Club politics are as usual a subject of interest at this time.

Retail florists never had their stores more prettily decorated than now.

C. M. Dickinson is recovering from an attack of blood poisoning and recuperating generally at Pelican Lake, for a week.

Announcements are out for the first grand reception and dance to be given by the Cook County Florists' Association, December 4th, at Bush Temple.

There will be no bowling by the Cook County Florists' League, November 27th on account of Thanksgiving rush, nor on the two following weeks.

Chrysanthemum season is still considered out of the ordinary this year and on the whole will be shorter than usual. The early varieties were late and now the late varieties are coming on early, making a decidedly briefer period in which to gather in the harvest of dollars.

Christmas goods are already making their appearance on the streets. Great piles of lycopodium are reminders that the holidays are but a few weeks off.

The market in this popular green is opening up. The quality is unusually good as the result of the continued rains in the north woods, a condition which has had the opposite result upon sphagnum moss.

Chicago dealers are having a new experience this year in the handling of bulbs. Never before in the history of the market have dealers sold out so closely, a condition brought about by the unusual demand as a result of the numbers frozen last winter, hyacinths, crocuses and daffodils in particular, but also tulips to some extent. Darwin tulips were in special demand.

Visitors: Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks, Minneapolis, Minn.; John Stuppe, of Stuppe Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo.

Flower Market Reports

A slight improvement has been shown with stock plentiful. Roses, however, are the only out in the market. American Beauties are of indifferent quality, some good and some bad, and are not selling well. Killarneys are faded in color due, no doubt, to sudden changes in the weather. Chrysanthemums are about over and this has had a tendency to stiffen prices on other stock. Carnations are demanding better prices, but are scarce, while violets can be had in great abundance and the prices are exceptionally good. Lily of the valley is of fine quality and selling well.

A slight falling off in the shipping trade marks the business of the past week. The chrysanthemums and the pompons still hold chief places in the market. A shortening up of the daily receipts indicates that stock is being held for Thanksgiving week. Paper whites and stevia in limited quantities are arriving now. Rather large quantities of Ilex berries are reminding florists that the time for holiday preparations is at hand. Roses are not coming in too heavily, especially the better grades. Some fine American Beauties are cut daily, but in these, too, the supply is not too large. Plenty of carnations, but not enough first-class stock is the general report. Single violets are excellent, but the eastern doubles are altogether too plentiful and many are not sold. Lilies, as is usually the case, are selling slowly during chrysanthemum season. All kinds of green is abundant.

The larger part of last week the market was listless. Only the opening day and the two closing days showed anything like an active demand and then the supply was so large that in but very few lines were real prices realized. The shipping business took up its proportionate share while local business fell down somewhat. The rose supply is more or less limited, many of the growers being somewhat off crop. Even with this state of affairs, however, there is easily enough to go around. On last Saturday everything in this line was cleaned up. Beauties enjoyed a very much smaller demand than is their wont. Chrysanthemums have struck somewhat of a toboggan and quite a few found their way to the ash-barrel. Most of those sold hardly brought prices that measured their actual value. The same applied to pompons. The carnation supply is only moderate and is just about right for market requirements. Lilies sold in very much the same way as chrysanthemums. Violets and sweet peas sold very well.

Neither orchids nor lily of the valley cleaned up with their usual vigor. New offerings are paper white narcissus, stevia and pansies.

Since the last report NEW YORK business has considerably improved. The opera season is with us and it is Horse Show week, which means a great influx of visitors so that the demand for cut flowers has been good and prices are firmer, if not in the ascendant. American Beauty roses are none too plentiful; Tafts are scarce these days, but there is no shortage of other varieties. Chrysanthemums are very fine, especially Bonnaffons, but we have more than enough to go round, considering which the prices realized are good. Orchids are not so plentiful, but we have an abundance of gardenias, which include many on the small side. The football game at Princeton on Saturday, the 16th inst., made a lively call for yellow chrysanthemums and helped to deplete the heavy overstock with which the market was burdened.

all varieties. All the late sorts have appeared during the week and cleaned up well. Roses have dragged a great deal of late. Violets have had the call during the week and cleaned up daily. Carnations are plentiful enough, but not of the good quality of stock. Lily of the valley, lilies and all kinds of greens sold well all of the week. Thanksgiving prices take effect next Monday.

as could be desired although there has been considerable funeral work and there was a heavy run on single chrysanthemums due to the Georgetown-Virginia football game. There is plenty of stock of all kinds to be had, with the possible exception of carnations. Both roses and violets are coming into the market in much better shape and are moving fairly well. Prices on all stocks are low and the demand for everything has been materially shortened by the influx of chrysanthemums.

The executive committee of the New Bedford (Mass.) Horticultural Society, at a meeting Nov. 11, awarded first class certificates for general display of chrysanthemums at the recent exhibition to J. W. Frasier and Peckham Floral Co. A diploma was given to J. R. Barreau for his exhibit.

Flower Market Reports

PHILADELPHIA

While there is no special jubilation to be heard about last week's market neither is the melancholy note very pronounced. It seems to have been fairly satisfactory, all things considered. The main feature was the big influx of chrysanthemums, much heavier than usual for the date. The growers cannot be blamed for this, however, as they planned to have many of their varieties much later but the season was against them, and many of the later varieties came in in spite of their best efforts. The outlook is therefore favorable for short supply Thanksgiving week with a consequent hardening in prices and the wholesalers are booking orders with caution. The rose market continues in good healthy shape both as to prices and quality. There has been no marked advance in prices as yet, but this is bound to come very soon. The same may be said of carnations. Violets are much more of a factor and are now of fine quality. The football season brings these to the front and prices have hardened considerably. Orchids are much scarcer. Good cattleyas, dendrobiums, oncidiums, and cypripediums are now bringing something near their proper value. The latest new arrival is mignonette, some very fine stock now to be seen. Paper whites and stevia are also among the minor items that are now with us after the usual long absence.

ST. LOUIS

The market improved somewhat last week, but the supply was greater than the demand, however, on any one day. Roses have suffered somewhat from the increased supply in chrysanthemums, and the leading retailers are buying heavily daily of

ADVERTISING; SOME WRONGS TO MAKE RIGHT.

An address by L. W. C. Tuthill, of New York, before the Society of American Florists at the Chicago Convention, August 21, 1912.

Advertising—what is it?

Some say it is a hybrid tea rose.

Others, that it is a sport of Killarney.

But I say it is the American Beauty.

It is the strong-rooted long-stemmed, vigorous plant that yields the deep red blooms of big business successes.

Right away many of you growers begin shaking your heads, saying: "Advertising is all right for the other fellow, but my business is different. In the first place, there isn't profit enough in the flower business to stand for advertising. (Every grower knows that isn't so the minute he has said it.)

"Second—I have tried it two or three times, and it was just like throwing so much money down a knothole.

"Third—my business always has paid without advertising, so what's the use of blowing in my money just because those blasted magazines and papers hound the life out of me, or Hot Air Tuthill gets up there on the platform and claims advertising is the American Beauty of business—the life-saver of profits, and all that rot?"

What Advertising Really Is.

In answer to all of which, let's back up and begin all over again and find out just what advertising really is.

In short, it's the quickest and surest possible way of letting it be known to the greatest number that you are in business—where you are in business—what your business is. It's the shortest short-cut method between the seller and the buyer. It's the modern power that accomplishes in two years what it used to take ten to do.

But it's more than a builder—it's also a destroyer; a quick, unrelenting destroyer. Therefore it needs to be handled carefully—knowingly. It quickly builds up a business that is backed up by good goods and the square deal. It still more quickly wipes off the map, destroys concerns that either misrepresent their stock, or that fail to meet their customers just a little more than half-way.

"Oh, well," you say, "of course I do in a way believe in advertising, because when I have a few thousand extra cuttings more than I can use, or am overstocked on some plants, I just send an ad to the florists' papers and unload. But as for my advertising at any other time, it's ridiculous, as I send all my stock to the commission man. What's the use of advertising to him? He knows me—knows my goods."

A National Awakening.

Listen: As old as the florist business is—it's really among the youngest there is. It's just beginning to really begin. The real beginning began about ten years ago, when Doubleday, Page & Co., started their Country Life and Garden magazines. These magazines brought a message of flowers and country beauty to thousands and thousands of people who simply needed to be thus stirred into action. Soon followed other magazines like Suburban Life, House and Garden and ones of a similar nature, and then still other mediums, and even the daily papers caught the flower fever, until now the love of flowers, stimulated by all these publications, is fast becoming a noticeable national trait. Every time one of these country life magazines gets a convert to the joys of flowers, you growers have one more possible buyer of your products.

But this national awakening to the appreciation of flowers also brings with it every year a greater discrimination in the buyers. The so-called "bread and butter" carnations are fast becoming more difficult to sell, simply because the public is rapidly getting to know flowers, and insisting on better and better quality.

An Identifying Trade-Mark.

Now suppose I could go into one of the Chicago florist shops and ask for not only "just roses," but roses grown by one Frank Jones—and those Jones roses bore some identifying means so that I knew I was getting Jones roses. Now don't you think it would pay both the grower and the florist to get together somehow and spend a little joint money in letting the public know that Jones' Superior Roses always carried an identifying trade-mark?

Most assuredly it would.

There is just as much of an opportunity to trade-mark Jones' Superior Roses as there is Butter-Krust bread or Borden's milk.

And it's going to be done.

One of your largest eastern growers, whose stock is always of the finest, has for a considerable time been suffering from substitution—stock being sold for his that is not his. You know!

He and the ad agency I am associated with are now working on a plan to overcome this trouble.

It's been a hard nut to crack.

It looks as if certain kinds of advertising and trade-marking were the only thing that can make this wrong right.

A Look Into the Future.

While the demand for flowers and plants is still at its height, and production has not yet caught up with demand, the advertising question won't receive from you the serious attention it even now deserves. But mark my word, that just as sure as anything that's sure is sure, the stimulating influence given by the magazines is, sooner or later, going to lose its force and some direct advertising by the growers, as well as the florists, must then be done to further stimulate the business.

Just how to set the wheels of advertising working to further this result is going to be the cause of many a headache. Some of you who have your ears to the ground have long been turning this over in your mind, and when the time comes you will be ready with the answer. One of the greatest wrongs, then, to make right, is the overcoming of the impression that the flower market can escape advertising.

Tying Up One's Pocketbook.

The way some business men refuse to get aboard the advertising train reminds me of a cousin of mine who was determined to go to an evening party. All day it rained hard. His father said that if it rained he couldn't go, but if the wind would veer around to the west, it would surely clear off. So my cousin watched his opportunity and climbed up on the barn and tied the weather vane fast so it pointed west.

He went to the party—but it still rained.

You can tie up your pocketbook and refuse to advertise, but that won't stop the storm of competitors who will be getting your business away.

So much for the future.

Now let's get right down to the brass tacks of the present day situation.

First, let's find a little good-natured fault with the trade papers.

What would you think of a firm who put the index of their catalogue in some obscure part, so you needed an index to find the index? You would say they certainly didn't have an eye to business and that an index ought to be the easiest thing to find and should be placed where you couldn't miss it.

By the same token, what a lot it would help every advertiser in making it easy for buyers to locate his ad, if the index to the trade papers were placed every time right in the front row, on the first inside page facing the cover! As it is now, the publisher knows where it is, but it takes a regular Sherlock Holmes for one less familiar to find it.

Starting and Staying.

Now a word about starting and staying.

A serious and costly wrong that advertisers ought to make right is starting in to advertise and then dropping out before the ads have had half an opportunity to get their good, telling work in. Some men seem to think advertising is a sort of wizard game that should yield extraordinary results in an extraordinarily short time—a kind of waving of the wand that will back a wagon up to their doors filled with orders. It's far from it, because it is a straight business procedure and not a fairy tale.

No single ax-stroke can clear a forest. The woodman who chops and stops, wastes time, timber and money. He had better not have begun.

Make up your mind you are going to spend so much money this year—and then spend it. Send out your message each week. Keep continually chopping away. But every week chop from a different side, in other words, change your ads. Remember that advertising is intended to arouse interest—to hold interest—and to turn that interest into an order.

Last week's paper doesn't interest you this week—so how can you expect last week's ad to hold anybody's interest this week?

A Real Ad or Only a Sign?

In preparing your ad, make up your mind whether it's going to be a sign, or a real, full-blooded ad. Don't try to mix them.

A sign is to attract people who are looking for you—a sort of guide post.

An ad is to attract and convince the people you are looking for, that your goods are the goods worth looking for.

Very few are looking for you.

It's up to you to look for them.

Having found them, it's all your fault if you don't make them remember you and your goods—not only remember, but remember to send you their orders. People are not going to bother to keep remembering you, especially when your competitor is continually remembering them, by weekly telling talks in the trade papers.

The indeliberate, haphazard way some men start out to advertise reminds me of my neighbor, who is handy in carving wood. He started one day last week to carve out a Duke of Wellington. The duke was a tall man and he cut the wood too short, so he concluded to make it into a Napoleon, who, you know wasn't tall. He then cut it too narrow for the broad shoulders of Napoleon, so he concluded to make it into an Isaac Watts, who was very thin. Then he carelessly split it, and finally whittled it into a button for the barn door.

The moral is: If you expect to get Wellington victories, cut your expenditure big enough to land somewhere besides on a barn door.

What to Say.

Now for the text of your ads.

What shall you say in them?

What do you say to your customers to get them to buy when you see them personally?

Your talk sells the goods, doesn't it?

Then why not use the same line of talk in your ads? Ads, after all, are only selling talks on paper.

Just forget forever and ever that an ad, to catch and win, must be clever or funny, or have some peculiar twitch or turn to it. Simply be frank and tell your straight, concise business story. Illustrate it.

Don't crowd your space jam-full of text. Leave some white space about it, for it to breathe in.

If then you have the good goods your ad says you have, your ad will not only catch readers—but hold them and influence them to write to you.

Don't use up any part of your space telling how poor the other fellow's goods are. You have none too much room to tell about yours, the way they ought to be told about. Besides, ten chances to one, you stir up a curiosity in your readers to find out more about those other goods. Incidentally, they then find out from the other fellow some of the weak spots in yours, and promptly you have a man's size job on your hands to land the order.

A Contrast in Methods.

One boiler firm, for instance, that has only steel tubular boilers for sale, is making sweeping statements about the absolute worthlessness of cast-iron boilers.

On the other hand, as a contrast, one of the firms making cast-iron boilers comes out frankly and says that "each type of boiler has its particular uses and limitations, and each is particularly adapted for its particular purposes."

Then the advantages and disadvantages of both are freely exploited.

There can be absolutely no doubt in your mind which firm you would appeal to if you wanted frank, dependable advice.

It's always well to keep in mind that the important things in an ad. are the buyers' reasons for buying—not the sellers' reasons for selling.

Keep sharp watch on the other fellows' ads—not so much for pointers for what to say and do, as what not to do.

If you are too much influenced by what they do, you will follow them. If you do it the other way about, you will lead them.

And who wouldn't rather be a leader?

As for illustrations—by all means use them where possible. But for heaven's sake, use illustrations that illustrate what you want to sell. Don't use the smirking picture of a girl showing her pearly teeth if you have carnation supports to sell. Show the supports. Better yet, show them in use. Leave the pearly teeth girlies for dentists' ads.

How Much Space to Use.

"How much space should I use?" This is a question advertisers are continually tussling with.

Lincoln said, "A man's legs should be just long enough to reach the ground."

By the same token, you should use enough space to show your article and tell your story as it should be told.

Any more space is extravagant—any less is costly. Costly, because it's sending a boy to do a man's work. Generally the boy goes off swimming or to the ball game.

Unfortunately, there exists a certain fear in some advertisers' minds that if they don't use some space in all the papers in the field, the omitted ones will in various ways conspire against them to the serious detriment of their business. In short—a mild form of blackmail, if you please.

On the other hand, there are other advertisers that feel that because they place a large amount of business with certain papers, they can dictate the policy of the paper, even to the absurdity of either excluding or of giving undesirable locations to competitors' ads. Both points of view are not only highly absurd, but indicate a mighty poor business vision.

Too Small Space—Too Many Mediums.

Unquestionably, too small space is being used in too many mediums. Cut down the mediums half, and increase the space proportionately. In this way you cut out repeated duplication of circulation and give yourself a chance to both show and talk about your products as they should be shown and talked about.

In choosing your mediums, always bear in mind that the ones having the largest circulations do not necessarily represent the largest buying numbers for your particular product. Large circulation often means hundreds and thousands of readers who are absolutely worthless to you.

One of the trade papers, for example, has 10,000 subscribers—another only 4,000. One of our customers has proven, beyond a doubt, that for reaching a certain limited class with whom their business is large, the 4,000 paper yields greater returns than the 10,000 one.

On the other hand, this same concern is paying for a 30,000 circulation in one magazine to reach a certain few—a very few—not more than 500, in fact—and it's a remarkably cheap buy for them at that. Cheap, because it's the only medium that reaches their logical customers the way they want them reached.

On a Scientific Basis.

The greatest help to an advertiser that established advertising agencies of reputation have to offer to their customers is not the mere writing of the ads., but the directing of the advertiser's money in channels that shall be the most productive, regardless of personal friendship or "influences"; channels concerning which these agencies possess facts, figures and experiences to prove the soundness of the treatment and expenditures advised. This, then, is the bringing of advertising to the basis of a science, a profession that bids fair to make dollars by both the intelligent saving and the spending of advertising moneys.

Iron Frame House 40x67 Erected for Rowden & Mitchell, Wallingford, Conn.

About the Cost of Building

Occasionally some one asks us if we "can't get the price of our Iron Frame house down." To which we always reply: "Of course we can—but we can't."

Can't, because the best of materials and best of mechanics cost just so much, and to cut costs, means cheapening either the materials or employing unskilled men.

You simply can't put your prices down and keep your quality up. We have a reputation for building one of the best Iron Frame constructions it's possible to turn out; and just as long as Hitchings & Company is Hitchings & Company, we are going to build the best house it's possible to build. Such houses can never be cheap; but they will always cost less in the end. And the end begins right at the beginning. Send for catalog.

Will be glad to talk to you on the SERVICE BUILDING.

IT is surprising to find how florists locate their business. Some towns are as completely overloaded with florists as some are devoid of them. There are a few good towns in the U. S. A. without the proper kind of florists. I once called on a florist in a western town, because of an inquiry for bulbs. The town was large enough to support a good business, but after I had got on the scent and located my man, my first inclination was to get away and forget it. Upon second thought, however, I broke into the silent monotony. The greenhouses were old style—the kind with brick walls, which made them look like a cross between a pickle factory and a penitentiary. The proprietor suited the place. About the only shape he had was his Adams-apple, and that was hid largely by his beard, which he wore, I presume, because his wife bought his neckties. He was a nice old fellow and all that, but was not a benefit to the business. He grew Callas, and other greenhouse junk in the bulb line, all mixed in with “pinks” and lettuce, and on the whole it was one of those places which are a disgrace to the trade—just an old business barnacle. There are many good towns ready for lily florists to move into. There are also many towns overloaded, ready for live florists to move out of. There are good towns and bad towns. The good towns are generally made good towns by enterprising florists, and the best way to make a good florist town is to keep good flowers and get good prices. There is nothing which will kill a town quicker than cut-priced florists, because flowers are largely regarded as a luxury, and there is no such thing as a cheap luxury. Cheap prices for cut flowers does not pay anyone—does not increase trade enough to make the difference—and as an advertisement does not pay as well as the same amount invested in the daily newspapers. Good flowers, at reasonable prices, is what makes good flower towns. Good bulbs to produce good flowers at reasonable prices, is what makes good profits for the florists. HORSESHOE BRAND LILY BULBS are good bulbs—try them. Write now.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Camellias

These plants are becoming more in favor each year and it is surprising how well they sell at the holidays. It must be borne in mind that camellias will not stand anything like hard forcing. They will be something really fine when afforded a temperature not in excess of 52 degrees at night. Be very particular with ventilation so as to give them plenty of air without cold draughts. Give them light in the greatest possible abundance; they like plenty of sunshine at this time of the year. Syringe frequently until the buds begin to expand. An even amount of moisture at the roots is very essential. Where the plants are very heavily budded it would be well to remove some of the weaker ones which will throw more strength into the remaining buds. Keep them turned around often and see that they have plenty of room between the plants to allow air and light.

Care of Fuchsias

Plants which have had a good rest can now be placed in a house with a temperature of from 55 to 60 at night, with a rise of 10 to 15 degrees on sunny days. Shorten the tops back to firm ripe wood and place them where they will be near the glass; this will induce them to make strong cuttings for propagation. When they have made a growth of two or three inches you can take a batch off and insert them in a propagating bed that has a bottom heat of about 65 degrees with about 10 degrees less top heat. Keep them moist and shaded and they will root in two or three weeks. When potting use either 2½ or 3-inch pots, giving turfy loam three parts, well-rotten manure one part, and leaf mold one part. Keep them shaded for a little while until they begin to take hold of the soil when they should be given all the sun and light possible, well up to the glass. Syringe on all fine days and keep the atmosphere moderately moist. These plants can be propagated right up to Feb. 1.

Daffodils for Early Forcing

Where you have a batch of these in flats that are well rooted it is not a bit too early to bring them in, so as to flower during January. You can bring them into a house where they can have about 55 degrees at night and in three or four weeks they should have a temperature of 65 degrees. To induce a reasonable length of stem they should be kept in complete darkness for two or three weeks, but after that they should have the shading removed gradually a little at a time, until they are exposed to full light. Place the flats where the heat from pipes will not reach them as they do not like bottom heat. When they start up with a vigorous growth of both top and root, they will want water in great abundance to produce good flowers and stems, for where they are allowed to suffer for moisture at the roots a certain percentage of the flowers will be no good. Where you have some room below benches in a cool house you should bring in a good number of flats and place them here. It will save a lot of disagreeable work later on when weather is very cold. The grower who has a cellar that is just clear of frost can utilize it to good advantage for all such bulbs.

Forcing of Ixias

The forcing of these bulbs for either decorations or for cut flowers can be made a paying venture. You can use either 5 or 6-inch pots or pans in which place six or eight bulbs. Be sure to provide efficient drainage in each pot and use compost consisting of fibrous loam three parts, old manure one part, and leaf mold and sand one part. Press the compost firmly about the bulbs and when the potting is completed they can be plunged in coal ashes in a frame, where they can have protection from hard freezing. It is always a good plan to have the compost in a moderately moist state when planting the bulbs; then no water will be required until they commence to make some visible growth. When they have made a good growth they should be removed to a cool house and placed near the glass with an uninterrupted supply of light. Care in watering will be necessary at all stages of their growth, for ixias suffer materially when the supply of water is in excess of their requirements. When they show good signs of advancement they should have a temperature of from 50 to 55 at night with an increase of ten degrees more with sun heat. Don't ever think of hurrying these bulbs along with a high temperature as they will then prove a failure.

Hybrid Perpetual Roses for Easter

Well-grown hybrid perpetuals in pots will attract many buyers for this spring holiday so now is the time to begin on this line. Where you have not grown your own stock in pots all summer—which is the best—go to some near-by nurserymen and get a supply without delay. When potting them use from a 7 up to a 10-inch pot according to the size of the plants. For a compost use any good rose soil. Give each pot good drainage, for later on they will require plenty of water at the roots. Pot quite firmly so that every root will be compactly surrounded with soil. When you have them all potted give enough of water so it will penetrate every particle of the compost. They can then be put in some deep frame and enough strawy manure put over them to keep the frost from breaking the pots until it is time to bring them in for forcing. Good varieties are Magna Charta, Mrs. John Laing, Barroness de Rothschild, Anna de Diesbach, Captain Hayward, Gloire de Burgh la Reine, Frau Karl Druschki, Margaret Dickson, Captain Christy.

Sowing Candytuft

Now is a good time to sow some of this seed for pots and bench culture which will come in fine later on. Sow in pans or flats that have been well drained and filled with finely sifted loam, to which a little sand has been added. Press the surface smooth and water. On this sow the seed, covering enough so as to put the seed about three times their diameter deep. Stand in a house that is warm until the seeds begin to come up when they should be placed in a temperature of about 48 degrees at night and grown on. When large enough they can be pricked out in other flats or potted off.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Christmas Foliage Plants; Care of Fancy Pelargoniums; Decorative Ferns; Hybrid Tea Roses and Teas; Manetti Stock; Rhododendrons for Forcing.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Melons

With the Christmas month with us once again melons can be sown from now on and with ordinary care a crop should be certain. From seeds sown December 1st, ripe fruit should be cut from the middle to the end of April. Subsequent sowings will develop a little faster with the increasing sun power. Twelve weeks is the smartest time made by the plants in the most favorable weather. Fruit to ripen through January, February and March will probably take sixteen weeks to develop. At this time of year there is always a tendency to crowd the seedlings amongst other stuff, with a consequent weakening of the plants, to commence with. Have your plants as strong as possible at the time of planting, which is equivalent to a good start in a short race. Sow the seeds singly in three-inch pots and give them every encouragement after coming through until they are planted. Hero of Lockinge is always a pioneer for early work and should be included in this sowing. Others which can also be given a chance are His Eminence, Best of All and Superlative.

Pot Peaches and Nectarines

December 1st is the date most fruit growers have to figure from, as this is generally the time when the earliest houses are started on. Some wait until the New Year, which makes the crop a few weeks later in finishing, but where fruit is required as early as possible start up a house of pot trees immediately. Peaches and nectarines are safe subjects to handle. Apples, pears, apricots, plums and cherries are best left until the New Year before starting. The trees can be placed at half-space if the room thus saved can be utilized for something else, otherwise place them so that no more shifting is required. If the trees are wet at the time of housing allow them to become half-dry and then go through them all with the rammer, firming the surface soil which may have been loosened by slight frosts and rains. Give the trees a temperature of 10 to 15 F. for a time, syringe them twice daily and warm the house up well with sun heat.

First Early Vinery

Start the first vinery December 1st to follow on after the pot vines. All cleaning, etc., having been done previously, all that remains to do is to tie the vines in position and close up the house. Old rods which are heavy enough in themselves to bend over when suspended by a string near the center will need no bending. It will be found they can be so tied that the top will nearly touch the border. Young and stiffer canes will need to be bent over to check the sap rushing to the top eyes, making these produce extra strong growths at the expense of the lower ones. What is required is an even break and even growths throughout the vine. Vines bent thus will need changing over about every ten days, or those eyes that are on the top side will be stronger than the under ones. These being bent down near the glass will be a few degrees cooler than what the thermometer would register if it is placed in the center of the house. Syringe the vines twice daily with tepid water, no matter what the weather outside is and give them a night temperature of 40 to 45 degrees F. with the usual advance by day. Young vines which will not cover all the wires with foliage afford opportunity for pot trees to be grown underneath them.

Storing Vines

Young vines rooted last spring and intended for growing on next summer before forcing should be stored away in a cellar or cold frame where they can have an occasional watering and have some protection from the severe weather. Pack the pots in leaves to save breakage from freezing. Any stakes can be removed and the vines allowed to fall on the leaves. Avoid continual freezing and thawing out by leaving the protection on them if stored in cold frames.

Winter Packing

More protection will be needed around fruit and vegetables when being packed for shipping, as the colder weather demands. Line all boxes and packing cases with several additional thicknesses of paper. This must be on all four sides, not on the top alone. Do not leave packing cases exposed in an open wagon when being taken to the depot in the early morning when the mercury is away down.

Fig Houses

Figs are very sensitive things and any trees that are resting will need a careful regulation of the temperature; extremes either way will be injurious to them. They are easily started into growth; a few days in a warm house will put them on the move. Keep the roots a little moister than you would a vine or peach tree.

Protection for Vegetables

See that all vegetables stored in the garden or in cold frames have sufficient protection to make the effort worth while. Probably an additional supply of leaves or manure will be needed now that we are on the verge of the coldest part of the winter. Take advantage of any mild days to fill up the cellar, so that a quantity of vegetables so stored are easily accessible in even the worst weather.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Packing

Now that Jack Frost is lingering all around don't be too shy in putting plenty of newspaper into the boxes so as to insure all your cut flowers against the cold. Do not take any chances in this respect either, for we all know how suddenly the weather will change at times, often being nice and warm during the night when the roses are being packed and then changing to bitter cold around shipping time.

Here is another thing indispensable to the wholesale growers of roses, especially those who have to travel any distance to reach their shipping station. This article is only a piece of good canvas which comes in real handy in covering the boxes on cold or rainy mornings, where open wagons or motor trucks are used. With a good coat of linseed oil applied during the hot days of summer when perfectly dry, the canvas will last almost indefinitely. Procure a good heavy canvas while you are at it and you will have something you will not have to bother repairing all the time.

Roses Outside

By this time all roses outside will be pretty well nipped by frost and ready to receive their winter mulch of coarse manure, tobacco stems, or whatever is to be had. Mulch quite deep—say 4 inches—to keep the ground underneath from continually thawing and freezing. It is this that kills the plants during the winter months and not the frost itself. Greenhouse roses growing outside still have the ever-blooming blood in them and then as soon as a day or two of warm weather comes it seems to start the sap, and of course it will not do for sap to flow during the winter. The main point in wintering half-hardy roses, is to try to keep them dormant for the rest of the season after they go to sleep in the fall.

Ramblers in Pots

Many florists doing any retail business will find it very handy to grow a few ramblers in pots for the holidays. These can be grown inside all summer and then set outside in the early fall to ripen. Sink all the pots down level with the ground and make sure no water stands around the plants during showers and storms. Now that Jack Frost is here lift out all the pots thus plunged and take them to some shed where it will be plenty cold enough, and yet not exposed to the weather. Get a lot of leaves and pack them around the pots to keep the frost from breaking them. It would not be wise to stack the leaves around the plants themselves as mice would be very likely to get in and girdle the bottom shoots, which would mean ruin. Give the plants hardly any water, only enough to keep them alive, and to keep the wood from shriveling. These can be brought into the houses any time that they may be wanted and will flower very well. Begin with a real cool house at first, increasing the temperature very gradually as the buds break and growth starts. Do not try to force ramblers inside unless they have had at least one good freezing; you will find plants that have not been frozen will not do nearly as good as plants that have had a freezing. Before bringing the plants in make sure they are perfectly clean, wash all the pots and spray the plants thoroughly with Fungine or some other good fungicide.

Clean Houses

Now that yellow leaves are more common than earlier in the season do not brush them all underneath the benches or syringe them back of the last bench. That is no place for them for they will only harbor bugs and insects injurious to plant life. Brush all the leaves out into the walks and then sweep them up and burn them. Heaps of old leaves and rubbish are not a credit to any place. No doubt rose growers scattered through the country districts could work up a large retail business if their places were kept just a little neater. Heaps of ashes, broken pots, glass, etc., should be disposed of and not allowed to remain lying around disgracing the place.

Old Plants in Six-Inch Pots

Now is a good time to dig up some of the old plants that you have had growing outside and hill them or else put them into a deep cold-frame pit. If this is done now the plants can easily be potted during the winter months and started next spring and kept going. These will be fine for selling to the retail trade after the season is too far advanced to make transplanting of rose bushes safe. You would be surprised at the large number of plants that can be sold at prices that not only pay for all labor, etc., but will yield a nice little profit besides.

of this special issue, is called for. All we need to say is that we have in prospect some very fine reading matter, and extra advertising of seasonable material by the leading horticultural houses, and we feel sure that our friends will do their part to show these advertising firms that in using HORTICULTURE as a publicity medium they have met with the approval of the best purchasing trade in the country.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society has acted wisely and with commendable appreciation of services rendered in its unanimous election of J. K. M. L. Farquhar to the highest official position it has to bestow. It is a high honor to be selected to serve as president of this great and worthy society; a distinction rightly coveted by many and one that has never been thoughtlessly handed out. Among the distinguished men whose names appear in the long list of presidents of the organization since its foundation none have come to the office with a better record of loyal, self-sacrificing service than the gentleman who for the coming year will preside over its destinies. We do not hesitate to say, further, that none have brought to the position greater zeal, or left a better record than will have been written into the Society's history when the time comes for President Farquhar to pass the responsibilities on to others' keeping. We look forward to a year of marked activity and of far-reaching influence under the new administration.

Are you
 Horticulture's friend?

Once in so often we take it to be our duty to our advertisers and to our readers, as well as to ourselves, to briefly call attention in this editorial department to the advertising section of this journal. There are those people who seem to consider it to be the proper thing to disparage the advertising—even to deprecate it as a department of a horticultural publication but, on the other hand, there are many who confess to imbibing as much genuine knowledge concerning progress and up-to-date conditions as regards horticultural achievement, from the advertising as from any other section of the paper. Try it for a while, you who have been accustomed to contemptuously ignore all advertising contents as beneath your notice, interested only in some disputatious controversy or the insignificant neighborhood gossip or small-talk of the market—read between the lines and open your eyes to the fact that back of these advertisements and the commercial enterprises they represent are the active brains and brawn of our profession. Intelligence, enthusiasm, ambition, foresight and diligence—all these are there apparent and their results exemplified. Were it not for what these advertising firms have done and are doing, where would our boasted horticultural development be? If it were not for the patronage of these advertisers where would HORTICULTURE be? Reader, if you like this paper and would be pleased to help towards its prosperity, take practical notice of its advertisers and demonstrate to them by the support you give them that you, too, are HORTICULTURE'S friend.

Under date of December 14, 1912, the Eighth Anniversary Number of HORTICULTURE will be issued. To the thousands of intelligent readers who now have

THE EXHIBITIONS

PORTLAND, ORE.

The accompanying pictures are from photographs of the first of a series of flower shows to be held in Portland, Oregon, occurring probably about every three months. The show just held was given in the interest of charity and was largely attended. A few amateurs made exhibits, but the display, as a whole, was assembled by professional florists, seedsmen and nurserymen. A new red carnation, the "J. N. Teal," was named in honor of one of quality. The main exhibitors among Baltimore florists showing plants, flowers, designs, etc., were Hamilton, Cook, Moss, Graham, Welsh and Quick. Geo. Morrison, manager for Mrs. Henry Barton Jacobs won the majority of prizes on chrysanthemums with Philip B. Welsh pushing him hard for all the honors. Roses not numerous but Messrs. John Cook and Jas. Hamilton each had magnificent displays. Messrs. Hamilton, Cook, Moss and Morrison had splendid collections

Portland's prominent citizens, and an exhibit that attracted much attention was a chrysanthemum grown by Louis W. Hill which had thirty or more varieties on one plant.

The Portland Commercial Club of which C. H. Williams is Press Bureau Manager, is active in promoting these commendable horticultural enterprises.

MARYLAND HORTICULTURAL SHOW.

The exhibition of the Maryland Horticultural Society, held last week, was of unusual interest and the attendance was about 15,000. The exhibit of fruit showed that the growing of apples is becoming a great industry. Experts from abroad declared finer York Imperials, Ben Davis, Grimes' Golden, Gano, Rome Beauty and Rhode Island Greenings have never been shown than at this show. All sections of the state had apple displays and the tide-water counties of Southern Maryland where only a few years ago it was thought apples could not be grown, made the finest showing, more than equaling the famous mountain apple districts of Western Maryland. Potatoes of wonderful excellence from various parts proved that the state is becoming famous in growing the potato. It was quite a revelation and means that potato growing is to become an important crop in this state in the near future.

The flower exhibit did not equal some previous shows in quantity or quality. The main exhibitors among Baltimore florists showing plants, flowers, designs, etc., were Hamilton, Cook, Moss, Graham, Welsh and Quick. Geo. Morrison, manager for Mrs. Henry Barton Jacobs won the majority of prizes on chrysanthemums with Philip B. Welsh pushing him hard for all the honors. Roses not numerous but Messrs. John Cook and Jas. Hamilton each had magnificent displays. Messrs. Hamilton, Cook, Moss and Morrison had splendid collections of rare plants which added interest and beauty to the show. The park board, under the direction of Jas. Boone contributed the center decorations, which consisted of mammoth rare palms and other tropical plants effectively grouped. The exhibits of Dairy and Bee Keepers' societies and Granges were distinctive features that added much to the credit of the show.

E. P. Cohill was elected president. Robt. L. Graham was elected vice-president and I. B. Symons re-elected secretary.

OHIO HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Cleveland's big flower show proved to be a pronounced success. The attendance for the three regular days was 9,500 people and on the fourth day, which was an extension of the original time, 4,000 more visitors were counted. The managers are naturally very much elated over the outcome of their efforts, and the Ohio Horticultural Society announces that in consequence of this most encouraging start shows are to be held semi-annually hereafter. Among the sensational exhibits were the new roses Mrs. Chas. Russell from Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass., and Milady, from A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.

The gold medal and silver cups offered as sweepstakes prizes were distributed as follows:

Chrysanthemums, gold medal offered by Harry F. Mitchell of Philadelphia, won by Charles H. Totty of Madison, N. J. The same man won the Cowell & Hubbard Co. cup for the best fifty rose blooms and the Charles A. Otis cup for the best twelve blooms of various varieties of chrysanthemums.

The Webb C. Ball cup for carnations and the William E. Telling cup for another brand of carnations were both won by John D. Cockcroft.

The Waban Conservatories, Natick, Mass., took the Bowler & Burdick Co. cup and E. G. Hill won the Morehouse Co. cup. Elmer D. Smith of Adrian, Mich., was awarded the Harry Balsley cup of Detroit.

J. M. Gasser Co. of Cleveland, the only local florist to take a cup, received two trophies, the Sigler Bros. cup for roses, and the J. C. Moninger, Chicago, cup for the dealer who made the greatest number of entries. The Advance Co., Richmond, Ind., cup was won by Carl Hagenburger of Mentor, O. F. R. Williams Co., Hart Bros., Knoble Bros., C. W. Wagner and Jones Russell Co., all of Cleveland, Poehlmann Bros., Morton Grove, Ill., and Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., were also well represented in the list of awards in various classes.

The 46th annual meeting of the Minnesota State Horticultural Society will be held in Minneapolis on Dec. 3, 4, 5 and 6, in the Court House, with a fruit show annex. Provision is made for discussions on all branches of horticultural industry. The program is a splendid one and should bring out a large attendance. The annual banquet will be held on Thursday evening, Dec. 5.

THE NEW GOLD MEDAL ROSE MRS. CHARLES RUSSELL

This Giant Forcing Rose is an American Seedling raised at the WABAN ROSE CONSERVATORIES, and has been tested in our houses for several years. It has proved to be a strong, vigorous grower, and its freedom of bloom is remarkable for a rose that is FULLY AS LARGE AS AN AMERICAN BEAUTY.

With its large pointed buds of a clear rose pink and delightfully sweet fragrance, it is the admiration of all who have seen it, either growing in our houses, or as exhibited by us at the different shows.

IT HAS RECEIVED HIGH HONORS when exhibited at such centres as Philadelphia, New York and Boston. At the latter place the Massachusetts Horticultural Society honored it with a GOLD MEDAL, a rare distinction from this conservative society.

Plants will be ready for delivery after March 1, 1913

CHICAGO NOTES.

Mrs. E. H. Hunt is quite ill at her home in Park Ridge.

Mrs. Phil Schupp is making an extended visit to Kramer, Indiana.

Harry Klunder has taken a position with the Hill, Heller Co., Cincinnati, O.

D. S. Erickson has opened a retail store at 5736 W. Madison street, Chicago.

Peter Sinner still visits the hospital each night for treatment and his arm is slowly improving.

Paul M. Bryant is no longer in charge of the advertising department of the Foley Manufacturing Co.

Local growers have disposed of all their chrysanthemum plants leaving the close of the season entirely to the cut blooms.

Hoerber Bros. have been very successful in growing some of the largest chrysanthemums seen here this season. Their Nagoya were magnificent specimens. This is a great favorite here for its good size, form, color and shipping qualities.

The A. Henderson Co. has just received a shipment of spirea clumps from Holland for Easter blooming. This firm is finding a very heavy demand now for cold storage lily of the valley, for Christmas forcing. Mr. Henderson says invoices indicate an advance of two dollars per 1000 over prices last year in Germany.

In the office of J. A. Budlong were seen fine specimens of My Maryland and Mrs. Jardine, roses side by side, both grown by this firm. The latter with its beautifully curled petals rather carried the day for beauty and fragrance but they were surpassed by the good shipping qualities of My Maryland and its greater freedom of bloom.

One of the busiest places in the wholesale market was that of Wietor Bros. where six men were needed to fill the shipping orders Monday. Some fine Bonfire carnations were noted and in speaking of the scarcity of carnations at this time Mr. Wietor remarked on the fact that so many of the varieties were no longer dependable and that so few introduced in the past eight years had been a success.

The demand for immortelles seems to have fallen off to some extent and those handling this old time favorite of the retail store attribute it to the high prices that have prevailed in the west and also to the advent of its rival, the ruscus. However, Chicago retailers find plenty of use for it in making Christmas wreaths, bells and other things requiring a compact material and ruscus will never take its place.

For so early in the season, very fine specimens of azaleas are seen in the stores. It is more than likely that the early plants will be the best as the later stock is not so good. This confirms the report from Belgium that the September frost injured the late stock to such extent that many growers were obliged to cut down or cancel orders. Very fine plants of Simon Mardner and Madam Petrick are now in the windows for Thanksgiving.

Visitors—Mr. Heller of Hill, Heller Co., Cincinnati, O.; Mr. Dooley of St. Louis, Mo.; Edw. Amerpohl Janesville, Wis.; C. A. Rice of Rice Bros., Minneapolis, Wis.; John Bergstrom, Rockford, Ill.; C. B. Knickman, representing McHutchison & Co., New York.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

We are glad to see our old friend, George Anderson, on the Rialto once more. He has been under the weather for six weeks.

J. Otto Thilow gave an illustrated lecture at the Masonic celebration on the 27th inst. Many prominent florists attended on the invitation of ex-Mayor Wm. B. Smith. Besides the floral subject of Mr. Thilow there was an organ recital and other features appropriate to the occasion.

A Christmas brochure has just been issued by the Rice Co. full of the latest and best in holiday supplies; well illustrated; well printed; and very artistically arranged. This will bring prompt returns beyond a doubt and reflects credit on Mr. Bowers, professor of publicity, and other things.

In the latest issue of their interesting weekly, the Pennock-Meehan Co. have the following announcement:

To Our Southern Customers:—Our Washington branch is now located at the new Pennock-Meehan Building at 12th and H streets, N. W.; built and fitted up expressly for the wholesale cut flower business and unsurpassed for up-to-date facilities by any other establishment. We extend a cordial invitation to the trade to call and look us over. W. E. McKissick, manager, and his assistants, will be glad to do the honors.—Pennock-Meehan Co.

We have looked over the new building. It is certainly a model.

The great question here at present is an engineering question, namely, how to get the waste heat from the chimney. Fred Doran, an expert engineer; Dennis T. Connor, another sharp; John Burton, a practical florist; John Westcott, student and philosopher; have all meditated on this thing. They have argued for hours, pro and con. How they are going to catch the waste heat and yet save the draft for which the stack was built, "deponent saith not." But they all seem confident it can be done. The idea apparently is to produce more flowers and cheaper flowers. But that's not the crying need of the day in the opinion of your correspondent. The great problem is to find new markets for flowers of all kinds—distribution, not production, is the question now.

Keeping Onions Over Winter.

When I was a boy my father sent me with a load of onions to Chicago, which was twenty-five miles away. He measured up about thirty bushels, but I brought back pay for about sixteen bushels. Father wanted an explanation. They were sold by weight and as it was spring they had shrunk in the cellar about one-half.

When I had a garden of my own one year, I had a splendid crop, and remembering our experience I determined to keep them plump. I pulled and dried them in due time, and late in the fall dug a shallow pit where the drainage would be good. I then put in a layer of onions, next a layer of earth till the pit was full and then kept on a little above the surface of the earth making something of a mound. It does not hurt onions to freeze, provided they are well covered with earth. I think the pit froze to the bottom or nearly so. When spring came and the frost was out I took up the onions, and they were as full and plump as when first dug.

I have spoken of this process to onion growers and they have used it successfully. It does not take long and there seems no other process for keeping them from shrinking. They should not be left too long in the pit, for they might grow. Preserved in this way they bring the highest price—often twice as much as if sold in the fall—and then there is no loss from shrinkage.

C. S. HARRISON.

Notes.

New York, N. Y.—The MacNiff Horticultural Co., seedsmen and auctioneers, expect to move to 56 Vesey street about January 1. They will have a whole building at the new location.

All the principal centres are cleaned up on fall bulbs this year to an extent heretofore rarely experienced. There will be no surplus offers this season for those who have been in the habit of waiting for such.

At the Corn Exhibition in Boston the celebrated Swedish grain for which Loechner & Co. of New York are sole American agents was exhibited by the American Seed & Implement Co., of Boston and created much interest.

Large shipments of lily of the valley pips reached New York last week. It would appear that the Germans are exercising prudence in view of the possible outbreak of a general European war as in other years the bulk of such shipments came in two or three weeks later.

A MESSAGE OF INTEREST FROM BRASLAN

Henceforth, the Braslan Seed Growers Company, Inc., will concentrate on the growing of its specialties.

Henceforth, a full 90 per cent. of our seeds will be produced under our own personal supervision on our own leased lands. We have learned that this is the only plan by which the quality of our seeds may be maintained and improved upon.

This New Policy goes into force at once. The present management of the Braslan Company desires to conduct a business capable of rendering efficient, satisfactory Service. Lopping off the dead wood that retards the growth of the otherwise vigorous plant, is the only business-like method of securing this result.

Of Interest to Retail Florists

Beaver Dam, Wis.—The greenhouses and retail business of Joseph Wagner, seedsman and florist, 134 Front street, have been purchased by A. G. Boomer.

Columbus, Ohio—Samuel Graff, manager of the Art Floral Company in East Gay street, is entitled to continue his establishment, although he entered into an agreement with his brother, the late William Graff, not to re-engage in the floral business in the city when the two dissolved partnership at 15 North High street. William continued the business there and at his death his widow took charge of it.

The agreement, according to a decision of Judge Kinkead, was terminated at the death of Mr. Graff. Chas. R. Wheeler, executor of his estate, sought to recover $5000 from the living brother because, it was alleged, he had broken the contract when he re-entered the floral business. The court held the death of either would annul the contract.

Judge Kinkead also held that the probate court had no jurisdiction to allow the executor to continue the business at 15 North High street.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

The formal opening of the Washington branch of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Company took place on November 21, in the new building recently erected for the firm. Invitations had been sent out to all the local growers and retailers and about 200 people called during the evening to pay their respects. Music was furnished by a string orchestra hidden behind a screen of palms and ferns, and by novelty xylophone performers. There was an exceptionally fine display of orchids, carnations, roses and chrysanthemums. At the rear of the store a table had been spread with good things and the guests were served by caterers. Messrs. Edward J. Fancourt, Charles E. Meehan and W. E. McKissick were assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. McKissick and Miss Minnie Shea and Mr. Edward Bowers and Messrs. Walter Hengle, O. A. C. Oemhler and W. J. Schattmeyer aided in many of the arrangements. To enumerate those present would necessitate mentioning the name of every florist of Washington and vicinity who was in the city that day, for nearly everyone was there.

During the week preceding Thanksgiving Day, cards bearing the phrase, "Your Thanksgiving Day will not be complete without flowers," appeared in all the store windows and at the market stands, being the first step in the publicity campaign of the Florists' Club of Washington.

George Cooke, George Field and Adolphus and William F. Gude were judges last week at the flower show held in Baltimore, Md.

Sydney Bayersdorfer, of Philadelphia, was in town last week.

Mr. Customer comes in and says:—

Mr. Florist, What 'Ye Got?

Mr. Florist says: "Why, Mr. Customer,

What Do You Want?"

And when Mr. Customer looks around the store, and says: "Shaw!" and then walks out, what's the answer? Simply that the florist don't know his business, or else he would be ready with a good display, and able to talk it up and make sales. More than that:

What Have You Done to Bring Your Customer?

The time has gone by—many years—when a florist can sit down with his feet up on the desk. Letters, Postals, Circulars, Ads.—all necessary. First git them there. Then have the goods. Then have intelligent talkers. That's all there is to it. So we say again:

BE READY WITH YOUR RED

Of American Beauty size and fragrance; color a lighter cerise that does not fade to a blue but to a lighter rose as the flowers age; a strong, vigorous grower; good heavy stems; flowers carried erect, no weak necks; no blind wood like Beauty; very prolific, remarkably so considering its size. As tested in the various shows over the country this fall, it has proven a wonderful keeper and established itself at once as a rose of unusual merit, a rose that has created a sensation wherever shown, attracting not only the commercial man but the public as well.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON As usual, Thanksgiving week has given an impetus to the flower trade and the demand is quite lively from all points within the shipping territory of this market. Prices have not advanced very much, however, for the conditions of weather have been very favorable to growth and the production, for the time being is heavy, with the result that the demand is quickly and readily supplied. On single violets, carnations and Beauty roses there is a noticeable advance of 25 to 35 per cent., but other staples show very slight response to the Thanksgiving call. Double violets have again faced an unappreciative reception in this market. Carnations are among the first to respond with higher prices to the shrinkage of the chrysanthemum crop. Of the latter the leaders are Bonnaffon and Eaton. Yellow daisies have started in where they left off last spring and are in line for good prices right along. Lily of the valley is one of the best sellers at present.

Receipts were much lighter the past week, especially in the rose line and at times the wholesaler was sold out early. The demand has grown on Killarney, Richmond and other roses, especially the yellows. There were plenty of Bonsilene and Beauty. Chrysanthemums have shortened up and sales have been more satisfactory. Some choice Golden Wedding, White and Pink Maud Dean and Chadwick are had. Violets have a better call and lily of the valley moves well. Carnations are on the short side—hardly enough to take care of the demand.

CHICAGO In general Chicago market is in a very satisfactory condition and the latter half of November will close the chrysanthemum season for this year. There has been no glut in any line and neither have prices been exceedingly high but a moderate demand and moderate prices have kept the ball rolling till Thanksgiving week opened. A shortage of carnations and plenty of everything else marked this event and chrysanthemums rapidly disappeared as shipping orders came in. No great local demand is anticipated at this writing. Violets are selling better since the cold weather came. Sunburst roses are now to be had in almost any length including some extremely long ones and they are very popular. Killarney, Richmond and My Maryland are all to be had in quantity and the quality is first class. Beauties are selling well. Some reach the six foot mark but the demand is mostly for medium lengths. All kinds of green is plentiful including Christmas greens which this week include holly.

DETROIT With a very good demand for almost any kind of product and a manager at the wholesale house who leaves no stone unturned to sell the goods; there have been nevertheless a good many flowers which could not be disposed of at satisfactory prices. The outlook for the future is, however, very good. As usual prices are stiffened up some for Thanksgiving but not enough to influence the buying public adversely.

PHILADELPHIA Conditions here last week were about as previously reported, no marked change having taken place in any line. There were far too many chrysanthemums. But in spite of the big cut, prices on the higher grades held fairly firm. Roses were not quite so plentiful on the whole, although American Beauty was rather more abundant. Carnations took an upward turn and towards the end of the week were surprisingly scarce. Orchids are not nearly so plentiful as they were two weeks ago. Violets are moving well and the supply has fallen off slightly. Lily of the valley is quite a feature; not near enough for the demand the past few days. There has been a great deal of shipping of this item—showing that the scarcity is general as well as local. Roses will improve with the cooler weather now on.

ST. LOUIS According to the local wholesalers the market is in fine condition with plenty of stock and prices within reach of all, all fancy grades of course advancing a few cents for Thanksgiving Day. Chrysanthemums are coming in fine and are now at their best. Roses are still plentiful and a good cut is on for this week in all varieties. Carnations are coming along fine and plenty for all demands. Violets are selling at a good rate as are all other staples, including stevia and paper whites, which are now in.

WASHINGTON Indications on Monday of this week point to a sufficient supply of flowers of all kinds to fill the Thanksgiving demand. The month of November as a whole has been quiet, there being few decorations of a size worthy of mention. Chrysanthemums have reigned supreme throughout the month and fair prices prevailed. Roses are in fine form and moving nicely in the cheaper grades. Some exceptionally fine orchids have been appearing during the past week or ten days and violets are considerably better than they have been. Sweet peas, both pink and white, have begun, and considering the earliness of the season they are quite good. The same can be said of lupin, snapdragon and narcissus, which are being offered by local growers.

The steady improvement of last week has been well maintained and the general tone of the market is decidedly good. Some of the wholesalers have been able to report a clearance, but at prices, however, which do not show a great advance upon those which have lately been quoted. The supply of roses has not been any too bountiful, in fact we have been short of American Beauty, Taft and Sunburst. We have a quantity of stevia and mignonette. The latest addition in the cut flower line is poinsettia with 3 feet stems, but there is no great demand for this item for which the dealers ask $3 per dozen. Paper whites and yellow narcissus do not move at all well. Pot plants have been making a fine show and trade for these is flourishing.

Y., is in the hospital, where an operation was performed on him last Friday.

A. L. Deal, representing H. W. Johnson & Son, Boston, Eng., returns home on the Mauretania on the 27th inst.

Benjamin Disley superintendent to H. M. Flagler, Greenwich, Conn., and Mrs. Disley, sail on the Mauretania this week for a vacation in England.

H. M. Robinson Co., West 26th street, have for some time been receiving a limited supply of the new rose, Mrs. Chas. Russell, from the Waban Conservatories. They are fine flowers and easily bring 40 to 60c.

H. B. Buck, of A. T. Boddington's is just back from an extended trip in southern parts and reports business good. There is a great demand, he says, for eastern novelties. Things are brisk at the 14th street store and the spring catalogue will be ready well on time.

Visitors—John Stalford, Bar Harbor, Me.; P. Welch, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Tracy, Wenham, Mass.

INCORPORATED.

Chicago, Ill.—North Shore Floral Co., capital stock $2,000. Incorporators. B. J. Schmieder, I. Louise Scherer, and Adolph Traub.

Boston, Mass.—Fisher & Bryant, Inc., forestry business, capital stock $25,000. Incorporators, Richard T. Fisher, Edw. S. Bryant and Arthur S. Hopkins.

BOSTON NOTES.

W. J. Stewart and two daughters have returned from Bermuda whither they went on Nov. 16 for a short recreation trip.

J. K. M. L. Farquhar, who recently returned from the St. Paul show is full of enthusiasm over the splendid success attending that enterprise and the optimistic spirit existing in the twin cities regarding the S. A. F. Convention of 1913, at Minneapolis.

Comment on the extraordinary long-keeping qualities of the new rose Mrs. Charles Russell is repeatedly heard. In this respect the rose is positively unique. The petals are very thick and wax-like and do not seem disposed to fall off at all even after being cut for two weeks. Mr. Montgomery reports an insatiable demand for the blooms from all parts of the country.

Visitors: D. Cameron, representing F. Sander & Son, St. Albans, Eng.; Gustave Thommen, Billerica, Mass.; Prof. E. A. White, Amherst.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

New York, N. Y.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Butler Florist, Inc., retail florist, 18 East Forty-eighth street. Liabilities, $3000, assets $1500. The business was started many years ago and was bought by Eugene G. MacCan in 1904. On October 14, 1912, the business was incorporated with a capital stock of $5000 and MacCan became president.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Our second November meeting, on the 22nd, was made interesting by the exhibition, by T. B. Brown of Windsor, of a pink seedling chrysanthemum plant, grown by him, and bearing several pure white sport blossoms. Mr. Brown was awarded a certificate of merit. President John F. Huss and William H. MacKenzie both gave interesting accounts of their recent attendance at the gathering of the National Association of Gardeners.

An article recently appearing in the horticultural press, entitled "Mandioka," by L. Rice, was read by the secretary and proved of much instructive value. This plant or tuber is the principal farinaceous plant of Brazil, and from it is made the well-known tapioca of commerce.

December 13th will be the annual meeting for the election of officers.

GEORGE W. SMITH, Sec'y.

Melrose, Conn.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

New Carnations Registered.

By Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass., Princess Dagmar—Genevieve X unnamed crimson. Deep, bright crimson. Size $3\frac{1}{2}$ to 4 inches. Long, stiff stem. Calyx seldom splits. Perfectly healthy. Strong grower. Average bloomer.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

Thomas W. Lawson has been re-elected president of the Marshfield, Mass., Agricultural and Horticultural Society.

The 27th annual meeting of the Oregon State Horticultural Society was held at Portland on Nov. 20-22, in connection with the Pacific Northwest Land Products Show. Apple orcharding was the main topic for consideration.

The December meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington will be held next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock at 1214 F street, N. W. Plans will be discussed for increasing the Christmas flower business of this year and several proposed changes in the by-laws will be offered.

At the annual meeting of Florists' Employees' Union, No. 14,134 of St. Louis, in Floral Hall, the following officers were named: Robert C. Hayes, president; George Wagner, vice-president; Edward Pieper, secretary; Mrs. M. Kingsley, financial secretary, and Charles Connon, delegate.

The programme of the annual meeting of the Maine Seed Improvement Association, which is to be held in the City Hall, Dec. 3 to 6, inclusive, contains many interesting features. In connection with the meeting of the seed improvement association there will be held the meeting of the Maine Dairymen's Association. There will also be an exhibition. Dr. Raymond Pearl of Orono will give an address on "What Plant Breeding Can Do for Maine."

The joint committee of the Garden Association and the Newport Horticultural Society met recently at the residence of Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster to make arrangements for the flower show to be held next June on the grounds of Mrs. John Nicholas Brown's residence, "Harbourcourt," at Newport, R. I. A tentative schedule was made up and a sub-committee consisting of H. W. H. Powel, Andrew S. Meikle, Daniel J. Coughlin, Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster and Mrs. Arnold Hague was appointed to make further arrangements. The joint committee consists of Mrs. Arnold Hague, Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster, Miss Wetmore and Mr. H. W. H. Powel, representing the Garden Association and Andrew S. Meikle, president, Daniel J. Coughlin, secretary, James Robertson, James McLeish, Richard Gardner, Alexander MacLellan and William Gray from the Horticultural Society.

At the meeting of the National Association of Gardeners, held in Newark, N. J., last week, an invitation was received from the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society inviting the National Association to hold its convention in San Francisco in 1915. It was favorably acted on and resolutions passed to the effect that in appreciation of the invitation received from the brothers on the Pacific Coast, it is the sentiment of the 1912 convention that its 1915 meeting should be held in San Francisco, but that it is too early now to take positive action.

The bowling trophies were awarded to the victors at the dinner. The Aphine cup went to the winning team, the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society. The president's cup to Walter Gray, of Orange, N. J. The National Association cups went to Wm. Robertson, of Jenkintown, Pa.; Joseph Manda, West Orange, N. J.; and Thomas Aitchison, Mamaroneck, N. Y.

The Goodsell $50 gold prize won by Mr. James Stuart, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., in the membership contest was also presented to the winner by Mr. Goodsell with a few well chosen words.

DURING RECESS.

The bowling team of the Washington Florists' Club continued their reputation of being invincible by defeating the Baltimore team last Thurs-

OBITUARY.

Orville J. Upham.

Orville J. Upham, a prominent market gardener of Needham, Mass., died at his home on Nov. 19, at the age of 76. His wife and two sons survive him.

Charles C. Munsell.

On November 18, Charles C. Munsell, for many years a florist in Hartford, Conn., died in the hospital after a long illness. He was born in East Windsor Hill, Conn. For many years he was with D. A. Spear and later had a store of his own. He was 77 years of age.

NEWS NOTES.

Walpole, Mass.—The greenhouses of W. E. May have been closed as Mr. May has gone south.

Dayton, O.—Fifteen acres of land have been purchased by C. F. Mahan on which he will grow flowers and vegetables.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The capital stock of the Holton & Hunkel Greenhouse Co. has been increased from $50,000 to $125,000.

Allentown, Pa.—The greenhouses formerly owned by A. B. Ellsworth have been moved to the property of Marcus De Long, Thirty-eighth and Linden streets.

Dayton, O.—Harry Treadway, formerly at 214 Clayton street, has moved his greenhouses to 513 Valley street and will be known as the North Dayton Greenhouses.

Saddle River, N. J.—The clerk of the weather treated the Secretary of the Florists' Hail Association to a nice hail storm last Sunday afternoon. Some of the hail stones were as large as marbles, but there being no wind, there was no broken glass.

FIRE RECORD.

Lake City, Minn.—A storehouse belonging to the Jewell Nursery Co. was totally destroyed by fire recently with all its contents.

Fredonia, N. Y.—Fire recently destroyed a barn belonging to the Larder Floral Co. on Free street. Loss about $2,500, partially covered by insurance.

Announcement is made by the agricultural department at Washington that five species of insects have been discovered which feed on and destroy the fruiting bodies of the chestnut blight disease, which has been baffling horticulturists and working great havoc to chestnut trees. The beetles eat the blight of the fungus and experiments are said to have shown that they effectually stamp it out.

CONSTRUCTION OF COLD FRAMES.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

We are going to build a line of twenty-seven cold frames and would like some information on same. Would you advise building of wood, brick, concrete, or concrete blocks? Which would be the cheapest of the last three mentioned and how would they compare in price to the wood? How deep should we excavate, and how would we make same rat and mole proof? Any information on the above will be greatly appreciated by a— SUBSCRIBER.

HORTICULTURE PUBLISHING CO.:

Referring to the above inquiry we would answer as follows:

We should advise under ordinary conditions to build the walls of concrete; prices of material differ in different parts, but of the three, concrete walls are ordinarily a little cheaper than brick or concrete blocks.

If the walls are to be built at a place very near to a concrete block factory, the condition would perhaps be changed. It is hard to say just how much more expensive any one or all of these walls are, than wood, as the prices on lumber are also different in different places.

We should advise that the pits should be 3 feet to 4 feet deep. The depth of the pit is somewhat a matter of opinion as different purposes require different depths. The only way to make such pits thoroughly rat and mole-proof is to make the side walls and bottom of masonry, preferably of concrete. When heat is required in such pits or frames it is easy to place two lines of 2-inch pipe, one on each side wall, one flow and one return. In many cases, however, the only heat used is that derived from bed of manure in the bottom of the pit.

We would suggest that "Subscriber" obtain a copy of booklet "Two P's, or the Pleasure and Profit of Cold Frames and Hot Beds," published by Lord & Burnham Company, which may be had for the asking.

For Attractiveness No Greenhouse Quite Equals the U-Bar

This is the U-Bar
The Bar That Makes U-Bar
Greenhouses the Famous Greenhouses they Are

THE reason is, the U-Bar. To put it another way: you can put a gold plated harness on a heavy draft horse and hitch him to a swell little runabout—but with all his trappings he ambles along draft horse fashion just the same. So by the same token, putting a curved eave on a greenhouse does not make it a U-Bar curved eave house. It only looks something like it from the outside. A U-Bar house is distinctly different and it's the U-Bar that makes it so. Send for the catalog and find out just why.

A BULL trader, at the end of a bear day, tried a fifty cent "regular" dinner in New York, and was astonished to find it quite palatable. He said to the proprietor, as he paid his bill, "That was really a very good dinner; I don't see how you can give it for the money." The proprietor looked sad as he replied: "Oh, well, you know, accidents will happen." The florist occasionally may be astonished to find that a lot of low-priced lily bulbs turn out very good—accidents will happen. Horseshoe Brand Bulbs never "happen" to be reliable—they are reliable by nature, with a uniformity of excellent quality, which costs money to produce and saves you money to buy. The hardy Japanese Lilliums, such as Auratum, Magnificum (the improved Rubrum) and Album, are a most excellent adjunct to the progressive retail store, and in the proper season adds greatly to that variety of refinement in flowers so attractive to flower-lovers. In bulbs of this kind, the largest and highest priced bulbs always pay the best if properly grown, and there is nothing more handsome than a fine large plant of Speciosum Lillies or Auratum, with many flowers. Mammoth bulbs must be ordered about a season in advance. We give below what we have to offer for delivery now, or during 1913; and also a list of Horseshoe Brand Giganteum—the best cold storage white lily in the world. Send your orders in now—they will never cost less and may cost more later.

SPECIOSUM LILIUM MAGNIFICUM.

An excellent scarlet hardy lily, inside or outside planting. Delivery up to Sept. 1st, 1913. Storage charges included. Terms 60 days after delivery.

Size 9/10 inch, at $12.00 per case of 150 bulbs, f. o. b. New York or Pittsburgh.

LILIUM AURATUM.

The Tiger Lily—for planting inside or outside. Delivery up to July 1st, storage charges included. Terms 60 days after delivery.

Size 9/10 inch, at $12.00 per case of 130 bulbs, f. o. b. New York City.

LILIUM GIGANTEUM.

The finest white Cold Storage Lily produced in the world, without exception. Packed specially for storage purposes. Deliveries any time. Storage charges included up to Sept. 1st, 1913. Terms 60 days after delivery. F. o. b. New York City, except where otherwise mentioned.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Christmas Foliage Plants

Now is the time to begin preparations, in order to have a full share of the Christmas trade in foliage plants. Look over your stock and where you have not enough get them without delay. (See Buyers' Directory in this paper.—Ed.)

Now a word about cleanliness. The sending out or placing on view for sale plants infested with insects is to be deplored. Before the rush starts get busy and give all your foliage plants a thorough good cleaning, with some good insecticide such as Aphine or Lemon Oil. Wash all the dirt and green scum from the pots. Keep the syringe going from this out and it will help to keep your plants clean and fresh looking.

Fancy Pelargoniums

These plants can be given a house where the temperature runs anywhere from 45 to 50 degrees at night with usual rise during the day time with sun heat. These plants like a dry atmosphere so keep the house in this state if you want them to do well. When the plants have filled their pots with roots they can be given a shift. Those that were struck in September will require now or before long a 4-inch pot. Use a compost of fibrous loam three parts and well rotted manure one part. Have the mixture somewhat roughly broken up and give plenty of drainage as the water will need to pass off freely for them to do well. Be very careful when giving these plants water from now on and do not apply water until the soil is quite dry as they will not bear a wet state of the soil. Give them uniform ventilation whenever possible, but shield against any drafts of cold frosty air. Guard against the green fly plague by subjecting them to the fumes of tobacco smoke regularly once a week.

Decorative Ferns

We are now coming to a season when we should watch light, airing, watering and temperature to bring ferns through the winter in good shape. From now and up to the middle of February all ferns generally used by the florist will stand full sun. They will require very skillful watering now that the shortest and darkest days are with us again. As a rule from this out wait until they show a slight dryness at the root and then give them enough of water so it will run through the bottom of the pot. Handle the ventilation so as to give them a proper amount of fresh air without chilling draughts. Ferns always like a certain amount of atmospheric moisture through the house, but extremes either way should not be allowed. For intermediate ferns, i. e., those that require a medium temperature, 55 to 60 degrees will do, while those that require warm or stone heat should be given from 60 to 65 degrees at night.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Christmas Azaleas; Poinsettias; "Made Up" Plants; Flowering Plants for Christmas; Keeping Christmas Greens; Ferns for the Season.

Tea and Hybrid Tea Roses

Now is the time to dig up and pot a good batch of these roses for next spring's sales. Where you have not any stock you should invest in a few hundred as there is certainly an increasing demand for Hybrid Teas. These are good roses to handle for they are bound to give satisfaction by their free-blooming qualities. Pot into 5, 6 or 7-inch pots according to the size of the plants and give sufficient drainage and pot firmly. A good place to keep these roses is in a deep cold frame where they can be properly protected against hard frost or a very cool house will also answer very nicely. The white and pink Maman Cochet; Catherine Mermet, another good pink; Etoile de Lyon, yellow; Marie Van Houtte, creamy white; Duchesse de Brabant, pink, are all splendid Teas. In the Hybrid Tea class Mme. Caroline Testout, and Madame Abel Chatenay are fine pinks; Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, white; Gruss an Teplitz, a grand red, and there are many more.

Manetti Stock

Now is the time to think of your Manetti stock for next year's roses. You should procure them as soon as you can get them. When they arrive unpack and heel in some cool shed or cellar where they will be clear of frost. While heeling them in it is a good plan to pick out all those that show signs of growth and lay them to one side; these should be potted up as soon as possible. When you have come to potting use either 2 or 2½-inch pots, and any good rose soil for compost. Firm the soil well all around the pot, never leaving them in a loose condition or you will find trouble later on. Give a thorough watering and place in a cool house that runs anywhere from 40 to 50 degrees at night. Keep the tops well syringed daily to bring the wood and eyes to their plump condition which is essential to success. Grafting can be started just as soon as they have made good root action with a little top growth.

Rhododendrons for Forcing

These plants when forced come in very serviceable to the florist for spring trade. Now is a good time to get a batch of the newly imported plants and pot them up. It is always better to dip their balls in a tub of water so they will have a chance to get well wet through for there is nothing worse than to pot them with a dry ball of roots. They grow and flower well in a compost of two parts fibrous loam to one of leaf mold with some sand intermixed. Give good drainage and pack the compost firmly around the old ball. These plants want to be kept cool until January so give them a cool pit or house that is just clear of frost, but where you have not these conveniences a deep frame will answer very well. See that they are always kept moist at the roots.

Get in line Less than four months now lies between us and the Third International Flower Show of the Society of American Florists to be held in New York City next April. The holiday activities will hold everybody down for a few days now but as soon as that is over the big exhibition should claim a good share of attention from all, whether intending exhibitors or prospective visitors. Let nothing that can possibly be avoided stand between you and this—the most important horticultural event since the great Boston demonstration in 1910. That it will exceed the Boston event in many particulars is to be expected. No one who aims to keep in the van of progress can attain that end and yet stay away from this exemplification of the progress and the highest ideals of all branches of horticultural art.

Modernized show management

The fall shows—"their name is Legion"—are, at last, all over for this season and it is pleasing to note that as a rule they appear to have been financially successful. In fact, we recall no year when the reports in this respect have been so uniformly cheerful. This inspiring outcome is coincident with the very evident activity, all along the line, in the way of publicity and the adoption of the methods and management in use generally among "show" people and, no doubt, this turn is largely to be thanked for the improvement. A correspondent of the Journal of Horticulture (London) in commenting recently on the enormous attendance of people at the Shrewsbury Show, year after year, suggested that

"One reason is because Messrs. Adnitt, Naunton & Co. are master-hands in the art of advertising. When preparations were being made for the 'International' at Chelsea, there were hundreds of people in the provinces who never heard a word about it. This is not the case with Shrewsbury, and it is no use pretending that you have not heard of the event, for it stares you in the face wherever you go—a colored bill or a flaming poster on every boarding in town, village, or country place. Some people ask why Blackpool is the most popular seaside resort in England. It is simply because Blackpool advertises, and the same remark applies to Shrewsbury."

The institution, as well as the business man, that expects to live and secure prosperity through public interest and support, today, must advertise and "proclaim its story from the house-tops." We are glad to see that our horticultural exhibition managers are awakening to the necessity of following a course similar to that which has been so efficacious elsewhere.

Bermuda, a contrast

The editor has been indulging in a brief vacation trip to the Bermudas. This, in itself is an item of small consequence and, as to one's experiences on the voyage to and from that land of perpetual summer, the quaint sights of its ancient streets, its coral rock houses and semi-tropical scenery—all these have been often and fully described by other pens. But there is one impression which we have brought home that may interest some of our readers. It is that, notwithstanding the never-fading beauty of tropical gardens as compared with the devastated and cheerless landscape of our northland Novembers, there is yet a charm in our own changing seasons that nothing can surpass. True, it is by no means a pleasant sensation after one has sauntered through palm and banana groves and hedges of blooming oleanders and hibiscus, under resplendent canopies of bougainvilleas, and seen the dooryards glowing with poinsettias and crotons, the oranges and papaws ripening, the roses festooning the old walls and gate posts, the strawberries blossoming, and after revelling in all this exuberance of verdure to return to the bleakness and blustering rigors of a New England winter. But the dweller in the land of everlasting verdure knows nothing of the inspiration and ambition of returning spring time, when the tree and the man respond to its quickening influences; the glory of apple blossoming and lilac time, enhanced and intensified by contrast with the desolation of yesterday.

"A charm from the skies seems to hallow us there, Which sought through the world is not met with elsewhere."

But Bermuda is enchanted land, sure enough, and he who visits it will experience a pleasure never to be forgotten.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Strawberries

Strawberries can be started any time now. Seldom do we see a house given up entirely to growing them; if a small one can be given up to them, labor will be saved, as it takes time to shift them around. If it is convenient to have shelves in either vineries or peach houses that are being started into growth, strawberries will come along here without a shift as the rising temperature will suit them. It may be desirable to move them to more airy and drier quarters, as the fruit begins to color. Until then they will be all right. Have the pots washed clean soon after the leaves appear. If allowed to dry they are harder to clean. At the time of housing they may be too wet to handle; leave them until nearly dry, when the drainage of all should be examined and the soil rammed down, making it firm, after the frosts and rain have loosened the surface. Soon after the roots have become active an application of weak soot water will help to sweeten the soil. Not until after the fruit is set should any form of feed be given to them, as it only produces heavy foliage at the expense of the fruit.

Peach Buds Dropping

Now that the foliage is off peach and nectarine trees, a careful watch should be kept on the border, so that it does not dry out. A general impression would be that with no foliage on the trees, little or no water is needed, but if a peach tree is allowed to get dry at the root, the flower buds will fall later. It is not just now that the damage will be seen, but as the trees commence to grow or—in other words—immediately the sap commences to flow. Some have been heard to call it “bud jumping.” A syringe twice a week along through the winter is a help to the buds, especially to trees that were root pruned. Care must be taken when syringing these cold houses to see that the water does not freeze on the trees, or the results will be fatal to the flower buds. It may be necessary to nearly close the house for an hour after syringing to raise the temperature.

Pruning Vines

This was only dealt with briefly in an earlier issue, yet is of such importance as to warrant a space of its own. There are two distinct systems of pruning vines under glass, known as the short-spur and the long-spur systems. A vine is different from a peach, nectarine or apricot inasmuch as the fruit is borne on wood of the present season's growth; the other subjects mentioned form flower buds on young wood which develop to maturity the following season. When pruning peaches, for instance, all the young wood (that is, last summer's growth) that can be left in the tree without overcrowding is retained to produce the flowers and fruit the succeeding season. This is all dispensed with in a vine. It is a good plump bud we are after. Some carry this idea of a large bud to extreme, which develops the long-spur system. The lateral growths are just looked over, and the largest and plumpest bud selected as that to form the lateral the coming year, pruning back to this, irrespective of length left on the vine. A few years of this usually brings spurs of considerable length—weird, unsightly things. Some growers are able to produce a little larger bunches this way, but the percentage is small and when one considers the vast majority of growers who ignore it the conclusion must be one of indifference to it. In addition to the unsightly appearance of the long spurs, they form shelters for many pests. It is seen by the foregoing that the writer is no “boomer” of the long-spur system. I would only use it on vines doomed to be pulled out at the end of another season; then you are getting all that is coming.

The short-spur system is the shortening of each lateral, back to one, two or three eyes, which builds up a short compact spur. Some say “two eyes and keep to it as a fixture.” I say there are no positive fixtures in this business. The very base bud may be all you are looking for and is so placed that there will be no danger of its being rubbed out. This being the case, shorten back to one eye. The same conditions may exist, yet with an even chance of the bud being damaged; then leave two eyes, one to be rubbed out after growth commences. The three eyes may have to be left where the two base ones are poor or in such a position as to make it unwise to try to train them where they are needed.

After referring to strong and weak eyes some readers may remember an article last summer where I said the strongest growths do not produce the largest bunches. I still maintain that this is so; that is, those exceptionally strong growths. This is not inferring that a real weak growth is best. Get the eyes good and solid, the breaks evenly strong, and the bunches should be good. Prune the vines as early as possible no matter when they are being started. This not only helps to plump the eyes, but is the greatest safeguard against bleeding. Save a few of the best laterals if young stock is to be raised in the coming spring. Heel them in underneath a bench in a cool house or outside with some straw thrown over them. This will keep the eyes in good shape until needed and they will be accessible at any date.

Cauliflowers

Cauliflowers now developing will need plenty of water, but no feed. If growing in raised benches with the heating pipes underneath see that they do not dry out from the bottom. The hearts are best kept from the sun at all times. This can be accomplished by breaking two or three of the outer leaves over it. Green fly will often secrete itself amongst the tender foliage. When discovered fumigate the house at once.

Peas

Culinary peas are gross feeders and they also like a good supply of water. A thorough drying out will give the plants a check, oftentimes never forgotten. Peas coming in for Christmas can have some manure water as they go out of flower. Mildew is liable to put in an appearance with any neglectful ventilating. Take steps to check it before any serious damage is done.

“Fungine,” advertised in HORTICULTURE from time to time, will be found a valuable assistant.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

LANCASTER COUNTY FLORISTS' CLUB.

Every available seat in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms was occupied and camp stools called into requisition for our meeting on the 21st of November.

The subject of the evening was "Does it pay to grow chrysanthemums or not?" M. J. Brinton and B. F. Barr opening the discussion.

Mr. Brinton says that as chrysanthemums have been grown at their place ever since they first began to be a factor in the cut flower product of the greenhouse and presuming that they had ordinary business acumen, they must be a profitable thing to grow.

"Were I to grow carnations only as some of you do then I would either grow no chrysanthemums or at least only in the space needed for propagation and the growing of the young carnations as they would follow each other without interference and little loss of time.

I have tried on different occasions the potting of carnation plants from the field and holding them in frames to follow chrysanthemums but the quality of carnation blooms was so inferior to those from the earlier established plants that I shall try it no more.

The grower who needs many small bedding plants in the spring can profitably use a good portion of space with the Queen of Autumn and follow with these plants, or with pot stock intended for Easter.

As a rooted cutting proposition they can be made to succeed themselves to advantage, selling cuttings from them during the late winter and until time to renew the plants again.

I have left sweet peas for the last suggestion as a crop follower for the chrysanthemums and I believe they are one of the most profitable possibilities in the whole list. As I see it there are two requisites for success, solid beds and head room. While peas planted in October or November are not likely to grow as tall as those planted in August, if they are well watered and fed they will push several feet above one's head. The same soil can be used if properly enriched making the investment light. In planting these late peas do not plant the Spencers, for while they make an abundance of long stemmed flowers they do not bloom until the early outdoor varieties are almost beginning.

In conclusion I would say that chrysanthemums pay; anything that the public uses can be made to pay just as soon as high quality is produced at a moderate cost. The public want chrysanthemums and will pay for good ones."

Mr. Barr says that his personal experience has been varied;—"Sometimes I have found them profitable, sometimes not. If we can grow one flower to a plant that will wholesale at $2.50 per dozen, or two flowers to a plant that will wholesale at $1.50 per dozen. Growing the plants say eight by ten inches apart, we are making a fair margin of profit, providing the house can be used for other crops as soon as the chrysanthemums are cut.

Varieties maturing before November could be sold at least 15 per cent. less, leaving the same margin of profit because we have the use of the space earlier in the season and getting a start before the very short days of winter.

It has been our custom the last few years to grow as few varieties as possible, each variety being scheduled to bloom at a certain season.

The varieties we consider most profitable to us from a retail point of view are as follows: For the early varieties, Golden Glow (yellow), Polly Rose (white), Glory of Pacific (pink). Unaka is considered a great favorite by many but with us it was a failure. For the mid-season varieties we grow Robert Halliday (yellow), White Cloud (white), McNiess (pink), and Major Bonnafton (yellow). For the late varieties we grow both yellow and white Mrs. Jerome Jones, Linwood Hall (white), Maud Dean (pink), and Rosette (pink).

We have been growing these varieties for the last four years. Some years ago I was very enthusiastic on the chrysanthemum question and bought stock of practically all the new varieties as they were introduced and found to my regret that the larger percentage of the new varieties were a total failure and a dead loss. There are exceptions, however; for instance when Yellow Jones was introduced I bought 500 plants; the first year the flowers did not pay for the labor of growing them, much less for the plants which were quite costly. Giving them another trial the following year they did remarkably well, producing splendid flowers, and we have been growing them ever since.

This is only an instance to illustrate that many times a new variety is discarded before it is given a fair chance. However, to make money out of chrysanthemums it is better to let them be tried out in different soils other than that of the producer before investing heavily in them.

The chrysanthemum season is really the fall opening of the florists' business, and by giving them the care and attention needed to produce first-class flowers and with the proper disposition of the beds after the flowers are gone I am quite sure they can be grown with a fair margin of profit."

These papers were followed by a general discussion, Mr. Nagle having made a success of the very early varieties with the use of sash to cover an out-door space; Mr. Law found the following up with carnations from four-inch pots a success where Golden Glow was the variety used as a predecessor. Some years back John N. May of Summit, N. J., grew carnations in flats four inches deep, these flats being held in cool houses until the chrysanthemums were out of the way and then simply set on the beds, not shifted, giving good results.

S. S. Skidelsky was a visitor and advised the growing of some of the better new varieties, as the larger growers were discarding old varieties for new ones and they certainly knew what they were doing. He also made some remarks on the matter of publicity along newspaper lines and was followed by the president who is in hearty accord with the newspaper end of this campaign.

It is proposed to make a visiting tour about once a month during the growing season of various establishments along the car lines, the first one being Nov. 30th, to Manheim, some thirty signifying their intention to go.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF PHILADELPHIA.

This meeting (December 3) was the first since the new committees for the year were appointed. None of them (the new committees) reported except the publicity committee. The president promised that there would be more activity in the derelicts by next meeting. The publicity committee have decided to make an appeal for funds from those interested. That is as far as they have got. The response to this appeal will make or mar the idea.

Adolph Farenwald gave his ideas on affiliation and Mrs. Chas. Russell rose. Xavier Schmitt spoke of a new pink chrysanthemum he had seen in New York. Wm. Robertson modestly gave his list of prizes won in bowling match at Newark, N. J., on November 19th.

The committee on exhibits reported favorably on carnation Northport. The chairman was not on hand and the balance of the committee had to be dragged up to get busy. I suppose, Mr. Editor, I should not tell you this; all told, it was a very poor and lifeless meeting. What in the name of the seven motherless cats do committees suppose they are appointed for?

This small news item is not worthy of my signature—which I append only when I think I have something of importance to say—but in case any one might think me hiding on the anonymous, here goes—

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

At the last annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen the city of Portland, Oregon, was selected as the place in which to hold the annual convention of 1913, but the dates for the convention were left in the hands of the Executive Committee for the purpose of consulting with the trade organization on the coast that dates might be selected best adapted for the holding of the convention. The Executive Committee have just decided upon June 18th, 19th and 20th for the convention.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Engelman Botanical Club will hold its monthly meeting on Monday night, Dec. 8, at Shaw's Garden, St. Louis.

D. F. Roy of Marion was the speaker at the Dec. 2 meeting of the New Bedford, Mass., Horticultural Society. His topic was chrysanthemum culture.

The Western New York Horticultural Society will hold its 58th annual meeting at Convention Hall, Rochester, N. Y., on December 11, 12 and 13. The program bears the picture of a "big red apple," in natural colors, and the contents further show that this society's work is exclusively connected with the fruit industry.

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

I wish to call your attention to an error in HORTICULTURE of last week which states that the Newport Horticultural Society awarded a gold medal to the new Solanum capsicastrum Melvinii. The award was a bronze medal. This society gives no gold medal awards.

JAMES ROBERTSON.

The St. Louis Florist Club will hold its monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon, December 12th, in Odd Fellows Hall. President Vincent of the S. A. F. will meet with the members and talk over S. A. F. matters. The trustees have completed all arrangements to receive and entertain the S. A. F. president, and the banner attendance for the last meeting of the year is looked for.

THREE NOTABLE CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

His Majesty.

I have seen this monster Jap on several occasions and under varying conditions. The last time was at the Floral Committee where it was unanimously awarded a first class certificate by a full meeting. It is one of the grandest novelties ever produced. It is, of course, a typical Show Jap., very full and double, with forets of medium width, of great length and recurving. In build the flower is a heavy one of massive proportions. The color the deepest velvety crimson reds with golden reverse. One of the cream of the season.

Mrs. Gilbert Drabble.

Those of us who saw the capacity of this giant Jap. last year at the European shows will be interested to know how it behaves itself under American culture. At the Paris Show it was awarded the prize for the finest bloom in the show. In London it also made a remarkable impression. On the front cover of the last issue of La Vie a la Campagne, November 1st, there is a fine illustration of the bloom shown at Paris by Mr. T. Stevenson. As the petals hang it is 9½ inches deep by 8½ inches across. What it would be if measured in French fashion, i.e. with the petals stretched out flat it would be difficult to say.

YELLOW MRS. JEROME JONES.

Exhibited at Boston Show by James Nicol. Winner of Gane Memorial Prize.

Queen Mary.

Among the English novelties this is certainly not only a colossal Jap. but a flower of such substance and form as will appeal to the exhibitor all the world over. The petals are rather broad and grooved, slightly incurving and they cause the form of the flower to assume a deep solid compact and globular shape, reminding us in some stages of the old Dragon type. The color is a dead white. It will be a rival to Mrs. Gilbert Drabble if not a companion flower on the show board.

C. HARMAN PAYNE.

AN OMISSION.

In our account of the Cleveland show, last week, page 715, our correspondent failed to make mention of C. H. Totty's exhibits of his sensational new rose, Mrs. Geo. Sawyer. Mr. Totty reminds us that this rose won the class for 25 blooms, the class for 50 blooms and also the Sweepstakes.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW, NEW YORK, 1913.

In addition to the premiums already announced, Chairman C. H. Totty announces the following:

A. Lewisohn of Ardsley, N. Y., offers a silver cup, value $150, for a display of roses in pots, covering 100 sq. ft.; competition open to private estates only.

John T. Pratt, Glen Cove, N. Y., $25 for a display of gardenia plants in pots.

Geo. T. Schuneman, Baldwin, N. Y., $25 for award by the American Sweet Pea Society, in a display class.

Harry Balsley, Detroit, Mich., $25 for award at the discretion of the committee.

Samuel Untermeyer, Yonkers, N. Y., offers $50 for 50 ft. of clematis, and $50 for 50 ft. of gloxinias, arranged for effect.

Elberon Horticultural Society, a silver cup, value $25, to be awarded as desired by the committee.

Chrysanthemum Society of America, $10 for the best specimen plant of marguerite in the show.

Southampton Horticultural Society, $25, or a cup of equal value, to be competed for by private gardeners only.

Tarrytown Horticultural Society, a sterling silver cup for award in the discretion of the committee.

Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society of England, offers its gold, silver gilt, and silver medals, to be awarded at the direction of the American Carnation Society.

Paterson (N. J.) Floricultural Society, a cup, value $20, class to be announced later.

M. C. Ebel of Aphine Mfg. Co., two cups, one $50 and the other $25 in value, for the best table decoration.

Geo. Burnett, a silver cup, value $25, class to be announced later.

C. B. Weathered, a silver cup, value $25, class to be announced later.

The last three above mentioned prizes for competition by amateurs only.

W. T. Carrington, Portchester, N. Y., $100 for the best display of annuals in pots.

Horticultural Club of Boston, $100 for the best miniature landscape garden to be worked out in living trees and shrubs and to occupy a space of 15 x 20 ft.

OUT OF THE GINGER JAR.

On page 740 of HORTICULTURE I find this sentence: "There is nothing that will kill a town quicker than cut-priced florists, because flowers are largely regarded as a luxury and there is no such thing as a cheap luxury." Where did Ralph get that idea? Rushes in Queen Elizabeth's day were a floor luxury, but in this glorious era of the world's history even a day laborer can have carpets—and cheap at that! On the contrary, Ralph, there is most emphatically such a thing as a cheap luxury, and of all the wonderful things we have to be thankful for it is—as our friend Ross says—"beauty and fragrance for little money." No greater crowning glory to the present era of civilization can be cited than its cheap luxuries. For which we all ought to be truly thankful. And not only that, but we ought to be particularly careful, in the interests of our business, to frown on the yawps of the daily press that dilate on the high cost of flowers. That proposition is and long has been an absolute myth. High-grade flowers are cheaper today comparatively speaking, than they ever have been before.

Leaders who have been marked successes in retailing flowers have based their campaigns on the low cost idea. Note for instance, the Century flower stores and the Ross Flower Shops in Philadelphia.

All the reputable trade papers have for twenty years back consistently set their faces against creating public opinion about the high cost of flowers. These notions originated with unthinking retailers and were passed along by the imaginative reporters. But all who took time to think a minute must have seen that it was the worst kind of bad form and bad business.

Of course, the very rich want to pay big money. They always want something abnormal, no matter what the cost, and a wise salesman can easily handle that. But to use that to attract the rank and file who in the long run are the mainstay is like saying to them, "Keep away from us; only millionaires can enter here!"

The worst thing you can do is to talk about high prices for flowers. They never were so cheap in the world's history. One of the glorious privileges about living in 1912 is that we can afford things that only a king could have a hundred years ago. By all means boost the idea among the people that they can have "beauty and fragrance for little money." The man who does that with acumen and good judgment deserves plaudits from all of us and has a right to go around with rings on his fingers and bells on his toes.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

A NOTABLE DECORATION.

One of the most elaborate decorations ever gotten together in this country was put up in the great ball room and foyer of the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston on Wednesday evening, Dec. 4, the occasion being the debut of a society young lady. The scene represented a Roman garden with all the accessories of pergolas, arbors, lattice work, fountains, pools and classic statuary. The artist who conceived and carried out the tremendous undertaking was Mr. James Farquhar and it took an army of lieutenants and helpers to place the thousands upon thousands of plants, forests of ericas and araucarias and ferns; cyclamens and Lorraine begonias in great waves of color, hanging baskets of white Lorraines by the hundred, vines and orchids in exquisite finish all contributed to a most entrancing picture which we hope to be able to show by illustrations in a later issue. The walls were hidden by formal arrangements of tall cedars and yews and the steps to the foyer and around the receiving stand drooped veritable fountains of that most graceful and fragrant of new decorative plants, Buddleia asiatica. It was a centre of interest in itself.

Rudolph Holtzelaw, who has just accepted a position as grower in the Rosebud greenhouses, Newton, Kansas, was formerly with the George M. Kellogg Flower and Plant Co., of Kansas City, Mo.

HORTICULTURAL CLUB'S VISIT TO THOMAS ROLAND.

The Horticultural Club of Boston held its monthly conference at the Parker House on Wednesday evening, Dec. 4. W. J. Stewart entertained the members with a descriptive talk on Bermuda, with observations on its climate, topography, people and plant growth. The guests were E. W. Breed, president of the Worcester County Horticultural Society, George B. Hart of Rochester, N. Y. and George Hampton, Philadelphia, Pa.

In the afternoon preceding the meeting a number of the members visited, on invitation, the establishments of Thomas Roland at Nahant and Revere. The sight that presented itself was one worth going many miles to see. Mr. Roland is recognized as a plant grower who has no superior in this country if anywhere. The visitors had an opportunity to admire the contents of the big acacia house where some thirty species are seen and many specimens are being put into shape to surprise the visitors at the International Flower Show in New York next spring. Pubescens and Bayleyana are the best of all in Mr. Roland's estimation. The Lorraine and cyclamen houses are simply gorgeous. Of the latter, all yearlings, Mr. Roland has been selling finished plants for the past two months and, starting with 16,000 has now only 4000 left. Erica melanthera up to 6 ft. in height, ardisias dracaenas, poinsettias, oranges, crotons, cattleyas, cypripediums and a glorious forest of crimson celosias are among the attractions and "made-up" pans of all these things with ferns were much admired.

At the Revere place another mammoth Lord and Burnham house, 60x525 is now receiving the finishing touches and the soil is all in and ready for the 16,000 tomatoes which are to be the first tenants. The other house of equal size is planted entirely with sweet peas which are already well up on the trellises and beginning to bloom. The heating of this plant is by steam and there is boiler capacity and stock sufficient to provide 750 H. P. The boiler house is of concrete and iron, and the equipment all through is of the best possible character.

Bean Prices.

Beans still remain one of the unsolved mysteries of 1912. It is past the 1st of December and yet we are informed that few if any of the growers have as yet submitted even a preliminary estimate to their customers. This is certainly an extraordinary situation and it is hardly to be wondered at that the customers are becoming somewhat impatient. Quite possibly, and we may say probably, the growers have not sufficient definite information at hand to justify them in making a statement of probable deliveries. Of course time solves all mysteries and doubtless this one will be no exception to the rule if we allow time enough. Some progress has been made, as is evidenced by the prices fixed at the recent meeting of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League in New York. As this meeting virtually fixes the prices for the January or regular annual wholesale price lists, the directors of the League were compelled to take some sort of action, although admitting that the prices were not based on very definite information. It is to be hoped that conditions are not quite as bad as the prices would indicate.

Miscellaneous Staples.

From information we have received, we judge that no very radical changes have been made in the prices named at the October meeting of the League. While they have been carried out more fully, with a few exceptions changes have been slight. Garden peas remain at about the same figures; carrots are lower, and, we judge, no effort was made to fix prices on the named varieties of sweet peas. It is doubtful if even the wholesale houses will be able to offer the named varieties at all, and the mixtures in only limited quantities and at figures that would have seemed high for the fancy named varieties a year or two ago. The shortage in the Southport Globe varieties of onion seed, with the exception of the white, has been fully confirmed during the past two months, and it is exceedingly difficult to procure either the red or the yellow in quantities at any price. Although the values named by the League look high, many are of the opinion that they should have been even higher.

Among the varieties which the past two months have developed that are not procurable are Hamburg and Plain parsley. At least, they are reported as crop failures and we learn are procurable only at retail and in very limited quantities. Among the items on which there has been some advance is corn. We had supposed that there was an abundant crop of corn this year, but have been informed that much of it is soft, and there is considerable risk attending its curing and fitting for seed purposes. This is probably why the Directors of the League thought it advisable to advance prices somewhat.

Garden Pea Percentages.

Within the past two weeks nearly all of the growers of garden peas have announced definitely the percentages they will deliver on contracts, and with very few exceptions these deliveries do not vary widely from their preliminary estimates. A very few items have been reduced and a few have been increased, the net result being a slight average decrease from their early figures. Just at the present time we understand the growers are wrestling with the problem of prices for next year's crop, and we believe the consensus of opinion is that prices should remain about the same as those of a year ago. There may be some slight reductions in a few of the higher priced fancy strains, but there will be little or no change in standard varieties we believe. We have already called attention to the rather singular fact that the heaviest shortages have been in the standard varieties, and especially those used by the canning trades. Whether this was due to the crops or to being rather too closely sold up on the canners' sorts is a question which the growers can better solve than we.

The Seed Importation Act.

The Secretary of Agriculture has designated Tuesday, December 10, 1912, as the date for a hearing on the rules and regulations to be promulgated by him for the enforcement of "An Act To regulate foreign commerce by prohibiting the admission into the United States of certain adulterated grain and seeds unfit for seeding purposes." The hearing will be held at ten o'clock A. M. in the office of the Chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

This act prohibits the importation into the United States of all seed of alfalfa, Canadian bluegrass, Kentucky bluegrass, awnless brome grass, clover, meadow fescue, millet, orchard grass, rape, redtop and timothy when adulterated or when containing more than three per cent. by weight of weed seeds.

It also prohibits the importation of seed of alfalfa and red clover containing more than ninety dodder seeds per pound.

It prohibits the importation of seed of barley, buckwheat, field corn, Kaffir corn, flax, oats, rye, sorghum, and wheat intended for seeding purposes when such seed is adulterated or contains more than three per cent. by weight of weed seeds.

Notes.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Otto Bofinger succeeds J. F. Hickey as manager of the business of the Barteldes Seed Co. here. He was formerly in charge of their house in Lawrence, Kan.

Pensacola, Fla.—W. S. Vincent has established a seed and nursery business here which will be known as the Pensacola Seed & Nursery Co. Their nursery and seed farms are at Cottage Hill.

George B. Woodward has succeeded to the business of William H. Woodward & Son at Latham, N. Y. His father, William H. Woodward, passed away a little over a year ago, and the young man has been conducting the business with marked success. Young Mr. Woodward, we learn, is well acquainted and very popular with the market gardeners of his immediate vicinity where he does an extensive business, and he is also extending his business to central and western New York. He has our best wishes.

well known to all in the trade.

John J. Wunderli of the Alexander
Floral Co., St. Louis County, "eloped" as he says and was married on Wednesday, November 27, at Clayton, to Miss Anna Urban of St. Louis. Mr.
Wunderli is a widower; his children having eloped recently he thought it a joke to do the same.

Invitations have been sent out by the Missouri Botanical Garden for the twenty-third annual Shaw banquet for gardeners, florists and nurserymen to be held at Washington Hotel, St. Louis, on December 13th, at 7 P. M. The principal speaker of the evening will be Richard Vincent, Jr., president of the Society of American Florists, his subject being the London Flower Show.
The Florist Club has been invited to attend and some of the speakers will be selected from this body.

HOUSE OF AMERICA

1129 ARCH STREET - - - PHILADELPHIA, PA.

CHICAGO NOTES.

Phil Eichling is again at his old place with Harry Rowe for the holidays.

J. H. Prost, city forester, is studying school grounds at Boston where he accompanied a delegation of teachers.

Frank Pasternick is now in the employ of Canger & Bergman, Fine Arts Building. He has been for nine years with E. Wienhoeber Co.

Joe Shouten, for seven years with the Geo. Wittbold Co., at Buckingham Place, has accepted a position with the E. Wienhoeber Co., Elm street.

J. K. M. L. Farquhar, president-elect of the S. A. F. and O. H., has been invited to lecture before the Cook County Florists' Association in January.

Conspicuous in the office of the Chicago Carnation Co. is a large silver cup just arrived from St. Paul, a trophy won by "The Herald" at the recent show.

Mr. Canger of Canger & Bergman has blood poisoning in his hand as the result of getting a thorn in his finger. Each week some florist has similar experience with more or less serious results.

All the florists are using the closing days of the chrysanthemum to get up as bright a window as possible. The Kedzie Florists this week surpasses all the rest with a combination of red ruscus and deep yellow chrysanthemums in their large corner window.

J. Mangel has carried his idea of mossing his window still farther and now a succession of irregular shelves are covered and upon them are used potted plants of white orchids with good effect. In the center of the window is a 6 ft. glass holder for corsages.

The first arrivals of mistletoe are well berried. Some Texas shippers are so confident of their stock this year that they are guaranteeing arrival in good shape. Only the first shipments of Christmas trees are here but were just in time to be reshipped to Tennessee.

The first week of the Austin Flower Shop at 5736 Madison street was a successful one and the proprietor, Daniel S. Erickson, is pleased with his venture. Mr. Erickson is the son of a well-known grower and has also had store experience with the North Edgewater Floral Co. He has a fine location in a rapidly growing suburb.

Many florists had an opportunity to dispose of large chrysanthemums and long-stemmed American Beauties, Dec. 2nd, when the 300 newly elected officials took their offices in the court house. A. Lange probably had the lion share and among his orders were an American flag, well executed, and numerous horseshoes, which are ever popular for such occasions.

In the holiday decorations of the large department stores Christmas trees are unusually popular, the festoons of green being almost absent. In Marshall Field's the trees are large and tower above the counters with stately effect far surpassing in beauty the small ones bedecked with red ruscus. Wreaths are getting larger each year and orders for these immense affairs are common.

Much concern was felt here last week over the non-arrival of the Christmas Tree schooner known as the Rouse Simmons whose captain is well-known to the trade here. Capt. Schueneman lost a brother in a similar storm several years ago when bringing a load of Christmas trees into Chicago and it was a great relief when it was learned the present captain had remained in port till after the storm.

On December 2nd one of Chicago's rising young men, Victor Bergman, who entered the employ of Ernst Wrenhoeber, sixteen years ago as delivery boy, took his place as partner in the Michigan avenue store of Canger & Gormley. The new name of the firm will be Canger & Bergman, Mr. Gormley having died three years ago. Mr. Canger moved from the old location on State street a year ago and has one of the handsomest stores in the downtown district, at 412 Michigan avenue.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON

Thanksgiving Day business coupled with the shortening up of the chrysanthemum crop sufficed to clean the benches and put the flower market in a very bullish condition. Prices went up, especially on carnations and the very lively demand from all quarters has sufficed until Thursday to keep prices very stiff. But now a sudden relapse has set in, due in part to the very warm sunny weather and values have taken a sudden and very material drop. Things are exceedingly quiet and a surplus for the coming week is not an improbable outlook.

CHICAGO

Reports of a satisfactory Thanksgiving trade are general and the quality of most of the stock was excellent. So often, before the florists' holidays have growers held back stock till it was worthless that buyers are cautious and first-class stock quite generally sold out. Chrysanthemums, of course, were greatly in demand and many of the fall favorites were disposed of. Roses of all kinds were in good supply. Carnations were scarce as has been the case all the fall. The divine flower has not been at all equal to the demands made upon it and it is a question if the supply of first-class flowers will be sufficient during the entire winter—certainly not before the holidays. Violets are selling better than earlier in the season owing to the cooler weather. Stevia in limited quantities comes in and finds ready sale. Lilies are selling slowly, gardenias the same, but lily of the valley and sweet peas are moving nicely. All kinds of green are to be had and with the quantities of prepared foliage a florist can now make a showy window with no flowers at all.

CINCINNATI

The opening days of this week showed the market to be in a good sound condition. There was an active demand that utilized the supply. The Thanksgiving rush cleaned up everything in sight that was good and left the market at the close of the week in rather too tight a condition. Monday, however, this condition was ameliorated and on Tuesday most everything was easy. The rose supply has increased somewhat and as a result this market is in a fairly easy condition. Beauties, pink roses and Richmonds are at the time of this writing clearing up on sight while the large cut of white enjoys an excellent demand. The carnation cut is still very limited. Chrysanthemums have narrowed down to mostly Chadwick and Nonin. The offerings in both are generally large and of excellent quality. Lilies and callas are proving good property. Single violets are still in limited supply and clean up each day. The doubles are selling well. Lily of the valley, orchids and narcissus enjoy a good call. The stevia market is crowding to a large extent. Green goods business is excellent.

DETROIT

We always have regarded Thanksgiving Day as the barometer for Christmas, and according to this outcome we are sure going to have the best Christmas ever. Social affairs of all kinds are keeping us very busy in the meantime. Stock is good and plentiful with carnations holding back some, mostly because of prevailing diseases, the most suffering variety being Winsor.

NEW YORK

Again, after an excellent period of activity the market has taken a fall and stagnation reigns in the wholesale flower district after a very encouraging week of good prices. American Beauty roses and carnations have felt the rise and the subsequent fall more severely than any other flower, but the slump is felt all through the list and unless a cold wave intervenes it is probable that the present era of reaction may continue up until the Christmas demand begins to make itself felt.

ST. LOUIS

St. Louis had a good Thanksgiving market with plenty of stock in all grades and wholesale prices not any too high. Trading retailers say they never had such good business as this Thanksgiving; everything sold well. Chrysanthemums are now on the down grade. Violets are somewhat scarce. Carnations are coming along fine and a good crop is looked for this month. Roses, too, are quite plentiful in all grades and also sell much better. All other stock in satisfactory supply.

WASHINGTON

The Thanksgiving Day flower business was not as good this year as last. Plenty of sales were made but they did not amount to so much so far as bulk was concerned. The out-of-town shipments were quite heavy, however. Chrysanthemums are rapidly nearing an end and this is causing an advance in both demand and price of all other stock. Heavy calls were last week received for carnations in excess of the supply; pink, light and dark, were exceptionally scarce. American Beauty roses and orchids were also moving well as is lily of the valley. Poinsettias are to be seen but the demand thus far is light. Sweet peas are improving both as to quality and quantity.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

O. A. C. Oehmler had a very attractive window display last week portraying a real Thanksgiving Day scene. It looked as though he had transported bodily a bit of the outside country into busy G. street, for the display consisted of a representation of a rambling vine-covered snake fence against which lay ears of October corn. A good showing was also made of chrysanthemums and roses and the whole was very attractive indeed.

Z. D. Blackistone's window is indeed one of the attractions of Fourteenth street for here each week appear unique displays. The novelty of last week was made by Mr. Walter Hengel and consisted of a framed "fruit picture." This consisted of an ordinary gilt picture frame filled in with various shades of yellow pompons. In the center was a handled basket made of violets, from which protrudes grapes, oranges and a pineapple. Cyripediums are also used in the basket. The frame was entwined with smilax and at the bottom was a bouquet of cattleyas and violets. The picture was on an easel.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

This from a customer who came 1600 miles to Philadelphia, arriving in Philadelphia at 4 A. M. on a Sunday and left at 3 P. M. after selecting an elaborate display from Rice for his big occasion:

November 23, 1912.

Messrs. M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.
Gentlemen: I want to let you know that the wedding was a great success and I am more than obliged to you for getting the wedding outfit to me in such prompt and satisfactory way. You saved my life.

I again thank you.

Yours very truly,

Which shows that when they look to Rice for the phenomenal in prompt delivery and "the goods" they are not disappointed. This house reports the biggest November business in its history.

Visitors: H. C. Van Zandt, Newport News; Charles T. Yancy, South Boston, Virginia; Charles F. Hale, East Orange, N. J.; Mrs. Kleinheins, Easton, Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Henry Eichholz, Waynesboro, Pa.; M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.; P. Joseph Lynch, Newcastle, Ind.

CINCINNATI NOTES.

Albert McCullough has gone to California for a month's stay. He departed last Thursday morning.

All the wholesalers along the street beginning at the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange and including C. E. Critchell, J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., L. H. Rysh, Peter Weiland, P. J. Olinger, E. G. Gillett and Wm. Murphy report a most excellent Thanksgiving Day business.

The attendance at the regular meeting of the Florists' Society consisted only of the regulars; that is, those who rarely miss a meeting. They number about fifteen. It was expected that in view of the importance of the committee reports that were to be given the attendance would be much larger. The entertainment committee's report showed that the banquet, and lecture by President R. Vincent, Jr., on the International Flower Show would undoubtedly be a very successful affair.

Visitors: Mr. Anderson, Dayton, Ohio; Robert Groves, Adams, Mass., and W. E. Hamilton, Greensburg, Ind.

Detroit, Mich.—Conrad J. Schaefer lost his boiler Thanksgiving Day. Fortunately for him we had warm weather since, and now he has a Capital boiler in working order again.

William Dilger surprised the club with a visit, and better still, re-read his paper, "Horticultural Societies and Their Duties Towards Parks and Private Grounds," which paper he wrote for and which was most enthusiastically received by the Horticultural Society of London, Ont., Can.

THE PULVERIZED MANURE CO., - - 31 Union Stock Yards, CHICAGOObituary.*Benjamin Ingin.

Benjamin Ingin, a horticulturist of West Orange, N. J., committed suicide recently. No reason for the act is reported.

William D. Baxter.

William D. Baxter, florist, of Stoneham, Mass., died suddenly of heart failure on November 25, aged 66 years. He was born in New Ashford, Mass. His wife, two sisters and a brother survive him.

George A. Sweet.

George A. Sweet, of the George A. Sweet Co., nurserymen, Dansville, N. Y., died on Nov. 13, aged 68 years. He was born in Danville and had lived there all his life. He leaves a widow, one son and a daughter.

William L. Burgess.

William L. Burgess, a retired nurseryman of Waterbury, Conn., died in Middletown, aged about ninety years. He was born in Litchfield, Conn., and had lived in the vicinity almost all his life. He retired from business two years ago.

John Nicholas.

John Nicholas, retired florist of Westfield, Mass., died from an attack of pneumonia on November 23. He was born in England and had lived in Westfield for nearly twenty-five years. He retired four years ago, the business being taken over by his sons. Besides a widow, he leaves two daughters and three sons.

Isaac Husbands.

On November 23, Isaac Husbands, florist, of Bellevue, Ohio, died at the age of 75 years. He was born in England and came to America when 21 years of age and located in Cleveland, O. A little over fifteen years ago he located in Bellevue, buying the greenhouses of the late Mr. Lunn. One year ago he sold his business to R. C. Arlin. His widow and several children survive him.

Prof. Eben Jenks Loomis.

Prof. Eben Jenks Loomis, astronomer and botanist, died at Amherst, Mass., on December 2, aged 84 years. Professor Loomis was well known to the scientists of the country, particularly in astronomy, and for 34 years he was connected with the Naval Observatory at Washington, a position from which he resigned in 1900.

While a resident of Cambridge, Professor Loomis was a member of the coterie of literary and scientific men which included Agassiz, Asa Gray, Thoreau, Lowell and Longfellow. As a botanist he acquired fame as the discoverer of the "moving fern," Asplenium Trochomanes, which he reported to Darwin.

Leopold Landreth.

Leopold Landreth died at his home in Bristol, Pa., on the 1st inst., in his 68th year. He was a member of the celebrated family of seed growers and merchants of that name, and in his earlier years had charge of the Bloomsdale Seed Farms. When the firm moved its retail seed store to 10th and Market streets, Philadelphia, he took the management of same. On the discontinuance of this and the reorganization of the company Mr. Landreth took charge of the real estate interests of the family and continued in that capacity until his death. He was a well traveled, highly educated and much esteemed gentleman and has left an enviable record behind him.

Joseph McMurray.

Joseph McMurray, one of the oldest of the past generation of Philadelphia florists, died suddenly at his residence, 15th and Master streets, Philadelphia, on the 29th ult., in his 77th year. Mr. McMurray had been established as a florist and gardener at the 15th and Master streets location for upwards of 50 years. While doing a florist business his operations were more extensive in outside gardening and landscaping. He was a native of Scotland and came to this country in early youth. He was a man of the highest integrity and was greatly esteemed by all who knew him. The business will be continued as heretofore by his son, William H. McMurray.

Charles Dingee.

Charles Dingee, founder of the Dingee & Conard Co., passed away at his home in West Grove, Pa., on November 29th. Mr. Dingee was in his 88th year, and had been in active business as head of the company up to his retirement a few years ago. He was a notable man in many ways and had a wide acquaintance among the great men of his heyday—among them Abraham Lincoln, with whom he was on intimate terms, and Horace Greeley. He was a warm friend of Peter Henderson, Patrick Barry and the elder Downing, and was an active participant in the meetings of horticultural societies of their day. He was the pioneer mail-order rose grower, having conceived the idea of sending small plants by mail, which he started in 1872, and achieved a great success in that line. The business, which is at present probably the largest of its kind in the world, was sold to its present management, P. J. Lynch, M. Henry Lynch and James D. Headly, all brothers-in-law, in 1903. Mr. Dingee was retired from business since that time. His second wife survives him.

NEWS NOTES.

Grove City, Pa. — Mrs. J. E. Black has sold her business to Frank S. Smith.

Maitland, Fla. — A florist business has been started here by W. Clare. He will grow Asparagus plumosus principally.

Pomona, Calif. — Five acres of land next to their present property have been purchased by the California Rose Co. This will make twenty-five acres devoted to roses.

HUGO DE VRIES OPPOSES DARWIN THEORY.

In a lecture before the Lowell Institute, Boston, on Nov. 30, Hugo de Vries, a Dutch botanist who has acquired fame by supplementing the theory of natural selection from his own experimental researches on "The Evolution of Plants," said that in the Darwinian theory it is assumed that the variations selected for survival in the struggle for existence are too minute from plant to plant to be perceived until after a considerable lapse of time. Mr. de Vries maintained, on the contrary, that plants may change their character suddenly and by leaps—the so-called "saltatory" or "Kaleidoscopic" variations—making it possible for the experimenter to observe the transition from one form to another in his own garden. With the aid of stereopticon pictures he showed several examples of his success in producing new varieties of plants without the connecting link of transitional forms.

UTILIZING THE CITY PARKS.

Secretary J. J. Levison, secretary-treasurer of the American Association of Park Superintendents, who is also Forester of Prospect Park, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes as follows:

The secretary is confronted with several requests for information relative to methods of park utilization. Many cities have devised unique methods of fostering popular appreciation of trees in parks. The Boston Park Department, for instance, is using its automobile trucks on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays for the purpose of taking the people around the parks at a reasonable charge. Rochester has instigated periodic celebrations or carnivals in one of its large parks. In Brooklyn we have labelled the trees, issued "guides to the trees" and organized tree clubs among the school children. Other cities have probably done better and we all want to know it.

Mr. Levison suggests that it would therefore be of mutual interest to compare replies from different cities and see by what means their parks are brought in closest touch with the people and thus used to the greatest advantage, and asks that anyone interested will kindly write to him and state what his city is doing towards this end.

ABOUT GARDENING PERIODICALS.

Referring to the recent demise of a magazine devoted to flowers, HORTICULTURE is of the opinion that the general public has been having a surfeit of garden and country life literature and observes that "what is needed now, is not more journals but better ones and a public tuned up to appreciate them." There is much sound sense in this conclusion. Most of the periodicals devoted to gardening have got into such a rut that one can safely say in advance what the next number will contain. In September and October the contents will run largely to bulbs. In February and March to hotbeds and seed sowing, in later months to annuals and bedding plants. This would all be well enough if any effort was made to vary the matter relating to these subjects but the same old tulips and hyacinths and narcissi form the subject of the theme in autumn, while the education of the festive cabbage, the toothsome radish and the succulent potato is certain to have the front pages and top of column as regularly as the spring comes round. It is hard to decide whether this is the fault of the publisher or of his circle of readers. One may, indeed, question whether a magazine devoted to the unusual flowers and vegetables would be as successful as one that constantly harps on the way to cultivate the commoner ones. Certainly the general public rarely has a taste for anything out of the ordinary in gardening. Its predilections run largely to lilacs, "syringas," bridal wreath and roses in the line of shrubs, and peonies, bleeding hearts, phlox, and the common day lily among perennials. Seldom does it get beyond the common annuals—morning glories, asters, pansies and petunias. Here and there on large estates where the planting has been done by the landscape gardener we find the rarer shrubs and other perennials, but elsewhere the nature of the planting indicates that we are still far from ideal conditions. The great mass of the people still need to be shown that there are better and more beautiful plants than the few with which they are familiar. They need to know that there is more than one iris or day lily, that the Canterbury bells have finer and more permanent relatives, that in general perennials are far superior to annuals and so on. But how are they going to find out these things if the gardening magazines persistently stick to their tulips and cabbages? —The American Botanist.

There were two reasons for so locating it—either one of which is reason enough.

First: Limit of ground space—

Second: The desire of the owner to have his

CHRISTMAS CRAIG QUALITY STOCK

Known all over the country and in greater demand each year. Having increased our glass area over 100,000 square feet, we are in a position to meet our fast increasing business. Our stock for the holidays is superior in quality to any we have ever grown, notwithstanding the high standard we have maintained for years. You are cordially invited to call and inspect our stock, which includes the following in the sizes herein listed.

CYCLAMEN. This has been one of our specialties for over twenty years. This year we grew upward of fifty thousand plants. Sure to be a money maker for anyone buying now. Plants in all sizes exceptionally well flowered.

4-in. pots, $25 and $35 per 100.

5-in. pots, $6, $9 and $12 per doz.

6-in. pots, $12, $15, $18 and $24 per doz.

7-in. pots, 22 in. to 24 in. in diameter, $2 and $2.50 each.

POINSETTIAS. We grow none of the pink variety, all of our stock being of the selected, bright red sort; the bracts are unusually large in all the sizes.

3-in. pots, $15 per 100.

4-in. pots, $25 per 100.

4-in. pots, branch, $5 per doz.

5-in. pots, heavy, $50 per 100.

7-in. pans, 3 plants with ferns, $15 per doz.

8-in. pans, 3 plants with ferns, $18 per doz.

8-in. low pans, 5 plants with ferns, $15 per doz.

9-in. pans, 3 plants with ferns, $24 per doz.

DOUBLE POINSETTIAS.

3-in. pots, heavy, $20 per 100.

CUT POINSETTIAS. Single and double, very large flowers, $3 and $4 a doz.

BEGONIA GLOIRE DE LORRAINE. The largest and finest stock of this beautiful Christmas plant in the country. The plants have been grown cool and are sure to give satisfaction.

3-in. pots, $3 per doz., $20 per 100.

4-in. pots, $35 per 100.

5-in. pots, $7.50 per doz., $50 per 100.

5-in. pots, heavy, $9 per doz.

6-in. pots, very heavy, $12 and $15 per doz.

7-in. pots, very heavy, $18 per doz.

8-in. pots, very heavy, $24, $30 and $36 per doz.

BEGONIA LONSDALE. We have a large stock of this light sport at the same prices as quoted above for Begonia Gloire de Lorraine. This variety is considered far superior to the original type, making a finer shaped plant, and holding the flowers much better. The color is a little lighter than the original Lorraine.

BEGONIA GLORY OF CINCINNATI. This variety is endorsed by all the leading retail florists and will in time displace Begonia Gloire de Lorraine.

3½-in. pots, $35 per 100.

6-in. pots, $1.25 each.

7-in. pots, $1.50 each.

8-in. pots, $2.50 each.

NEW BEGONIA NORWOOD. This is a dark pink sport of Begonia Lonsdale and is, without doubt, the best keeping Begonia in existence. It bloomed as early as November 1st last year and still retained its original flowers until April 1st.

3-in. pots, $25 per 100.

4-in. pots, $5 per doz., $35 per 100.

5-in. pots, $9 per doz., $70 per 100.

AZALEAS. Madame Petrick, Vervaeana and Vervaeana Alba.

5½-in. pots

6-in. pots $12, $15 and $18 per doz.

7-in. pots

GARDENIA VEITCHII. These are very strong plants and will make grand stock for winter blooming.

2½-in. pots, heavy, January delivery, $8 per 100, $75 per 1000.

4-in. pots, heavy, $20 per 100, $180 per 1000.

6-in. pots, heavy, $50 per 100.

6-in. pots, heavy, in bud, will flower for Christmas, $12, $15 and $18 per doz.

CROTONS. We have the largest and most complete collection of Crotons in the world, of the very highest quality and brilliantly colored; fine for Christmas baskets.

3-in. pots, $25 per 100.

4-in. pots, $30 and $35 per 100.

Fred Sander. Beautifully colored

3-in. pots, $25 per 100.

4-in. pots, $35 per 100.

Punctata. Heavy

3-in. pots, $15 per 100; 4-in. pots, $30 per 100.

Assorted varieties

5-in. pots, $6, $9 and $12 per doz.

If unable to call, you may send us your order, large or small, with every confidence that it will have our best attention

Plant Combinations

We take pleasure in calling the attention of the trade to our Plant Combinations for Christmas sales. These are better than any heretofore offered. This year the same idea of filling them early in order to thoroughly establish them has again been carried out; but instead of using tubs or the ordinary clumsy receptacle, we have had made artistic baskets, etc. These are well made boxes covered with birch bark and rattan. The baskets we have in three sizes, 8, 10 and 12 inches, and a special indoor window box, 18 inches long, 6 inches deep and 6 inches wide. In filling these the styles are varied in order to give variety, and nothing but high class plants are used in the filling, such as Crotons, Pandanus, Dracaenas in variety, Ferns, etc. We assure you much time and thought have been spent to have them thoroughly durable and artistically correct.

Window Box. 18 in. long, 6 in. wide, 6 in. deep. Each $3.00 and $3.50.

Plant Basket. 8 in. long, 8 in. wide, 7 in. deep. Each $2.50.

Plant Basket. 10 in. long, 10 in. wide, 8 in. deep. Each $3.00 and $3.50.

Plant Basket. 12 in. long, 12 in. wide, 10 in. deep. Each $5.00.

(Baskets supplied by H. Bayersdorfer & Co.)

6-in. pots, $1, $1.25 and $1.50 each.

8-in. Azalea pots, made up plants, handsome specimens, $2, $2.50 and $3 each.

Larger plants, $4, $5, $6 and $7.50 each.

We are also offering our wonderful collection of Seedling Crotons in over one hundred and fifty (150) varieties. These varieties have taken first prize wherever shown 4-in. pots, strong plants, $3 each, $30 per doz., $200 per 100.

5-in. and 5½-in. pots, strong plants, $5 each, $50 per doz., $300 per 100.

DRACAENAS

There is no variety of foliage plant as attractive as the highly colored Dracaenas. The small and medium sizes can be used to great advantage in making up the popular Christmas baskets, while the large specimens have always been in great demand for decorative purposes. We are now growing more Dracaenas, in greater variety, than any firm in this country.

DRACAENA MASSANGIANA. The variety with the golden stripe down the center of the leaf. We have an exceptionally large stock, well colored, and of the very highest quality.

6-in. pots, $15 and $18 per doz.

8-in. pots, $2 and $2.50 each.

DRACAENA FRAGRANS.

6-in. pots, $6 and $9 per doz.

9-in. pots, very heavy, $24 per doz.

8-in. tubs, $18 per doz.

DRACAENA LORD WOLSELEY. One of the very best varieties for Christmas, being bright red in color.

2-in. pots, $12 per 100.

3-in. pots, heavy, $25 per 100.

4-in. pots, heavy, $35 per 100.

5-in. pots, heavy, $50 per 100.

5-in. pots, very heavy, $9 and $12 per doz.

DRACAENA TERMINALIS. Exceptionally well colored.

2½-in. pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1000.

3-in. pots, $20 per 100.

4-in. pots, strong plants, $30 & $35 per 100.

6-in. pots, extra strong, $12 & $15 per doz.

DRACAENA GODSEFFIANA. Fine for baskets.

3-in. pots, $15 per 100.

4-in. pots, $25 per 100.

DRACAENA MANDALANA. Large leaf, beautifully colored bright red.

6-in. pots, $15 and $18 per doz.

7-in. pots, $18 and $24 per doz.

8-in. pots, $2.50 and $3 each.

DRACAENA DE SMETIANA. This is one of the most desirable of the broad leaf varieties, a strong vigorous grower, with bold, dark green foliage which becomes beautifully suffused and variegated. Our stock is exceptionally fine for Christmas.

7-in. and 8-in. pots, $2, $2.50, $3 and $3.50 each.

DRACAENA BRONZE BEAUTY. This variety was offered three years ago with Dracaena Mandalana by the introducer, Wm. A. Manda, and is the strongest growing Dracaena we have. We offer splendid specimens.

8-in., 9-in. and 10-in. pots, $3, $3.50, $5 and $6 each.

PHOENIX Roebeleanii. This is unquestionably one of the great palms of the future, combining the grace of a Cocos Weddelliana with the hardness of a Kentia. Our stock in the following sizes is unusually fine.

6-in. pots, $1.25 each.

10-in. and 12-in. tubs, specimen plants, $5, $6, $7.50, $10, and $12.50 each.

PANDANUS Veitchii. Well colored plants.

2½-in. and 3-in. pots, $30 per 100.

4-in. pots, $6 per doz., $45 per 100.

5-in. pots, $9 per doz., $70 per 100.

6-in. pots, $12 per doz., $90 per 100.

7-in. pots, $15 and $18 per doz.

8-in. pots, $24 and $30 per doz.

Large specimen plants, fine for decorating, $3.50, $4 and $5 each.

ARAUCARIA Excelsa. 5-in. pots, 4 and 5 tiers, $9 per doz., $70 per 100.

BOXWOOD. Just arrived.

Bush form, 35c. and 75c. each.

Ball shape, perfect globes, $1.50, $2 and $2.50 each.

Heavy Bush form, $1.00.

Pyramid, $3, $3.50, $4 and $5 each.

ABIES Nordmanniana. 75c., $1 and $1.25 each. In tubs, very large, $2.50 each.

ARECA Lutescens. Perfect plants with rich, dark green foliage.

6-in. pots, 3 plants, 24-in. to 28-in. tall, $9 and $12 per doz.

8-in. pots, 3 plants, 36 in. to 42-in. tall, $24 and $30 per doz.

FICUS Pandurata. The plant of the century. Positively the best house and porch plant to date. Our stock of this wonderful plant this year is finer than we have heretofore offered.

6-in. pots, 2 ft. tall, $1.50 each.

6-in. pots, 2½ ft. tall, $2 each.

7-in. pots, 3 ft. tall, $2.50 each.

8-in. pots, 4 ft. tall, $3 each.

EVERY florist store is as incomplete without lilies as a grocery store would be without coffee. Horseshoe Brand Cold Storage Giganteum will force comparatively easy in from 12 to 14 weeks, and no good excuse can be given for not having lilies. Some of your customers will surely want them sooner or later, and if you don't have what they want they will go elsewhere the next time to get it. And could you have any flowers in your store more useful than good, pure, white lilies? Is there any thing better for funeral designs? Won't they go further in making up than most any other flowers? And for weddings—are there any flowers more appropriate than lilies? Then for general all around purposes, isn't it good policy to have lilies on hand at all times? There's another thing about Cold Storage lilies that's often lost sight of, and that is you always know well in advance just about what time your crop will be in flower. Good lilies will keep for several weeks, too, and it is not necessary to use them all up at once. All the above applies to good lilies—they must be of good quality to be money-makers for you. There is a difference in bulbs just as there is in nearly all products of the earth. This difference is just what prompts this advertisement—and if you don't buy Horseshoe Brand Cold Storage Giganteum, we both lose—we lose a certain margin of profit and you lose a certain margin of flowers. Don't wait—send now for the Horseshoe Brand Planting Table for Cold Storage bulbs. The prices are all the same—no favorites. Full instructions given for forcing.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Christmas Azaleas

Azaleas should be out enough in bloom by this date to allow the plants to be hardened off some. It will require at least five or six days in a lower temperature to bring them into anything like proper condition to stand the store or house. To harden them off they should not be kept any warmer than 55 degrees at night and 50 degrees would still be better. Give ventilation whenever possible, but be careful not to admit cold draughts or you will experience trouble in having the flowers wilt. See that these plants are not overlooked as to proper watering whenever they need it, and space them far enough apart so the light and air will have a chance to circulate through them. Where they are full out and there are a good many bright days they keep in better shape by having a shady place to stand in. Go over the pots and see that they are clean, bright, and attractive looking to the eye.

Poinsettias

Christmas is the season for the popular poinsettia and the coming holiday will see an enormous increase in the number used. Those not yet well developed in their bracts should be given a high temperature of anywhere from 65 to 70 degrees at night, with an increase of from 15 to 20 degrees during bright weather. Stock fully developed will be better for having the temperature lowered to about 55 degrees four or five days before they are wanted as it will help them to harden up into better shape. Poinsettias in pans or pots should neither be overwatered or allowed to become dry at the roots as either extreme will cause the foliage to turn yellow. To have cut poinsettias in perfect condition they should have the ends cauterized by being dipped in boiling water for about twenty seconds—this will prevent their wilting—and then place the stems half way in water. The best temperature to keep the bracts in after they are cut is from 45 to 48 degrees, leaving them here from 12 to 18 hours which will put them into fine shape to stand up for holiday use.

"Made-Up" Plants

This is a noteworthy feature of the Christmas trade and seen in all conceivable forms and styles of combinations. Now is the time to get busy on these pleasing arrangements of flowering and foliage plants in pans, baskets, hampers, jardinières, dishes of fanciful design, and other receptacles of various descriptions. Before commencing see that the stock you are about to use is given a thorough watering or dipping. All these plants are usually firmly root-bound and should never be made up when the least bit dry. When making up lily of the valley, Roman hyacinths or other bulbous stock they should be placed as closely as it is possible to place them, but of course all this work should be done under a guidance of sense for beauty, symmetry and pleasing outlines. Well-flowered plants of Begonia de Lorraine, cyclamen, primula, etc., that are bushy and well-spread will produce a fine effect when intermixed with some foliage plants of varying kinds. It always pays to strive for light, airy, dainty and graceful effect.

Flowering Plants for Christmas

With Christmas only about ten days away much can be accomplished in properly preparing your stock for the occasion. All plants that are a little behind, but justify a hope that they can be brought in on time will stand a week of hard forcing. All such plants as lilies, Roman hyacinths, narcissi, lily of the valley, Lorraine begonias, callas, cyclamen, etc., will stand and willingly respond to extreme measures in forcing in on time. Give all flowering plants that show proper expansion of bloom cooler quarters, not necessarily well-lighted. When treated this way they will finish up into fine shape and will handle better in every respect than if kept in strong heat up to the last. From this out you will need to exercise continued watchfulness. With the increased fire heat and sudden bursts of bright sunshine now and then pot plants will want watering at the roots. Ventilate freely on all suitable occasions, but beware of cold piercing air striking your flowering plants as it will prove a quick despoiler of their beauty.

Keeping Christmas Greens

With many florists Christmas greens are a leading feature of the holiday trade. To have wreaths and wreathing ready and in sufficient quantity for Christmas will require some care and management. All Christmas greens, whether made up or not, should not be exposed to severe weather or drying influence. Made-up work or cases should be stored in some cool shed away from either heat or dryness as they soon begin to shrivel if not placed under proper conditions. There is no better place for wreaths than on the floor of a cool moist cellar. They can be made up a week ahead of time and placed upon some papers so as to keep them clean. Where the cellar is not perfectly dark place some papers over the wreaths as light always injures them. For Christmas trees the best place is on the north side of some building where the sun will not strike them.

Freesias for Easter

Now is a good time to plant a batch of freesias for Easter. These bulbs like a good rich soil, so give them three parts of fibrous loam to one part of cow or sheep manure. It is a good plan to place from 15 to 18 bulbs in a 6-inch pan. After they are planted they can be placed in a house that runs anywhere from 45 to 50 degrees at night. Do not water too heavy until they have become well-rooted, when they will take plenty of it. When they start to come up give a well-lighted bench well up to the glass and a temperature from 50 to 55 degrees at night and they should come along in good shape for Easter.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Azalea Mollis; Dutch Hyacinths; Dendrobiums; Lilies for Easter; The Propagating Bench; Petunias.

Perennial Scabiosas

The annual scabiosa or Mourning Bride, especially its new improved large-flowering strain, has during recent years gained full recognition as an excellent plant material for mixed border planting and for the formal flower garden. Great variety in shades and tints and a remarkable floral productiveness are chiefly responsible for their general popularity among garden owners.

That the hardy perennial sorts of scabiosas seem to enjoy less of this popularity is by no means because of lack of merit of this class. The flowering period of the Blue Bonnets, the common name for Scabiosa japonica, S. caucasica and as latest improvement, the large and beautifully frilled Scabiosa caucasica perfecta, extends away beyond that of the annuals. The noble size and form of the individual flower of the blue bonnet is captivating at a glance. The wonderful soft clear azure blue of the petals surrounding the yellowish green center is another feature forcefully impressive. The stems are long, stiff and very substantial and the flowers in a cut state show admirable lasting quality. It is therefore not in the least surprising that they are at present very highly treasured by European designers, who class the blooms of Scabiosa caucasica perfecta among the choicest material for genuine artistic work. For them the exquisite shade combining purity and rare delicacy decides the issue. It is a color very beautiful by itself and of wonderful effect when blended with pure white. During the last two seasons I availed myself of the opportunity of introducing Scabiosa caucasica perfecta to the society ladies of northern summer resorts, with whom their flowers, from the very start, became outspoken favorites.

Perennial scabiosas can be easily raised from seed, which can be sown in May in cold frames, or early in January or February in light sandy soil under glass. Indoor, a temperature from 50 to 60 degrees, pure air and free exposure to sunlight are necessities. The seed equals in size that of centaureas. For those of my readers desiring to sow I advise to order at least one ounce to start with. When planting out in the open ground I always took care to give the soil surface around the young plants a light mulching of clean short lawn clippings. This mulch protects the tender roots from being injured by excessive sunheat and helps to retain an even moisture in the ground, until the plants have become large enough to shade themselves. Perennial scabiosas, when used in the garden, should be planted not further apart than 10 inches and in sufficient numbers together to give from the very start the desirable effect; from 25 to 50 being the minimum for this purpose. Late in the fall I cut part of the tops down and protect the remaining plants with a layer of leaves covered over with brush.

Fertilizers for Flowers

Chrysanthemums

The science and practice of manuring is a subject that means a great deal to the florist in these days of keen competition, for the art of feeding plants accurately is one that requires sound judgment. If on the one hand the plants are over-fed it may lead to serious results while if they do not receive the necessary stimulant they require they will not produce blooms to perfection. One mistake that is often made with regard to feeding chrysanthemums is neglecting the plants in the early stages of growth and trying to make up for arrears by over-feeding at the finish; such work is always disappointing. After the cuttings are well-rooted they should be repotted into 5-inch pots in the following compost. Six parts of maiden loam, one part of decayed manure; after this has been sifted add 1 lb. of fine bone meal and 1 lb. of soot to every barrow load.

Values of potash is that it makes plants resistant to fungoid diseases, thus being useful in checking rust, it is also useful in dry seasons for it delays maturity. During the growing season a sprinkling of lime over the surface of each pot will prove beneficial. Superphosphate is also useful but must be used in rather small quantities, say $\frac{1}{4}$ oz. per 8-inch pot and three times its bulk of soil should be mixed with it. This is an excellent thing for checking the growth of foliage and to improve the color of the blooms. Where it is desired to grow large blooms the plants should be well fed once a fortnight with guano or fish manure at the rate of 2 oz. per square yard and for a liquid manure if the plants are watered with nitrate of potash and phosphate $\frac{1}{2}$ oz. of each to 1 gallon of water, they should produce excellent blooms.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

The Christmas Crop

All buds that are to be in for the Christmas holidays will have to be a fairly good size by this time. The houses should receive the very best of care, and do not raise the temperature at night by any means. We find there is nothing in trying to force the buds to open, as all that is gained in this way is lost again later on, and more too, for the increased temperature will have a none too good effect on all the shorter growth. This is especially true of American Beauties and many failures may result because of this course.

Sometimes a fine house of Killarneys could be in for Christmas by lowering the temperature a little. Where all the plants are to come into crop at once this can be done, as little harm will result. Of course it must not be carried too far—never allowing the thermometer to register below 56 degrees F. This will bring the crop in a few days later and at the same time will not hurt the plants in any way. After the crop is cut off, bring the house around to the regular night temperature.

The New Roses

Some of the new roses about to be disseminated by some of our leading growers, are certainly fine in growth and in resisting diseases. A good way to judge these roses is to see them in the market as well as in the green-houses. Some varieties are excellent keepers, will stand handling well and, to say the least, are a great improvement over some of the older varieties. We think it would be time well spent for all growers to carefully investigate and compare the new roses with the varieties they are growing at present.

Propagating

The season will soon be here—much sooner no doubt than many of us would wish it to be. But it being unavoidable we might as well take it as it comes. Are you prepared? Is your soil protected? Have you a good supply of sand on hand? These are three very important questions, and we cannot feel sorry for the man who just simply will not put up any soil or who will not spend a cent to protect his sand and things. "Penny wise yet pound foolish" would well apply to such growers, who figure it is too much expense to buy leaves or manure to cover the soil heaps and then have men waste hours of valuable time with picks to break up the frozen mass and cart it into the potting shed to thaw. Such soil is never as good as soil that remains loose and friable quite some time before it is used. It is expensive business, to say the least, to neglect the soil to this extent. If you figure time and energy thus wasted you will find it costs twice as much more as proper protection for your soil and manure would cost.

Syringing in Winter

As we all know, the plants do not dry off as rapidly in the winter as during the summer months, and artificial heat must be resorted to, to dry them off. In these cases do not be afraid to put on a little air to liberate some of the dampness. Do not carry this to any extremes by any means, but do it in moderation, even though it does take a shovelful of coal which otherwise would remain in the coal bin.

After a good syringing, do not forget to give the plants a thorough shaking. Be sure to do this right after syringing so that the plants have a good chance to dry off before night. We always aim to have the plants quite dry before noon, seldom doing any syringing after eleven o'clock. As we have recommended again and again, do not neglect to blow plenty of air-slacked lime underneath the plants to dry out the air a little bit. It is really surprising what a difference this little lime will make. To prove the moisture-absorbing qualities of lime you have only to put some that is perfectly dry into a place where the air is more or less damp. You will quickly see the difference, for the lime will not remain dry for any length of time. This goes to show the importance of always using fresh lime and not lime that has been lying around cellars for ages.

The Cold Snaps

In our vicinity the weather has been unseasonably warm, outside of a young blizzard on Thanksgiving. This will not keep up forever, and woe unto the man who is caught napping with his coal bin empty. We always try to fill our coal bin the latter part of July and are then sure of having plenty when we need it. The coal men also forget that there is a shortage of cars, or that they cannot get good help, and will sometimes be in a little different mood than they are when Jack Frost starts blowing his cold breath into their faces, so consequently their prices may be a wee bit lower. At any rate it is well to lay in your supply early, not waiting for a drop in prices. It usually goes the other way. It is only the prices of cut roses that come down.

Publicity among the kind of readers reached by this paper is THE SORT OF PUBLICITY THAT PAYS.

Construction of a Modern (Very Modern) Vinery Border

Men have been constructing vine borders for several hundred years in one way or another and in glass houses for a century at least. Up till comparatively recent times these borders were outside altogether or both outside and inside; they were sometimes six feet deep and fertilized by quantities of whole bones and frequently by whole carcasses. This kind of vinery border is admittedly a thing of the past, gone never to return.

There are still some good growers who believe in the outside and inside border and no one will deny that where local conditions happen to be suitable, splendid fruits have been produced under these conditions. However, the modern idea of the construction of vine borders is fairly well known to all horticulturists and has been frequently written upon in HORTICULTURE, but the idea which I wish to expound is something different in detail and, to the best of my knowledge, new.

This will be best understood by referring to the accompanying plan which shows at the top a section of the border and beneath a section through the planks of con-thoroughly, soaking every inch of soil in the border (so many grapevines fail to do their maximum through insufficient watering) and no one will question the desirability of getting the liquid manure on the border in some other way than the customary one.

It is not necessary to fill the border for watering purposes more than a few inches up from the bottom of the soil as capilarity will do the rest providing the water is left in for an hour or so. To ascertain the amount of water in the border, set up a two-inch iron pipe over one of the joints of the planks and reaching above the top of the soil; then with a stick it can easily be measured. A carpenter or handy man should have no difficulty in making a few moulds for the planks which form the bottom and they should be one inch wider at the top than at the bottom and spaced as shown in plan, which will ensure perfect drainage (which also means perfect aeration) and any particles of soil which should get in between the planks will drop clear to the floor to be subsequently carried away through the drainage outlet.

Instead of occupying the whole floor space of the vinery, as is usually the case with the border, we make it, at most, six feet wide and any depth from thirty to sixty inches although the writer thinks about three ft. is the preferable depth and will give 90 cubic feet of soil to each vine if they are spaced five feet apart. The first year the vines are planted, from six to eight inches of soil will be ample and if the plants do well they will fill this quantity of soil full of roots. The second year another six inches may be added and so on till the border is full. There is no need of being afraid of filling up around the stem of the vine, as, done gradually, like this, it will root all the way up.

A few suggestions to those who make a Very Modern vine border. Don't use anything but the concrete planks in the bottom, as there is nothing else suitable.

Cover the ends of the outlet pipes with some small meshed galvanized wire to prevent vermin going in and being a nuisance.

Remember that this border will dry out rapidly and therefore should be carefully watched in that respect.

Don't think that because this is not the kind of border they had where you served your apprenticeship it is no good; rather submit it to reason and weigh up its good or bad points against the ordinary border.

crete of which the bottom is made. A section lengthwise of this border would show the pitch of one-eighth of an inch to the foot of the floor of the open drainage space, which would give about six inches in fifty feet, but it would be better in all cases where conditions would allow to pitch it both ways from the centre. The outlet should be a short piece of two-inch galvanized iron pipe with a valve on the outside and to take full advantage of this style of construction a pipe of any convenient size should be connected to this open drainage space from the water supply and of course valved on the outside and to make it still more complete a separate pipe should be laid on for liquid manure, the purpose of these pipes being sub-irrigation, not that we think water applied by sub-irrigation has any peculiar virtues of its own, but rather that it is a great time-saver and does its work so

Building Up a Vine

Exactly how long we shall have to wait before we can see the grapes hanging from all the wires is a question often put to the grower. "Why can't we have grapes right away the first year after planting, and why are only a few bunches grown instead of covering the whole thing with fruits?" "Why was so much of the vine cut away at the time of pruning?" Who has not heard one or all of these questions, the answer to which may be found in the head-line? It is possible to cover all the wires with fruit the second season and perhaps a third. It is during the succeeding years the trouble will be encountered probably in the form of shanking.

Overcropping a young vine is a big mistake, it saps all the vitality for years and some do not get over it at all. Another thing is the desire of some to run the vines up quickly, filling the house in a couple of seasons; this, too, is a detriment to the constitution of the vine. What is needed is a steady advance—each year seeing an addition both of vine and number of bunches. After planting the vine should be reduced to two eyes and the first year given up to laying the foundation of a good root action. This is promoted by encouraging top growth. After a distance of four or five feet has been covered by the single rod it can be pinched (or stopped) and allowed to break into two or three growths—enough to fill all the wires. In this way a large breathing surface is secured. Leaving two eyes when pruning after planting is only a safeguard in the event of one being rubbed out or broken off. One is sufficient to take up; the other must either be stopped at three or four leaves or rubbed out. Permitting the growing one to continue until four or five feet have been covered is to make the first portion of the rod. This comes into notice at the end of the season and we are confronted with the question of how much vine to leave. Four feet should be the limit the first year and about three feet in succeeding years. In this way the vine is built up gradually; additional number of bunches are produced annually and the vine is benefited by the slight extension of the rod annually until the limit is reached. The extension system as practised in some places is not to be generally recommended. It is a pleasing sight, however, to see a whole house filled with one vine and carrying a full crop.

Pot Vines

Pot-vines started the middle of November should have the night temperature raised to 50 degrees F for a few weeks and as the first leaf expands 55 F must be a minimum. At such times the night temperature indicator should read 55 to 60 F. This advancing of temperature plays an important part in the production of fruit at all times, more especially the earliest houses. Conditions being different at different establishments makes it hard to define an "exact" for all. Although it makes it easier for the night fireman to have the required temperature marked down he should thoroughly understand that in severe weather a drop of 5 degrees is preferable to excessive fire heat in all houses treated in this column.

Pruning Peach Trees

At the time of making some notes on disbudding trees growing on the trellis I mentioned the advisability of removing those on the underside, as it simplified pruning later on. Anyone who has practised both in the endeavor to prove which is the best, will, I feel sure, agree with me that trees having growths left on both sides of the shoots are much more difficult to prune, and make a poorer looking tree than those which have growths left on the top side only. When pruning trees growing on the former method one often finds vacant V shaped spaces to be filled in when tying. The first consideration is to keep the bottom of the tree filled with good wood. This is sometimes overlooked. The top and center will always fill up, the latter often too much so, making it necessary to remove some good fruiting wood. As the bottom ought to be kept well furnished so ought the center to be kept open to make room for young growths. Having all the fruiting wood on the top side, it is an easy matter to cut away the old underneath wood and draw its successors down. All pruning should be done before the trees are cut away, then a good idea can be gained of what is required to "fill the bill" next year. There may be times when good wood has to be cut away, yet it is better to do so than have a tree overcrowded. Where it is possible the same man should prune the trees that disbudded them. Some growths will have to run a little close but the majority should be four inches apart. Use a sharp knife and always make a clean cut. Young trees will need very careful pruning, as their future depends on it. Trees planted this time will need little pruning. It is a mistake to prune them hard back, as it only induces strong heavy wood.

Order Seeds

Get your order in for vegetable seeds for the coming year, without delay. Nothing is gained by leaving it until a few days before something is needed. Soon after receiving the 1913 catalogs the list should be compiled and sent in. This not only gives the stores a better chance but you are sure of your seeds on time. If you do not want them around so soon give a date for delivery. Do it now by drawing up your lists and save the wait later on. Novelties should always be tried, but do not put in a main crop of some novelty you have not tried before, however good it seems to be, for it may not suit your locality.

A Correction

Through an oversight in copying, a little error crept into my notes on Strawberries in last week's issue, viz.: Have the pots washed clean "soon after the leaves appear" should read "soon after being removed from the leaves they were plunged in."

After eight years

In presenting our readers with our eighth anniversary number we look back over the years that have passed since HORTICULTURE was born, with feelings of the most pleasurable character as we call to mind the fears and uncertainties that obtruded upon our hopes in those infancy days as we tried to peer into the unknown and trace out what might happen to us. Eight years is a much longer time when one looks forward to it than it appears in retrospect. Looking back now the difficulties that are inseparable from every enterprise and of which we had our fair share, have lost their terrors. We recall nothing that invites regrets but much that inspires gratitude, particularly to the thousands of new and old friends who have stood by HORTICULTURE, overlooking its short-comings, extending substantial encouragement and according it an exalted position among horticultural periodicals. To these tried friends and to the many more who will join the ever-increasing family we hold out our promise of untiring effort on our part during the coming year to make HORTICULTURE increasingly helpful and acceptable to all those whose avocation is the "art which doth mend Nature."

A recognition and a moral

The award of the George Robert White medal of honor to M. H. Walsh which is announced in our news columns this week makes very pleasant reading. We have known Mr. Walsh personally for "nigh on to forty years." Quiet and unobtrusive, with no pretensions beyond the sphere of a working gardener, Mr. Walsh has toiled along through all these years and done his great work patiently without presumption or ostentation. And yet the man who gave Lady Gay, Hiawatha and Wedding Bells to the world has a good right to feel proud of what he has accomplished and has well won the distinguished honor now conferred upon him—an honor that neither wealth nor social position nor self-exaltation or flourish of trumpets, but merit alone can win. Contrast it all with the self-laudation, vain conceit and arrogant claims made by those who seek to fill the paper with manufactured plaudits and their pockets with the proceeds therefrom. This action by the White medal trustees places a new stamp of nobility on the real gardener and will be interpreted the world over as a wholesome rebuke to the mountebank.

"All for each,
and each for all"

The publicity campaign for developing greater public appreciation of our floral products which has been inaugurated in a practical manner by the New York Florists' Club can only accomplish its purpose by the hearty co-operation of the trade and the trade organizations throughout the entire country. To be successful it must be one grand push, all together. Ambitious phrases about advancing horticulture and uplifting things generally are apt to roll off our tongues or our pens in a generalizing sort of way that does not always indicate any very deep reflection as to their meaning, the deciding upon any altruistic course of action, or the formulating of any practical ideas as to what means we can or will use to give life to these otherwise empty

An Orchid Sport

Colin B. Ogston, superintendent of the Kimball conservatories, Rochester, N. Y., sends us the photographs herewith reproduced. The possibility of an orchid sport has been a subject of much discussion among the great specialists, all such "malformations" as are apparent in the subject of these notes being regarded as malformations simply and without any "fixed" type quality that would entitle them to any recognition as "sports." In the letter accompanying the photographs, Mr. Ogston writes as follows:

This "Little Babe" as we call it, came from Cypripedium Harrissianum of a very fine variety. Two years ago I noticed a peculiar leaf growth on the old root. It was thick, short and malformed, having three corrugated ribs on the leaf. It was so different from the leaves on the mother plant that I decided it was a sporting babe. It grew very fast, and flowered—a greenish yellow overlaid by light chocolate, very dwarf and very distinct, as the mother plant is a fall grower, and very dark in the color of the flower and does not have the shape of the flower—flat. This flatness is a good acquisition as the flower does not turn back its petals, consequently never looks thin. Some idea of its remarkable growth can be imagined as the little fellow has nine growths now in full vigor after but two years. It is the most rapid grower among cypripediums that I know of. The type is set having three flowers on the plant when photographed, all perfectly formed. We firmly believe it is the first known orchid sport.

Professor Bailey said there was no known record, that he could find of any orchid producing a sport. It is no malformation; it is simply a little gem, very dwarf and compact, making a large flat flower and very distinct from any cypripedium that has been produced hitherto. Looking back at the thousands of orchids that have been imported here, and in Europe, it seems strange that at last the "sporting babe orchid" has come. Any further information that your readers would desire will be cheerfully given.

phrases. Whatever we do or seek to do for commercial horticulture or with a view to extend horticulture as an art, it must be conceded as a fundamental proposition that the attitude of the public, whether due to a transient whim or to a well-founded principle, is the prime source to which we must look for the creation of new life and energy in the floral business and ornamental horticulture generally. With this fact in mind does it not seem strange that so large a proportion of those engaged in one or the other fields of horticultural industry are disposed to entirely ignore and stand aloof from all educational movements not dealing directly with purely trade questions? Mr. Thilow's address, reproduced in part in this paper, should be read by such. As Mr. Thilow truly says, the amateur clubs and associations would welcome the advice and co-operation of florists (and nurserymen and seedsmen, too) in communities where better civic conditions are being advocated. And doesn't it seem a very short-sighted policy that the majority of our trade people have thus far been following, in discarding these opportunities? The more the people, children and all, are brought to the feeling that the flower and the plant are things that concern everybody the more our industry will thrive. So above all, don't shirk your share of the work or the responsibility. Every individual should be willing to contribute his part to the general campaign, otherwise

"How can he expect that others should Build for him, sow for him and at his call Love him, who for himself will take no heed at all?"

FLORISTS' CLUBS: THEIR FIELD AND THEIR DUTY

(Extracts from a paper read by J. Otto Thilow, before the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston.)

Our Resourceful Profession.

No other profession is so resourceful as ours; none so varied and interesting; nor has there been in any other sphere of man's occupation the same possibility of developing and elevating the condition of the people of our land. It is true that commerce backed by healthy monetary conditions, with facilities to meet the upward trend demanded in modern civilization, has set the land and its people wild with enthusiasm to reach a standard above other countries. Our cities have grown far beyond their environment in much shorter time than had been provided for. The congestion has become uncomfortable and the facilities for transporting the masses are taxed beyond their capabilities, and all because the home dwellers and those who are mindful of their families' urgent needs are seeking the open air, the sunlight, the trees and verdure and outdoor life as much as the seasons will permit.

Floriculture's Influence.

What has this to do with the florist and gardener? Are we not the projectors of the civic condition in the localities where we are located? It is in your power to change Sodom into Eden and bring order out of chaos. Lanes have been made into parkways, bare hillsides planted with trees and shrubs, polluted streams are changed to babbling brooks, the former weed plots to flower gardens and parks—everything is done to beautify our surroundings, our homes, cities, and in fact our whole country. A flower has passed into the hands of some child, which suddenly awakened into admiration for this token of nature—within a few years the admiration grew into intense love for flowers—no social function could pass without lavish provision of flowers and plants—and at no time in the year is that home without floral decoration, nor the garden without its maze of color and variety in plants and trees. There is no doubt but what at some time this fondness for flowers would have developed of its own volition—such cases are the exception, but the rule should be general and would be if we were alert and used the opportunities which come our way. At Eugene, Ore., near Oregon City, if you are passing through with the other passengers you will be presented with a bouquet of roses, showing what can be produced there and in quantity. Should a real estate agent pass through the train with offers of homes or even small farms, one would doubt the genuineness of his offer, but roses appeal to everyone and make an affectionate and lasting impression, and as used in this case are a strong advertising medium.

Co-operative Benefits.

That there has been advancement through affiliation there is no doubt, as we have seen the progress of our business within the past decade. The ripe knowledge of the vigilant and hard-working florist with the up-to-date methods now practiced, particularly that of specializing, the interchange of ideas at the club and convention where we tell all we know and have learned through hard knocks and even losses, the publicity given to every club in the country and its doings through the horticultural trade press acquaint us with one another's ability in specific and skilled lines. If our club and society affiliation does no more than to broaden our minds, widen our principle and exert our interest one for another, it does much toward the uplift of our florist brother in the remote parts of this great land and even abroad. It was said to me by one of the American visitors to the London Flower Show, that he was in company with an English grower going to visit another grower who lived a short distance from the gentleman walking beside him, who said: "This is my first visit to my neighbor, and we have been nearly side by side for many years." The American grower said: "Do you mean to tell me that you are not more congenial and neighborly than that? In America we could not afford to do that; if we did not learn from our neighbor, it is a blessed thing that he can learn from us." If the expedition of our American brethren to the other side has helped infuse a neighborly spirit among our foreign brethren, then we were angels of mercy, indeed; and we feel better for knowing we have done some good. There is one thing sure. The visit to London impressed our delegation with the assurance that there is yet much to be done to reach the perfection in floriculture so lavishly displayed by them. We have gained much in these expeditions across the ocean. We have added to our list of geniuses enthusiastic exponents in horticulture; they have mounted the rostrum and thundered for the truths and ideals which have given us great inspiration. There are two great factors in our land today, the possibly half hundred Florists' Clubs, and four energetic publications devoted to the trade, and about a half score of magazines and other publications to greet the anxious amateur and enthusiast.

Cultivating the Field.

This would seem to be as far as we can get in publicity in making our presence known, and yet there are thousands who are blessed with an in-born trait and love for plants and flowers and get no encouragement from anyone except such as are highly enthusiastic and bubbling over with even a faint knowledge of horticulture. Are we so absorbed in our busy life, that we do not find time to cultivate a fondness for flowers in others who are only waiting for some one to lure them? In my engagements with civic clubs I rarely find a florist interested, but many of the best ladies of our land active in the betterment of the surroundings of all classes, by the suggestion of better horticultural conditions. Surely this is a branch that the florist should be concerned in. These clubs and associations would welcome the advice and co-operation of the florist in the communities where better civic conditions are being advocated. Let us in some modest way demonstrate to the public that our business, the cultivation of plants and flowers, concerns everybody, and by our earnest interest in our profession do what we can to awaken the latent love for flowers in others.

Publicity Advantages.

Can we measure the good that will result from the recent and initiative move of the New York Florists' Club in their publicity effort? It is one of the most stimulating enterprises entered upon in the past quarter century; present results may not warrant the assertion, but the indications are far beyond a prophecy. Let every Florists' Club in this country awake to what might be done in their respective localities, fall in line with the New York Club, and let us be altogether in one move, universal the country over. Create the demand—young men are continually stepping to the front to learn the old profession by the new methods. Lumber and glass are available, and the ever-balmy sunlight, an unpaid agent of unbounded scope.

We as active members in the club, reap benefits by our association with each other, but what about the man behind the gun? He who watches the plant's peculiarities and its needs, whose experimenting has given results; is it best to let him grind on or to let him mingle with others of the same profession, that there may be a mutual profit through each other's experience? Bring him out, introduce him to the club; have him become a member; shall he only learn from such affiliation? Nay, he may teach us that which his experience has gained for him. We can increase our own usefulness by such development.

What the Club Can Do.

The club could be made the centre from which new methods for the general business of handling flowers should emanate—an exchange for business and a resort for pleasure. A full equipment for games. A reading room provided with publications of the latest issue; horticultural matter in magazine and book form; conveniences for ladies who would be glad to spend one evening a week at games, to practice for the events at the S. A. F. Convention; a hearty co-operation with the ladies means in turn encouragement in business. From our clubs have sprung the social features of the S. A. F. Conventions.

Let me entreat you and all of the clubs and associations of our profession, that publicity of the right kind will bring about astounding results. As a source of information, I have written to the secretary of every club and association in the country as far as I could secure their names. I wanted information as to what the clubs were doing in publicity, and also invited their suggestions as to what might be conducive to the furtherance of the florist business. Responses have come from a small portion of the fifty inquiries sent out, but the an-

ADIANTUM FARLEYENSE AND A. F. GLORIOSA.

ADIANTUM FARLEYENSE

ADIANTUM FARLEYENSE GLORIOSA

The picture herewith represents an unusually well-grown Adiantum Farleyense in a 16-inch pan which was exhibited at the recent horticultural show in Newport, R. I., and won the Michell silver medal as the most meritorious exhibit staged there. The exhibitor was John B. Urquhart, gard. for Mr. R. L. Beeckman of Newport, who also showed some extra well-grown plants of the new variety, Gloriosa, in seven-inch pots, of which a picture is also shown.

For many years the old A. Farleyense has been considered the most beautiful of all ferns, but it now seems to have a strong rival in this new variety, which is very similar and is said to thrive well in a lower temperature than is suitable for the older type, which is its parent. Mr. Urquhart has excellent success, however, in growing both varieties under exactly the same kind of treatment. The house used is a low even span with curved eaves; runs nearly due east and west and glass is lightly shaded. The night temperature aimed at is 75 degrees with a rise to about 80 on clear days.

Propagation is mostly done in early spring when plants are in the most vigorous stage of their growth. For this purpose old plants are broken up into single crowns with at least a part of a live frond on each which is necessary for support in the rooting process. After being well rooted in a bed of clear sharp sand they are potted in small pots with a mixture of fibrous loam and leaf soil, and plunged to the rim of the pots in a bench of damp sphagnum moss where they grow very quickly. From this stage on the soil used for potting is old sod, well chopped up and mixed with well rotted cow manure. Feeding with liquid cow and sheep manure is also done to some extent. A moist atmosphere and fire heat is supplied all the year around.

At this residence this fern is used extensively as plants and cut fronds for table decorations and is always much admired.

JAMES ROBERTSON.

swers thus far received are most gratifying. In several instances the Publicity Committee are supplying articles every week for newspaper publication—something suggestive of the abundant bloom at the different seasons. In another case, a Florist Club is fostering a School Garden contest, under the direction of the Woman's Club. Another club collected $300.00 from florists for Mothers' Day advertising in street car, newspaper and wagon banners, and they report the results are wonderful.

In conclusion, I wish to emphasize, that whatever you debate in the club consider seriously the matter of production and prices. First-class stock will always find a market, but we don't wish to stop there. Moderate prices will influence the masses, and if possible get a flower into the hands of every man, woman and child, encourage the use of flowers at every function in the home, the festive hall and public demonstration, and by all means let the public know that you are a florist.

The essay committee is the most important of the club. Men who can interest both from knowledge of horticulture, and interesting topics of present day modern methods, should be available. Encourage exhibitions at the meetings. Have occasional outings during the summer and don't leave the girls at home. A membership committee is necessary to look up new members, and have every florist, grower, wholesaler and retailer in the chairs at every meeting, including your workmen and subordinates.

What I have learned in my personal touch with my florist brethren of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia is the one paramount thought of doing whatever is best for the advancement of the business and broadening the horticultural realm—to make optimists, to use the club as a safety valve and engender personal feelings conducive to good friendship, and infuse a geniality into those with whom we associate. This genial temperament is usually characteristic with the florist. His life should be resplendent and aglow with cheer, because his occupation is in touch with nature's sweetest product.

M. H. WALSH HONORED.

The trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society have awarded the George Robert White medal of honor for the year 1912 to Michael H. Walsh of Words Hole, Mass. This is the fourth award of this medal by the society which is voted annually for eminent service in horticulture.

Mr. Walsh is well known as the originator of many new and valuable varieties of roses known and highly appreciated the world over

TO KEEP CUT POINSETTIAS.

Everyone knows how prone the poinsettia bracts are to droop after cutting and how almost impossible it is to revive them. The cause is attributed to the "bleeding" of the stems when cut. This may be stopped at once, says R. E. Loeben of Gloversville, N. Y., by dipping the ends into finely sifted hard coal ashes. This seals up the sap at once and the stems will then take up water like a rose or carnation.

Mr. Loeben says also that if the same course is pursued with poinsettia cuttings they can be rooted easily in the pans or pots in which they are to stay.

CHRYSANTHEMUM NOVELTIES.

Still they come! At the meeting of the Floral Committee of the National Chrysanthemum Society, London, on October 29th last, there were 74 new varieties submitted for adjudication. The standard is a severe one and not more than twelve secured the coveted award. Had it been a French show we fear the committee would not have cared to incur the risk of offending so many disappointed exhibitors, but then let us say with Sterne "They order this matter better in France," but for "better" read "differently."

INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW

Address by Chas. H. Totty, Before the National Association of Gardeners, November 19.

Members of the National Association of Gardeners:

The question I wish to present to your notice is—What part will the superintendents and gardeners of this country play in the international show scheduled for next April in the New Grand Central Palace, New York? I think I am safe in saying that the finest plants in the world have been imported and sold in the neighborhood of New York in the last twenty years. These plants in the natural order of things, since they cost considerable money, have been bought by your employers and at the present time many of them are reclining in the greenhouses, within easy shipping distance of New York.

Are you going to leave them there or bring them out next spring and let the rest of the country see stock they have never previously had any knowledge of? We are now working on the final schedule which devotes considerable special classes, especially for the private growers in both plants and flowers, and which, in the aggregate, amounts to some $5,000 for the gardeners alone. This is the first time in the history of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, to my knowledge, that special classes have been made; the first time that private growers have been recognized as a large factor in the development of horticulture, and the fact that the Society of American Florists which is primarily a trade organization, is willing to do this, is a tribute to the growing force and power of the private gardener in the horticultural world.

As members of different local horticultural societies, your response to my appeal to join with the parent body, has been very generous. Practically every society within a reasonable distance of New York, will be represented by a silver cup or cash premium.

We also have working with us, the American Rose Society, American Carnation Society, the Gladioli and the Sweet Pea societies, and for once horticulture presents to the world a solid front, standing together, and it will show to the world an exhibition that will demand recognition as being the finest achievement in the annals of horticultural and floricultural history in America.

My friends, it is fitting that this should be so. As the editor of the New York World remarks in a recent editorial:

"When 130,000 people throng to see a flower show in New York, the popular vogue of flowers must be regarded as pretty conclusively established. This is about as many people as constitute the capacity audiences at the theatres on holidays, and the fact bears witness to the place flower exhibitions now hold as fixed events in the fall calendar, equally with football, the opera and the horse show."

Note the final paragraph:

"But behind the vogue in this country and most suggestive of all the circumstances having to do with its popular appeal is the confirmation the attendance at flower shows gives of the true aesthetic sense in a city where as many people go to see flowers, as to a world's baseball series."

I remember, and so do you, when about all the space a flower show would get in the metropolitan dailies was two or three lines in an obscure corner. Flower shows and the flower industry were regarded with toleration connected with the "upper crust" of New York society and they will be present. If the employer sees his name in conjunction with the "First Prize" at the "greatest flower show America ever had," he will think just that much more of his gardener. Those of you who are so loyal to your local shows, know just how true this is.

The average American is content with nothing but the best and if the spirit of emulation between the employer and the gardener, is encouraged, there is little doubt but that horticulture will rise even more rapidly in the immediate future.

There is nothing about the cultivation of plants and flowers that will degrade a man. On the contrary, it is the most elevating pastime that a millionaire can spend his time and money in following.

Those of you who saw the International Show in London this year, or who followed it closely, could not fail to be struck by the thousands of men, who gave liberally of their time and money to make that show the splendid success it was.

Conceding that this interest is not so widespread in our own people, still it is bound to come and I want to see the gardeners occupy their proper position at the head of the procession and there is no better place to leap with one bound into this premier position than next spring at the National Flower Show in New York. New York has not had a really representative show for years. The exhibitions have always been badly handicapped by the many local societies that are holding their own exhibitions at about the same time. Loyalty to his local society and a desire that his employer, (who is very often still stopping at his country house) will see his products, make the gardener look after his local show first. In this case we have a grand spring show when there will be no other flower shows to take away the interest or the exhibits and I look to see the gardeners make this show one worthy of the highest praise.

Since the preliminary schedule was printed we have received many handsome donations of silver cups, gold, silver and bronze medals, etc., and from the purely material standpoint of getting something in exchange for one's labor the show will be something worth while.

As an educational feature the society is planning to give two lectures a simply as a hobby of the rich. Today the people are awakened to a sense of the value of a flower show in cultivating the aesthetic taste of a city and we can get almost any space we wish in the leading newspapers of the country. An indication of this is shown in the New York Herald of Nov. 18th, which gave over half a column to the National Flower Show which we are at present discussing.

The popularity of any undertaking, be it sport, business, or an individual, can always be determined by the amount of space that the newspapers can be induced to give the same. A newspaper man has his ear to the ground all the time watching the trend of popular thought, moulding it oftentimes when wrongly directed and giving it unlimited space, when as a news item it is of interest to the large body of our people. I am firmly of the opinion that this flower show in New York is going to set a record for attendance at a flower show in America.

Many of your employers are con-day on different matters pertaining to horticulture, every day during the exhibition. R. F. Felton, for instance, whose fame as a color artist in plants and flowers is international, will speak on "Color Harmony and Floral Arrangement." J. K. M. L. Farquhar, will give us one of his inimitable talks on some of the gardens of the old world. One or more American floral artists will give lectures on their ideas of floral art from an American point of view, and other well known men will speak on different phases of horticulture. In this branch alone these lectures ought to put horticulture at least ten years ahead.

This is not an American show alone. Some European exhibitors are having stock specially grown and bulbs forced in this country to give it an international flavor.

The Chicago Society, the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the Shaw Botanic Gardens of St. Louis, all offer gold, silver and bronze medals for this show, as does also the American Institute of the City of New York.

The hall is large enough; the number of classes is large enough, and every man here present this afternoon can be, if he wishes, represented in a greater or lesser degree in this great show.

Special Prizes.

The receipt of further special prizes is reported by Chairman Chas. H. Totty, among them the following:

By the Missouri Botanic Garden, St. Louis, Mo., a cash prize of $500 for the most meritorious new plant exhibited, the plant to be judged as to its economical value or esthetic qualifications, or both, and to possess characteristics making it distinctly different from, or an improvement over, similar plants previously grown.

By the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association, $25 for the best 50 ft. of geraniums; and $25 for the best 50 ft. of bedding plants, geraniums excluded.

Trade Space Selling Rapidly.

John Young, manager of the trade exhibition to be held in connection with the International Flower Show to be held in New York in April, 1913, reports that space is being rapidly taken up, and the exhibits staged will be most comprehensive in their scope.

The following is a list of those in the trade who have already taken space:

LAELIO-CATTLEYA LUSTRE "LAVENGRO."

Not many of the hybrid orchids have yet gotten into the commercial cut-flower class and it will undoubtedly be a long time before the lovely Brasso-cattleyas, Laelio-cattleyas and other gems of similar origin are within the reach of the florist. The noble flower herewith illustrated, as well as others that have appeared in our pages of late, must whet the appetite of all, however, and everybody, whether growers or decorators, will recognize the advance that is being made by the hybridists and enthusiasts who are devoting their lives to the interests of their loved specialty.

The Laelio-cattleya here illustrated is an enormous flower, the huge lip being of an intense and brilliant purple. The plant was shown in the collection of Sir George Holford, H. G. Alexander grower, at the International Horticultural Exhibition in London and received a first-class certificate.

A VISIT TO WELLS'.

In a quaint little village known as Merstham are the far-famed nurseries of our old friend, William Wells. William (we speak of the father, for there is a William the son), is not unknown to enthusiastic "Mummers" on the other side of the Atlantic and those of our readers who have made his acquaintance need no introduction to him or description of his plain, sturdy, John Bull-like straightforwardness and honesty of purpose. He is a typical Britisher of the gardening type, no fuss, no nonsense, no make-believe, but just himself, and no other. William knows something about chrysanthemums. He knows how to raise them, how to import them, how to grow and show them and probably how to sell them. That's his business; ours is only to write about them. So once again on a pleasant October morning we set forth to visit his place and see the novelties of the season before they are placed before the public at the big shows where "Mummers" most do congregate. Long experience has shown us that if we want to do serious, critical work, to go round a nursery by one's self, accompanied by a guide such as William, is the only satisfactory way to do it. To try to do it at a show is to court, if not failure only a partial success, for hand-shaking and gossip are there too frequently in the ascendant.

The big show house at Merstham is a double span, 120 by 50 feet, in which the gems of the collection are sheltered from the variable weather we are justified in expecting between the time of pheasant shooting and the close of the chrysanthemum season. Our readers must not assume that is the only house; we pass one after the other low-pitched houses containing earlies, decoratives, late stuff for cutting and also singles in which there seems to be quite a boom in these latter days. Fancy the old-time florist looking at singles! Why, a quarter of a century ago he and his colleagues would have pitched the whole lot on the dunghill. Time changes all things. But we of the old school instinctively give precedence to the big show blooms and we are ushered into the glass structure aforesaid, there to feast our eyes to our hearts' content on the gems of the collection for show.

In one-half of the house the big bloom plants are arranged. Some of the varieties, of course, are not new seedlings, but have been grown one or two seasons. We notice Japanese are almost wholly those on view—substantial blooms of dimensions needed on the show board. Some have already made their name; others have yet to do so. H. E. Converse strikes us as a beauty—long, spreading florets, twisted and curly at the tips. Mrs. R. Sutford is one of the richest and biggest of crimson. Lenox is a big Jap., deep in build, a close, compact flower—color pure canary with silvery yellow reverse. Queen Mary is a new white, a colossal show Jap. of premier quality. Mr. J. H. Cocken is a rich pure golden yellow and although a Jap. has medium twisted florets, curly at the tips with reverse rather paler. Frank Payne, a huge show Jap. of the drooping petalled type is most delicate in color, pale rosy blush.

A GIANT CHRYSANTHEMUM

The photograph from which the accompanying picture was reproduced comes from Denver, Colo., and the grower of the plant illustrated was Wm. E. Keith, an old-time Bostonian, now with the Park Floral Co. The plant carried 815 blooms and, although not a trained plant, was really a well-grown and symmetrical specimen. The variety is Georgiana Pitcher.

In yellow along the same bank of bloom we see some grand Lady Talbot, Countess Granard, Mrs. L. Thorn, and several others. By way of a change we come across an incurved of American origin, Golden King, a lovely shade of rich golden yellow like our old variety, Jardin des Plantes. Pockett's White Australian is another big one. It has rather narrow florets, which are long, drooping and twisted and will make up a flower of great depth. For color E. J. Brooks, Gertrude Peers, a rosy crimson, Mrs. R. A. Witty, rich crimson and gold, want beating. An immense Jap. is Antigone, milky white, a perfect globular mass of closely intermingling florets. A grand thing is Mrs. G. Lloyd Wigg, recently certificated. The florets are pale canary of enormous length, drooping and curly, and the flower as shown is almost like a shower bouquet.

Under the other span of this house are set up the collection of show singles. Mrs. W. Garner, Mrs. T. Gilben, Edith Pagram and a whole host of others. We leave this house and close by we see the ground where 30,000 lifted plants for stock have been growing till recently comprising the most useful of the Japs., the decoratives, the singles and the earlies. Another house contains Pompons and Anemone-flowered varieties that have almost gone out of fashion, and for which there is still a little sale. The house adjoining contains singles for cuttings in which a large trade is now being done by all our specialists.

One of the results of William Wells' visit to America may be seen in the erection of two new lofty houses for carnation culture on the American plan. In one he has on the bench system 3,400 plants; in the other 3,000. There are many other houses and frames and pits full of material for turning into money, but we are invited to go round the turn of the road to a recently acquired piece of land where our friend, aided by the efforts of his sons, has somewhat extended the sphere of operations. Planted out on this ground is the hardy herbaceous collection, roses and specially Michaelmas daisies which were making a grand display of color. The entire collection of early outdoor chrysanthemums are grown in long rows in alphabetical order.

We could have said much more, but our task is done and yet only half done, if we have failed to impress our American readers with the necessity of paying a visit to this eminent growers' place next time they happen to be in old England during the autumn season.

C. HARMAN PAYNE.

OBITUARY.

Dr. William A. Buckhout.

Dr. William A. Buckhout, Professor of Botany and the senior professor at the Pennsylvania State College, died of heart disease on Tuesday, December 3, 1912.

Dr. Buckhout was born December, 1846, and graduated from the Pennsylvania State College in 1868. In 1871 he became Professor of Botany and Horticulture in this college. In the changes brought about in agricultural sciences during recent years he became Professor of Botany. For many years he was Botanist of the Pennsylvania State Board of Agriculture. In 1888 he was appointed to the Pennsylvania State Forestry Commission and was a prime mover in the state in creating and taking an active interest in Forestry. He was a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He was author of papers such as "The Chestnut as a Fruit and Food," "The Effect of Smoke and Gas on Vegetation," "A Microscopic Examination of State College Water Supply," "Forest Fires," and others, with annual reports as State Botanist. The people of Pennsylvania will join his family in mourning his death.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

The meeting of this club on Monday evening, December 9, was a record-breaker in attendance, there being close to 175 members and prospective members present. The occasion of this outpouring was the election of officers, there being three nominees for the presidency, leading three distinct groups of followers, each group determined to carry its candidate to glorious victory. According to the by-laws of the club a majority of votes cast is necessary for an election. The result of the first ballot for president was as follows: H. A. Bunyard 44, Wm. H. Duckham 37, Wm. H. Siebrecht 58. A new ballot was then ordered and it resulted in the election of Mr. Siebrecht by a vote of 61 to 57 for Mr. Bunyard, Mr. Duckham having withdrawn his name. The other officers elected were as follows: Secretary, John Young, unanimous; treasurer, W. C. Rickards, Jr., 76 to 61 for Philip F. Kessler; trustees, C. B. Weathered, W. F. Sheridan and John Miesem by substantial majorities.

Wm. H. Siebrecht is a highly respected and widely known representative of the flower growing fraternity. His place is in Astoria, Long Island City, and is famous for the high quality of the output, of which lily of the valley and forced bulbous stock of various kinds is the principal part. Mr. Siebrecht has been a member of the S. A. F. from the start, also of the New York Florists' Club. He might have been president of the latter many years ago but always declined the honor until now. He will make a popular presiding officer for the coming busy year.

During the course of the evening J. B. Nugent reported a satisfactory interview with the steamship officials with regard to the receipt and proper care of flowers sent to passengers when departing; C. B. Weathered reported a very liberal response to his committee's request for contributions towards the entertainment of visiting florists at the National Flower Show; A. L. Miller, on behalf of the awards committee, reported 91 points awarded to carnation Matchless and 87 points with a certificate of merit to carnation Wm. Eccles; he also announced that the new rose Mrs. Shawyer and Brozert had been carefully compared and were found to be distinct. A batch of new members were elected and brief speeches were made by several. Nineteen new members were proposed; it was suggested by W. J. Stewart that they be regularly qualified at once instead of being held over until the January meeting, but this motion was declared to be out of order. This plan of holding membership propositions for a month is a good one provided its intent of giving time for inquiry into the fitness of a candidate for admission is carried out, but when, as is the case here, the rule is simply a dead letter there is no apparent advantage in this bit of meaningless red tape.

A list of ladies to serve on entertainment committee at International Flower Show was named by President Manda.

Exhibits were made by Scott Bros., Wm. Eccles carnation; J. D. Cockcroft, Northport carnation; Traendly & Schenck, Salmon Beauty carnation; Julius Roehrs Co., pink poinsettia, and Wallace R. Pierson roses Milady and Mme. Jules Grollez.

ELBERON HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The regular monthly meeting of this society was held in Firemen's Hall, Elberon, N. J., on Monday, Dec. 2nd, with President James Kennedy presiding. After the regular routine of business, Jos. A. Manda of West Orange installed the newly-elected officers, as follows: President, Geo. Masson, vice-president, Thomas Hambleton; treasurer, A. Bauer; secretary, Chas. C. Duncan; assistant secretary, Wm. R. Seymour. A vote of thanks was accorded to the retiring officers.

The Boddington medals for horticulture, which were awarded for point competition during last year, were won by the following: 1st, gold medal, George Masson, with an average of 83.5; 2nd, silver medal, Wm. R. Seymour, average 82.5; 3rd, bronze medal, Charles C. Duncan, average, 79. In the competition for those without greenhouses, August Grieb was first and Ed. O'Rourke second. Chas. De Wilde was awarded a certificate of culture for a display of carnations.

At the next meeting, January 6th, Thos. Hambleton will talk on the "Culture of Chrysanthemums."

WM. R. SEYMOUR,
Asst. Sec.

NEWPORT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the society was held Dec. 10 with President A. S. Meikle in the chair and a good attendance of members. Officers and executive committee were elected as follows: President, A. S. Meikle; first vice-president, William Mackay; second vice-president, John B. Urquhart; treasurer, A. K. McMahon; recording secretary, D. J. Coughlin; financial secretary, William Gray; sergeant-at-arms, W. F. Smith; executive committee, with the above officers, Richard Gardner, Alex. MacLellan, John T. Allan, C. M. Bugholt, Bruce Butterson, James Bond, James Boyd, J. Robertson. This meeting also marked the close of a yearly competition in helping the society in various ways, the competition being governed by a special scale of points which encourages the members to attend the regular meetings, exhibit at the shows, secure new members, etc. The first prize, a valuable silver cup, was won by A. L. Dorward; the second prize, also a silver cup, goes to J. Robertson, and the third, a cash prize, to C. M. Bugholt. The report of the treasurer showed a very good cash balance, and the society seems well equipped in every way for the business of the coming year.

PITTSBURGH FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

At the December 3rd meeting of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club, on December 3, P. S. Randolph gave an interesting and timely talk on Christmas Greens and Decorations. Mr. Randolph is senior member of P. D. Randolph & Sons, plant growers, and senior member of Randolph & McClements, retail florists, and is the oldest florist in the city actively engaged as both grower and retailer, so that when he said a retail florist could not be a good plant grower, we all pricked our ears and sat up. He went on to say that the demands of the retail end of the business on the man who grows his own stock were such that he is continually being compelled to retard or force growth, either to meet the demands of the present or the expected demands of the future, and by this way of doing is never able to put out his plants at their best. He thought the time was coming rapidly when plant growing would be divided among specialists, as the variety of plants now grown is beyond the ability of any one plant grower to meet their various requirements and furnish at their best.

Speaking of Ardisia crenulata he showed fine specimens of plants with good-colored berries, grown from seed. This plant, he said, was not often raised from seed in this country, but it could be done and there was a profit in it. Mr. Randolph is a firm believer in the future of the plant growing trade, and has recently erected a range and established his two sons in that branch of the business.

Cultural certificates were awarded to Randolph & McClements for well-grown plants, Walter James for Begonia Turnford Hall. Mr. Turner, of Winkinsburg, showed Primula obconica, and the Bureau of Parks showed well-berried Solanum capsicastrum, variety Fra Diavolo, and an interesting vase of outdoor grown plants and grasses.

At the meeting in January the nomination of officers for 1913 takes place.

H. P. JOSLIN, Sec'y.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF WASHINGTON.

The subject of advertising for the holidays was the main topic of discussion at the December meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington. An effort will be made to have the newspapers take up the cause with a view to the publication of interesting reading matter pertaining to flowers, bulbs, etc., in the news columns. This will be under the direction of the recently appointed publicity committee. The use of placards in the windows of at least the uptown stores as an advertising medium was discussed and a general consensus of opinion was that it was unsatisfactory and detracted from the appearance of the stores. As a result of this it is probable that all sorts of card ads. will be barred from display in so conspicuous a place as the windows and all such available space will be given over to the rightful showing of stock.

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The next regular monthly meeting of the club will be held at Horticultural Hall on Tuesday evening, December 17, 1912, at 8 o'clock. This being the annual meeting for the election of officers a large attendance is particularly desired. Mr. Andrew Christenson of Stoneham will give an address on a recent trip to the Panama Canal while the tellers are sorting and counting ballots.

Landscape gardening classes were resumed at Horticultural Hall on Tuesday evening, Dec. 10, and will meet each Tuesday for 16 weeks. Teachers are Messrs. R. W. Aldrich and Paul R. Smith; tuition fee $8 for the full course, one-half payable when entering and the balance at the commencement of the second term. Classes are provided for both advanced students and beginners and a few can still be accommodated. Club members only can join these classes.

The following nominations of officers for 1913 were made at the club meeting on November 19; these are to be voted on at this meeting.

President, W. J. Kennedy; vice-president, H. H. Bartsch, Eber Holmes; secretary, W. N. Craig; treasurer, Peter Fisher; executive committee, John Reid, William J. Patterson, F. E. Palmer, Henry Penn, Duncan Finlayson, A. K. Rogers, J. Van Leeuwen, Robert S. Edgar, Peter M. Miller, James L. Miller, Joshua Lawson and W. C. Rust.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore held their regular semi-monthly meeting on Monday, Dec. 9, in Florists' Exchange Hall. President Christie presided. There was a good number present and plenty of music to begin with. The club is increasing its membership continually, which now numbers 280.

At the annual election of the Chicago Florists' Club Guy French was elected president; Alex. Henderson, vice-president; Wilder Deamud, secretary; E. F. Winterson re-elected treasurer. Richard Vincent, Jr., entertained the club with his stereopticon lecture on the London flower show, which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

David F. Roy, superintendent of the Converse estate in Marion, Mass., was to have been the speaker at the December meeting of the New Bedford Horticultural Society, but on account of the storm the committee telephoned to Mr. Roy that it would not expect him. Accordingly, Mr. Roy will give his talk on chrysanthemums and the work of transforming the Converse estate into its present state of beauty, at the next meeting of the society in January. The public will be invited to attend this meeting, which will be held in the hall in the library building.

The regular monthly meeting of the Southampton (N. Y.) Horticultural Society was held in Odd Fellows' Hall. The business of having the society incorporated is going ahead slowly. It was decided to have a dinner on Jan. 2, and a committee was appointed to make arrangements for the same.

At a special meeting two weeks ago. W. Gomersall of Nyack read a splendid paper on soils and fertilizers. He was awarded a standing vote of thanks, and on motion it was decided to have 200 copies of the paper printed and distributed to members of the society.

WM. McLEOD, Cor. Sec.

At the regular meeting of the Tuxedo (N. Y.) Horticultural Society held on Dec. 4, the nomination of officers was made for the ensuing year. President Tansey was urged to accept re-nomination but could not be induced. James MacMackan was nominated for president, Frederick Raike for vice-president, Simon Hilmers for treasurer and Joseph Becvar for secretary. For executive committee the following were nominated: Joseph Tansey, David McIntosh, Frederick Bentley, James Allen, David S. Miller, Edward Wilson and Patrick Cassidy. It is hoped that every member will attend the annual meeting January 1st, 1913, as two amendments to the by-laws are to be acted upon.

E. WILSON, Sec'y.

The North Shore Horticultural Society had a "Carnation Night" at its regular meeting in Manchester, Mass., December 6th. The speaker of the evening was A. A. Pembroke of North Beverly, who read a paper on this, his favorite flower. Mr. Pembroke talked as only a specialist and a practical man can and had a fine exhibit of cut flowers to show that he could deliver

The Yonkers (N. Y.) Horticultural Society held their annual meeting in Hollywood Inn on Friday, December 6th, Vice-President Francis Drexler occupying the chair, President Howard Nichols being absent owing to sickness in his family. He also withdrew his nomination for secretary for the ensuing year for the same reason, and the members accepted same with regret. Joseph Mooney was elected secretary. Louis Milliot exhibited Begonia La Patrie, not such a bright pink as the Lorraine, but lasts much longer in dwelling rooms. The bowling committee have secured alleys and have already got the balls rolling, and will soon be looking for challenges from the other horticultural bowling clubs. Practice nights every Thursday at 8 o'clock in the bowling alleys on Riverdale avenue. A committee was appointed to make arrangements and fix a date for the annual banquet. The next regular meeting will be held Friday, January 3, 1913.

W. MILLS, Cor. Sec'y.

The New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers had its annual meeting on December 3 at Kalil's Restaurant. Pursuant to a custom, which was adopted some time ago, dinner was served at 6 P. M. and after the tables were cleared, the meeting was held in the same room. Under the business transacted, was the resolution to give two cash prizes of $25 each, to be awarded at the National Flower Show in New York; one for the best bed of 50 geraniums, and the other for the best bed of bedding plants, exclusive of geraniums, not more than 50 in number and arranged for effect.

A resolution was also adopted requesting the secretary to communicate with the publicity committee of the New York Florists' Club, requesting that committee to endeavor to direct purchasers' attention to plants as well as to cut flowers.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, Louis Dupuy, Whitestone, L. I.; vice-president, John H. Fiesser, North Bergen, N. J.; treasurer, Hermann C. Steinhoff, W. Hoboken, N. J.; secretary, Wm. H. Siebrecht, Jr., New York; directors, Alfred L. Zeller, Brooklyn; Julius Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J.; H. Baumann, W. Hoboken, N. J.

TODAY.

Sure, this world is full of trouble—
I ain't said it ain't.
Lord, I've had enough and double
Reason for complaint.
Rain an' storm have come to fret me
Skies were often gray;
Thorns an' brambles have beset me
On the road—but, say,
Ain't it fine today!

What's the use of always weepin'
Makin' trouble last?
What's the use of always keepin'
Thinkin' of the past?
Each must have his tribulation—
Water with his wine.
Life it ain't no celebration.
Trouble? I've had mine—
But today is fine.

It's today that I am livin'
Not a month ago,
Havin', losin', takin', givin',
As time wills it so.
Yesterday a cloud of sorrow
Fell across the way;
It may rain again tomorrow,
It may rain—but, say,
Ain't it fine today!

GARDENERS' REUNION.

On Wednesday, December 4, there was a Gardeners' Reunion at Thum's Bowling Alleys, New York City, this being the second annual event of the kind. Bowling was indulged in in the afternoon and dinner was served in the evening, six alleys having been set apart for the tournament. It was a very successful occasion, many leading members of the craft being present. The affair was under the management of "Jack" Everitt of Glen Cove and he did it well.

THE HUMORS OF THE PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

We have been very much entertained in attending the meetings of the committee of twenty appointed by the Florists' Club of Philadelphia to consider the matter of trade publicity. Of course, the committee itself grew out of the work in the same line started by our brothers in New York and from letters sent to our club by them.

Well, the committee of twenty was appointed by President Thilow and headed by Samuel S. Pennock, got to work. Then the fun began. Every one of the twenty had a different idea of what publicity meant and how to get it. A ten-volume, five-hundred-page cyclopaedia wouldn't be too large to cover the ideas advanced by the aforesaid twenty. For instance—one member said that all the newspapers of the country would be glad to print anything the committee might send them—and, not only that, but to pay for same as well.

Another member got howled down because he said that all editors sniffed suspiciously at free gifts and were accustomed to refer same to the advertising department—at space rates. What! reject educational truths like what we can give them instead of the buncombe they print and pay good money for? The idea!! Why, man, you're a fool! You don't know what you are talking about!

Our private opinion is that the movement is not on the right track. Advertising is a personal proposition and is not susceptible to community treatment, except in a limited way, such as the Holstein Club, the American Beauty Club, or something like that. To expect the Plymouth Rock Club or the Mushroom Growers' Club to pay the advertising bills of either of the aforesaid seems an absurdity. Yet that is practically what the new publicity campaign of the florists' trade means so far as we can see at present.

A few are asked to pay for advertising the many, and no thanks for it. either. G'wan! Wake up!

Flower Market Reports

BALTIMORE Chrysanthemums have at last made almost a complete exit and an unwonted emptiness is noticed everywhere. The result will doubtless be a good boost for the carnation which is already selling at figures rarely touched at this season and seldom exceeded at any season. The quality is noticeably good. With a continued rain and cloudiness for the last three or four days, there has been a little drawback on trade, but not so much as to be noticeable. Roses are not very plentiful and probably will not be until the holiday crop shows up. Normal values are still well maintained and lower prices are not looked for in the near future. Lily of the valley runs fair, while violets are uncertain and fluctuating and prices sag. Paper White narcissi are looking good, although there are a very few as yet. The demand for orchids is very good; also stevia is in great demand for design work.

BOSTON The marked features of this market at the present time are the scarcity of carnations and the unpopularity of the double violets. We hesitate to say much about the prospective scarcity of carnations for the holidays and in so doing tempt any carnation grower to hoard up his blooms in anticipation of a phenomenal price at Christmas. Don't do it, for no matter how scarce they may be you cannot sell cold storage carnations. The trade buyers know the goods and you can't fool them. Stored carnations will be almost a dead loss to the grower who indulges in this game. Double violets are in bad odor in the Boston market. The single violet is the popular favorite here and sells all over and all around the double fellow. Lily of the valley is enjoying a good market and the same would be true of sweet peas provided there were enough of them to make a showing, but the truth is that they are far less in number than they were last year at same date. Orchids in fair supply and demand. Last but not least—the roses; Beauty is in good quality but none too plenty; other roses have been very poor but they are responding to the bright frosty air now prevailing and will be in normal supply and grand shape for Christmas if the snappy clear weather continues. That's all, for this time.

BUFFALO The chrysanthemum season being practically at its end, the demand has fallen on other material and consequently there is a shortage on some lines, especially carnations which have at no time during the season been so short in supply. Again, roses have shortened in supply, especially the short grades, which leaves the merchant who has a larger trade in the floral piece line short of stock suitable for this work. The Thanksgiving Day business was good; in fact, no better has been had, and chrysanthemums which are at their best were sold up complete, and there was very little of anything to be had the day following. Roses were in fair supply but carnations were scarce. Other stock sold well. Holly and decorative greens are gradually coming into demand and the trade is getting in readiness for the holiday rush.

are not so abundant as usual in December and the cut is not expected to be very heavy for Christmas. Richmond roses are being anxiously watched as the holidays near, as their great rivals, the red carnations, are going to be very scarce and prices on them will be so high that the demand for red roses will be greater than usual. Very few, if any, chrysanthemums will be left in another week and there is a feeling of relief when the big favorites are gone for another year. Lily of the valley is said by the largest growers to be in fine quality and selling well. The continued scarcity of carnations is greatly to be regretted at this time and it is predicted that the situation will be unchanged for several weeks. Violets are now coming regularly and of first quality. A good supply of Killarneys, some Brides and a few of the newer roses will keep the market supplied for the holidays.

The warm, clear, bright weather has brought out a heavy cut of flowers that could not be utilized by the market. Many of the blooms, too, were rather soft. There was a drop in most prices and the market proved to be easy on almost every flower. Carnations, single violets and sweet peas alone cleaned up in proper style and it is possible that more of each might have been used. This statement applies particularly to sweet peas. Roses are in a large supply, the red and pink selling much better than the white. Of this last named Brides are moving the best. The last of the chrysanthemums are good and stems good, but they could not very well be held on the stalks. The varieties include mostly white and yellow Chadwick, Jones and Nonin, double violets. Lily of the valley and orchids move tolerably well. Fair demand for giganteum lilies and callas.

Another very busy week is behind us but this coming week has no elaborate work in sight. This gives all a chance to look after the many details which cannot be done when the holiday rush is upon us and not doing them means accumulating untoward difficulties and consequent loss of business. A very serious holiday question faces the local retailers through scarcity of carnations. There is no relief in sight from local growers and out-of-town stock is either scarce or of poor quality. Chrysanthemums, of course, are gone; what there is, is of very poor quality and not at all reliable as to lasting quality. The supply of pot plants for the holidays seems to be very good. Ardisias, azalea, cyclamen and poinsettia pans are all plentiful and very fine.

The dull conditions reported last week still continue in the wholesale district, but fortunately there is not a very heavy crop coming in and chrysanthemums being now few and far between no great accumulation of anything is to be seen. Carnations are really scarce and promise to be so for some time to come. They, as well as all the roses except Beauty, show the invigorating effect of the recent unseasonably warm weather—the roses opened wide and devoid of color, the carnations closed up and bedraggled. On Monday morning a little surprise was sprung on the shippers in the shape of a decided fall in the temperature and consequently quite a lot of stuff came to the wholesalers frozen up. Bulb stock is beginning to assert itself, there being paper white and trumpet narcissi and Roman hyacinths in addition to the regular staples. There are plenty of violets and the orchid supply is sufficient, Cattleya Trianae taking the lead.

Philadelphia generally were on the scarce side last week. If there had been much business it would have been impossible to fill orders at any price. Values stiffened all along the line and while they are still lower than they were this time a year ago, on many things, the prospects seem good at this writing for a move up to last year's general average for the holiday trade. We see no disposition to boost prices unduly. The idea seems to be rather to take care of regular customers at as moderate a price as possible and let the transients who only come to the regular markets in times of famine, take care of themselves. It has been these transients who have always come along only at holiday time who have sent prices sky-high—which has been bad for the general health of the business—any way it is so looked at. Now that the growers and their agents the commission men have seen the disastrous effects from bitter experience in past years, they are showing their wisdom in the policy of taking care of their regular customers first. They may lose a few immediate cents but they will be in dollars in the long run. So we look for no phenomenal prices this Christmas. The transients will get a polite cold shoulder: "Very sorry; but we are quite sold up on these"; and there will be no insane jumps in prices. The plant men will have their legitimate share of the market, which they are thoroughly entitled to; but they won't quite have it all to themselves as has happened a few in history!

Business during the past week was considerably better than it has been for some time. The commencement of the society season is materially increasing the demand for all cut flowers. The supply of first-class carnations is insufficient at the present time to meet all calls and the same may be said of single violets and yellow roses. Orchids are over plentiful. Chrysanthemums are practically at an end. Seen in the market during the past week were poinsettias, lupins, snapdragons and sweet peas in all colors, and potted poinsettias, azaleas, begonias, cyclamen and other Christmas plants.

The market the past week was in good condition and had plenty of stock for the demand.

Chrysanthemums are going fast and very few good ones are coming in now. Roses are selling better and the demand is quite good for all varieties and grades. Carnations, too, sell well at good prices. Of the other flowers that go to make up this market receipts are satisfactory. Violets are in heavy demand and scarce.

J. H. Small & Sons were the decorators for the annual dinner of the Gridiron Club given at the Hotel Willard on Saturday evening last. The decorations were exceptionally elaborate. The four walls of the large ball room on the tenth floor were covered with southern smilax and palms and the bay windows were banked with palms, ferns, white chrysanthemums and potted poinsettias. The table decorations consisted of white, pink and American Beauty roses and five gridiron designs done in white cape flowers and red and blue immortelles, forming the national colors.

CHICAGO NOTES.

J. J. and A. H. Budlong are both back from their recent trips for the benefit of their health and the cares of Phil. Schupp will be lightened.

The chary way in which carnation plants have yielded their blooms this year is attributed by some to the extreme heat in September following a cool summer.

The National Wholesale Florists' Credit Association held another meeting Dec. 10 for further perfection of plans. It seems to be regarded as a necessity and meets with the approval of that branch of the trade.

The Chicago Carnation Co. announce an excursion, free to their friends and customers, Dec. 18, to see the Herald carnation growing at their plant at Joliet. Trains leave La Salle street depot at 11.45 over the Rock Island.

A recent wind storm did some damage to the greenhouse plant of Jos. Brooks at Morton Grove. A small shed in process of construction was carried up into the air and dropped upon the glass. As the night was very cold quick work in repairing was necessary.

Miss Elsie Schuneman, daughter of the lost Capt. Schuneman, is making up wreaths from the Christmas greens washed ashore from the wreck of her father's schooner and selling them with the trees that were also saved, at her father's old position at the Clark street bridge.

South Water street is the dumping ground for all grades of holly, and with a large proportion of the poorer quality selling this week for $2.50 per box. The better grades, handled more by the wholesale florists, bring $4.50, and so far are averaging good in color and well berried.

The report that the Rouse Simmons, the Christmas tree schooner, had remained in port till after the storm, as stated in last week's issue, proved untrue, and all hope is abandoned. Capt. Scheuneman will be missed by many in Chicago, where he has yearly disposed of his cargo of trees, which this year are being washed up on the northern shore of Lake Michigan, mute evidence of the fate of the crew.

The Land Show, which has been at the Coliseum the past two weeks, represented every part of the country and was well attended. The government exhibits were very instructive and those wishing information on irrigation, soil, etc., had an excellent opportunity. The products of the states, especially those of the south and west, were attractively arranged and appealed strongly to those seeking new fields.

Visitors—E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; Raymond P. Kester, Indianapolis, Ind.; H. Philpott, Winnipeg, Man.; A. M. Augspurger, Peoria, Ill.; Arthur R. Leidiger, of Edlefsen, Leidiger Co., Milwaukee, Wis.; P. N. Obertin, Kenosha, Wis.; A. C. Reicher, Michigan City, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schutz, Hammond, Ind.; C. L. Achenback, Racine, Wis.; C. B. Kulekman, representing McHutchinson Co., N. Y.; Lewis Turner, Kenosha, Wis.; J. M. Hoffman, La Porte, Ind.

CINCINNATI NOTES.

J. M. McCullough Sons Co.'s force is plunging into the early holiday business in the way they were wont to do in past years.

Mrs. Vincent is accompanying her husband on the trip. John Evans, of Richmond, Ind., came to the city with Mr. and Mrs. Vincent. Other visitors were Frank Farney, of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, and Gustave Reiniger, Dayton, O.

The banquet last Monday evening was an unqualified success and the committee in charge are to be congratulated on the results of their efforts. R. Vincent, Jr.'s, enthusiastic talk on the S. A. F. and the International Flower Show, Holland Bulb Fields and Homes—last three illustrated with stereopticon pictures—were interesting and instructive and were enjoyed by all present. Miss McNally, Miss Weber and Frank Volz rendered vocal selections. Miss Ida Peterson played the accompaniment for Mr. Voltz. Gus Adrian, president of the local society, for, and on behalf of the society, welcomed the guests and presented Chas. H. Hoffmeister the toastmaster for the evening.

Among the indictments returned by the Norfolk Grand Jury in its report at Dedham, Mass., there is one against Albert H. Woods, the Brookline florist, who shot and killed Thomas Goldrop on September 18, 1912, while the latter was leaving his premises after having taken some violets.

A VISIT TO CRAIG'S.

With their seventy-five thousand square feet at 49th and Market streets and their one hundred thousand square feet at Norwood, Craig's are this year more than ever before equipped to hold their recognized lead in the production of plants in bloom for Christmas. It is a toss-up which is the leader in this class of plants; but there are three which might be said to almost run neck-and-neck—namely, Lorraine begonia, poinsettia and azalea. Many houses at the 49th street place are devoted to these and they are supplemented daily from the great stocks at Norwood. Robert, Jr., tells us they have been shipping constantly since Thanksgiving and that they expect to work all hands 18 hours a day from now till Christmas. One of their greatest novelties this year is made up combinations in birch bark with rattan—oblong, square, octagon, all shapes and sizes—and beautifully arranged and harmonized. These are selling fast and the only trouble is to get enough of them. One great point to their popularity is the economy in freight and labor over the old method of shipping the plants to the florists and letting them make them up themselves. We have never seen poinsettias better done. They have short plants not over six inches high with well developed bracts of good diameter, three in a pan with A. plumosus; daintiest and brightest thing imaginable; and others grown differently—a foot high, two feet high, and so on. Lorraines are as fine here as ever; the Lonsdale light pink (the great keeper); the Cincinnati Glory with its large petals and bright color; the Norwood, dwarf and compact—just

FOUR GENERATIONS OF BAYERSDORFERS.

The accompanying picture shows one of those rare family gatherings which, when possible, add so much of affectionate pathos to the lives of all who are so fortunate as to participate in them. Four generations all in full enjoyment of their faculties is some-the thing for made-up baskets, and you can't shake the petals off. Madame Petrick seems to be the main idea in azaleas, with Vervaeneana a fair second. Acres of crotons, garden-ias, dracaenas, pandanus, and such. As for Nephrolepis; as Robert Junior remarks: "We have Heinz and his 57 varieties lashed to the mast, when it comes to the Nephrolepis." G. C. W.

A VISIT TO MANHEIM, PA.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club made its first official visitation to this historic borough Nov. 30. Those who went were: Rudolph Nagle, chairman of the visiting committee, Harry Rohrer, Lemon Landis, Albert M. Herr, Abraham Rohrer, F. Spinner, David D. Shultz, Jacob Fleer and last but not least Frank Bachler. In addition to these from Lancaster we had B. J. Wiggins of New York, W. R. Denlinger of Vintage, Amos Rohrer of Strasburg, H. B. Weaver of Bird-in-hand, Elmer Weaver of Rancks, James Brown of Coatsville, and John Toland of Sadsburyville, also Henry Ginder and Benj. Wike.

Calls were made at the establishments of Munroe H. Hostetter, Pah-raes Hostetter and E. P. Hostetter. They all grow sweet peas, snapdragons, carnations and baby primroses for the wholesale market. The quality of the stock was high for sweet peas, fair for carnations and high for the other stock, grown at E. P. the largest of the three places, his smaller houses being 200 feet long. Three houses are devoted to Asparagus Sprengerii and one to plumosus sprays, one to mignonette, a number to carnations, peas and snapdragons. His 400 foot King-Construction house was an eye opener to some of the visitors.

A fine lunch was given by the three Hostetters and their wives, assisted by Mrs. Burkholder and Miss Florey. After a few speeches, back to Lancaster was the song and the first visit was pronounced a success by every one lucky enough to be with us.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

This office is in receipt of a spray of white heather from Frank M. Ross, with his compliments. We presume this is to wish us good luck—the white heather being par excellence the emblem. There is the usual good display in the florists' stores of pink and white ericas—and these meet with an eager demand from the more refined among the buyers—those who are acquainted with the historical and sentimental significance.

Visitors: Miss Schultheis, Scranton, Pa.; Mrs. Lou Dundore Moore, Lancaster, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. John Giles, Reading, Pa.; Charles Vorkeller, South Bethlehem, Pa.; Mrs. Minnie Haines Weber, Bethlehem, Pa.; Mr. Ballinger, manager Broadway Floral Co., South Bethlehem, Pa.; P. OBITUARY.

Peter Lauch.

Peter Lauch, a retired florist of Pittsburgh, Pa., died recently in his eighty-second year. He leaves three sons and two daughters.

Lee H. Bradley.

Lee H. Bradley, who for many years ran the florist business now conducted by his son, Smith T. Bradley, at 133 Grand avenue, New Haven, Conn., died suddenly of heart disease on December 6, aged 76 years. He leaves a wife and one son.

Walter Hart.

On November 25, Walter Hart, florist, of Pontiac, Mich., died, aged 79 years. He was a native of England, but came to the United States with his parents while quite young. He was first engaged as gardener and then entered business for himself. His wife and four children survive him.

Charles B. J. Noelke.

On December 6, Charles B. J. Noelke, florist, Seventh avenue and 131st street, New York, N. Y., died after a short illness with pneumonia. He had conducted his store for fifteen years and was well-known and liked. He was particularly interested in schools. Mr. Noelke was 62 years of age and leaves a widow.

Peter Kunst.

Peter Kunst, proprietor of the Crescent Avenue Floral Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., died on November 26, aged 75 years. Mr. Kunst began the business in 1875, his two sons later becoming associated with him. He came from the Netherlands and settled in Grand Rapids in 1865. He is survived by his wife, four sons and one daughter.

Francis Fillmore.

Francis Fillmore, aged 87, passed away at St. Mary's Hospital, St. Louis, on Friday, Dec. 6. His death was caused by an accident a week ago which broke his leg. He was the father of F. J. Fillmore, the well-known St. Louis florist. The funeral took place on Monday and the trade generally attended and extended their sympathy to the bereaved family. Mr. Fillmore was born at Wimbleton, England, in 1825 and came to this country in 1870.

Mrs. Anna Marie Schultz.

Mrs. Anna Marie Schultz passed away at her late residence 2927 23rd street, Northeast, Washington, D. C., on December 2, at the age of 73 years. She was a well known figure in this city having been connected with the business for half a century. At one time she and her husband were located on the north side of D street, near Seventh street, Northwest, where they had greenhouses, later taking a stand in the old Centre Market shed. Mrs. Schultz suffered the loss of her son in Philadelphia last month which proved quite a shock to her. She was the widow of the late Charles L. Schultz. Her son, Charles, is continuing the business at the Centre Market.

AUTO DELIVERY

Henry A. Dreer sends us photographs of the vans used in the auto delivery system recently adopted by that house. As many of our readers are, no doubt, contemplating the substituting of autos for horse service, the following notes from Dreer's will prove interesting:

"Last winter we laid the foundation of this system by installing a three-are received from customers residing in the city and nearby suburban towns.

"The present 'Dreer Delivery System' consists of one three-ton Packard van, which is automatically heated during cold weather; one three-ton Packard truck with tarpaulin sides and one two-ton Autocar, all of which are efficiently handled by men who formerly had charge of our horse-drawn vehicles.

ton Packard van and soon learned that this is the ideal manner of handling such large quantities of goods as must be moved quickly during the busy season. With these auto trucks we not only make quick delivery to railroad and steamship companies of orders for shipment to customers living at a distance, but are also enabled to quickly deliver the orders which

"Besides the great advantage of quick service, this 'Auto System' together with a complete telephone service, brings us in such close communication with the nurseries nine miles distant, that we are now enabled to conduct our seed and plant business in as satisfactory a manner as would be the case were they under the same roof."

Seed Trade

Baltimore Analyzed.

Amadis tells me I should forget it, and adds, "You'll only get yourself disliked." "True, Oh sage," is my reply, "but I have so many dear friends in that old town—who have stood by me through thick and thin—both in a business and social way these past thirty years, that I feel impelled to be the disinterested friend of the family and say things."

"Ha, Ha!" says Amadis, "I see your finish!" Which brash remark—while making me more careful—in no way detracts from the sincerity of anything I may have to say about My Maryland. She has such a glorious history behind her and such a splendid future that the candid visitor and friend fears nothing of favor here or hereafter in telling his impressions. The outsider sees things so much clearer than the native that it really is a service to give the impressions candidly and truthfully.

The wholesale seed trade of Baltimore—say what you will—is the peer of them all. Clean cut, shrewd, far-seeing men, as were their fathers before them, and their hold on the Atlantic seaboard trade is impressive and convincing. One may ask why Philadelphia, New York or Boston should not lead in this trade. To our mind the sole answer is "the man." The breed was there and still remains—and with it the trade. That's mainly why Baltimore is such a big factor in the wholesale seed trade of America.

And there are signs of the younger generation of the retail seedsmen of Baltimore taking their true place in the near future. I have met many of the younger men in that line of late and look for big things within the next few years. The old ramshackle chaos of the "front shop" is going to disappear and wide, roomy, clean, orderly, daylight system and scientific arrangement is going to emerge. The leaven is working now and before long there will be the spick-and-span of Dreer, Henderson, Stumpp, Fiske or Farquhar and everything systematized to the minute. Then when that time comes we shall hear no such remarks in the Emerson or the Belvidere as, "Oh, yes, I wanted a lot of that but of course we did not have it in Baltimore so I sent to New York for it." That kind of talk ought to make a seedsman of a metropolitan city like Baltimore blush, and yet it is common enough.

In the flower selling end of the business there are also hopeful signs. The old standbys from the fine foundations of their forefathers—the Feasts, the Hallidays, the Cooks and others—are holding their own. And there are many younger men in the field also showing good promise. But from a casual glance it seems rather remarkable that all these florists should be sitting idly by while the biggest plant business in the city, (palms, ferns, araucarias, and so forth), is being done by one of the seed houses!—Mercy!!

When you want to go anywhere in Baltimore ask a policeman or get a taxi. There are no signs on the street corners. They were all burnt up in the fire.

The Third Generation of Hendersons.

Two grandsons of the late Peter Henderson have recently associated themselves with the house of Peter Henderson & Co., New York. One, the namesake of his distinguished grandfather and son of the late Alfred Henderson, is a graduate of Yale College. The other, Howard Henderson, son of the present head of the company, Charles Henderson, spent two years at Cornell University. That the long-established repute of this honored house, which, since the death of Peter Henderson has been so ably maintained, will be energetically protected and extended in the coming days when these two promising young men will be called upon to assume that responsibility, will not be doubted by anyone who has had the pleasure of meeting them.

Some Very Seedy Verses.

Secretary Wilson's annual report will show that his department has distributed 34,000,000 packages of seeds during the last year.—News Item.

The wealth of Ormus and of Ind—
He has it quite completely skinned.
You merely tickle with a hoe
The fallow field in row and row.
Then write to Uncle Jim,
And when you've heard from him
Just drop his answer in,
And somewhat later, I—
You gather "tin"
In form of carrots, cabbages or corn,
While Plenty tips her horn.

So over all the land is seen
His trade mark written green
In field and garden fair,
Jim and old nature make a coking pair!

Milford, Conn.—The new seed warehouse for F. H. Woodruff & Sons is about finished and will be fully equipped and stocked for business by January 1.

Clover-seed shipments from Austria-Hungary have been very large this year, the amount for the first six months being 8 4-5 million pounds, against 5 3-5 millions pounds in the same period last year. The United States bought 25 million pounds of clover seed in the fiscal year 1911, but only 2 per cent. of it is credited as coming from Austria-Hungary.

Owing to rather poor health recently, Chas. N. Page, of the Iowa Seed Co., started for California last week, to be gone about six weeks. He will visit the seed growers in the Sacramento, Santa Clara, Arroyo Grande, and Ventura districts, where they are now setting out onions, beets, carrots and other roots for seed production, ending his trip at San Diego, where he will spend the holidays with his wife and three of his children, who are staying there this winter. He expects to return to Des Moines, about January 12th to 15th.

ASPARAGUS RUST.

Breeders and growers of asparagus are advised by the U. S. Department of Agriculture through Bulletin 263, Bureau of Plant Industry, to take up pedigree breeding and to use careful methods of production in order to keep rust from the plant.

On the subject the Bulletin says:

"Although the breeding work carried on with asparagus will eventually lead to the control of rust in commercial plantings several years must elapse before this result will become effective. Meanwhile it is necessary to take all measures practicable to prevent the destruction of existing fields of asparagus by the rust. To this end the main factor is to keep the rust away from the fields in summer just as long as possible.

"Wild asparagus growing around the borders of the fields, along fences, and ditches is one of the worst enemies of the growers. These wild plants act as infection centers and their influence can be easily traced later in the season when the cutting beds have grown up. Wild plants wherever found should be dug up and burned. New beds should be planted at only rare intervals of time and then if possible where they will be to windward of a cutting bed. Keep the seedlings out of the cutting bed, at least let none stay in at the time the bed is allowed to grow up after the cutting season. Allow no poor shoots to grow up in the cutting field. Keep down every shoot of asparagus until the middle of June and see that the neighboring farmers do the same. In the fall the tops should be removed carefully from one-year-old beds that are not to be cut the next year. This will in a large measure reduce the liability of infection from this source."

SEA SHORE LAWN MAKING.

Of course, you need a foot of soil from some good old pasture land. We all know that. But before starting here is something which very few know (at least I didn't know until Paul Huebner told me), a four or five-inch layer of salt hay! Not a thin spreading, but a good thick covering. Six inches wouldn't hurt. Another important point: Before you put the soil on dampen the salt hay. Turn the hose on strong. That solidifies it and keeps the soil from getting through. Mr. Huebner states that it is wonderful how long this salt hay layer lasts. There seems to be some important chemical reaction which cannot be easily explained; but anyhow—there's the wrinkle. The salt hay layer keeps the good soil from leaching away and your lawn is a success. We have been long familiar with the layer of clay underneath for the same purpose. Salt hay is just as good if not better than clay and far cheaper. This wrinkle takes its place, if I'm spared to tell it often enough, with the crab-grass remedy.

As for the seeds to sow for a lawn at the seashore there's nothing better than "a good lawn mixture" composed of about ten varieties, including: Poa pratensis, Cynosurus cristatus, Festuca duriuscula, Agrostis stolonifera, and other dwarf, fine-leaved perennial sorts—such as all first-class seed houses know how to formulate.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE SOIL SURVEYS.

During the fiscal year 1912, the Bureau of Soils, according to the annual report of Professor Milton Whitney, chief of bureau, made 181,114 square miles or 115,912,960 acres of soil surveys in the country or a total area 50 per cent larger than the area of great Britain and Ireland combined.

The work was distributed in 28 states. 31,304 square miles were surveyed in detail, and 149,810 square miles were made on a reconnaissance scale. Since the Bureau of Soils was organized about 10 years ago 622,595 square miles of detailed and reconnaissance soil surveys have been made by the bureau, making a total of 29 per cent of the soils of the country, which have been classified and mapped.

Cooperation work between the bureau, and the states of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, New Jersey, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin was performed during the year.

Why HORTICULTURE has stood the test as a profitable Advertising medium for the trade.

Because It is read by the men of standing and influence in the Horticultural field, every one of whom is a prospective buyer.

Why HORTICULTURE is so widely read.

Because Its contents are distinctly representative of American Horticulture and are thus indispensable to the Florist, Nurseryman, Seedsman and Gardener.

An Admirer of HORTICULTURE in the Central West writes; "It has won on its merits. It is our most prized weekly visitor."

And Now How HORTICULTURE has managed to elbow its way in between its older rivals and why the best trade advertisers find it an indispensable auxiliary.

It's No Secret That the men who read HORTICULTURE are the sort of men that advertisers like to talk to and if you have anything to advertise you can't afford to get along without them

SOILS.

(Read by Alfred Burton, before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia.)

What is soil? Soil is the home of the roots of the plant. Soil is the storehouse for that part of the food which the plant takes in through its roots. Soil is the laboratory or kitchen where the food is prepared. And this work goes on unceasingly. Lastly soil is a support to hold the plant firmly in its place.

But what is soil? Soil is finely divided rock as can be readily seen with a microscope, clay being the finest and sand and gravel the coarsest of the divisions. In between the sand and the clay, we have what are generally known as loamy sand, sandy loam, loam, clayey loam, loamy clay and clay. These divisions are based upon the size of the soil grains and the different percentages of each size in a given soil. They are, of course, not arbitrarily fixed, there being unnumbered variations of soils.

Now if we consider soils as broken and decomposed rock, the first question that comes to our mind is, how and when were the rocks which originally covered the face of the earth converted into soil. Certainly ages and ages before man appeared on the earth. In fact before animal life of any kind could exist there must have been vegetation; and vegetation of the higher forms could not exist on bare rocks. Probably the commencement of the disintegration was coincident with the appearance of plant life in the lowest form.

Geologists tell us that the earth was once a molten mass, also that the water which now composes the oceans, was probably in the form of a dense vapor which surrounded the red hot earth. Naturally, the earth began to cool, and as it cooled, it contracted. The result of this was that the surface subsided in some places and wrinkled in others, thus producing the sea basins, valleys and hills. When the surface had cooled sufficiently, (and this cooling was hastened by the vapor in the air) the vapor condensed and fell as rain or snow, and thus began to wear or weather the rock. Frost and heat assisted the water in disintegrating and breaking up the surface. Sometime after the surface had cooled sufficiently vegetation began its existence. First in almost microscopic forms, the mosses and lichens which are able to extract nourishment from almost any rock. These by their death and decay formed a very thin film of vegetable matter on the rock and a stronger growth took place which in turn died, decayed and gave way to a still stronger and higher form of vegetation, and so on till grass, shrubs and even trees were able to exist. This decayed vegetable matter in the soil is called humus. And this humus helps to disintegrate the rock by holding moisture and by supplying acids which increase the solvent powers of the water on the rock. When a soil contains much of this humus, it is called a vegetable mold. Rich garden soils are good representatives of this class. A soil that contains vegetable matter that has only partly decomposed under water is called peaty soil. Such soils are found in swamps and bogs and are generally sour and need to be aerated and limed before using.

While organic matter or humus is by no means indispensable to plant life, and though it is a debatable question whether plants derive any nourishment from it direct, it is of great importance in enabling the soil to hold water, in making the soil more friable and easily worked, and in supplying carbonic acid which feeds the plant, and acts on the soil dissolving and making available other foods such as soda, potash and magnesium which are held in an insoluble state in the soil. Humus also gives the dark color to the soil which enables it to absorb the best rays of the sun more readily and thus warm up more quickly in the spring.

True clay is composed of silicate of alumina but the term clay in agriculture is employed rather loosely, being given to soils that contain a large percentage of impalpable rock dust with very little of the true clay present. Some authorities give the following percentage composition of the various soils:

	Clay or impalpable matter, Per cent.	Sand, Per cent.
Heavy clay contains	75 to 90	10 to 25
Clay loam "	60 to 75	25 to 40
Loam "	40 to 60	40 to 60
Sandy loam "	25 to 40	60 to 75
Light sandy loam	10 to 25	75 to 90
Sand contains	0 to 10	90 to 100

These percentages are by weight of the dry soil. We hear the terms light and heavy applied to soils. These terms have no reference to the weight of the soil but are used in reference to the mechanical condition. A light soil is one that contains considerable sand, falls apart and works easily. A heavy soil is one that is stiff and tenacious, with more clay than sand. It is a fact that a heavy soil actually weighs less than a light one.

A tenacious or adhesive clay soil can be greatly improved by the addition of sand, lime or vegetable matter, which tend to separate the particles of clay. It is this adhesiveness of clay which causes heavy soils to crack when drying. Clay expands very much more than light soils when wet and shrinks upon drying and owing to the adhesiveness of the particles of which it is composed, the shrinking causes the cracks to appear. These cracks are naturally injurious to the roots of the plants, breaking and pulling them apart. Sand does not change its bulk by wetting or drying. Likewise a sandy soil can be improved mechanically by the addition of clay, lime or vegetable matter. Lime has the peculiar power of lightening heavy soils and also of making light soils hold together better. Bringing the two extremes to a happy mean as it were.

The general chemical composition of soils is extremely similar, owing to the general mixing of the soil ingredients that has been going on since soil first began to form. Through the action of water dissolving and carrying material from place to place, through the action of streams, floods and glaciers, of burrowing animals, worms, etc., of the wind and even plants. Silica or quartz, because it is so hard and insoluble, is the chief ingredient both by volume and weight of all soils. It is a combination of silicon and oxygen. Aluminum probably comes next in abundance, being a fundamental constituent of true clay, feldspar and ice mica. Some of the other elements in the soil are oxygen, which occurs free and in combination with nearly all the other elements. Carbon occurs as part of the humus, also united with calcium and magnesium in the form of carbonates; also as carbonic acid gas which plays such an important part in the solution of plant food. Sulphur occurs as sulphates. Hydrogen is united with oxygen in the water. Chlorine occurs in limited quantities generally in the form of common salt sodium chloride. It seems to be in some way essential to plant life. Phosphorus is never found in nature in a free state but always combined with some other substance. It is very generally distributed through the soil but in small quantities and is very essential to plant life. Nitrogen is found in the soil in a combined form in the humus and the vegetable and animal matter, which upon decaying give up the nitrogen in the form of ammonia, which is turned into nitric acid by bacteria. The nitric acid unites with potash, soda or other soil ingredients and is taken up by the plant as a nitrate. Nitrates are extremely soluble and easily washed out of the soil. Calcium and magnesium in the form of carbonates compose the limestone beds of the earth. Both calcium carbonate or lime, and magnesia are necessary plant foods, and both are generally present in the soil in sufficient quantities to supply the plant with the required amount. Potassium is another element found in soils which is very necessary. It is widely distributed as a constituent of some feldspars and micas. Sodium, which is the base of common salt is also widely distributed, it very much resembles potassium as a chemical element, but can in no sense take its place in plant life. Iron is always present in the soil in sufficient quantities for the plant.

It would be supposed, that to find what foods were necessary for soils, all that would be necessary would be a chemical analysis of the particular soil. Then if any element was found to be lacking in sufficient quantity, the addition of this or these elements would give the desired results. But chemical analysis of the soil as they have been made, unfortunately can and do throw but a very dim and uncertain light upon either the condition of the amount of plant food a soil may contain.

It is true that the results of these analyses show a marked difference in soils, but from the data at hand, these variations may reasonably be supposed to be due more to the relative size of the soil grains than to any chemical differences in the composition of the soil. Taking an average of different analyses of soils, the following has been stated by one writer. On a farm where a three year rotation composed of corn, clover and oats was followed. The corn and oats being sold, and the straw, fodder and clover returned to the ground, the soil would contain potash enough to last 1521 years, soda 4050 years, magnesia 3300 years, lime 4367 years; phosphoric acid, only 542 years, sulphuric acid 292 years, and soluble silica 17,650 years.

These amounts of plant food are what chemical analyses have told us were in the top foot of soil, and we know that plants send their roots foraging two, three and four feet down. And the subsoil is sometimes richer in certain ingredients than the surface or top soil.

Seeing these figures a man taking up farming who was not familiar with agricultural or horticultural pursuits would think it superfluous to add any more of these elements to his ground. When his fields contained already nearly two tons P2 O5 in each acre and over three tons K2 O, of what earthly use would it be to add a paltry 25 or 50 pounds more? Why, it would be lost. A chemist with the most accurate and careful analyses could never find it. It would be money thrown away.

But we know from practical experience that ninety-nine times out of a hundred his crops would be increased more than enough to pay for the manure or fertilizer added. We know that in spite of these figures, which there is no reason at all to doubt, soils do need fertilizing, they do play out, that farms do run down and become unproductive. And only by feeding can the soil be kept up to its fertility. So we cannot be governed by a chemical analyses as to the different elements our soils need. The only way is by trials, experiments and careful observation.

The most important thing in considering a soil, to my mind is the mechanical condition. Is it too stiff or too light for your purpose? Has it enough humus or organic matter incorporated in it? The proportions of clay, loam and sand can be readily ascertained in a laboratory with a simple apparatus, the percentage of humus can also be ascertained by analysis. But a practical man can judge a soil very closely by feeling it and observing how it works. Fortunately for the florist, he uses a comparatively small amount of soil, measuring it by the load instead of the acre, and can afford to amend or ameliorate his soil and so change its mechanical condition to suit his particular needs. In all probabilities, the greatest necessity will be humus. The cheapest way to add this is by plowing under a growing crop. Legumes are always preferable for green manuring as it is called, because they increase the amount of nitrogen in the soil and nitrogen is the most expensive element of plant food we have to buy. It is well to lime the soil before sowing a crop to be turned under, as adding a large quantity of green material is apt to sour the soil for a little while, also the legume family do better in soil that contains lime. It seems to be necessary for the proper development of the bacteria which cause the nodules to appear on the roots of clover and the other legumes.

Soils, generally, have the power of fixing the plant food added to them. By fixing, we mean holding the food in such a state that it cannot be washed out by the rain. This is true of phosphoric acid and potash, but nitrogen is very easily lost by leaching in the form of nitrates and under certain conditions escaping into the air as free N. The best way to hold the nitrogen is to keep the fields filled with growing crops, catch crops as they are called. These make use of the nitrogen and return it to the soil when plowed under. But it is only the clovers and others of that family that add more nitrogen than was originally in the soil. Clays hold the plant food more firmly than sandy soils and the same is true of moisture. Humus also helps to hold the moisture by absorbing it in the same way a sponge does, while clay holds it by surrounding it as though it were in a cup.

Oxygen or fresh air is very necessary to the soil to promote the growth of the innumerable bacteria that are always present in a fertile soil and to assist the chemical reactions that are continually going on. When the water in soil evaporates or is used by the plant, air rushes in to take its place. When more water is added, air and any injurious gases which may have been formed is driven out, and when this water is gone more fresh air is taken in. Also fresh air is taken into the soil at night. When the evening comes on, the soil cools and shrinks and air is drawn in to fill the vacant spaces. The opposite occurs when the soil grains expand with the heat in the morning. So you might say that the soil takes a breath once every twenty-four hours.

Get This Loose Leaf Book Now— We Send it Free

FROM these pages shown you would think it a book on boilers; but it's more than that a lot more. It's a Florists' Supply Book of greenhouse materials. The first half is devoted to greenhouse heating. Not just boilers, pipes and fittings, but pages of useful information such as you have wanted time and time again. There are 108 pages in the book now, but it's made up loose leaf fashion, so more pages can be added.

It works like this: We send you the book of 108 pages now; and then every once in a while (perhaps oftener) we will mail you additional pages all ready for putting right in the book. All you have to do is, simply turn back a couple of fasteners and in the pages go.

Every time we get out a new thing of importance we will promptly print up some pages about it and mail them to you.

You can see that such a book will be invaluable to you, because it can always be kept right up to date.

Send for copy right now, while it's on your mind. Don't put it off till tomorrow, for day after tomorrow you may need it badly.

ANOTHER one of our splendid CURVED EAVE HOUSES. The owner of this beautiful Hudson River Estate instructed us to remove a house that was built by another concern and erect our PATENT CONSTRUCTION in its place. You will note that we placed the old section of house on the left. The owner now feels satisfied that in winter weather the view from the library windows will be more pleasing, as it always annoyed him to see the old house covered with ice and snow at the eave line. The LUTTON CONSTRUCTION will not retain any ice or snow and the house is just one big bubble of light. Do you wonder why it is that we erect such a large amount of glass each year, and on some of the largest private estates and public parks throughout the country.

MEN who try to do something and fail are infinitely better than men who try to do nothing and succeed. When Daniel Webster came up before the Bar Association for his legal examination he was told to go back and study—that he didn't know his lessons. He replied that he thought the best way to learn law was to practice it. He was finally admitted, and proved to be one of the greatest lawyers and statesmen the world has ever known. It is practice, after all, that makes perfect. The same principle applies to the lily growing business. Some florists have had results and get cold feet. You would not quit business just because a customer failed to pay you—no, you would keep right on working that much harder, to make up. Same in lily growing—if you don't succeed at first try again—and be sure and try harder. Perhaps you don't know how to treat lilies—ask, if you are not sure. But keep right on, plant more, work harder, and bring the general average up to standard, so you can pay for past experiences. Faint heart never won fair lilies. The growers who stick to it, through thick and thin, are the ones who finally make money. Get good reliable bulbs—Horseshoe Brand Giganteum—use them right, and they will make money for you. They are the best in the world—no exceptions. Growing instructions upon application. Order your Cold Storage Giganteum now for delivery throughout 1913—the following are present prices—storage free—payme it 60 days after delivery.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Azalea mollis

Where you have quite a lot of Azalea mollis that was potted some time ago and placed in a deep cold frame, now is a good time to start a batch, which will take about eight weeks to come into flower. For the first two or three weeks they will be better in a cool house of about 45 degrees at night as they like a slow start. After this they can be placed where the temperature will run from 55 to 58 degrees at night. Keep the atmosphere in a nice moist state until they begin to show color, when they should be given a cooler and drier house. See that they are always given enough water at the roots to keep them moist. Do not overlook when bringing them into warmer quarters to begin to give them a syringing at least twice a day, which is of great benefit in making them break good; this can be continued until they begin to show color.

Dutch Hyacinths

The first planted batch of Dutch hyacinths should have by this time a heavy mass of roots, and should be placed in a moderately warm house, say from 55 to 60 degrees at night. In the early part of the year there is always trouble getting a good length of stem, so it is important to place the plants in an absolutely dark place, until they show the desired length of stem, when they can gradually be brought into full light, and will do fine on an elevated bench or shelf. Here they will develop intense color, with spikes strong and stout and will keep and sell well. See that none of them become dry at the roots, for when flats or pans are a mass of roots they will take water in great abundance. When allowed to suffer for the want of it they will not produce good spikes. So see that they get rightful share of attention at all times.

Lilies for Easter

It is opportune now to make a few remarks on lilies that you intend for Easter. It is well to bear in mind that next Easter falls on the early date of March 23rd. So now is not a bit too early to house all lilies intended for that date. When your stock is well rooted, which they should be by this time, they can be placed on a bench well up to the glass and where they can have abundance of light. Do not place them in strong heat at the start but give them a temperature of about 50 degrees at first. In about two weeks as growth progresses you can give another five degrees and so on, gradually increasing the temperature until you have them up to 65 degrees at night, which should bring them along on time. When they have made good stem and foliage and seem to be backward by the first of February you can give 70 degrees at night. Use great care in watering; make it a point to keep each and every pot in a moist state, as they should never be allowed to become either dry or in a soaked state. Give ventilation on all possible occasions, but not enough to lower the temperature. During all bright days give them a good syringing and fumigate once a week moderately to keep down the aphids.

Dendrobiums

All dendrobiums such as nobile, Devonianum, and Wardianum, that have completed their growth, should have their season of rest by keeping them drier at the roots and by removing them to a cooler house, where they can have a temperature of about 48 degrees at night, with ten degrees higher with sun heat. At this period they will stand full sun, which is very important where you want good flowering canes. To help these orchids to lapse into a dormant state they will need but very little water at the roots. This should be brought about gradually, a little less each time, until they become well hardened up, but never allow them to shrivel from dryness at the root. During bright sunshine they should have a good syringing overhead, which will help them out materially. Ventilation plays a very important part in finishing them up also, so when the outside conditions will allow admit plenty of air. All such species as Dendrobium Findlayanum, thyrsiflorum, densiflorum, bigibulum, etc., will have to be rested at night in order to come out in good shape. While water should be gradually withheld these species will not endure so much drought as the others named above.

The Propagating Bench

The time is rapidly drawing near with the fading away of the old year, when all growers will want to increase stock. Those who have a well-working propagating house with a reliable system of heating have nine points of the success under their control, but where this is not available you will have to use a bench in some one of your houses where the sun's rays can be excluded but leaving plenty of light. See that the bench is above heating pipes that are evenly distributed and with working valves that can be opened or shut as the case may require. A good rule is to maintain a steady temperature in the sand of from 5 to 10 degrees higher than that in which the plants were grown. For the bottom of the bench place an inch of broken tufty soil, moss, gravel or any other coarse but clean material; this will produce good drainage. On this you can place two to three inches of finely sifted clean sand. Spread it even all over and then leave it well firmed. With a good watering your bench will then be ready.

Petunias

Give stock plants of double petunias a light bench and well up to the light so they will start and make some good cuttings. They like a temperature of about 55 degrees at night with 10 to 15 degrees higher with sunshine. Keep them watered and syringed and they will soon produce a fine batch of cuttings. When rooted they can be potted into 2½-inch pots using any good potting soil, keeping them shaded for a few days until they make new roots, when they should have a place with full exposure to the sun.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Carnations for propagation; care of Rambler roses; Dracaena indivisa; Forcing Lilacs; Hydrangeas; Verbenas.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Melons

Melons at Christmas will be acceptable anywhere no matter what the extent of other delicacies. At this time of year it is a difficult matter to always get the same flavor into the fruits as that attained during the summer months. With a cooler air outside, the ventilators have to be kept closer which is a disadvantage when the finishing period commences. Keep the heating pipes warm always, reduce the night temperature 5 degrees, and give as much air as the weather permits. During very severe weather or with cold winds blowing the vents will probably have to be kept closed, but get a crack of air on, however, as soon as possible. Keep the roots on the dry side, yet keep the plants from wilting. Very little moisture will be needed in the house at this time. Some varieties are liable to crack open the fruits when watered after being half dry for a time. This can be checked by partly cutting the stem of any fruit not ripening.

Pruning Figs

A fig tree is a weird looking object when divested of its foliage. The pruning is of the same order as a peach tree, only twice the distance must be left between each growth. Cut away any weak or superfluous growths, leaving all the young wood possible; this carries the first of the three crops a fig should bear. As with all other trees early pruning is advisable and a clean cut should always be made with a knife. Where any very thick wood necessitates the use of a saw the cut should be smoothed off with a sharp knife afterwards. Any trees growing in pots or tubs, having a bush-shaped top should have the center opened out well, otherwise the crowding will produce weak and useless wood. Each growth must have space in which to develop its large foliage.

Making a Peach Border

A peach requires the same root confinement as a vine and also a good drainage. Up to the time of mixing the soil their requirements are identical. The walls are to extend down to the floor or bottom of the border, this to be properly graded to a drain to carry off the water, and sufficient drainage made of broken bricks to cover the whole floor. The soil does not need to be so rich as that composing a vine border. Fresh sod should be used without the addition of any manures. Sufficient broken bricks, about the size of one's fist, and a little charcoal should be added to keep the soil porous. If lime rubble is on hand mix in some of this also. This is applicable to all heavy soils. Sandy or gravelly soils will not require the opening material. A peach will often make heavy growths devoid of flower buds when planted in a new border having a full complement of soil. This can only be avoided by using shallow boxes for the first season, that is, where cross trellises are used. Borders in lean-to houses can be made up gradually as a vine border is. Root pruning will check all trees having a tendency to make heavy wood and is quite safe when done at the proper time. The compost must be properly mixed and as each layer of soil is added have it rammed down firm, which will help to make a sturdier and better growth and there is no danger of the water not passing through, as the broken bricks and charcoal facilitate this. When planting young trees see that the roots are spread out evenly and are not put more than three inches deep.

Beans (Bush)

When beans are grown under ordinary normal conditions the chances of trouble are much less than when they are being rushed. It frequently happens that a bench or house of beans is put in as a catch crop and has to be out in quick time. Such conditions demand the maximum heat, resulting in a weaker plant with less resistant powers against disease; 58 to 60 is a good growing (night) temperature for beans, yet they will grow in one of 70 to 75. When you have a house with the latter temperature for beans, keep a sharp lookout for trouble of one kind or another. Damping and mildew will be the two worst. Careful airing is the only thing to prevent the latter and where it does appear dust over the plants with a little sulphur. Damping can be caused by excessive watering or too humid an atmosphere. Crowded parts of the rows are always the first to become affected. Where two or three seeds have been dropped together it will pay to thin them out. Any seedlings that have decayed at the collar should be removed at once to prevent the disease from spreading. The greatest preventive of all this trouble is a crack of air on the house all day (and night too, if it should be mild). This keeps the atmosphere buoyant and fresh.

The older generation of gardeners were always insistent for that crack of air to be put on right early and they knew what they were doing. That alone will keep the plants healthy and strong. Even where a crop is traveling at express speed it will pay to keep a "crack of air" on during mild weather. Too close an atmosphere is the cause of lots of our troubles in the vegetable houses.

Using Cyanide

We have an inquiry from J. B., Auburndale, relative to fumigating tomatoes with cyanide potassium to kill white fly. The proportions usually used are 1 oz. cyanide potassium, 2 oz. sulphuric acid, and 4 oz. water to 10,000 cubic feet. This is using Merck's 98 to 100 per cent pure cyanide, which is a reliable article. By using this only you can be sure of attaining the same results each time, which is not always the case when buying the loose stuff at the drug stores. This variation in strength of the cyanide, together with the temperature of the house at the time of using it is accountable for so many accidents and criticisms of its use. Always have the house dry and cool, about 5 degrees cooler than the usual night temperature and no harm will be done to the plants. When using this in the summer time wait for a cool night. One oz. of cyanide has been used in a house of 8000 cubic feet with good and safe results. It takes experience to use it at this rate.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

The Christmas Rush

With us the rush is not so confusing as in some places, for there is nothing like being prepared several days, yes weeks ahead of time. We do not mean that roses should or can be held back, but on the average place there are always more or less retail orders for Christmas, and those places that handle potted plants will find it a great help to have boxes all made and paper cut and in fact all that will be needed, ready in advance. The express companies will be handling parcels by the carload as the season advances and experience will tell you best what that means. Be sure to have plenty of paper on hand, for there is no telling what the weather will be. A little wax paper will do no harm and if you have not had the habit of using it then this is your chance to try it out. You will find it pays to use a little where ordinary tissue paper would quickly become soaked and worse than useless.

You will also find that two sheets of paper on the outside of a box are equal to three on the inside, so better be prepared to use both in the severe winter weather.

The Coal Bin

Never mind if there is a "hole" in it. It will not do to run the houses cold just to save a little coal. You will gain absolutely nothing by it in the long run, for roses must have their 60 degrees at night. We say 60 degrees, that being the average night temperature, which as we all know must be varied according to the location, conditions, and last and most important of all, the variety grown, some taking more heat while others take less, but the difference is only two or three degrees at the most.

Keeping Record of the Weather

This may seem rather useless at first, but you will find it rather interesting after a while. These records prove quite valuable after they have been kept for several years, enabling the recorder to predict the weather almost without fail. This may seem all out of place here in the rose department where there are hundreds of other problems to think about, yet just a little change of subject will do no harm.

Mildew

During the cloudy dark days of the winter keep on the lookout for this disease which is bound to prove disastrous if allowed to gain any headway. Prevention is the only remedy, as there is no cure. Mildew can be killed quite easily but the spots on the foliage will always remain. Should a little appear then kill it and watch that the young growth does not get any more mildew, as the little leaves will not develop at all, giving the shoots a bare stunted appearance.

The simplest way to kill mildew is to apply a little sulphur to the steam pipes, where steam is used for heating. Spraying with some good fungicide is equally effective, and is more convenient at times. In using sulphur be very careful how you do so, for sulphur fumes are deadly poison to plant growth and will kill the foliage much quicker than mildew itself. Apply only a little about every ten or twenty feet on one pipe in each house. We generally count one house as twenty feet wide, allowing an extra pipe or two for each additional twenty feet of width. The prevention of mildew in the wide house is much easier than in the old 18-foot three-quarter span. The reason for this is that the large roomy houses are less apt to get a sudden change of temperature, for the small houses require but little clouds to bring the temperature right down, and they are up quickly again at the slightest streak of sunshine.

Red Spider

We are very sorry for the man who has an awful dose of spider to fight in the middle of the winter. This fall we have had unusually clear weather, and there is no reason why the roses should not be clean. If you are troubled in this respect do not lose any time in doing what you can to keep bad from getting worse. Use some good insecticide, and do so as often as is safe without hurting the plants. Syringe thoroughly every time you get a chance. Do not forget to shake the plants well right after, to make sure they dry off quite well before the sun sets. Also do not neglect to blow plenty of air-slacked lime underneath, to dry out the atmosphere under the lower leaves.

Pinching Wood for Propagation

Now is the time to pinch out all the real short growths to have the wood for early propagation. It will pay you to do this, insuring plenty of good strong cuttings, something which is quite impossible by the old method of taking only blind-wood cuttings. Killarneys have but very little blind wood and the few cuttings from these seldom grow into the strong healthy plants that are required. Remember it costs no more to have good, strong plants, than it does to keep a lot of scrubs, and it does not take an expert to tell which pay the best in the long run. In short, be careful to take wood from only strong, healthy plants, so that you can expect to have good young plants. Start right if you start at all.

outlook?"—then something must be said. As to the situation in the plant line, the fact that growers of holiday plants generally report—"sold out," "nothing left to advertise," etc.—makes it look as though the story of the plant trade from the growers' view-point, at least, was already written, nothing being left for them to do but to collect the money. In the "holiday greens and supplies" department which, in common with the plantsman's product, usually sizes itself up well ahead of Christmas, the same sort of talk is heard—"more orders now than we possibly can fill"; "cannot accept any more business!" Turning to the cutflower question, we find the situation about as in other years—forebodings and uncertainty regarding certain leading items, and, among the growers of these staples, a disposition to hold stock in reserve and place an enhanced price on same for even present delivery.

The why and why not of price advance

Now a word about the enhanced price. On carnations, which, by common knowledge, have been flowering very scantily this fall, the reports from nearly all producing centres are to the effect that the crop now in sight is the lightest for years and that a holiday famine is inevitable, especially on red varieties. Yet there are several carnation growers whom we have interviewed who frankly acknowledge having a full crop coming in just on time and all of superlative quality. As to the rose man and those who handle his wares at wholesale, most of them are, like their carnation brethren, disposed to stand on the time-worn ground of an unavoidably short supply due to weather conditions, etc., as a basis for better prices. That figures on American Beauty, Richmond and other red roses will soar rapidly for the next few days and attain a surprising altitude is freely predicted in all markets. How near all these prognostications are to be proven nobody knows. Long experience naturally leads us to take them with many "grains of salt," but allowing that scarcity will be felt in every item where special scarcity is predicted we would respectfully suggest that this fact hardly furnishes justification for any sudden boosting of prices for Christmas delivery of the many other flowers with which the wholesale markets are sure to be supplied in practically inexhaustible quantity.

A warning

The trouble is that the whole exaggerated system of holiday flower prices has been so long in vogue and the habit has become so confirmed that it is not easy to drop it. Yet under the conditions of supply now existing we cannot get away from the conviction that any florist who, by adherence to the methods of former days when complete dearths were a reality and augmented prices on every available flower unavoidable, discourages the purchasing and use of flowers as a holiday gift by anyone, whether humble or opulent, does a serious and lasting injury to his business in general and his own prospects in particular. Our Chicago correspondent mentions the tremendous call for "red ruscus" this year and the increasing use of this and other preserved and dyed material as substitutes for flowers in florists' window decorations. This tendency, we might add, is not confined to Chicago but seems to be quite general. It may be well for us to ask ourselves whether this displacement of the fresh flower by artificial material is due in any way to our past policy and methods and, if so, how long we can persist in antiquated practices in the face of this new menace. When the danger signal is set it behooves everyone on the road to take due notice.

Predictions regarding the flower market, especially at this season of the year, are always in the "extra hazardous" class, as everybody realizes, so we naturally approach the subject with the proper amount of fear and trembling. Yet when one is repeatedly called upon to reply to the question—"What seems to be the general

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The election of officers was the principal business before this club at its regular meeting on Tuesday evening, Dec. 17. It was remarked by many that the attendance seemed hardly in keeping with the importance of the occasion, being light as compared with the average attendance at these monthly meetings. This was undoubtedly due to the fact that there was really no contest on to live things up, there being but one candidate for each office except vice-president and executive committee, and it transpired regarding the latter that very few were willing to accept the job, two gentlemen even declining to serve after having been elected by ballot.

The result of the election was finally decided as follows: President, W. J. Kennedy; vice-president, Herman Bartsch; secretary, W. N. Craig; treasurer, Peter Fisher; executive committee, Peter M. Miller, W. J. Patterson, Robert S. Edgar and W. C. Rust. A very good set of officers and the coming year should show some good practical work put through. President-elect Kennedy has given good proof of his sincerity and ability as a presiding officer when, as vice-president he has been called upon to fill the chair during most of the past year on account of the disability of ex-president Pegler.

Wm. Downs reported for the landscape class committee that two very excellent instructors, Messrs. Aldrich and Smith had been secured for the season. The course begins this week and class will meet regularly on Tuesday evenings at Horticultural Hall, Boston, for sixteen weeks. An earnest appeal was made by Mr. Downs to the young men of the club to take advantage of this rare opportunity to secure instruction in one of the most lucrative and beneficial fields of horticultural skill and W. H. Elliott spoke strongly in the same vein. F. E. Palmer made a report of progress on behalf of the committee on trade publicity and was followed by W. J. Stewart, both speakers urging patience and that the committee be given plenty of time to work out something broadly practical.

As announced in the program, during the hour in which the tellers were counting up the ballots, Andrew Christensen of Stoneham gave a talk on his recent trip to the tropics, including the Panama Canal, Jamaica and Costa Rica. The latter, he said, was the most beautiful country he had ever seen. The gigantic work being done in the construction of the canal was graphically told and the strange scenery and wonderful vegetation of the Isthmus and the tropical islands, their people and customs were most delightfully depicted. The address was full of simple yet vivid word-picturing which was thoroughly enjoyed.

On the exhibition platform was a vase of Carnation Princess Dagmar from Patten & Co.; Cattleya Perci-valiana, 18 blooms, from Charles Cooper, gardener for Miss Amy Lowell of Brookline; vase of mixed carnations from T. Coles; poinsettias, cyclamen and Lorraine begonias from R. & J. Farquhar & Co., and two seedling carnations from Littlefield & Wyman of North Abington, which attracted notice by their fine growth and glowing pink color.

Regarding the "double flowered" poinsettia shown by Messrs. Farquhar, George Anderson declared it to be the only one worth growing, as it lasts longer and holds its leaves better than the old variety. Robert Cameron endorsed this, stating that when the large outside red bracts fall away the smaller ones in the centre expand and take their place, thus maintaining an attractive head for three or four months.

ST. LOUIS FLORIST CLUB.

The Florist Club held a very interesting meeting, Thursday, December 12th, the best attended of the year, the occasion being the presence of President Vincent of the S. A. F. The publicity committee made a written report, and R. J. Windler, chairman, delivered quite an address. At the conclusion a vote was taken as to a standing fund for this committee, which was headed by the club with $50, and before the close of the meeting several hundred dollars was subscribed by the members. A letter was read from President-elect Farquhar of the S. A. F., which was placed in the hands of a committee. Adolph Janeicke, A. J. Windler, O. K. Danders and F. X. Gorly were elected to membership on clear ballots. Resolutions on the death of Francis Fillmore were prepared by J. F. Ammann and were adopted by a rising vote.

The Chicago Carnation Co. sent Carnation The Herald, and a committee consisting of J. Bourdet, F. Fillmore and W. Blixen reported that the blooms scored 87 points and on motion they were presented to Mrs. Vincent.

President Vincent gave a fine talk on affiliation, publicity and S. A. F. matters and his remarks kept the members in good humor all afternoon. Adolph Janeicke addressed the meeting, asking the club to meet at the garden at least twice a year, which was accepted with thanks, the trustees to name the months for these meetings. Luther Armstrong, the oldest member of the club, was reported sick at a local hospital and the trustees were ordered to send a bouquet of flowers each week.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

On Friday, Dec. 13, the committee of awards of the N. Y. Florists' Club visited the establishment of the Cottage Gardens Co. to see the new carnation "Mitchless" growing. It had already received the preliminary certificate of the club. The report will be made public at the next meeting. There was a number of visitors at this place the same day, among them Frank H. Traendly, C. H. Totty, John Donaldson, Joseph Fenrich, J. H. Pepper, Walter F. Sheridan, Jos. A. Manda, John Young, of New York and R. H. Cathcart, Newburgh, N. Y. Of the committee there were Chairman A. L. Miller, Robert Simpson, John Miesem and Charles Weber. All were pleased with the splendid condition of the plant and the new cerise carnation "Vivid" made a great impression on the visitors. Manager R. T. Brown is making great preparations for his exhibits in the competition classes of ornamental nursery stock and will in addition take a large block of space in the trade exhibition of the International Flower Show. Later the party was taken in automobiles to the greenhouses and nursery of A. L. Miller, Jamaica, whose Christmas stock was nearly all sold.

The committee of award are going to Northport, L. I., before the new year to the greenhouses of J. D. Cockcroft, to make final scoring on the carnation "Northport."

Among other unintentional and much regretted "slip-ups" incidental upon the final hustle in getting out our holiday number last week was the omission of the name of John Donaldson of Elmhurst, who was elected vice-president of the New York Florists' Club. This evidence of popularity is well merited by that amiable and accomplished gentleman.

The Ladies' Entertainment Committee for the International Flower Show, as appointed by President Manda, is as follows: Mrs. F. H. Traendly, Miss O'Mara, Mrs. W. F. Sheridan, Mrs. C. H. Totty, Mrs. J. Scott, Mrs. C. B. Weathered, Mrs. A. L. Miller, Mrs. J. B. Nugent, Jr., Mrs. J. A. Manda, Mrs. J. Donaldson, Mrs. J. Roehrs, Jr., Mrs. H. A. Bunyard, Mrs. Charles Schenck, Mrs. J. H. Pepper, Mrs. W. LENOX HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

This society held their annual meeting on Dec. 9th. The treasurer's report proved that the society was in a good financial position. Messrs. Heermans, Jenkins, Wingett and Lovelass gave some interesting talks on their visit to the New York and various other shows and all spoke very highly of the new rose, Mrs. Charles Russell. Mr. Cook, of Stumpp & Walter's spoke very favorably of new places building up in the middle west. Alex. MacConnachie was elected president; Frank Butler, vice-president; A. J. Loveless, treasurer; G. Instone, secretary; W. Hooper, assistant secretary.

W. HOOPER, Asst. Sec'y.

NEW JERSEY FLORICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The New Jersey Floricultural Society held their regular monthly meeting, Friday, Dec. 13, in Lindsley Hall, Orange. The following officers for the ensuing year were elected: President, Frank Drews; vice-president, Geo. B. Wilson; secretary, John Der- van; treasurer, Fritz Berglund. The monthly competition for the year ended at this meeting with the following results. Roses.—S. M. & A. Colgate, gard. Wm. Reid, 707 points; Charles C. Goodrich, gard. Fritz Berglund, 677. Carnations.—S. M. & A. Colgate, 746; Chas. Hathaway, gard. Max Schneider, 735; Chas. C. Goodrich, 660. Vase of cut flowers other than the above.—Essex County Country Club, gard. Frank Drews, 797; Chas. Hathaway, 780. Violets or sweet peas.—Chas. Hathaway, 583; Essex County Country Club, 380. Foliage or flowering plant.—Mrs. Wm. Barr, gard. Emil Panuska, 660. Orchid plant in flower.—Mrs. Wm. Barr, 696; Lager & Hurrell, 600. The society decided to adopt the same schedule for the monthly exhibitions during 1913.

The annual dinner and dance will come off on Wednesday, p. m., Jan. 15, in English's Hall, East Orange. Tickets can be had from William Reid, 363 Centre St., Orange, N. J., price $2.00, including dinner and dance. J. Austin Shaw will be toastmaster on this occasion.

Lager & Hurrell showed a fine specimen of Laelia Gouldiana in flower, which was awarded 80 points. All the other exhibits were staged in fine shape, too.

WILLIAM REID, Secretary.

WESTCHESTER AND FAIRFIELD HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The second annual meeting of this society was held in Doran's Hall, Greenwich, Conn., on Dec. 13. The exhibition was good. First prize for celery was awarded to W. Wynne, Stamford. A fine vase of poinsettias from Th. Ryan, Port Chester, was awarded a cultural certificate. The following exhibits were highly commended: Vase of roses, A. Pederson, Stamford; Cypripedium insigne, Geo. E. Baldwin Co., Mamaroneck; Solanum capsicastrum, Harry Wilde; tomatoes and a fine vase of cypripedium, James Foster; Bouvardia Brilliant, Harry Wilde. The following received a vote of thanks: A. Pederson for vase of narcissus; H. Wilde for Solanum caps. Melvini; Scott Bros. for Carnation W. Eccles, a certificate of merit having previously been awarded for that peerless variety.

The following officers were elected: President, Robt. Williamson, Greenwich, Conn.; vice-president, Oscar E. Addor, Larchmont, N. Y.; secretary, J. B. MacArdle, Greenwich, Conn.; treasurer, W. J. Sealey, Port Chester, N. Y.; cor. secy., Owen Hunnick, Greenwich, Conn.; executive committee, Harry Wilde, Greenwich, Conn.; T. Ryan, Port Chester, N. Y.; A. Paterson, Saugatuck, Conn.

Refreshments were served and a most enjoyable time was spent by all present. It was decided to hold the first annual dinner in New Rochelle some time in January.

OSCAR E. ADDOR, Cor Secy.

MINNESOTA STATE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

46th Annual Meeting, Dec. 3 to 6.

The large audience room was well filled from start to finish. The president's address was followed by the writer with a paper on "The Mission of the Nurseryman." He was followed by an able paper presented by Prof. E. C. Hilborn on "The Farm Home Beautiful." Rev. R. E. Olmstead, of Exelsior, spoke of birds as the friends of the horticulturist. There is a fad in some of our Western states of preserving squirrels and building houses for them. Nebraska has a law fining one $5 for killing one. In the discussion it was proved that the little rascal was the deadly enemy of the birds, destroying the young and killing the mother. The opinion was that he should be put out of the way. One of the United States Government reports speaks of the absence of birds in the forests where the squirrels destroy them, and as the result countless insects menace the trees.

The question of small fruits was ably discussed, especially the ever-bearing strawberry, one man having twenty acres and preparing to plant twenty more. By picking off the buds till July and August and then letting them go, they bear enormous crops till frost comes. And they bring large prices.

There are other societies holding meetings in connection with the parent society, the Forestry Association, Plant Breeders' Society, Ladies' Auxiliary, Bee Keepers' Society, each having a place on the program. This was an off year for fruit, and yet the display was something grand. Minnesota apples captured the prize at the great Western show a year ago. Indeed we do not see how it is possible for any state to beat a Minnesota Wealthy. Minnesota needs a hardy winter apple and they offer a $1,000 prize for it. They will get it in time. The benefit of top grafting on the Hibernial and other hardy kinds was discussed. This process does make the scion hardier.

One man bought ten Missing Link apples. He planted them and lost every one. He took precaution to put some grafts on the Hibernial—one of the hardiest of the Russians, and they all lived and bore large crops.

C. G. Patton, probably the world's greatest pomologist, was present. He is now over 80 years of age, yet pushing his discoveries with the zest of a young man. Prof. Hansen, the man of destiny, was there. He is an old friend of mine and I had a long talk with him about his work. He has made three trips to Siberia at the peril of his life from anarchists, the cholera and the terrible cold when he nearly perished. But he secured what he was in search of—a forage plant which will endure the vicissitudes of our great Western plains. It is the yellow-flowered alfalfa. He followed it nearly to its northern limit. In its wild state it will grow 3 to 4 feet tall, with three to five hundred stems from a single plant.

C. S. HARRISON.

WESTERN NEW YORK HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

This society held its annual meeting at Rochester, in Convention Hall on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Dec. 11, 12, 13. It was largely attended; there were many progressive and pertinent addresses and a very fine exhibition of fruit. W. C. Barry was again elected to serve as president, this being his 23rd term. John Hall, secretary and treasurer for twenty-three years, also was re-elected. John Hall, secretary and treasurer for 23 years, also was re-elected. The other choices were:

Vice-presidents, E. Van Alostyne, Kinderhook; C. R. White, Ionia; Lloyd S. Tenny, Hilton; S. J. Bush, Morton; Samuel Fraser, Genesee; T. B. Wilson, Hall; Executive Committee, A. L. Whitbeck, Sodus; M. C. Burritt, New York; Arthur Simmons, Walker; H. S. Wiley, Cayuga; R. G. Phillips, Rochester.

The office of president has been held in the Barry family for fifty-two years. Patrick Barry, William C. Barry's father, became president in 1860 and when he died in 1890 his son succeeded him. A year before his death Patrick Barry wrote a check for $2000, designating that it be used to promote the objects of the society. This fund has permitted recognition of the genius of two Rochester experimenters.

The report of the trustees of permanent fund showed receipts during the past year of $2,708.89 and disbursements of $847.59, leaving a balance in the bank December 1, 1912, of $1,861.30.

The secretary-treasurer's financial report showed receipts of $3,196.65, disbursements of $2,381.86 and a bank balance December 1, 1912, of $814.79.

The report of the legislative committee presented by Hon. Thomas B. Wilson, chairman of the Assembly committee on agriculture, reviewed the efforts to obtain the passage of a law establishing standard grades and regulating the size of standard packages of apples and other fruits.

NEW LONDON COUNTY (CONN.) HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual election of the officers for 1913 of the New London Co. Horticultural Society took place at the regular meeting of the society, Dec. 12th. The following were voted in: President, John Maloney; vice-president, Henry Fuller and Alfred Flow- ers; secretary, John Humphry; financial secretary, W. J. Morgan; treasurer, S. S. Ewell; librarian, Donald Miller.

President Stanley Jordan was heartily thanked for his services to the society during the past year. A very interesting paper was given by Edward Smith, florist, on the cultivation of violets and an interesting discussion followed.

NASSAU COUNTY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of this society was held at Pembroke Hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., on Wednesday, Dec. 11th. E. J. Brown, who has been treasurer for a number of years was unanimously elected president; James MacCarthy, vice-president; E. Westlake, rec. secretary; J. MacDonald, cor. secretary; S. J. Trepess, treasurer; J. F.

Johnston, trustee. The treasurer's report showed a good balance to the credit of the society. It was decided to hold the annual dinner on Jan. 23rd. The committee of arrangements are J. W. Everitt, J. F. Johnston and S. J. Trepass. Prizes were offered for violets, carnations and poinsettias and the same awarded to A. Mackenzie, V. Cleres and O. Bjorkgreen. H. Gaut was awarded a certificate of culture for a very fine collection of vegetables and V. Cleres a certificate of culture for a new seedling tomato.

JAMES MACDONALD, Cor. Sec'y.

THE SHAW BANQUET.

The 23rd annual Shaw banquet took place last week, Friday evening, Dec. 13, at the Washington Hotel, St. Louis.

The majority attending were members of the St. Louis Florist Club, the guest of the night being Richard Vincent, Jr., president of the S. A. F. The toastmaster was Dr. G. T. Moore. After a splendid spread Dr. Moore rose and stated that the usual speaking would be done away with and that the evening's entertainment would be given by Mr. Vincent, who gave an illustrated lecture on the recent London Flower Show and the Holland bulb industry. This was one of the most interesting talks on floriculture ever listened to, while it was also very instructive to the young students of the garden who were all present.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The annual meeting of the Lenox Horticultural Society was held last Saturday and the following officers were elected: President, Alexander McConnachie; vice-president, F. H. Butler; treasurer, A. J. Loveless; secretary, George Instone; assistant secretary, William Hooper.

J. Mack Turner of Springfield was elected president of the Illinois Horticultural Society at Champaign, on Dec. 12. F. R. Baxter of Nauvoo and L. R. Bryant of Princeton were elected vice-presidents. The new secretary is A. M. Augustine of Normal, and the treasurer, J. W. Stanton of Richview.

The Rochester, N. Y., Florists' Association held its monthly meeting Dec. 9 and members listened to an address by Fred C. W. Brown, of Bucalo, on "Art and the Arrangement of Flowers." A short business session was held prior to the speaking and the following Nominating Committee was appointed: George B. Hart, E. P. Wilson and H. P. Neun. Election of officers will be held at the first meeting of 1913. The association will send a letter of condolence to the family of the late J. W. Robbins, an honorary member.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Holyoke and Northampton, Mass., met at South Hadley, Dec. 10, as the guest of Reginald Carey, and after the transaction of routine business the annual election of officers was held. Prof. E. J. Canning of Smith College was elected president, D. J. Gallivan of Holyoke, vice-president, Prof. James Whiting of the State College, secretary, Prof. Kinne of Mt. Holyoke, G. H. Sinclair and George Strungel of Holyoke were elected members of the executive committee. Afterwards there was a talk by James Rollins on "Methods of Gardening in England."

The next meeting will be at the Smith college conservatories Tuesday evening, January 14th.

HENRY F. MICHELL COMPANY
518 Market Street - - - Philadelphia, Pa.

W. J. PALMER WINS.

In the proceedings started by William J. Palmer, Buffalo, N. Y., to compel the state to make an appraisal of plants destroyed by state inspector because they were affected, as alleged, by gipsy and brown-tailed moths, Justice Marcus directed the jury to find in favor of Mr. Palmer. The state plans to appeal from the order. Rebadow & Ladd represented Mr. Palmer and Henry W. Killeen, the state.

Inspectors of the state found a consignment of azaleas at Mr. Palmer's Lancaster greenhouses infested with the moths and destroyed the whole. The statute under which they were destroyed makes it necessary for the owner to start proceedings of this character if he wishes to establish his claim that the plants were wrongfully destroyed.

BOOMING THE SHOW.

W. C. Rickards, Jr., now traveling for Charles H. Totty, is in Lenox, Mass., headed east, and reports all the private gardeners enthusiastic and making great preparations for the coming International Flower Show at New York.

Many of the familiar Christmas decorations which have been used for generations will disappear this year, as the result of a decision of the New York Board of Underwriters. A letter has been sent this week to every holder of a fire insurance policy in this city, which reads:

"Your attention is called to the fact that the introduction about premises of Christmas greens and other inflammable materials, such as cotton to represent snow, constitute an additional fire hazard and will not be permitted."

APPRECIATED.

HORTICULTURE:

Enclosed find check for five dollars in advance for five years' subscription for HORTICULTURE. Please send me from last Saturday's edition.—C. C. W., New Jersey.

A NOVELTY WITHDRAWN TILL NEXT YEAR.

H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, are sending out the following letter:

The sale of plants of our new geranium, "Helen Michell," of which we announced the dissemination for January, 1913, has eclipsed our expectations to such a degree that the orders now booked exceed by a very great number the plants available, even if our dissemination extended until quite late in the Spring of 1913.

In order to do justice to all, and to the geranium itself, we have decided to withhold the dissemination until January, 1914, and we have therefore booked your order for delivery at that date. In this manner, all orders booked up to time of shipping date will be filled promptly. You will receive this geranium as early as any other grower in the country and no one will, by this deferment, be placed at a disadvantage.

Our prize offer announced in connection with the National Flower Show at New York has been withdrawn, but will be renewed for an exhibit in 1914, date and place to be announced in ample time to allow preparations for competition, when all who desire can participate.

Yours very truly,

HENRY F. MICHELL CO.

street, telephoned for a bunch of roses, requesting that the messenger be supplied with the change for $10.
Miss Anderson, being suspicious, notified the E. 105th street station.

Sergeants Kiehl and Creegan followed the messenger boy. When he reached the place on E. 107th street a well-dressed young man hailed him, took the dummy package and was about to hand the boy an empty envelope. The sergeants pounced on him.

At the station house he gave the name of William Hewiat and said he had been living at a down-town hotel.
He confessed to have swindled the Penn Square Floral Company on Friday night out of $5 and on Saturday night the Hough Avenue Floral Company, on Hough avenue, near Crawford road. He was charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.—

NEW STORE OF L. BEMIS FLORAL CO., EXTERIOR

A MODEL FLOWER STORE.

The two accompanying pictures show exterior and part of the interior of the new floral establishment of the L. Bemis Floral Co., Albert Pochelon, at Detroit, Mich.

The store is 32 ft. front by 60 ft. deep. The stairway leads up to a conservatory of the same dimensions. In the rear of store is the shipping room and garage 32x40 and under this room the heating and cooling machinery and carpenter shop are located. Under the store they have a basement with reserve ice boxes and work tables. This basement runs all the way under a glass block sidewalk which gives daylight in the basement.

Above the store is the conservatory which is of Pierson U. Bar construction. In the rear of same is a show room for fancy dishes and office. This room is also 40x32, being just above the garage. Above this room are two more floors of same size one of these being devoted entirely to natural prepared or artificial goods, fancy supplies, etc.

The whole building is a steel frame with concrete floors and roof, absolutely fire proof and has electric push button elevator service all the way through. You may turn the hose on at the top floor and wash down to the basement and the water will drain off everywhere.

The store floor is in different shades of brown, all tiles being 6x9 with small green inserts of rose leaves and flower design. The ice boxes on the store floor are 32 feet long and 5 ft. deep divided into three sections.

We have a view in the conservatory which we are holding for next week.

NEW YORK NOTES.

Alex S. Burns has moved from Woodside to 54 Elmhurst Ave., Elmhurst, L. I.

Very favorable reports are heard of the new scarlet carnation that is being grown extensively by A. S. Burns, Jr., Spring Valley, N. Y.

Maurice Fuld, of H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, is in town making arrangements for additional space for the International Flower Show. A. E. Thatcher, Bar Harbor, Me., is here interviewing Secretary John Young on similar business.

It is reported that Jacob Bracker, the carnation grower of East Williston, L. I., came to grief while trying out a new car last Saturday and both the automobile and Mr. Bracker are laid up for repairs. Mr. Bracker is vice-president of the Growers' Cut Flower Co., whose salesrooms are at 111 West 28th street.

The enterprising venture of Woodrow & Marketos in establishing a depot at 41 W. 28th street, where a full assortment of first class decorative plants may be found at all times, has demonstrated its value in this holiday time, florists from out of town, as well as local, finding it a great convenience, relieving them entirely of the time-consuming and expensive trips to greenhouses to secure stock for Christmas trade.

We noticed an excellent advertisement by Penn in the Boston Post, Dec. 14. Violets were given the place of prominence, with a cut of a bunch of same, and announcement was made of facilities for delivering holiday flowers in any part of the U. S. by telegraph. Mr. Penn makes this sort of advertising pay him well and other florists who keep themselves in seclusion are losing in equal or greater degree in consequence of their economy.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

The Rice field generals, A. Zirkman, R. Shoch and J. Sealley, are in off the road to help in the rush of getting out the Christmas orders; and incidentally to have a day or two with their nearest and dearest around the holidays—preparatory to "off again" the first of the year for new worlds to conquer. So great is the pressure in the order department that even the advertising manager, E. J. Bowers, has been immersed into service.

Visitors: John Radclyffe, Richmond, Virginia; Arthur E. Thatcher, Bar Harbor, Me.; R. G. Wilson, Brooklyn, N. Y.; L. E. Hoover, of Mayberry & Hoover, Washington, D. C.; Chas. Smith, Harrisburg, Pa.; H. Brown, Richmond, Va.; George Cooke, Washington, D. C.; Miss Lillian, buyer for C. E. Smith & Co., Baltimore, Md.; G. C. Personette, Washington, D. C.; C. D. Mills, Jacksonville, Fla.; Edwin A. Seidewitz, Baltimore, Md.; J. IRISH FIRE FLAME

The dainty new Single Rose, trimmest and sweetest little kind ever seen—and well named as to its lovely color. A Dickson seedling of strong, vigorous growth, very free, particularly during the winter; color fiery crimson, shading to a rich orange salmon at the base; foliage a dark green, reverse side of leaf deep bronze; a distinct novelty; nothing to compare with it; a new departure in Roses; beautiful and charming; a favorite wherever shown.

MRS. CHARLES RUSSELL

A New American Pedigree Seedling

Of American Beauty size and fragrance; color a lighter cerise that does not fade to blue but to a lighter rose as the flowers age; a strong, vigorous grower; good heavy stems; flowers carried erect; no weak necks; no blind wood like Beauty; very prolific—remarkably so, considering its size. As tested in the various shows over the country this Fall, it has proven a wonderful keeper and established itself at once as a Rose of unusual merit, creating a sensation wherever shown, and attracting not only the commercial man, but the public as well.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON Things are very quiet at present in this market. Let us hope that it is only "the calm before the storm"—a storm of business that will clean up every plant and every vestige of a flower in greenhouse, market and store! Prices asked are somewhat higher on some things than is usual so long ahead of the Christmas call. This applies particularly to carnations. The sale of these has declined noticeably, undoubtedly due in part to the fact that the price demanded makes the retail dealer reluctant to buy unless it is absolutely necessary and there is an abundance of other things that can usually be substituted in made-up work. On roses there is very little change. They appear to be in ample supply for all needs. Hillingdon has stiffened up some in price and American Beauty has advanced to $6.00 and $7.00 a dozen for those of highest quality and fine finish, but none other than these can approach these figures. Violets are up in price and there are not many offered this week, although there is a sufficiency for the small demand encountered.

ered. No doubt there will be plenty of them next week as well as heaping counters of bulbous stock, stevia, sweet peas, etc. The question of Christmas quality on most things, particularly roses, depends much upon the sort of weather handed out to us for the next few days. Up to time of going to press with this paper it is warm, with fog and rain.

The days are nearing the holiday season and things are beginning to look as if another good hustle will soon be on. Holly is coming in, also decorating material, in good supply, and to date has had a good sale and the demand constantly growing. The merchants are busy in making up wreaths and decorative baskets, etc., and are not seen much these days at the flower wholesalers' places. Stock is scarce on some line, particularly carnations, but there are plenty of roses, especially of the select and extra grades; shorts for floral work not being plentiful. Fine lilies, lily of the valley, peas, mignonette, Roman hyacinths, narcissi and violets are to be had in plenty. Beauties are of poor quality and the demand lacks, Richmonds being preferred. There are plenty of Bonsilenes and corsage flowers, also an oversupply of all greens.

There is nothing remarkable about the condition of the market here, in this, the last week before Christmas. There is the usual lull in business and apparently more or less of the usual holding back of stock. Christmas greens and artificial decorative stock are very much in evidence and the latter far exceeds that of any previous year. It will not be unexpected if the total sales of cut flowers are diminished by this abundance of attractive prepared material with its lasting qualities. Carnations are the only really scarce flower at this time and prices quoted for Christmas are higher than usual. Roses are expected to be in good supply, while American Beauties are claimed by some to be very abundant. There is a good assortment of other flowers, violets, lily of the valley, paper whites, etc., and plenty of green.

Should the weather continue as it is, for the next few days it will make packing a very easy problem for Christmas. The supply is only ordinary and as a whole has sold fairly well. Prices have been shaded a little and shipping business is very good. American Beauties are going to be in a nice supply for Christmas. The warm bright weather will also bring on the other varieties so that the supply will be better than was expected. Judging from the way the buyers are placing orders for colored varieties such as Richmond and Killarney these varieties will probably run very short. The supply of carnations is going to be rather limited if reports of the growers and wholesalers is any criterion. The stock coming in is limited but good. Double violets are in a good supply while the singles are not coming in any too strong. Lilies are selling well and callas clean up quickly. Poinsettias are of very excellent quality.

The past week did not bring forth the activity we have been used to, but everybody is on the jump getting ready for the big holiday to come. Most every store shows new faces among the clerks which are being broken in to assist at the coming rush and lend a hand in the advance preparation. Carnations, which have been extremely scarce lately, are promising to be in larger supply than anticipated for the holidays. This is mostly due to the energy of Manager Rahaley, who left no stone unturned to get the goods here. Green stuff and other supplies, especially berries, are rushed from the wholesale house in large quantities and most of the plantsmen are sold out clean. Everything points to a most successful Christmas.

Up until Wednesday of this week—a dark and gloomy day—prices on all lines were well maintained considering the time, which is always one of extreme dullness. On Wednesday the inevitable was encountered and there will be little doing until close up to Christmas unless all past records are overturned. Violets have been enjoying a little spurt and carnation prices have crept up to a good level. On roses there is a wide divergence between the market value of the best and the worst. Mrs. Shawyer is giving the American Beauty a few jolts at the present time. The outlook is for a good supply of all seasonable flowers for Christmas, with probably a little over supply of white material, especially white carnations and, of course, bulb stock.

The local florists are busy now making up their Christmas baskets and wreaths. Some of the down-town stores are very busy with debutante teas, receptions, musicales, etc., but on an average business is but slightly better than reported last week. Prices have advanced slightly and a further advance to cover the Christmas business is, of course, to be expected. There will be plenty of stock of all kinds with the exception of carnations which are not coming into the market in sufficient quantities to fill all demands. A limited supply of the new Irish Fire Flame and Milady roses are to be seen on the local market.

200,000 Giant Flowering Cyclamen, August seedlings. We received first prize on our blooming cyclamen at the show in Cleveland, O., and hold other first prizes. Our aim is strong growers, a well built five petal flower, with good color and fragrance, many of them at one time, well marked foliage and general good habits. Strong August Seedlings, $2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

What others say about our blooming plants: Mr. E. A. Corson, Rochester, N. H., Nov. 15, 1912: "Cyclamens received and am more than pleased. They are certainly fine plants and such a range of color. Arrived in good condition too."

Plants in bloom for Christmas, 75c., $1.00, $1.50 to $2.00 each. Cultural directions with all orders. Christ. Winterich, Cyclamen specialist, Defiance, O.

Flower Market Reports

PHILADELPHIA Usually the week before the holidays is not looked forward to with much anticipation of brisk business. Last week proved an exception to the general rule. The demand was active all along the line and prices advanced considerably on many items. This was especially true of carnations. These were easily the feature of the market and were quite scarce in the face of a brisk demand. Consequently the divine flower was much more in the limelight for the time than the queen of flowers—something which does not often happen. But if there's a lack in quantity nothing of that can be said of the quality which is very good. In addition to the regular leaders Mrs. Ward and Pink Delight, the list has been further supplemented by some extra choice White Wondar and Gloriosa. In the advance bookings for Christmas week, Beacon is the leader and is being engaged freely even at the stiff figures asked. American Beauty and other roses are plentiful and good but the demand has been draggy compared with other things except perhaps on White Killarneys which are a little scarce and move on sight. Good cattleyas are in short supply; plenty of cypripediums. Also a fair assortment of the lesser known orchids. There is a fair supply of the cut poinsettia of the usual excellent quality. The demand seems to have fallen off a little of late years on this item, the buyers leaning more and more to the potted plants in this grand Christmas specialty. Holly and other Christmas greens and reds moving now with a rush; regular land-office scramble.

The market the last week had plenty of everything but the demand was not satisfactory to the commission men, and during the dull days the prices lowered somewhat. This is always the case just before the holidays. The elegant weather of late has had a good effect on stock in cut flowers and plants which, if it continues, will make stock of all kinds good and plentiful for Christmas, and prices reasonable. Roses have been somewhat off color of late, especially Killarney. Carnations are coming along fine. The local growers say that violets, Roman hyacinths, paper whites, lily of the valley, lilies and poinsettias will be quite plentiful up to Christmas, and a good holiday trade is assured.

NEWS NOTES.

Washington, D. C.—George Schaffer has leased the new store opposite to the one in which he is now located and may be expected to take possession shortly after the holidays.

Elmer C. Mayberry, of the firm of Mayberry & Hoover, accidentally shot himself, tearing off a portion of the large toe on the left foot, while hunting near Upper Marlboro, Md., Thursday afternoon, Dec. 12, and on Saturday last underwent an operation for the amputation of the big toe of his left foot at George Washington University Hospital.

Jesse King, of Mt. Airy, Md., was a visitor last week.

CHICAGO NOTES.

Frank Oechslein had all his plants on the order list before Christmas week including all the usual blooming plants, azaleas, poinsettias, cyclamen, begonias, etc., as well as decorative stock.

Many new styles of baskets and new ways of filling them were brought out by Tom MacAllister of A. Lange's. One, noticed in particular, was a pitcher plant which is a novelty in Christmas plants here.

A. Lange has secured an extra room for his Christmas stock on the second floor, where plenty of tables afford good opportunity for handling plants. Some beautiful eastern plant stock for filling baskets arrived in perfect condition.

Phil Eichling had a new idea in a window novelty which took well with the patrons of Harry Rowe's store. He used large Japanese pine cones, with bits of moss inserted between the parts of the cone and then inserted statice in delicate shades suspending the cone with narrow ribbon.

Ardesias are not quite so much in evidence this year as formerly but those seen are well-berried. It is hard to evolve new ideas in plant decorations, but nevertheless the festooning of the stately little araucarias with ribbon is being overdone.

A. L. Vaughan & Co., secured a shipment of California or desert holly for the holiday trade. This comes so heavily berried that express is a big item, but it certainly is very attractive. The clusters resemble mountain ash more than holly, though the leaf is different. It sold for $35 per 100 lbs.

It is remarkable how red ruscus has leaped into favor. Last year it was no longer a novelty but a few pounds were enough for any firm. This year it is queen of the market. Everywhere it is the standby of the window trimmer whether florist or in a department store and it is made up into wreaths, fashioned into bouquets and used in homes, churches and cemeteries. This will have some effect, no doubt, on the total sales of cut flowers but the florists have led the way in the general use of the ruscus and offer it in very attractive colors. It is a season of artificial decoration everywhere and some of the larger department stores are using none of the live goods this year for the first time. Some of the florists have their windows so beautifully decorated without any cut flowers that it is rather too suggestive of the possibility of a Christmas without flowers.

For several years Wm. J. Smyth, who has one of the finest retail stores in Chicago, has had an annual mishap either to himself or the store and more often it came at the holiday season. Twice has an automobile crashed through the immense windows at 31st and Michigan avenue just when the Christmas plants and flowers filled them and once a wind storm blew one of them in. Just at Easter two years ago Mr. Smyth met with a serious accident which kept him from business several months. This year is not without its record and Mr. Smyth is in St. Luke's hospital with a fractured hip, caused by falling on a slippery board in his garage, Friday, Dec. 13. At this writing he is doing well and the store

FIRES.

Freeport, N. Y.—There was a serious fire at Charles Lenker's place on Thursday night, December 12th. The windmill, potting shed and about twenty feet of one house were destroyed.

Norwood, R. I.—Fire, believed to have been set by boys in the nursery adjoining, threatened the greenhouses of Mrs. N. D. Pierce on December 10. The damage was confined to a small amount of nursery stock.

Somersworth, N. H.—Fire, water and the cold seriously damaged the greenhouses and stock of William H. Wilder, 175 Green street, Somersworth, N. H., early in the morning of Dec. 13. During the progress of the fire, which was discovered in the boiler house at midnight, Mr. and Mrs. Wilder narrowly escaped suffocation in the building. They entered the greenhouse to get some garden hose, only to find that the flames had cut off their escape through the boiler house. In the blinding smoke Mr. Wilder found an unused ventilating door, which he forced. The boiler house was totally burned, also the front of the largest hothouse. Much glass was broken by the streams of water, causing the total loss, by the almost zero temperature, of the plants in that structure. The damage is placed at about $1000, of which $400 was on the building.

New Times, New Things

The old fertilizer formulas are giving way to the new. At every farmers' meeting one subject should be the fertilizer formula that will furnish a balanced ration to the crop and keep up the fertility of the soil. To do this the fertilizer should contain at least as much as Phosphoric Acid. Our note book has condensed facts essential in farmers' meetings and plenty of space to record the new things that you hear. Let us send one to you before your Institute meets.

A supply of these is furnished by request to every institute held in several states. We will be glad to send a supply delivered free of charge to every Institute, Grange or Farmers' Club Officer on request. It contains no advertising matter.

OBITUARY.

Maurice Doyle.

Maurice Doyle, florist of Springfield, O., died on November 30, aged 36 years.

Mrs. Geo. Bauman.

Mrs. George Bauman, wife of George Bauman, florist and gardener to Robert Jeffry, Columbus, O., died after a long illness on November 25.

G. W. Jenne.

As the result of a stroke of paralysis, G. W. Jenne, for many years a florist in Fulton, Ky., died on November 25, aged 76 years. He was formerly a resident of Chicago. His wife has for the last few years had the management of the business.

Alexander J. Thomas.

Alexander J. Thomas, florist, 86 West Main street, Oswego, N. Y., died on December 2, aged 77 years. He was born in Germany but had lived in this county about forty-five years, thirty-four having been spent in Oswego. He is survived by his wife, three sons and one daughter.

Patrick McDonnell.

Patrick McDonnell, well known in California as a carnation grower, died on November 30, aged 54 years. He came from Ireland when but a boy being first engaged in landscape gardening and later becoming a successful grower. Four small children and his wife are left to mourn his loss.

John Martin.

One of the oldest residents of Woonsocket, R. I., John Martin, died on December 4, after a short illness. He was born in Ireland about eighty years ago and had resided in America since he was a young man. For many years he was in charge of the greenhouses of the late Edward Harris. One son and a daughter survive him.

Francois Gruaz.

On December 1, Francois Gruaz, florist, of 4815 Dryades street, New Orleans, La., died after a few weeks' illness. He was born in Switzerland and came to this country about thirty years ago. He had had a thorough schooling in horticulture in France, Germany and Switzerland and many beautiful gardens in New Orleans are the product of his skill. He leaves a widow, one sister and three nieces.

"The Best is the Cheapest"

IS a saying that most growers recognize as the truth regarding lily bulbs. It is generally understood to mean that the best cost more than the lower grades, but in speaking of Horseshoe Brand Bulbs it is a mistaken idea, for they cost no more than most other bulbs. This is because of the large volume of business done, which enables us to work on a smaller margin of profit than most firms can afford. The bulbs come from the most direct source possible, where they are produced by the best native Japanese growers of lily bulbs in the world. Besides the fact that the price is not higher, fall deliveries of advance orders are made from twelve different cities in the United States and Canada. This means a saving in freight of from $2.00 to $10.00 per 100 bulbs—have you ever considered the freight you pay? Taking all things into consideration, there are a good many reasons why florists should buy Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs, and there are no reasons, except sentimental reasons, why they should not. You can't buy better bulbs, and you might get worse. The same price to everyone—no favorites. Send us your order now.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Carnations for Propagation

Now is the time to start propagation in earnest. When getting your cuttings select the short stubby side growth, which makes the ideal cutting. Trim the foliage so as to obviate crowding in the sand and also to let the air circulate among the cuttings which ultimately makes them surer to root. When prepared in this manner, providing they are neither too soft nor too hard, they will root in from twenty-one to twenty-eight days according to the variety. During the hardest firing the bottom heat should not exceed 58 degrees while the atmosphere of the house should be run as near 50 degrees as possible. For the first twelve or fifteen days it will be necessary to shade the cuttings against sunshine and to keep them sprayed every morning. This will aid root-formation and they will gradually stand full sun. Admit air freely, but guard against cold air currents. When they have roots about half an inch long they can be potted or boxed up and grown in a cool house.

Rambler Roses

The sooner these roses are brought in and placed in a cool house the better. To have Ramblers on time for Easter they should be allowed ten weeks. The temperature at first should not be higher than 50 degrees at night until the roots begin to make some headway. Every morning give a good syringing so as to thoroughly dampen the wood. When they are encouraged to break and make some top growth the temperature can be raised to 55 degrees and in two or three weeks more to 60 degrees. Keep the atmosphere moderately humid all the time. Give them a place where they can have full sun for it is necessary for the perfect development of these roses in every way. Great care in the matter of ventilation will be necessary so as to avoid mildew. Give careful attention to fumigation to keep down the green fly which is bound to make its appearance if not guarded against.

Dracaena indivisa

Where you want to increase your stock of this very useful plant now is the time to sow. In raising Dracaena indivisa the seed should be sown early so that the plants shall attain as much size the first year as possible. The seed can be sown in ordinary pans or flats; put an inch of crocks or any rough material on its bottom and over this a little sphagnum. The compost should consist of equal parts of new loam, leaf mold and about one-sixth of its bulk of sand, for it is essential that the soil should be loose and open. Fill the pans or flats within about half an inch of the top and press down moderately firm, then water with a fine rose to settle the surface and on this sow the seeds, but not too closely, or the young plants will become crowded and consequently drawn up before they are large enough to pot off. Cover the seeds about twice their depth with the compost and press firmly. Place the pans in a house where the temperature stands anywhere from 60 to 65 degrees at night as a high temperature hastens germination. When the young plants appear place them up close to the glass, which will tend to make them more compact and sturdy. They can remain in the seed pans until each plant has several leaves when they can be moved into small pots, using a more lumpy compost, and grown on.

Forcing Lilacs

These plants force better when they have had a proper period of rest. The months of January and February always give good results so after the first of the New Year you can start a batch which will come along nicely. When starting to force lilacs place them in the warmest house you may have as they will stand a temperature as high as 85 degrees and do fine. Give them a spraying three or four times a day well through and among the branches and damp down thoroughly so as to keep a superabundance of atmospheric moisture around the plants. For the first week or ten days they will not take much water, but after this they will consume more and should have attention along this line. When the trusses have attained a length of about three inches the temperature should be lowered and the spraying lessened. As the flowers begin to open syringing should stop altogether and a drier air maintained by giving more ventilation and less damping down.

Hydrangeas

Plants intended for Easter should now be brought in and cleaned of the old foliage. It is always better to start hydrangeas rather cool—say in a temperature of about 45 degrees at night for the first two or three weeks—after which they can be raised 5 to 8 degrees. Give them a good syringing two or three times a day so as to cause a good break all over the plant and when this is secured they will stand all the way up to 70 degrees at night with safety. This high temperature very often has to be employed in holding hydrangeas at a rapid rate of development so as to be in on time. It is always an advantage to have them well out ten days before Easter so that they can finish up in a cool house and will then withstand much better the many vicissitudes which will be their lot. When they begin to make roots and foliage they will need lots of water at the roots, so continue great watchfulness in this matter right up to the last. From now on we will have changeable and trying weather which will demand constant care with firing and ventilation.

Verbenas

The florists who grow quantities of verbenas should begin now in earnest to propagate. Where special colors or named varieties are required propagation by cuttings is the only way. They can be placed in a cool end of the propagating bed where they will root fine if kept moist and shaded. When rooted they can be potted up in good new soil and placed in a cool, but well-lighted house where the temperature runs from 45 to 48 degrees at night.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on following: Coelogyne cristata; Bedding Plant Cuttings; Cyclamen; Ferns from Spores; Poinsettias for Stock Plants; Spiraeas.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Late Grapes

Frequently Lady Hutt has been referred to as a first-class white grape and true to its reputation it has again produced good fruit for Christmas. The keeping qualities of this grape are not widely enough known. It is on a par with Barbarossa and Gros Colman and with some growers the former is considered one of the latest. With us Barbarossa and Lady Hutt are growing side by side and since ripening have had exactly the same treatment, with the result that the latter wins out on the test. Out of fourteen bunches cut for Christmas there were not as many bad berries to be removed and the whole were good firm fruit, while Barbarossa was considerably shrivelled.

White grapes of good quality are good any time and when kept right on the vine the flavor does not deteriorate as it would do if they were "bottled." It takes so much vitality to support the bunches as they hang, that this must be considered and the crop reduced off all the vines as they are used, not taking all the bunches from one vine and leaving the next one to support its entire crop several weeks later. Soon after the New Year comes in the foliage will commence to fall, when all the bunches that remain will be best cut and bottled—a subject to be dealt with later.

Cleaning

Push along with any cleaning that remains to be done, as time gathered now will be acceptable when the spring rush comes in. Take advantage of any mild days that may come to do any house washing that still has to be done, for if left until a hard freezing day the water will freeze on the glass unless the house is heated well. All pruning should be done without delay; late vines can be pruned soon after the crop is removed.

Vegetable Houses

The dulllest period of the year for vegetable growing is with us, consequently every encouragement should be given the plants. Do not leave the house to take its chance as no damage can be done with a weak sun power. Keep right after them, giving them a lift up wherever you can. Benches anyway green or hard on the surface will not give the plants the air to the root which they require and will not dry out as rapidly or as evenly as those regularly cultivated. Loosen up the surface soil regularly, but do not attempt it when the benches are wet.

Looking Backward and Forward

Now that another year is fast closing on us it behooves us to look back before making all our resolutions for the coming year. Some of these are doomed like pie crusts "to be broken," but rather make less of them and raise them above the breaking level.

With the passing of the year and resolutions for 1913 a glance backward over these columns will be interesting—interesting at least to the writer, as it is gratifying to know so many of HORTICULTURE's readers are interested in them.

Fruit growing under glass is attaining more prominence than at any other time in the horticultural history of America, and rightly so. The number of fruit houses built and also inquiries made, indicates a live interest never before experienced.

I should hope the time is not far distant when show committees will recognize this department as it deserves to be, by awarding prizes in keeping with the amount of skill required to produce the results. When the prizes are put up it will be found that a display of this kind will attract the public's eye (and make their mouth water) quite as much as a group of orchids or chrysanthemums. This was demonstrated at one show during the past summer.

For two seasons HORTICULTURE's readers have welcomed these brief notes and, as a continuation has been requested, I would like to say right here that they are what practice has taught and, while new methods, ideas, and varieties are continually being tried out, it is practice which has proved itself reliable and is likely to do so for others who adopt it.

While every season brings round a repetition of events we are forced to revolve the correspondence wheel in some degree also. To those who practice different methods successfully HORTICULTURE extends an invitation to all to take up that weapon "mightier than the sword"—the pen, and give their brother growers the benefit of their experience.

In conclusion, I would extend to our readers and worthy editor and staff a wish that the coming year will be happy and prosperous for all.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Early Propagation

New Years! It seems but yesterday that Father Time brought little 1-9-1-2 to us and here he is again with little 1-9-1-3! "Begin the New Year with good resolutions," is a very common advice, yet it is not taken half as seriously as it might be. This old saying can well be applied to our business, and many would be better off if they made a few good resolutions and then made good at keeping them; and now for the brick and the other sand-firming tools!

Begin right. Clean the propagating house thoroughly and see that it gets a good dose of hot lime to which a little copper carbonate or sulphate has been added to make the hot lime a little more of a fungicide. Spraying with a good commercial fungicide is very good and generally has a better effect. But—to make a long story short—see that all is clean on the benches as well as underneath them. Where time will permit scrub the whole house, including the sash bars. This may seem somewhat troublesome at the start, but you will find that it will pay in the long run. There is quite some loss when several thousand cuttings go to the bad. Be sure that your sand is fresh and clean; take it from us, there is nothing in using old sand over again, as experience no doubt will teach you.

Start your heater as soon as you start cleaning the house; this will help dry out some of the wet damp air and render the house more fit to receive the future money-makers. After the house is all ready, the sand all in, begin packing the sand, keeping the fire going all the time. Aim to have the heat going for almost a week before inserting any cuttings. This may seem like wasting a lot of time, coal, and all the rest of it, yet if the cuttings are put into cold sand with a cold damp atmosphere, it is not a wonder that the cuttings will not root as they should, but will turn yellow and damp off.

Selection of Wood

This is another very important factor and we should always bear in mind the fact that next season's success depends largely on the start of these little slips of wood.

No doubt that there is really no haste to start the cuttings, but where a very large number are to be grown, during April and May and last several weeks in perfection. The plant illustrated here produced three racemes with an aggregate of 18 flowers from the one growth.

In order to have this orchid flower so freely it is quite necessary to produce a good large growth during summer and to carefully ripen the bulb during winter. The plants should receive liberal treatment from the time the flowers have faded until the new bulb is fully made up. The compost should be open to allow the water to pass through quickly. A good quality of osmunda fibre will be found as good or better than anything else.

They are best grown in pans or baskets suspended from the roof of the warmest house obtainable, shaded in summer from direct sunshine. During the season of active growth they should receive a liberal amount of one can hardly start too soon, so as to give all the proper attention and keep the rest of the plants looked after as they should be. Be sure to have help enough to attend to all, as it is a losing game to allow the houses to go "any old way."

In selecting wood do not take wood that is too hard, this being hard to root, and therefore more or less of a nuisance. In taking Beauty wood be sure to take only wood with nice live thorns. This you will find is much easier to root than wood with the thorns all dead and hard. The foliage on this kind of wood is very apt to turn yellow long before the cuttings are calloused, and once the cuttings lose most of their leaves they are almost worthless. Have the propagating benches all ready before making any cuttings so that all the cuttings are inserted into sand as fast as they are made, for it does them no good to be stuck around in old tin pails as is often the case. A grower once failed to get good results and on being asked if he had not allowed his cuttings to wilt before inserting them in sand he replied that he had them in water several days so that wilting was impossible! Well-wise are those that profit by their mistakes! The only trouble is that a good many of us fail to do so, hence the song, "You Do the Same Thing Over Again."

Begin now and mark all mixed plants, so as to do away with the mixed lot next year. Also mark any plant that would not be worth while taking cuttings from. Select strong, healthy wood and you will have little trouble in the future.

The Soil

Readers will remember that we advised the growers time and time again to make sure of a good supply of soil for the season, and yet no doubt many are lacking this most necessary element in successful propagation of roses or of any other kind of plants. With us the winter so far has been very mild, and with the ground open we have been able to accomplish much that would have had to wait until spring. If you have no soil under cover as yet, try and bring some in at once so that you will not have to be wading waist deep in snow, trying to scrape enough soil together to pot up the ready cuttings.

water with the addition of some weak liquid manure once or twice a week to help build up strong pseudo bulbs, as the quantity and quality of flowers to be produced in spring depends on the size of bulb made up during the previous summer. After the new growth is completed and the leaves begin to turn yellow the plants can be removed to a cooler, airy house and exposed to full sunshine until active growth starts again. Very little water will be required while the plants are at rest, letting them dry out thoroughly each time before giving water again.

"Happy New Year" and strong is its current; no sooner is a thing brought to sight than it is swept by and another takes its place, and this, too, will be swept away."

With this issue closes another volume of HORTICULTURE. In a few days more a new year comes in for us all and old 1912 will have passed away for evermore, its history indelibly written. "The past is gone, the future yet unseen." As is our custom, we here extend to all our readers, and to those who are not, as well, sincerest wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year and express the fervent hope that horticulture with its many closely allied industries may in the coming year flourish and expand as never before. As for 1912, its record is, we believe, fully up to the standard, as years go; a little better, a little bigger and a little busier than any of its predecessors; landing us at the doorstep of the new year in a condition of prosperity and promise such as we were hardly justified in expecting in a national election year and in its many demonstrations of advancement giving us abundant proof that in horticulture at least "still the new transcends the old."

Trade publicity; its scope and purpose

One topic which bids fair to occupy much of the attention of the florist trade during the coming year is that with which we have already become somewhat familiar under the general designation of "publicity." Widely varying, often vague and sometimes pettifogging, are many of the sentiments and deductions expressed regarding this movement, its scope and its utility, since its inception. Our views on the subject are not unfamiliar to the readers of these columns. We have no pet hobby or predilections in the matter and we believe that the whole proposition covers a project much too broad and complex to be hastily settled or treated from any limited standpoint or exposed to the chance of cavil or setback because of alleged inutility of any localized or desultory effort that may be undertaken. It is too early as yet to advocate any special course of action in detail. It is easy to see how money may be expended to little purpose in hastily planned local campaigns. What we do want is a vastly bigger demand and better balanced distribution of horticultural products and greatly increased efficiency in all departments of marketing. "Publicity" means beginning at the right end. It means intelligently using any and all legitimate organized, systematic means to develop a public demand far greater than our goods now enjoy. To this laudable ambition we can all subscribe. If the thinking and brainy men of the business—and there are plenty of them—will get busy on the problem we do not doubt that a practical plan of action will be forthcoming.

A field
all ready

In C. S. Harrison's paper on "The Mission of the Nurseryman" which appears in this issue of HORTICULTURE, the observant and prescient reader, be he nurseryman or florist, will, we believe find himself fully in accord with many of the sentiments expressed therein. Any one who has ever undertaken to interest the nurseryman, as a class, in new plant introductions, knows how indifferent his reception has usually been. If the home-maker is to be educated up to "give his front yard as good a show as he does his back yard" the nurseryman has it in his power to do much towards bringing this about by "preaching the gospel of beauty" and setting a good example. As Mr. Harrison says, the average man knows little about floriculture and horticulture or of the beautiful things that are to be had to embellish his home. But he is far from obstinate on the subject; he is willing and really anxious to be shown, and this is truer today than ever before in this country. This showing and educating is a part of the dealer's mission, which in the case of the florist and nurseryman, hampered by excess of conservatism, has hitherto not been given the attention it deserves. In our humble opinion the seedsmen have done better; indeed, we think it is safe to say that the interest of our people in garden beauty so far as it has been developed is due more to the enterprising and persistent missionary work and aggressive policy of the American seedsmen than to any other single agency. If Mr. Harrison's address only helps to inspire more of this same progressive spirit where it has been so unfortunately lacking it will have served its purpose well. The field is ready to be tilled: it is practically exhaustless and ample returns are assured to all who "get a move on."

"Lucifer"—color scarlet self. Parentage: scarlet Spencer X Zvolanek's Crimson. Out 3d generation.

"Indian"—color brownish purple. Parentage: White Spencer X Zvolanek's Crimson. Seedling out 3d generation.

"Evening"—color light rose self. Parentage: Rose Pink Spencer X P. Beauty. Seedling out 2d generation.

"Jealousy"—color light yellow. Parentage: White Spencer X Jack Hunter. Seedling out 3d generation.

"Heaven"—color first opening light lilac, when full open sky-blue lavender. Parentage: Lavender Spencer X Zvolanek's Blue. Seedling out 3d generation.

"Bishop"—color bishop-red self. Parentage: White Spencer X Zvolanek's Crimson. Seedling out 3d generation.

"Flag"—color white ground, orange striped. Parentage: Florence E. Denzer X Orange Spencer. Seedling out 2d generation.

"Blue Stripes"—color ground blue, striped white. Parentage: White Spencer X Zvolanek's Crimson. Seedling out 3d generation.

Remarks—All those foregoing varieties are strictly Winter bloomers. The foliage is more rounded, but not so strong as in the late flowering Spencers; the height 6 to 10 ft. under glass, 3 to 5 ft., when grown outdoors.

The flowers are just the same as the late-flowering Spencers with extra large wavy flowers and exposed or open keel, bearing over 50 per cent. four flowers to each stem and if raised under extra ideal condition many will bear five and six flowers. If sowed August 15th they will begin to bloom in 65 days. If sowed in October, they will begin to bloom in 90 to 100 days, according to the weather. After they are about 4 feet high, with each foliage springs one stem with extra strong and large flowers. They are just as productive and early as the common old Winter Sweet Pea.

Dec. 20, 1912.

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The 23rd annual meeting was held on the 13th inst. First-class certificate was awarded John F. Huss for Glory of Cincinnati, Gloire de Lorraine, Turnford Hall, and LaPatrie begonias; certificate of merit to Warren S. Mason, of Farmington, for bouvardia; first-class certificates to J. Alfred Weber for double and single poinsettias; William H. MacKenzie, of Bristol, for sweet peas; Alfred Cebelius, of Hartford, for Dreer's Superb Salad tomatoes. Thanks were also extended to Mr. Weber for mushrooms. The president's, treasurer's, and secretary's reports all showed the society to be in a flourishing condition, with a large membership and a goodly sum in the treasury.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, John F. Huss; vice-presidents, J. Alfred Weber, Alex. Cumming, Jr., Carl Peterson; secretary, George W. Smith; treasurer, W. W. Hunt; librarian, William T. Hall; botanist, George W. Smith; pomologist, C. H. Sierman; executive committee, John Gerard, George B. Baker, George H. Hollister, Howard A. Pinney, and Alex. Cumming, Jr.

All the county vice-presidents were re-elected. The auditing committee added the following kind paragraph to their report:

"Your committee also wishes to extend their compliments to both the treasurer and the secretary for their neat, accurate, and systematic methods of recording the Society's business."

GEORGE W. SMITH, Secretary.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The prize list for the coming exhibition as part of the National Flower Show has been issued. There will be additional special prizes.

The Annual Bulletin for 1912 will be an interesting document. This record of events of the Society is steadily in demand by libraries and students.

The correspondence up to this date shows that interest is already alive among the growers of roses to make good in New York. No flower show would be complete unless the roses were there in full force. These flower shows are very effective as "trade getters" in this wise: The fame of them goes broad cast. In the city of New York within a radius of twelve miles from the location of the Grand Central Station where the show is to be held, are 5,000,000 people, and to cultivate the taste of this great population is the effect.

There is a place in popular favor for the small roses. The Rambler is becoming more and more in evidence the country over. During the growing season, this class of roses, if you look for them, you will find frequently in the small door-yards of the cities. They do look pretty.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

AN UNIQUE HONOR FOR GEORGE DICKSON.

The National Rose Society of England at their December meeting by unanimous vote awarded the Dean Hole Memorial Medal to George Dickson, as head of the firm who in the opinion of the members of this famous society has done most for the rose. The personal friends of Mr. George Dickson and the many friends of the firm in this country will certainly be glad to learn of this signal honor.

George Dickson entered upon his eighty-first year in July, 1912, and while relieved from active work by his sons he is still greatly interested in the annual introductions of his firm—Alexander Dickson & Sons, Ltd., of Belfast and Dublin, with nurseries at Newtownards, County Down, Ireland.

Mr. Dickson has been certainly very fortunate in having the assistance and

MR. GEO. DICKSON

of Messrs. Alex. Dickson & Sons, Ltd., 55, Royal Ave., Belfast, Ireland.

hearty co-operation of his six sons. Of these sons Messrs. Alexander and George Dickson are now the hybridizers and growers of new roses at Newtownards; Thomas is manager of the farms, while Andrew is manager of the rose gardens at Dublin. Hugh Dickson, well known as an expert both in sweet peas and culinary peas, is manager of the seed business. The legal end of the business is under the able control of Gordon Dickson, solicitor in Belfast, who a few years ago protected the right of the name Alexander Dickson by securing letters patent for the distinctive name "Hawthorn" as applied to roses, plants and seeds.

The accompanying portrait of Mr. George Dickson will be interesting, not only to his many personal friends in America, but also to thousands of florists who have grown Killarney, Liberty, Mrs. Jardine and Melody. The lovely "Fireflame" about to be introduced will still further advance the prestige of the premier rosarians.

NIAGARA

One of the wonders of the GLADIOLUS world

In type the variety resembles "America," but the flowers appear to be somewhat larger, measuring $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches across. In color the flowers are a delightful cream shade with the two lower inside petals or segments blending to canary yellow. The flower spike is very erect and stout and is wrapped with broad, dark green foliage. The variety is evidently destined to lead in the cream colored varieties.

Awards. 1911—Certificates of Merit from Mass. Hort. Society, Boston, and Dutch Bulb Society at Haarlem, Holland. 1912—American Gladiolus Society, open class award for finest yellow.

Among the garden peas sent out by Alexander Dickson & Sons are Pilot, the largest podded first-early smooth pea, and Royal Salute, the most popular of all large-podded late peas in England. Among the sweet peas are Florence Nightingale, Irish Belle and Vermilion Brilliant, all three deservedly popular in America.

BRITISH HORTICULTURE.

Carnation Show.

The winter show of the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society, held in London on December 4th, was the best exhibition which has been arranged by the society. The challenge cup presented by the American Carnation Society for an exhibit of American novelties was awarded to H. F. Mason, who showed some splendid vases of Dorothy Gordon, Gloriosa, and White Wonder. A comprehensive display was made by C. Engelmann, who showed, amongst others, Golden Ray, Beacon, Lady Northcliffe, Lady Meyer (a new rose pink), May Day, Carola, Rex, Empire Day, and Princess Charming. A large gold medal was awarded. Stuart Low & Co. made an attractive display with some meritorious new introductions, comprising Baroness de Brien, bright salmon pink; Rosette, the new American variety; Marchioness of Linlithgow, pure white; Geisha, yellow; Cinnabar, old rose terra-cotta; British Triumph, crimson; Regal, mauve (gold medal). W. Lawrenson had some good samples of Snowstorm, a pure white, with fringed petals and long stiff stems. This received an award of merit.

Other Notable Exhibits.

A. F. Dutton, Felton & Sons, Allwood Bros., H. Burnett, Young & Co., G. Lange, Cutbush & Sons, all made extensive exhibits of novelties and standard varieties. During the show a conference was held in which several of the leading growers took part. W. H. ADSETT.

Burpee's

"SEEDS THAT GROW"

Are supplied each season direct to many more planters than are the seeds of any other brand. BURPEE'S SEEDS are known the world over as the best it is possible to produce, and are acknowledged the American Standard of Excellence.

In thirty-six years of successful seed selling we have introduced more Novelties that are now in general cultivation than have any three other firms. We produce Selected Stocks upon our own seed farms in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and California, while FORDHOOK FARMS are famous as the largest trial grounds in America. No Government Experimental Station attempts such complete trials each season, and the information here obtained is of incalculable benefit to planters everywhere.

Each season we travel more than thirty thousand miles to personally inspect our growing crops and yet never travel a single mile to solicit an order! We ask, however, that you allow our SILENT SALESMAN to have your careful attention in the quiet of your own home.

Simply send us your address plainly written and kindly state where you saw this advertisement. Then by first mail you will receive

The Burpee-Annual for 1913

A bright new book of 180 pages, it pictures by pen and pencil all that is Best in seeds, and tells the plain truth. While embellished with colored covers and plates painted from nature it is A SAFE GUIDE,—entirely free from exaggeration.

Shall we send you a copy? If so, write TO-DAY! A postal card will do,—and you will not be annoyed by any "follow-up" letters.

Burpee's Blue List for 1913

The most complete catalog published for MARKET GARDENERS, TRUCKERS and FLORISTS. For the planter who "knows" it contains complete lists of all that is best in vegetables and flowers, while the grower who is uncertain as to the best varieties suited for his purpose may be guided by the bull's-eye placed after what is known to be best. In addition full descriptions are given many new and most valuable varieties.

BURPEE'S BLUE LIST FOR 1913 contains 148 pages with hundreds of half-tone and engraved illustrations. Within the pages of this catalog we have condensed an experience of thirty-five years both in handling and the actual growing of seeds.

If you garden for profit (that is, sell your products in the market) you are entitled to a copy of this complete and easily understood catalog, but if you are a private planter please do not ask for a copy, as we must protect the Market Gardener, Trucker and Florist.

BURPEE'S "RED LIST"

Is mailed to Dealers Only  To obtain this catalog it is necessary to write on business stationery or enclose a card showing that you buy seeds to sell again—and not only in large quantities for your own planting. We always protect the Trade!

Seed House Gives Insurance.

The employees at the Burpee Seed House, Fifth and Buttonwood streets, when each of them was given a Christmas card found it was accompanied by a life insurance policy for an amount equal to a year's salary of the recipient, the sums ranging from $500 to $5,000. The presentation took place at the noon hour in the rest room, Mr. Burpee and Howard M. Earl, another member of the firm, handing out the certificates.

The insurance was issued through the Equitable Life Assurance Society through its special agent, Frederick G. Jones, and is on the "group plan." Mr. Jones said to the employees as they gathered to receive their policies:

Mr. Burpee believes that man and women cannot do their best work if their mind is distracted by fears for the future of those dependent upon them for support, and his Christmas gift to you helps you to solve this problem by creating an estate for each equal to one year's wages, and available when most needed, that is, when wages cease at death.

W. Atlee Burpee, the founder, and Howard M. Earl have been planning along this line for some time, and propose to supplement today's generous gift with further permanent benefits, such as endowment policies, old age pensions, etc.

After the policies had been distributed, Mr. Burpee, with his two sons, David and W. Atlee, Jr., passed out 2000 bright new silver 25-cent pieces to as many eager lads who were formed in line by several policemen. The boys were prevented from "repeating" by being required to present tickets for their quarters.—Philadelphia Record, December 25, 1912.

Notes.

Clarinda, Ia.—The A. A. Berry Seed Co. is building a 40x50 foot, three-story warehouse.

Waterloo, Ia.—The Galloway Bros.-Bowman Co. have completed a new warehouse. It is a two-story, cement block building 48x60 feet, with basement.

Milwaukee, Wis.—G. H. Hunkle & Co. have purchased the business of the Wernich Seed Co., 27-29 Juneau avenue, and will use the building as a warehouse.

W. Atlee Burpee's holiday souvenir to his friends in the trade this year is a dainty nicked buttonhole bouquet holder. It is not only useful but suggestive, for everybody who gets one will be constantly reminded that he should have a boutonniere. Which is good for the business.

table seeds, hardy roots and plants, garden implements, etc., and superbly illustrated in a style seldom attained in American seed catalogues. The cover is white with a sweet pea design in green, red and gold. A wire attachment for hanging up the book is an innovation that many will appreciate.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York. Everything for the Garden, 1913—This, one of our most prized annual visitors for many years, has come promptly to hand among the earliest of the "early birds." It is resplendent in dress of white and gold within which are framed two beautiful formal garden scenes in bright colors. Among the illustrations which adorn the two hundred pages of garden instruction are six in colors. The half tone cuts are fine and the typographical work excellent. The "novelty" pages are full of interest as usual.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—Burpee's Annual for 1913. "The Plain Truth About the Best Seeds That Grow," 37th year. A portrait in natural colors of the brilliant new Spencer sweet pea, "Stirling Stent," adorns the front cover and on the rear page is a tempting illustration of Burpee's new "Spicy" cantaloupe. There are full-page color pictures of new Dwarf Giant tomato, superb new hybrids of Dimorphotheca aurantiaca, five of the finest new Spencer sweet peas and a page of eight elegant wrinkled peas. Many tested novelties are listed in both vegetable and flower seed sections.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass.—Farquhar's Garden Annual, 1913. The most attractive catalogue this enterprising house has issued. The covers bear beautiful drawings in colors of two of the handsomest of the recent shrub introductions—Azalea Kaempferi and Buddleias variabilis Veitchiana and variabilis magnifica. A feature of the contents is the remarkable list of new and rare plants from the wilds of China, of which this firm has with far-sighted enterprise and at very great expense secured a control.

CHRISTMAS JOTTINGS FROM CHICAGO.

Mistletoe was in unusual demand and wholesalers generally sold out early.

Wreaths of statice and ruscus were found to meet with favor among Christmas shoppers.

Retailers were offering five dollars per night to makers of holly wreaths and could not get enough help.

It was evident that the shipping trade makes possible the highest prices as there was a decided drop as soon as the shipping was over.

There was no lack of Christmas trees and the public purchased as freely as ever. Very symmetrical trees three feet and over were sold in the ten-cent stores.

Holly will be left over in quantities. There were too many boxes of poor grade put upon the market that would not sell at any price. Good holly was plentiful and no doubt more would have been sold could holly workers have been secured.

Plant novelties were few, but there was one noteworthy offering seen here for the first time at the holiday season. It was funkia, brought to its best and its variegated foliage made a beautiful addition to both the small basket and the more pretentious hamper. It proved a successful venture.

One of the holiday standbys that has lost none of its popularity is the holly wreath. The wholesalers displayed their "help wanted" signs to the last, trying to make up enough to fill orders and the retail stores had all the orders they could fill without a moment left to make up wreaths for general stock. Wreaths were considerably varied in size and many orders called for a bunch of ilex on one side instead of the older bow of red ribbon, but they were wreaths of live holly and customers showed their appreciation of the one natural and low-priced article with old-time associations.

Flower Market Reports

BALTIMORE The Christmas trade seems to have been better this year than in preceding years. The weather during the past week was ideal, warm and clear, and no extra wrapping of cut flowers and plants was necessary. All the plants were fine, especially poinsettias, begonias and azaleas. Cut flowers notwithstanding the advance in prices, are selling better than in former years, and the stock is of extra fine quality. Roses are excellent, but there is no abundance of them. Carnations and violets are plentiful and good. Bulbous stock is abundant with a light demand.

BOSTON It was a glorious Christmas for all; growers, wholesalers and retailers all tell the same story for the Boston trade. All this, notwithstanding the fierce snow blockade which intruded its unwelcome presence on the 24th, and made havoc with the delivery service generally. The retail dealers say that the storm did not hurt them any as far as the sales were concerned, but only in the transportation. In fact, judging by the crowds that packed all the city stores, there was all the business that could possibly be accommodated, and this with an army of extra helpers, some of them not any too good. The plant people were all cleaned up several days ahead of the big holiday. The retail people disposed of everything, azaleas alone excepted and these only because they were inferior—mostly green leaves with a few stubby blooms and not fit for any useful purpose. The best seller of all was the poinsettia and of this standard Christmas plant there was a genuine famine at the wind-up. As usual the plant trade prospered at the expense of the flower trade in so far as the latter was handicapped by prices that the public would not stand for. The cut flower trade was by far the biggest and best on record. Prices asked before the holiday were well maintained on everything that showed acceptable quality. The items most affected by the raise were roses and carnations and, in each case, the red varieties were the sprinters. No evidence of salting were seen and no criticism of the quality generally can be justly made. Never before have carnations held their ground so well up to and through the special demand as they did this year. Retail buyers were unwilling to pay the price in many cases, however, and whether it be regarded as desirable or otherwise, the fact remains that many an azalea was sold to parties seeking carnations because of the price asked for the latter. In this connection it is well to remember that the money for growing the azalea goes across the Atlantic. The wholesale market did not show the surplus that was feared by many. The retail buyers seemed courageous and bought freely and fairly and showed a disposition to take a chance on their own account, so no fault can be found in that respect this year. This confidence in the ultimate result was well placed, for once, and none of those who invested can offer any reason for complaint. All the stores are like dismantled barracks on the morning after the fray. Much trouble and loss was occasioned to the large handlers of greens through a rigid enforcement of the moth quarantine rules locally, but more particularly in the case of Canadian shipments, the Dominion government having put on restrictions much more drastic than the Federal laws.

CHICAGO A most satisfactory holiday trade has been experienced by wholesalers up to this date, Christmas eve, the great bulk of which has been shipping.

Prices held up to previous quotations with very few exceptions and Saturday, Sunday and Monday all hands were kept busy till well into the night. All kinds of stock cleaned up and the arrivals of Monday and Tuesday were expected to be needed for local trade. This was something of a disappointment for the high prices turned much of the demand into the hands of the dealers in greens and prepared stock and sales of cut flowers lagged on Tuesday, even when lower prices prevailed. It is too early to speak the final word, but the retailers have a stock of blooming plants tempting enough to appeal to anyone and larger than ever before, and indications are that sales in plants, which have steadily increased each year, will be a record breaker this season. Some tulips, daffodils, narcissus, quantities of stevia, plenty of cut poinsettias, paper whites, lily of the valley, etc., were added to the supply of roses and carnations and afforded plenty of choice. Carnations remained till Tuesday the most scarce of all, stock and prices held firm from $6 to $12, according to grade and color. Indications now are that there will be more than can be used to advantage for the first time this season, though Christmas morning may find the market brisk enough to take care of all the carnations that accumulate Tuesday. Very few chrysanthemums were left for Christmas and were not popular with customers.

Flower Market Reports

Any attempt, at this early moment, to make an average estimate of the extent and character of the holiday trade in this widespread market would be abortive. Each individual in the vast aggregation has his own experience, his own views and his own criticisms—some apparently justifiable and others simply chronic from year to year. Suffice it to say, for the present, that the plant growers and the plant dealers found the retail people ready to meet them "on the ground floor," and the public, on their part, were equally on the job with the retailers, so that the plant trade was a record-breaker. The cut flower supply was ample in most items and in quality was the best, probably, ever offered. There was some "cold storage" stock, of course, which brought only "cold storage" prices, but, as a general proposition, the stock sent in to the wholesale market was excellent and good prices were maintained until Tuesday, when, as might be expected, the tendency was decidedly downward. All the late received shipments had to submit to this reaction and some things—American Beauty, for instance—had shrunk in value about 50 per cent by Thursday A. M.

At this writing (Dec. 24) the market is bare of everything except pink roses. There is a plethora of Marylands and Killarneys, especially in the better grades, fancies and specials. Last year it was the lower grades. A complete turn around this year. Flower growing certainly is a queer proposition. No man can ever tell from past experience what is going to happen next year—which fact pleases your scribe. There is a glorious and delightful uncertainty about it that makes the know-it-alls shut up for at least a little while anyway. Carnations very scarce. Where they were cutting 2000 last year they are cutting 200 this. American Beauty has held its own better than last year. Instead of going down as expected, it keeps firm at starting prices. Cattleyas also have made a noise like a bang and have doubled up in value. The heavy snowfall which began on the 23rd interfered greatly with transportation, but, on the whole, it was a great Christmas, both for the cut flower and the plant men. Very little went to waste in any line and good prices were realized—in fact, better than was expected. Among the retail flower stores the Christmas trade was fine up to the day before—when the storm came and hurt things considerably; kept the folks indoors and hampered deliveries. We have heard it on all sides: "Oh, if that old blizzard had only held off one more day!" There is generally some "fly in the ointment" and perfect bliss is seldom vouchsafed—even to the Tam O'Shanter. "Kings may be blest but Tam was glorious, O'er all the ills of life victorious!"

ST. LOUIS

The market for Christmas has all the indications of being a good one. With fine weather stock could not be held back, so during the last week extra good consignments came in every day and the demand used it all up. There is an abundance of most things for the Christmas call. Prices are high but doubt is expressed as to whether they can be maintained. Next week's report will tell the tale.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

We have been favored this week by a visit from John Walker of Youngstown, Ohio, an old-time Philadelphian whose laugh is still perennial and as hearty as ever. No trolley wreck can knock that laugh out of John.

Another welcome visitor was our good friend Brown from Richmond, Va., who was intercepted by George Anderson the best shot of this vicinity. And by all accounts he had a royal good time. The bald heads, according to George, are the people with brains.

Dennis T. Connor is back to his old love—the Lord & Burnham Co. We wish him well—and bespeak for him and his good firm, the respectful consideration of the trade in all their new enterprises.

The Rice Company request us to say that they cordially appreciate the splendid support they have received from the readers of HORTICULTURE during the past year and that they are one and all on the job to do bigger things during 1913.

Ernest Thomas, late of Girard College, late of Craig's, late of Lompoc, Cal., is now at Buena, N. J., having had to come East again for family reasons—and is now open for new worlds to conquer. We hear of various firms who are eager for him. Ernest will make good whoever gets him. All his old employers and associates think a lot of Ernest—with good reason.

Never in our journeys around the flower stores of Philadelphia have we found them busier or better decorated than this year. Pennock Bros., especially, were to the front with a most magnificent display of made-up baskets. They were one glorious dream—and one of the finest exhibits of how to separate the wealthy Philadelphian from his money that we have seen in our twenty-four years' sojourn in this good old burg.

THE MISSION OF THE NURSERYMAN.

Paper read by C. S. Harrison of York, Neb., at the annual meeting of the Minnesota Horticultural Society in Minneapolis, Dec. 3, 1912.

Ours is the most ancient and honorable of all the callings. Our first parents were put in the Garden of Eden "to dress it and keep it." All went well till they got to stealing apples, when they lost their place. The moral of this is, the nurseryman must be honest.

What wonders have been accomplished by our horticulturists. They found bleak and wind-swept prairies and they have transformed them. Groves, orchards and windbreaks have testified to their enterprise and persistence.

There is something in the business, however, besides chasing the dollar. The nurseryman should be a teacher. Too often he lets Tom, Dick and Harry carry on his business and he does not raise what they do not call for. The average man does not know much about floriculture and horticulture. He needs information. The horticulturist should give it. He should himself be the kite and not the mere tail of the kite. New things of great merit come out but you cannot get him to touch them. It is his business to make a call. That is what he is for. He has no right to degrade his calling by keeping everlastingly in the ruts. We have passed the pioneer stage and now comes the period of home adornment. Our slogan should be "Beauty is wealth;" raise a lot of it and be rich.

The average farmer knows little of the beautiful things which embellish the home. He needs information and you should give it. It is the province of the horticultural and agricultural papers to enter on a campaign of publicity and give wide information to these things. It is easy to understand the value of beauty. You build a house like a barn and nobody wants it. Make it a poem in architecture and everybody wants it. I saw a team of beautiful chestnut horses at Bennington, Vt., which cost $40,000. Of course $39,000 was for beauty and style. Perhaps for $300 you could have gotten a team of plugs which could go as far in a day as they could. Your shorthorns, beautiful and symmetrical in form as if laid out with a square and compass are worth ten times as much as scrubs of the same weight. A farm, beautifully adorned with an ideal front yard is worth far more than the yard which is a hospital for sick pigs and disabled machinery.

Horticulture is in a transition state. Nurserymen find themselves stocked up with millions of apple trees they can't sell. The great Stark Company have dissolved and one of them is going into ornamentals on a large scale. Sooner or later you must come to it. You people of the northern states do not realize your condition. There are compensations for your long, cold winters. Spring comes and the whole land awakes to a beauty unknown elsewhere. California cannot compare with Minnesota in the beauty and fragrance of her flowers. Peonies cannot grow there and what marvelous displays they give you at your summer meetings! We must hammer along the lines of the development of our perennials. I repeat if there are no calls, make them.

A few years ago we had a splendid lot of peonies. No call for them. "They are the old ill-smelling 'pinys' our grandmothers raised." Your speaker was the first to publish a peony manual, the first in any language. The first edition cost $75. A man in Minneapolis borrowed a copy and bought $150 worth of peonies. A lady in Topeka read one and bought $25 worth. We were just closing business in the fall when an order came for $200 worth. The first edition went and we issued another. We raise a good many but this year we had to buy about $1,500 worth. One year we purchased $1,600 worth besides what we could raise. You must enter upon a campaign of publicity.

Here is the coming flower, the iris. You speak of it and you are met with objection, "Oh, it is nothing but the 'flag' which grew in the swamp down east." People know nothing about this resplendent flower, named from the goddess Iris, the rainbow personified. She took all the prismatic tints of the rainbow and wove them in garments of splendor for her child.

I have been to California, the land of flowers; to Rochester, the garden of America. I have visited the estates of the rich in the east, and have been in the finest parks, but I never saw anywhere so much beauty, splendor and loveliness as people saw in our iris garden. They are the finest drought resisters we have. Last season we had but six inches of rain in five months. It was awful. Dry with hot winds blowing like the blast of death, but we did not lose an iris. Last winter will long be remembered for its terrible cold and fearful storms, yet not an iris died, though unprotected. By a careful selection they will bloom nearly two months. They are ideal flowers for the town and farm. They are cheap. They multiply about ten in two years. I get letters from nurserymen "they are fine but there is no call for them." Then make a call; it is your business. There is more money in them than anything else you can handle.

We want publicity. It is time for our editors to help along. Too often you send in an article on home adornment or give them a description of some worthy flower and the article comes back to you "no call for it." Plenty of room for the barn-yard but no space for the front-yard. I took an article to an editor once and he shook his head, "I see this is a blind ad. You ought to get $100 worth from it." Said I, "You publish it and I will give you a paid ad. besides and I will give you every cent of what I sell from both." He accepted. I never got even a nibble. Why? It takes a good deal of pounding to break the ice.

I placed an ad. in our leading agricultural paper. It cost $250. I got one lonely $8 sale from it. In another prominent paper I put $300 and got $30 out of it. Why? People were not familiar with the stock advertised. The editors were too fearful of blind ads. to give space for needed articles. Did I send any more ads. to these papers? Nay verily, and I will not until they get their eyes open. They, by their narrow policy are killing the fabled goose. On the other things they are all right. Take the hen. How they have magnified and glorified her, and made a queen of her. Take up any agricultural paper and column follows column. There is line upon line iteration and reiteration. Direction following direction till the wonder is how the poor hen gets a chance to lay an egg. But she does and the more she lays the higher the price. And the proud rooster from early morn till dewy eve sounds the praises of his harem. And the editor turns in and crows to beat the rooster and then cackles to beat the hen. What tons upon tons of literature the hen gets! What a pity that just a little of the attention and affection given her could not be transferred to these queens of loveliness, the peony, the iris, the phlox and the columbine!

Our editors have added millions of dollars to our dairy interests by showing the difference between poor and good cows. Two farmers live side by side. One keeps twenty cows, the other has only eight, but he sells more milk and butter than the other. The queens of the dairy have come to the front. They and their progeny bring fabulous prices because they are worth it. We need the same attention the cattle receive. It will pay. Millions of dollars are held in abeyance for lack of information. Besides our ornamental shrubs and perennials there are two trees which are going to push their way to the front. They are the Japanese and Chinese tree lilacs. They are trees. They bloom in June. I like the Chinese the best. There is one in front of my house, sixteen years old from seed, which is seven inches through a foot from the ground and twenty feet tall. It was flooded with a great mass of snowy white, honey-scented flowers. Thousands of seedlings are now being offered at $5 per hundred but the reply comes "no call for them."

The nurseryman should help along the advancing wave which is surely coming. He should buy and plant hardy things of real merit and get acquainted with them and have his agents understand them also. He should insist that papers that carry his ads. should enter on a campaign of publicity and give the front yard as good a show as they do the barn-yard.

OUT OF THE GINGER JAR.

One of our delightful daily experiences is to be decorated with white heather and violets for our morning stroll down Chestnut street. This usually happens at 1514 where Liddon Pennock, Bart Cartledge and Charles Kahlert hold sway. They love to do it and say: "there you are—violets blue, for the true love true; white heather for the good luck and the purity; if you don't get some good orders now, George, there's something wrong with those grass seed men!" But I never have the courage to put it up to the grass seed men that way. "Samples, samples, samples; let's see them! We are business men!" No time to listen to a pleasant story or whiff of my heather and violets. I'm a business man too; but I really do wish the fragrance of things—the glorious morning and the sunshine—would illumine my melancholy compeers.

Count Burpee out of the foregoing paragraph. No man who is capable of producing the poetry of produce like Burpee in his latest book, should be classed in the melancholy clan. On the contrary, we consider him one of the greatest of poets. We have all heard the same truths about seeds before, but never in the same mellifluous language. He is a genius with the gift of telling a common thing in such a way as to make you sit up and take notice and sit down delighted. So different from the Watts doctrine:

"My thoughts on awful subjects dwell, Damnation and the dead of hell!"

—Watts 247.

ERECTED AT IRVINGTON-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.

ANOTHER one of our splendid CURVED EAVE HOUSES. The owner of this beautiful Hudson River Estate instructed us to remove a house that was built by another concern and erect our PATENT CONSTRUCTION in its place. You will note that we placed the old section of house on the left. The owner now feels satisfied that in winter weather the view from the library windows will be more pleasing, as it always annoyed him to see the old house covered with ice and snow at the eave line. The LUTTON CONSTRUCTION will not retain any ice or snow and the house is just one big bubble of light. Do you wonder why it is that we erect such a large amount of glass each year, and on some of the largest private estates and public parks throughout the country.
